The Departmental fleet comprises the effective and non-effective aircraft. The effective aircraft comprise those in the Forward fleet and those in the Depth fleet. Forward fleet are those aircraft that are available to the front-line command for operational and training purposes. Aircraft defined as 'fit for purpose' are those within the Forward fleet that are considered capable of carrying out their planned missions on a given date at short notice. The Depth fleet are those aircraft which are undergoing modification, depth maintenance and repair, are in storage (including attrition aircraft), surplus aircraft awaiting classification as 'ineffective', or Trial aircraft.

Non-effective aircraft are those aircraft still on the Military Register which are declared surplus and awaiting disposal and are no longer expected to be flown.

Erskine Barracks

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to dispose of Erskine Barracks, Wilton, on the open market; and if he will make a statement. [225204]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Erskine Barracks has been identified for disposal in the Defence Estates Development Plan 2008. A small area of the site is not Ministry of Defence (MOD) freehold and this will be returned to the owner. It is anticipated that the MOD owned area will be disposed of on the Open Market, once the site has been vacated.

European Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to place the order for the third tranche of the Typhoon. [225724]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Negotiations with partner nations and industry on tranche three are continuing; decisions will be taken once these negotiations are complete.

Members: Correspondence

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons his Department has not written to the hon. Member for Thurrock with details of the plans to commemorate the 90th anniversary of the First World War's armistice on 11 November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [225397]

Mr. Kevan Jones: My predecessor wrote to the hon. Member on 25 February 2008 setting out our initial proposals. Plans for an event to mark the 90th anniversary of the Great War Armistice at the Cenotaph in London on 11 November 2008 are still being finalised but I intend to provide further information to the House next week.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Conflict of Interests

John Austin: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether any Commissioner has withdrawn from a meeting of the Commission or part of a meeting on the grounds of a possible conflict of interest in the last 10 years. [224675]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that there have been three occasions on which a Commissioner has withdrawn from discussions in a Commission meeting on the grounds of a possible conflict of interest.

In addition, the Commissioner who chairs the Boundary Committee for England always withdraws when decisions are taken on Boundary Committee reports and recommendations.

Political Parties: Finance

John Austin: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether he has made representations to the Commission about Parliament's view on the Commissions' work on political donations; and if he will make a statement. [224676]

Sir Peter Viggers: I personally have made no such representations.

The Electoral Commission is always willing to receive the views of Members of Parliament on any aspect of its work.

John Austin: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Commission is taking to ensure that all relevant information on its register of regulated donees is published on the Commission's website for the years 2001 to January 2008 including details of donations received, name of donor, name of donee, amount, type of donation and whether the donation was notified to the Commission on time. [224677]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it is required under section 69 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 to maintain a public register of donations to regulated donees. The legislation requires that the register includes the name of the donor, the amount or value of any donation and the date the donation was accepted. The register also includes type of donation. All of these entries from 2001 can be viewed on the Commission's website.

The legislation does not require that donations reported late to the Commission be listed separately in the register. However, since 20 February 2008 the Commission has published a list each month of donations to regulated donees identifying those donations reported late.

In addition to this information the Commission has also published on its website, and placed in the House of Commons Library, a list of 527 donations to regulated donees reported late since 2001.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which Commoners' Association is able to negotiate single farm payments on behalf of its members; and what progress is being made in enabling other associations to establish similar arrangements, with particular reference to Minchinhampton Commoners' Association. [222670]

Hilary Benn: At the present time Hatherleigh Moor Management Committee is the only commoners' association that has been able to claim under the single payment scheme on behalf of its members.

A number of other commoners' associations including Minchinhampton Commoners' Association have submitted requests to make applications on behalf of their members. These requests are currently under consideration.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many new cases of non-payment of Single Farm Payment claims since 2005 have been recorded in the last three months. [223902]

Hilary Benn: No new cases of non-payment of single farm payment claims since 2005 have been recorded in the last three months.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will provide financial assistance for farmers using additional fuel to dry grain following the 2008 harvest; [224148]

(2) what assistance from his Department is available to farmers who have lost their harvest due to extreme weather conditions in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [224150]

Hilary Benn: The Government have great sympathy for those farm businesses affected by the extremely wet weather that has hampered this year's harvest. However, the Government do not provide compensation for crop losses as a result of extreme weather or financial assistance for additional fuel used to dry grain.

Farmers have a range of risk and crisis management methods available, including tax averaging, diversification, some limited weather insurance, crop selection and 'self-insurance' through saving and borrowing. An increasing number of farmers are making use of such tools and DEFRA is continuing to support their take-up, including by sponsoring risk management workshops in partnership with the industry

Animals: Imports

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by what means his Department ensures that animals imported into the UK for the purposes of scientific research are free from infectious disease. [222775]

Hilary Benn: In general, there are no separate import conditions for animals imported for research purposes. They must just comply with the normal import requirements set out in the Importer Information Notes (IINs), that can be found on the DEFRA website.

Rabies-susceptible animals imported for research must be travelling to quarantine approved premises where they must remain in quarantine for six months.

The exceptions to these rules are rodents and lagomorphs (a category which includes animals such as rabbits), which when imported into the UK for research must be licensed by Animal Health and use Supplementary Certification, signed by the responsible veterinary or medical supervisor (or other appropriately qualified responsible person) of the research establishment/premises. This certification states that:

Prior to the export the rodents/lagomorphs have been in the research/breeding establishment for not less than 15 days;

The colony has been closed for not less than 15 days or the rodents/lagomorphs to be exported have been caged and separated or isolated from any new introductions for a period of 15 days;

For the 12 months prior to shipment, the rodents/lagomorphs have been kept in an establishment(s) where no case of rabies was reported for at least 12 months;

No experiments with rabies or rabies related virus have been carried out in the breeding/research establishment during the 12 months immediately prior to the date of export;

Showed no clinical signs of rabies on the day of shipment.

All of the said premises above must hold current Home Office approval and regular veterinary inspections are also required.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the UK has placed a moritorium on the importation of non-domestic animals from non-EU countries, with particular reference to South African white rhinoceroses, in advance of EU-wide agreement on the harmonisation of rules on such imports; which other EU member states have put such a moritorium in place; and if he will make a statement. [222849]

Hilary Benn: No moratorium was placed on imports of non-domestic animals from non-EU countries. I am not aware of any other member state having placed a moratorium on imports at this time. Harmonised rules on imports of such animals are currently being developed. A new EU directive 2008/73 came into force on 3 September 2008 which amends the EU legislation for imports of non-domestic animals and gives member states the powers to prepare national rules in event of no harmonised rules. Following an inquiry regarding the import of white rhinoceroses, a veterinary risk assessment was carried out, and a licence containing health conditions which the animals must meet to be eligible for import was prepared and sent to the South African veterinary authorities for agreement. We are awaiting a response.

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultation he undertook with zoos and similar institutions, with particular reference to the Cotswold Wildlife Park, prior to establishing the moratorium on the importation of non-domestic animals from non-EU countries.; and if he will make a statement. [222959]

Hilary Benn: There is no moratorium on imports of non-domestic animals from non-EU countries. DEFRA holds regular quarterly meetings with zoos and other similar institutions to discuss matters of interest. Notes of these meetings are available on the DEFRA website. At the last two meetings—one of which was prior to Cotswold Wildlife Park advising of their wish to import non-domestic animals—the development of an EC proposal for harmonised rules was discussed. Since Cotswold Park contacted DEFRA, a risk assessment has been carried out and a draft licence has been sent to the South African veterinary authorities for agreement.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent steps the Government has taken to improve the monitoring of wildlife imports; [224176]

(2) what recent steps the Government has taken to reduce illegal imports of wildlife. [224177]

Hilary Benn: Together with the Home Office DEFRA has recently approved a three-year financial settlement for the National Wildlife Crime Unit. This is a multi-agency unit which works closely with officers in Animal Health, who form the UK CITES Management Authority, and with HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) staff in the UK Border Agency.

I am confident therefore that the intelligence gathering capability and the monitoring of wildlife imports has been greatly improved and that our ability not only to monitor wildlife imports but more importantly to prevent the illegal importation of wildlife has been greatly enhanced.

HMRC is responsible for the enforcement of import and export CITES controls at the UK frontier and has a specialist CITES team based at London Heathrow airport. Profiling and targeting activities are included within the team's responsibilities to combat illegal imports. The team also makes an active contribution to work on the UK national CITES priorities.

In accordance with animal health requirements, animals have to be accompanied by animal health and public health certification as appropriate. Animals are subjected to post-import tests based on risk, taking into account the species and the country of origin.

Avian Influenza: Disease Control

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps the Government is taking to work with producers of free range turkeys to reduce the likelihood of outbreaks of avian influenza; [222385]

(2) whether his Department has consulted the (a) National Farmers Union and (b) British Poultry Council as part of the process it is undertaking to draw up best practice guidelines to reduce the risk of an outbreak of avian influenza. [222386]

Hilary Benn: The Government have published extensive advice to all keepers of poultry and other kept birds on the steps they can take to minimise the risk of introducing avian influenza to their flocks. This advice is available on the DEFRA website and in leaflet format. These messages are particularly reinforced during incidents of avian influenza. We have also invited representatives of the poultry sector to work with us on the guidance and encourage poultry keepers to consider the contingency plans needed in the event they do find themselves in a disease control area. We applaud the joint initiative by the British Poultry Council, National Farmers Union, Quality British Turkey and Golden Promise (free range Traditional Farmfresh Turkeys) to produce and distribute best practice advice on housing, sighting, management of flocks and biosecurity for free range turkeys.

Batteries: Recycling

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of spent batteries which were recycled in the latest period for which figures are available. [222739]

Hilary Benn: The UK currently recycles 90 per cent. of automotive and industrial batteries and approximately 3 per cent. or 600 tonnes, of waste portable batteries each year.

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with producers of batteries on EU Directive 2006/66 on the recycling of batteries. [222745]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA policy officials have been engaged in informal discussions with battery producers through periods of formal and informal consultation for the past 12 months. Discussions covered the various aspects of forthcoming producer obligations under the Batteries Directive and included the directive's recycling targets.

Beekeeping

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what departmental initiatives are in place to increase the number of honey beekeepers in the North East region. [223871]

Hilary Benn: New beekeepers can request a free apiary visit from their local bee inspector, who will provide help and advice. This is part of the National Bee Unit's (NBU) statutory inspection programme for notifiable diseases and pests. The NBU also provides a free comprehensive training and education programme for beekeepers to enable them to develop their skills and become more self-reliant in combating disease problems through improved bee husbandry. In 2007, beekeepers benefited from more than 26,000 colony inspections and an extensive programme of training, including over 600 technical events of which 134 were in the north east region), delivered by the NBU to help improve disease control through good apiary management.

Bees

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department is funding on the promotion of selective breeding of bees to encourage behaviour that will protect the viability of colonies. [224158]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA currently spends around £1.3 million per annum on a range of bee health measures to assist the beekeeping sector in England. There are no funds allocated specifically for research on selective breeding programmes.

However, this issue is addressed in the draft Bee Health Strategy, which has just completed its public consultation. It is envisaged that the strategy will be published in the autumn.

Bees: Diseases

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the resistance of northern brown honey bees to (a) the varroa mite, (b) foulbrood diseases, (c) colony collapse disorder and (d) small hive beetle. [223872]

Hilary Benn: No assessments regarding northern brown honey bees have been made. However, a project studying the genetic basis of resistance pathways in honey bees commenced at the National Bee Unit in 2007-08 and resistance to European foulbrood is currently being studied.

The cause of colony collapse disorder in the USA is unknown and there is no current evidence to suggest that the losses experienced in the UK are related. However, investigations into cases of colony losses this season where there is no readily available explanation are continuing as a high priority.

Research into small hive beetle is currently focussed on development of lures to facilitate early detection.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 July 2008, Official Report, columns 1772-3W, on bees: diseases; what further steps he plans to take following reports of further colony losses; [223979]

Hilary Benn: The proportion of colonies found dead at the beginning of September was 12.3 per cent. of nearly 23,000 colony inspections. This is slightly higher than at the same time in 2007. The NBU are continuing to investigate reports of significant colony losses as a high priority.

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to make infestation of beehives by the small hive beetle a notifiable condition. [224159]

Hilary Benn: The small hive beetle (Aethina tumida), is a notifiable pest under the Bee Diseases and Pests Control (England) Order 2006 (SI 2006 No.342).

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department is funding on ways to combat the varroa mite. [224160]

Hilary Benn: Funding across DEFRA and the devolved administrations on bee health in 2007-08 is around £1.9 million, including £200,000 for research and development. This overall funding includes work to develop sustainable approaches for controlling both statutory and non-statutory pests. This year research projects include work on the taxonomy of UK and exotic honey bee viruses, further details of which can be found on the science pages of the DEFRA website.

Government investment in research on varroa exceeds £2.2 million over the past 12 years. It is proven that the best way of tackling varroa is by means of a careful programme of integrated pest management, and beekeepers need to learn to control it to protect their bee colonies. The National Bee Unit assists beekeepers in improved bee husbandry, and has produced a comprehensive advisory leaflet on the subject.

The priorities for future funding will be determined in the context of developing a bee health strategy in liaison with stakeholders.

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the risk of colony collapse disorder affecting the bee industry. [224161]

Hilary Benn: The proportion of colonies found dead at the beginning of September was 12.3 per cent., based on nearly 23,000 colony inspections. This is slightly higher than at the same time in 2007. The NBU are continuing to investigate reports of significant colony losses as a high priority.

Birds: Animal Welfare

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the animal welfare implications of the types of mesh used in the construction of bird feeders; [222361]

(2) what steps his Department is taking in response to representations received on the risks of certain types of mesh on bird feeders to birds; [222362]

(3) what assessment his Department has made of the risks to birds of certain types of mesh on bird feeders; what representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [222364]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA has not carried out any research on the animal welfare aspects of the types of mesh used in the construction of bird feeders or made an assessment of risks to birds of certain types of mesh. I am not aware of any representations on this issue.

Cetaceans: Fisheries

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) dolphins and (b) porpoises died as a result of by-catch in fishing nets in UK waters in the latest period for which figures are available; and what target his Department has to reduce mortality rates in each case. [222724]

Hilary Benn: In August 2008 the UK submitted to the European Commission its annual report on the implementation of Council Regulation 812/2004 on cetacean by-catch. The report was produced by the Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU) as part of their scientific research contract with DEFRA and it summarises cetacean by-catch observations undertaken in 2006-07.

The report states that no cetacean by-catch was observed in the fleet segments designated under Council Regulation 812/2004 on cetacean by-catch in the period of 2006-07. The Annual Report of the United Kingdom to the European Commission on the implementation of Council Regulation 812/2004 on cetacean by-catch is available at:

This report also includes data on cetacean by-catch observed under the obligations of the Habitats Directive.

DEFRA and the devolved administrations' fisheries departments published the UK Small Cetacean By-catch Response Strategy in March 2003, which highlights the Government's thinking on how to tackle cetacean by-catch in certain fisheries in UK waters. An update on specific targets and progress to date on implementing the strategy can also be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/marine/fisheries/conservation/cetaceans.htm.

Coastal Areas: Land

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1005W, on coastal areas: land, what powers will be available to local communities to affect the poisoning of the coastal corridor. [224281]

Hilary Benn: The draft Marine Bill proposes that Natural England will be able to identify a coastal route and associated coastal margin around the English coast, to which there will be a right of access on foot.

The Bill requires Natural England to consult affected landowners before preparing its coastal access report which it has to submit to the Secretary of State. The report will include details of the route, of associated spreading room and of any proposals for exclusions and restrictions on access. In addition, the landowner and access authorities will be given an opportunity to make representations about matters in the coastal access reports. The final decision on the route and margin will be taken by the Secretary of State after consultation and representations have been made on any proposals from Natural England.

Cremation: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of implementing Environmental Protection guidance note PG5/2(04) on local authority crematorium fees. [222444]

Hilary Benn: The costs of implementing controls over mercury emissions, which comprise the main additional requirements of guidance note PG5/2(04), as amended in 2005, were set out in two consultation papers published in 2003 and 2004, which can be found on the DEFRA website. The 2003 estimate was £55 per cremation, which was substantially reduced when the decision was taken to apply the requirements to only 50 per cent. of cremations.

Crops

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact on farmers of the levels of rainfall over the 2008 harvest season; and if he will make a statement. [224151]

Hilary Benn: The 2008 harvest period has been one of the wettest on record with rainfall around double normal levels, which slowed progress with the harvest. The Government have taken action to help farmers in England by granting a temporary exemption from the cross compliance standard to enable them to use mechanical equipment and vehicles on waterlogged soils in order to complete the harvest. We are continuing to monitor developments closely, but it is still too early to make a full assessment of the impact of the wet weather on yield and crop quality.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222897]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA has published details of the personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its 2008 Departmental Report published on 19 May 2008.

Before November 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in Government.

Departmental Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data. [221935]

Hilary Benn: The DEFRA Survey of Public Attitudes and Behaviours toward the Environment 2007 included both ACORN and MOSAIC in the data coding to facilitate secondary analysis.

ACORN and MOSAIC datasets have also been used by third parties working on our behalf, for example, for DEFRA-funded research related to perceptions of quality of life.

Further information is not held centrally within DEFRA and to obtain this would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Home Working

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2008, Official Report, column 1079W, on departmental home working, if he will make it his policy to collate and maintain central records of home working by his Department's staff. [222461]

Hilary Benn: All staff at DEFRA can apply to work flexibly, including working from home.

As requests to work from home are submitted on an informal basis for approval within the local business area, we do not monitor applications and we have no plans to change this and collate and maintain central records.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what types of data have been sold by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [221941]

Hilary Benn: Core information produced by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) and its agencies can be re-used free of charge under the terms of the PSI Click-Use Licence which is administered by the Office of Public Sector Information in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations.

Neither DEFRA, nor its agencies, have sold any data or information under these Regulations in the last 12 months.

Departmental Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what permanent residential accommodation is provided for use by civil servants in his Department; how many residential dwellings are provided; where they are located; and for what grade of civil servant they are provided. [221936]

Hilary Benn: The Department currently holds 14 residential dwellings available for use by civil servants employed within the Department. The residential accommodation comprises houses, flats and shared residences.

With the exception of a single dwelling in Reading, the accommodation (13 units) is situated at the Veterinary Laboratory Agency research complex in Weybridge.

The provision of residential accommodation forms part of the Veterinary Laboratory Agency's key worker policy developed to support the ongoing research.

The majority of staff currently residing in Department held accommodation are at higher executive and executive officer grades, however accommodation is allocated subject to availability and based upon business need.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have been seconded to public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies in each of the last five years. [222201]

Hilary Benn: The numbers of staff that have been seconded out of DEFRA and its agencies to public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies in the last five years are shown in the following table:

	Number
2005	3
2006	3

The available data do not split the numbers between DEFRA and its agencies.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies have been seconded to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [222202]

Hilary Benn: The following number of staff have been seconded to DEFRA and its agencies from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies in the last five years:

	Number
2005	8
2006	2
2008	3

The available data do not split the numbers between DEFRA and its agencies.

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [221950]

Hilary Benn: Figures on public authority use of covert investigation techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA) are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Service Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique as, depending on the particular technique and authority using it, this could either reveal sensitivities or be misleading. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

I can confirm that DEFRA does not have the power to apply for or conduct intrusive surveillance.

Dolphins

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has commissioned on the (a) stranding and (b) death of dolphins in the last three years; and what plans he has to commission further such research. [223971]

Hilary Benn: For over 15 years, the Government have funded studies by the Natural History Museum and Institute of Zoology on trends in cetacean strandings and causes of death around the UK coastline.

Strandings data are obtained and reported by the Natural History Museum in partnership with the Institute of Zoology and Scottish Agricultural College and Marine Environmental Monitoring. Annual reports of the UK Cetacean Strandings Investigation Programme (CSIP) are available on the DEFRA website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/resprog/findings/index.htm

Under this research contract, not only are all stranded animals recorded, but post-mortem examinations are carried out on some of the animal carcasses to establish the exact cause of death. Abundance estimates tell us populations of studied cetaceans in UK waters have not changed significantly over the past 10 years.

The research conducted under this contract was renewed last April and runs until 2010 at a cost of over £1 million.

From 2000 to date, the UK has put over £2 million into researching by-catch mitigation measures and monitoring by-catch on vessels through observers, to try to identify those fisheries responsible for high levels of cetacean by-catch, and mitigation measures that are effective at deterring cetaceans over the long-term and are safe and cost-effective for the industry.

DEFRA has implemented a comprehensive system of by-catch monitoring under the requirements of the EC habitats directive and under Council Regulation 812/2004. The Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU) produces annual reports on this research for DEFRA (which are also available on the website). Furthermore, SMRU has recently undertaken research on behalf of DEFRA into the effects of a new design of acoustic deterrent device ('pingers') on porpoise and dolphin distribution. These 'super-pingers' are larger, and therefore, fewer devices are required, reducing deployment problems. We hope to have more details on the efficacy of these new pingers by spring 2009.

In addition to this work, SMRU has also undertaken a by-catch mitigation research project, which has been looking at:

Providing updated estimates of marine mammal by-catch for all relevant fishery sectors through analysis of fleet effort data; existing by-catch rate data; and through further monitoring of UK fisheries as determined under the UK's Small Cetacean by-catch Response Strategy;

Investigating the impact of by-catch and other indirect effects of UK fisheries on marine mammal populations, and exploring ways of addressing the limits to by-catch from a management perspective; and

Exploring as many research avenues as practicable to search for ways of changing fishing gear design or fishing tactics in order to minimise marine mammal by-catch.

The final report on this research project is expected to be made available publicly by the end of 2008. A new research contract on this issue has recently been agreed with SMRU and will run until April 2011.

Domestic Waste: Recycling

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the average time per year spent by a household in sorting and recycling rubbish. [224311]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: No such estimate has been made.

Domestic Waste: Waste Management

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities have reinstated weekly collections of residual household rubbish in the last 12 months (a) in whole and (b) in part for summer months according to records held by (i) his Department and (ii) the Waste and Resources Action Programme. [222870]

Hilary Benn: The information is as follows.

(i) We are aware that the following councils have made changes in the last 12 months:

Blackburn with Darwen council has re-instated weekly collections of residual waste within the last 12 months.

Following trials of an alternate weekly collection service in parts of their districts, East Cambridgeshire council and Rushmoor council have decided to retain weekly collections of refuse.

(ii) Epping Forest—operates alternate weekly collections and has re-instated weekly residual waste collections over the summer months.

Gedling—operates alternate weekly collections and has re-instated weekly residual waste collections over the summer months (June-September).

This summer City of Lincoln re-instated, on a trial basis, a weekly collection of residual waste in the areas of the city that receive an alternate weekly collection service.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities plan to end weekly collections of residual household rubbish in the next 12 months, or pilot such policies, according to records held by (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme. [222872]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA and WRAP hold no such records. The records of alternate weekly collections log what collections have taken place, but we do not have a record of local authorities' prospective plans.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221843]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA came into being in June 2001. Information on what contracts DEFRA's agencies have with EDF, and how much those agencies paid to EDF since 2001 could be provided only at disproportionate cost. From information held centrally the core-Department's financial system records the following expenditure profile with EDF:

Financial year	EDF Energy	EDF Energy Customer Field Services	EDF Energy Networks
2003-04	—	—	—
2004-05	—	—	650,904
2005-06	727,475	1,597	700,586
2006-07	1,098,560	508	329,906
2007-08	175,480	—	—

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222268]

Hilary Benn: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials. As such, the specific information requested is not held centrally, and to provide it would involve disproportionate costs.

Fisheries: International Co-operation

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the compatibility with the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea of UK fishing in the waters of Western Sahara. [223777]

Hilary Benn: Before the UK signed up to the agreement in 2006, the EU took legal advice from the United Nations. It ruled that the EU Morocco Fisheries Partnership Agreement was compatible with international law. The sea areas covered by this agreement are identical to those covered by the original agreement which was adopted in 1999.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the work of the Joint Committee established under Article 10 of the EU/Morocco Fisheries Partnership Agreement. [223778]

Hilary Benn: No formal assessment has yet been made of the effectiveness of the Joint Committee set up under the EU Morocco Fisheries Partnership Agreement. However, officials' experience of the committee to date suggests that it is a useful way of monitoring the effectiveness of the fisheries agreement with Morocco.

Fisheries: Quotas

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of fixed quota allocation units are held by companies and individuals not directly engaged in fishing activities. [224530]

Hilary Benn: Fixed quota allocation (FQA) units are associated with fishing vessel licences. Given the way the details of fishermen in possession of licences are recorded, it is not possible to accurately determine an individual or company's holding of FQA units at any given time. Gathering this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Flood Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what opportunities exist for demonstration projects to develop solutions to downstream flooding problems; what criteria are in place for funding support either by his Department or the Environment Agency; and what particular assistance may be available to communities in the Gloucestershire area because of the floods in July 2007. [222399]

Hilary Benn: The Government's budget for flood management is targeted to achieve the maximum possible benefit. DEFRA guidance directs delivery bodies to consider all options at a catchment scale to reduce downstream flooding problems. In order to encourage the adoption of such projects at a local scale, on 4 July, I announced that £500,000 will be made available to fund a project to demonstrate how land management change can reduce downstream flooding. Outline proposals were invited by 29 August with a view to selecting a number of projects for more detailed assessment before committing funding for implementation. The criteria for this project are that:

there is a recognised flooding problem that could be helped by changes proposed;

the scheme will produce multiple benefits;

project partners are able to secure the land management changes necessary; and DEFRA's funding will be supplemented by contributions from other sources where appropriate, recognising multiple benefits of the project.

In the meantime the Environment Agency is promoting and supporting catchment projects at a local level. For example, the Environment Agency recently assisted Water 21, an environmental organisation engaged by local residents, which was looking to secure funding for works in the wider Slad Brook catchment in Gloucestershire. The Environment Agency provided river and general catchment data, gave advice on the technical aspects of its work and guidance on proposed actions. The project covers a number of aspects including measures to reduce flooding downstream in Stroud.

The Environment Agency also has a proposal to construct a flood storage reservoir upstream of New Mills Trading Estate on the Slad Brook to reduce flooding in the town. The £500,000 proposal has recently been submitted to the Severn Trent Regional Flood Defence Committee for local funding in 2009-10. The project is competing against a number of other projects in the region and elsewhere. Funding is limited and the projects supported will be selected on their merits against the criteria above. We expect to make a decision in October on which project or projects will taken forward for further assessment before confirming funding for delivery in the new year.

Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of flood defences in (a) Morpeth, (b) Pickering and (c) other areas affected by flooding in September 2008. [224196]

Hilary Benn: Current flood protection varies for different parts of Morpeth, but it is estimated that the average flood defence provides protection against a one in 60 year event. The Environment Agency is currently examining temporary emergency works that may be required.

The Environment Agency is currently at the end of year one (planning phase) of a four year programme to develop a new scheme to protect Morpeth. Early indications are that an investment of between £13 million and £15 million may be required. The Environment Agency is exploring an accelerated time scale for construction of the works.

There are currently no flood defences in Pickering. However the Environment Agency has recently supported a bid for funding to look at the possibility of reducing flows in the watercourse through tree planting in upland areas.

The following schemes are examples of where effective flood defence helped communities in the recent September flood event:

Up to 21,000 homes at River Taff, Cardiff

Up to 4,600 homes at River Wye, Hereford

Up to 2,500 homes at River Rhondda, Ferndale

Up to 2,100 homes at River Birket, Wirral

Up to 650 homes at Sankey Brook, Warrington

Up to 630 homes at Cringle Brook, Manchester

Up to 400 homes at Bangor on Dee

Up to 3,000 homes In Yorkshire

Up to 650 homes on the Tees at Yarm

Up to 600 homes in York

As a matter of course the Environment Agency will be carrying out a full and systematic review of its assets. All flood defences that were tested will be inspected to ensure they meet the requirements of their design standard.

Floods: Freedom of Information

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information on areas subject to flood risk, held by the Environment Agency, is (a) freely available to the public and (b) purchasable from the Agency. [222868]

Hilary Benn: Environment Agency flood risk information can be requested under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and, in most cases, this will be free of charge.

Floods: Insurance

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of households which are not eligible for insurance against flooding; what steps the Government plan to take to assist such households; and if he will make a statement. [222509]

Hilary Benn: Flood insurance is included as standard for virtually all household insurance policies in the UK. We have no plans to subsidise flood insurance or act as an insurer of last resort, as it is unlikely to be sustainable or cost-effective for us to do so.

Floods: River Humber

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who is responsible for the maintenance of flood defences on the north bank of the River Humber. [223792]

Hilary Benn: The following table shows the responsibility for the maintenance of flood defences on the north bank of the River Humber. It details the length in metres of flood defence protection in each flood area and the organisation responsible for its maintenance.

Food Supply: Animal Feed

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of production for each (a) food stock and (b) animal feed stock type in (i) 2008, (ii) 2007, (iii) 2006, (iv) 2005 and (v) 2004; and if he will make a statement. [224149]

Hilary Benn: Information on the level of UK production of the major crop and livestock products for the calendar years 2004 to 2007, in thousand tonnes, which is published in "Agriculture in the United Kingdom", is presented in the following table. It should be noted that the figures for 2007 are provisional and 2008 data will not be published in full until around March 2009.

Certain items have food uses only i.e. fruit, vegetables, potatoes and all of the livestock products. Peas harvested dry and field beans are used for animal feed only. In the case of sugar beet and oilseed rape, these are processed to make sugar and oils respectively which are used for food and it is the by-products (pulp, molasses, meal/cake) which are used for animal feed. Cereals have a dual use for food and animal feed. The approximate proportions used within the food and animal feed sector are given in the second table.

[1] Provisional
(a) These figures only relate to UK production and do not include imports or exports.
(b) Wheat, barley and oats can be used for both food and animal feed.
(c) The by-products from these industries are used in the manufacture of animal feed.
(d) Used within the animal feed sector only.
(e) Used within the food sector only.

In terms of total domestic uses, which will take into account imports and exports, the approximate proportions of the cereals crops used within the food and animal feed sector are given in the table. The remainder covers other uses such as seed.

Higher Civil Servants

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people his Department employs on an annual salary of over £100,000. [222321]

Hilary Benn: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs employs a total of 18 staff on an annual salary of over £100,000 out of a total of 2,900 staff in the Department.

Inland Waterways: Moorings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many British Waterways licensed residential moorings there are in England; and where they are located. [222400]

Hilary Benn: British Waterways directly operates 41 residential mooring sites accommodating a total of 420 authorised residential moorings located on the following waterways in England:

	Number
Aire and Calder Navigation	6
Birmingham and Fazeley Canal	7
Birmingham Canal Navigations	87
Calder and Hebble Navigation	13
Coventry Canal	14
Fossdyke Navigation	20
Grand Union Canal Mainline	71

Litter: Fixed Penalties

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many litter clearance notices were issued in the last year for which figures are available; [222857]

(2) what proportion of fines for littering were paid in the last year for which figures are available. [222858]

Hilary Benn: 119 litter clearing notices were issued by local authorities between April 2006 and March 2007 and in the reporting year ending March 2006, this is the first year that litter clearing notices were available to local authorities to use. Litter clearing notices were introduced by an amendment to the Environmental Protection Act 1990 by the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 and commenced on 6 April 2006.

In the reporting year ending March 2006, 54.5 per cent. of fixed penalty notices for littering were paid. In the year ending March 2007, 77 per cent. were paid.

Detailed statistics about fines for littering can be found on the DEFRA website.

Nature Conservation: Cambodia, Vietnam and Laos

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if his Department will offer conservation advice and support to the Government of Cambodia to reduce the number of primates in Cambodia on the ICUN red list of threatened species; [223923]

(2) if his Department will offer conservation advice and support to the Government of Vietnam to reduce the number of primates in Vietnam on the ICUN red list of threatened species; [223924]

(3) if his Department will offer conservation advice and support to the Government of Laos to reduce the number of primates in Laos on the ICUN red list of threatened species. [223925]

Hilary Benn: The UK has not been approached to offer advice or support to the three named countries but would consider any approach if one were received.

In particular, DEFRA supports two funding mechanisms under which conservation projects in these countries would be eligible: the Darwin Initiative and the Flagship Species Fund. To date the Darwin Initiative has provided £65 million to over 464 projects around the world. This includes a project in Vietnam which has specifically provided funding for the conservation of the Hoang Lien Mountain Ecosystem, which included work on primate conservation. The Flagship Species Fund has also supported projects in Vietnam, to conserve the Tonkin snub-nosed monkey and the Cao Vit gibbon.

Peat

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the size of world peat reserves in (a) 1998 and (b) 2008. [222501]

Hilary Benn: We have not undertaken our own assessment of global peat reserves. However, there has been a recent assessment (2005-2007) undertaken by Wetlands International and the Global Environment Centre funded by the United Nations Environment Programme—Global Environment Facility.

This estimates that global peatlands cover four million square kilometres (approximately 3 per cent. of the world's land area) and is being lost at a rate of approximately 4,000 square kilometres per year. There is no comparable figure for 1998.

Pest Control: Railways

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department has had with Network Rail on the control of pests and noxious plants on Network Rail property. [223697]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA and Network Rail are members of the project board for research into potential agents for the natural control of Japanese knotweed, and both were represented at a meeting about a similar project for the control of Himalayan balsam. However, DEFRA has had no discussions with Network Rail specifically about controlling invasive non-native pests and plants or the five injurious weeds covered by the Weeds Act 1959 on its land.

Poultry: EU Law

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what stocking density maximum for broiler chickens will be used in implementing the EU Broiler Chicken Directive; and if he will make a statement. [222547]

Hilary Benn: A full public consultation will be undertaken early next year on the regulations that will implement the EU Broiler Chicken Directive, including provisions on stocking density.

Recreation Spaces

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to increase protection of public green spaces. [221828]

Hilary Benn: The planning system provides strong protection for open spaces that communities need. Planning Policy Guidance Note 17; 'Open Space, Sport and Recreation' states that existing open spaces and land should not be built on unless an assessment has been undertaken by the local authority which has clearly shown the open space or land to be surplus to the requirements of the local community, taking into account all the functions that open space can perform.

PPG17 advises local authorities to make provision for all types of public open space and expects local authorities to undertake robust assessments of local needs and audits of existing open space and to establish standards for new provision. On the basis of these assessments and audits, local authorities should plan to meet future needs of their population (e.g. linked to new housing developments) and can place standards of provision in their development plan. 'Planning Policy Statement 3 Housing' says that local planning authorities should have clear policies for the protection and creation of open space, and new housing developments should incorporate sufficient provision where such spaces are not already adequately provided within easy access of the new housing.

Where land is registered as a town or village green, the land is protected from development in perpetuity. Section 15 of the Commons Act 2006 was commenced in England in April last year, in line with commitments given during the Bill's passage through Parliament, to clarify the criteria for the registration of greens.

Part 1 of the Commons Act 2006 contains mainly registration-related provisions which allow for the registers to be updated to create an accurate record of common land and greens. Accurate registers will underpin our objective to provide for the protection and better management of commons and greens for generations to come. Part 1 is being piloted from October 2008 with a view to a staged national commencement from 2010.

Sewers: Churches

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what exemptions from charges for (a) rainwater and (b) sewage services apply to properties owned by churches; what the charitable treatment of churches is in respect of charges for (i) water run-off and (ii) sewerage services; and if he will make a statement. [218640]

Hilary Benn [holding answer 14 July 2008]: Places of public religious worship, and buildings used in connection with them, were traditionally zero rated under the rateable value system of charging, meaning that they did not have to pay surface water drainage (SWD) charges.

In 2000 the then Secretary of State issued guidance on matters to be taken into account by Ofwat in agreeing companies' charging schemes, including charging non-household users that are not businesses, including places of worship, community facilities, charities and voluntary bodies. The guidance stated that those making similar demands on a service should be charged on the same basis. It also made clear that where premises impose customer-related costs in line with or lower than those of typical households, they should be able to benefit from tariffs which reflect their small demand on the water system. It also stated that the phasing in of any large, sudden changes in charges should be considered.

Ministers are currently reviewing the impact of these changes.

Sheep: Ear Tagging

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on sheep ear tag inspections since December 2007. [223695]

Hilary Benn: From 1 January 2008 to 10 September 2008 we have spent £334,331.22 on statutory sheep and goat identification inspections.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to ensure that inspectors planning to carry out inspections of sheep tags on mixed farms take account of the farm year cycle. [223696]

Hilary Benn: The Rural Payments Agency Inspectorate plans to complete the majority of sheep and goat inspections during the winter months when livestock are more readily available for inspection. However, due to the number and geographical distribution of inspections required to be completed and competing scheme inspection pressures, a minority of inspections will be completed during the summer months. In these instances the inspectorate endeavours to work with the keeper to minimise any disruption to other farming operations. All sheep and goat identification inspections must be undertaken unannounced, in practice this means an inspector can provide a maximum of 48 hours' notice.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on services, broken down by type, in (a) Dartford Borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222445]

Hilary Benn: Services for which DEFRA has a responsibility are normally provided by local authorities and supported through formula grant administered by the Department for Communities and Local Government. Formula grant, which comprises Revenue Support Grant, redistributed business rates and principal formula Police Grant, where appropriate, is an unhypothecated block grant i.e. authorities are free to spend this on any service so long as they meet their statutory obligations. Spending decisions for the local areas mentioned are a matter for the local authorities concerned.

In addition, DEFRA provides some limited direct support to local authorities, such as small capital grants for air quality monitoring and contaminated land remediation. DEFRA also provides funding to the regional development agencies, including the South East of England Development Agency, through the Single Programme.

Full details of the funding provided by DEFRA to the local authorities named, and to the south east region as a whole, over the last five years, are available only at disproportionate cost.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222173]

Hilary Benn: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs is committed to the well-being of its employees. It has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, and these give easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

Trees: Genetically Modified Organisms

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the environmental implications of the commercial production of GM trees. [221923]

Hilary Benn: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to my right hon. Friend the Member for Oxford, East (Mr. Smith) on 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 31W.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities have received funding from the Waste and Resources Action Programme in the last two years. [222742]

Hilary Benn: The Waste and Resources Action Programme provided funding to the following individual local authorities, or local authority partnerships, during the two years of their third business plan (April 2006 to March 2008):

South London Waste Partnership (comprising Kingston upon Thames, Sutton, Croydon and Merton)

Staffordshire County Council (+ 5)

Surrey Waste Partnership (+ 3)

Western Riverside Waste Authority (+ 4)

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Waste and Resources Action Programme in meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [222744]

Hilary Benn: The Government-funded Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) sets itself targets—which are agreed with its funders, DEFRA and the devolved Governments—and these are written into each of its business plans. WRAP's fourth business plan was published earlier this year, and sets out its targets for the three-year period from April 2008 to March 2011.

The extent of WRAP's delivery against its targets is set out annually in reports which are published by WRAP, and are publicly available on its website. The next such report will be published in October, and will set out how WRAP has performed against the targets contained in its third business plan, which covered the period April 2006 to March 2008.

Prior to the publication of that report, it is possible, on the basis of WRAP's annual review for 2006-07, to report that WRAP has made it possible for the recycling industry to process an extra 5.8 million tonnes of materials per year. This consists of 4.17 million tonnes of aggregate; enough to build 83,000 new homes, 507,000 tonnes of wood, constituting 42 per cent. of the UK's domestic capacity, 495,000 tonnes of paper, 349,000 tonnes of compost, 137,000 tonnes of glass and 130,000 tonnes of plastic, enough to make 2.8 billion milk bottles.

The benefits of WRAP's work in terms of the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions (CO_2) are also significant. Since WRAP started work in 2001 it is estimated that the combined impact of its activities has saved over 1 million tonnes of CO_2 equivalent greenhouse gases—the same as taking 316,000 cars off the road. Over the lifetime of the projects that WRAP has directly supported, over 12 million tonnes of CO_2 equivalent greenhouse gases will be saved.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which councils have received funding from the Waste and Resources Action Programme's local communications fund; and how much each received. [222850]

Hilary Benn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 862W. The position is unchanged as the Waste and Resources Action Programme has not signed any new contracts since January 2008.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what external (a) public affairs and (b) public relations work the Waste and Resources Action Programme has commissioned in the last 24 months; from which companies or consultants; and at what cost to the public purse. [222862]

Hilary Benn: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) commissions external public relations agencies to communicate its research, advice and consumer campaigns to a wide range of target audiences, both business and consumer. The expenditure is predominantly in support of WRAP's national consumer behaviour-change campaigns: Recycle Now, Love Food Hate Waste and the programme to support home composting.

WRAP ensures that public relations activity is a cost-effective use of taxpayers' funds. For example, public relations spend of £36,000 to launch The Food We Waste report in May this year delivered national and regional media coverage with an advertising value equivalent of £1.995 million, equal to the entire annual communications budget for WRAP's Food Waste campaign.

Public relations material produced for the consumer campaigns provides local authorities with valuable free support to help them meet recycling and waste minimisation targets. These campaigns have been highly successful over this period: the number of 'committed recycler' households in England has increased by 3.9 million, unnecessary food waste has been reduced by more than 100,000 tonnes and almost two million compost bins have been sold through the home composting programme.

It is only possible to express expenditure by financial year, and the following figures therefore relate to the two financial years between April 2007 and March 2009.

During 2007-08, expenditure on external public relations agencies was £3.1 million, representing 4.3 per cent. of WRAP's budget for that year. In the current financial year (2008-09), the planned expenditure in this area is £2.9 million, representing 5 per cent. of the overall budget for the year. It should be noted that WRAP's 2008-09 budget is significantly lower than the budget for 2007-08, which is why the expenditure on PR agencies in 2008-09, although lower than the figure for 2007-08, represents a higher proportion of this year's budget.

The firms employed to support WRAP over this period who are currently on the roster are 3 Monkeys, Ptarmigan, Tri-Media Harrison Cowley, Camargue, Bray Leino PR, and Fishburn Hedges. Firms no longer on the roster are Pelican PR, Lawton PR, Grayling, Proteus PR, Consolidated PR, and Kinross and Render.

During this period WRAP commissioned one piece of external public affairs support. Now completed, this six-month project was to engage public policy makers and opinion formers from outside WRAP's established stakeholder groups to discuss a range of developing resource efficiency issues on which WRAP is working. Chelgate Ltd was engaged at a cost of £25,000.

Waste Disposal: EU Law

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of whether the implementation of the EU Waste Framework Directive will affect the number of councils which operate a fortnightly rubbish collection service; [222863]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the effect of the implementation of the European Waste Framework Directive on the future of weekly household collections of residual rubbish. [222871]

Hilary Benn: The forthcoming changes to the EU Waste Framework Directive, which are expected to be adopted in October 2008 and come into force towards the end of 2010, do not affect the frequency with which councils should collect household waste. That will remain, as now, a matter for councils to decide for themselves.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs representatives of which organisations attended the launch by his Department of the guidance on waste incentive schemes in London on 19 June 2008. [222867]

Hilary Benn: The following organisations attended the launch on 19 June 2008:

Friends of the Earth
County Surveyors Society
National Association of Waste Disposal Officers (NAWDO)
Nappy Alliance
Community Recycling Network UK
The Chartered Institution of Wastes Management (CIWM)
Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) Eunomia
Environment Agency
Taxpayers Alliance
GMB
Unison
Unite
Absorbent Hygiene Products Manufacturers Association (AHPMA)
Local Government Association.

Waste Disposal: Offenders

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions there have been for waste disposal offences in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years, broken down by (a) type of offence and (b) police force area. [223667]

Hilary Benn [holding answer 15 September 2008]: Information on the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for offences under section 33 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, broken down by police force area and offence in England and Wales from 1997 to 2006, is set out in the following tables. Court proceedings data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Waste Disposal: Offices

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance or advice the Waste and Resources Action Programme has produced on recycling and reducing residual waste in office environments. [222859]

Hilary Benn: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has produced two relevant sets of guidance, both of which are freely available on its website.

WRAP's Small and Medium-Sized Enterprises (SMEs) Recycling Programme was set up in 2004 to investigate a range of factors to improve and increase the level of recycling by SMEs. The programme was delivered through a range of feasibility and demonstration trials which developed appropriate recycling services, charging mechanisms, sales and marketing approaches and advice on staff involvement in recycling. The overall aim was to make recycling at work easy, convenient and cost effective. The trials were successful, and have resulted in a number of new and expanded recycling services across England and Scotland. The results have been used to develop Good Practice Guidance.

WRAP's Paper Advocacy Team was set up in 2005 to promote the benefits of using recycled paper to businesses. As well as providing direct advice to individual businesses, the team developed guidance documents, information sheets and case studies to provide more generic advice.

WRAP's website also includes a Recycle at Work section, which includes a searchable database of recycling service providers for small businesses, a step-by-step guide to how to start recycling at work, including in offices, and some case studies.

Waste Disposal: Recycling

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the volume of waste sent for recycling which is landfill in the most recent period for which figures are available. [222443]

Hilary Benn: Based on England local authority responses to WasteDataFlow covering the period October to December 2007, the tonnage of municipal waste collected for recycling, but rejected at the point of collection, during sorting or at the gate of the reprocessor and sent to landfill was 21,000 tonnes. This represents 1 per cent. of municipal waste collected for recycling in that period.

Waste Management

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance he issues on the minimum amount of waste produced within a local authority area which the local authority is required to deal with. [222719]

Hilary Benn: Section 75 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (EPA) sets out, among other things, the sources of household waste. Subsection 75(8) empowers the Secretary of State to make regulations further refining this list. These regulations were made in 1992 and are known as the Controlled Waste Regulations (CWR).

Section 45(1) of the EPA places a duty on all waste collection authorities to make arrangements for the collection of all household waste arising in the area they are responsible for.

In the case of household waste from premises covered by schedule 2 of the CWR, this duty begins when the authority is asked to collect the waste by the person holding it. Sources of household waste covered by schedule 2 of the CWR includes, but is not limited to, waste from institutions such as schools, hospitals and prisons.

No guidance specific to the quantities of household waste arising in an area that an authority must deal with has been issued by DEFRA or any of its predecessors, as authorities have no choice over how much household waste they must collect. The Department did issue general guidance on both the EPA and the CWR when those statutory instruments came into force in the early 1990s.

Waste Management: Consultants

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which organisations were consulted in the course of his Department's research project, "Balances and Energy Impacts of the Management of UK Wastes", published in December 2006; and what criteria were used to select these organisations for consultation. [222439]

Hilary Benn: An inception workshop was convened early in the project working programme, involving senior representatives from a range of organisations with expertise and knowledge in strategic waste management planning and life cycle assessment. Invitations were sent out to 42 organisations and 25 delegates met on 14 December 2005 in Birmingham. The following organisations attended the workshop: Biffa, Cory Environmental, Yorwaste, Shanks (all nominated through the Environmental Services Association), Associated British Foods, Asda, NHS, MOD, British Glass, Kraft, BAA, WRAP, DEFRA, EA, SEPA, Westminster Council, SEEDA, ERM, Golder Associates, Future Foundation, Brook Lyndhurst.

Waste Management: Domestic Wastes

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 467W, on waste management: domestic wastes, if he will publish an updated table of the local authorities which operate residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including those operating or planning to operate pilot schemes with that frequency. [222771]

Hilary Benn: The following table represents our best understanding of local authorities operating residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including pilot schemes. However, due to the often rapid changes in this area, it is unlikely to be completely up to date.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 467W, on waste management: domestic wastes, what the JPP number in the table represents. [222772]

Hilary Benn: The numbering system was devised to enable easy matching of datasets. As local authority names are recorded in different ways, e.g. London borough of Camden and Camden, London borough, it was proving difficult to match datasets based on local authority names alone, a process which was facilitated considerably by the numbering system. The letters "JPP" are the initials of the person who devised the system.

Water Charges: Religious Buildings

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will amend guidance to Ofwat on charges for water services for churches and other places of worship so as to reinstate the exemption from such charges that pertained prior to the abolition of rateable value; and if he will make a statement. [213601]

Hilary Benn: Places of public religious worship were traditionally zero rated, and therefore by default were not charged for surface water drainage under the rateable value system of charging.

In 2000 the then Secretary of State issued guidance on matters to be taken into account by Ofwat in agreeing companies' charging schemes, including charging non-household users that are not businesses, including places of worship, community facilities, charities and voluntary bodies. The guidance stated that those making similar demands on a service should be charged on the same basis. It also made clear that where premises impose customer-related costs in line with or lower than those of typical households, they should be able to benefit from tariffs which reflect their small demand on the water system. It also stated that the phasing in of any large, sudden changes in charges should be considered.

Ministers are currently reviewing the impact of these changes.

Weedkillers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, what steps his Department has taken to inform suppliers, farmers, allotment holders and gardeners of the risks associated with the use of aminopyralid. [222377]

Hilary Benn: The Pesticides Safety Directorate has issued information to a wide range of interested parties, including those holding pesticide approvals and those representing growers, suppliers and consumer and environmental interests. The directorate has also liaised closely on this matter with the National Society for Allotment and Leisure Gardeners and the Royal Horticultural Society. Information about aminopyralid is available on the directorate's website.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, what assessment he has made of the risk of further contamination of crops during the next growing season. [222378]

Hilary Benn: The Pesticides Safety Directorate suspended authorisations for the sale, supply and use of aminopyralid products from 23 July 2008, while it carries out further investigations into this problem. The suspension will not be lifted unless I am confident that the risks from contaminated manure can be effectively managed.

As regards unused manure, advice has been issued to ensure that it rots down fully and is fit for use in the next few years; or it can be disposed of as waste. Advice has also been issued on handling affected plots to speed up the decomposition of the grass in the manure. For example rotavating or digging over affected plots a number of times and ensuring the manure is turned readily. Providing this advice is followed, the risk to next year's crops should be low.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the precautions taken by (a) the suppliers and (b) the end-users of aminopyralid to ensure that it did not contaminate manure. [222379]

Hilary Benn: It is recognised that manure may become contaminated by aminopyralid following the approved use of products which contain this substance. The labels of such products therefore include conditions regarding the use of manure, to avoid damage to other crops. That other crops appear to have been damaged by manure contaminated with aminopyralid indicates that these conditions may not have been observed in all cases. The Pesticides Safety Directorate suspended authorisations for the sale, supply and use of aminopyralid products from 23 July 2008, while it carries out further investigations into this problem.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, which herbicides have (a) been granted provisional authorisation, (b) been refused provisional authorisation, (c) been granted full authorisation, (d) had provisional authorisation rescinded and (e) had full authorisation rescinded. [222380]

Hilary Benn: The following products containing aminopyralid have been given provisional authorisation:

Approval Holder	Product Name	MAPP Number
Dow Agro Sciences Limited	Banish	13766
	Forefront	12765
	Halcyon	12749
	Pharaoh	13631
	Pro-Banish	13767
	Runway	14017
	Synero	14059
AgChemAccess Ltd	Upfront	13782

In each case, the authorisation was amended with effect from 23 July 2008 to suspend approval for sale, supply and use. Approval for storage remains extant.

No products have been refused provisional authorisation, or been granted full authorisation, or had provisional or full authorisation rescinded.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, in what circumstances his Department would rescind a provisional authorisation for a herbicide. [222381]

Hilary Benn: Provisional authorisation would be rescinded if the requirements for obtaining that authorisation were not, or were no longer satisfied; or if it was granted on the basis of false or misleading information; or at the request of the authorisation holder.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, what further stages of approval aminopyralid will be subject to before it may be fully approved. [222383]

Hilary Benn: Aminopyralid must be approved for use in the European Community and included in Annex I to Council Directive 91/414/EEC, following which products which contain it must be re-registered in accordance with the conditions of that approval. If aminopyralid is not approved for use within the Community, all extant provisional authorisations will be withdrawn.

Wildlife: Conservation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to enforce legislation protecting wildlife. [221829]

Hilary Benn: The Government remain committed to tackling wildlife crime. Earlier this year they committed funding for the UK National Wildlife Crime Unit (NWCU) to secure its future for the next three years. This will enable the unit to further professionalise the enforcement of wildlife legislation, through: gathering information and evidence to compile an annual assessment of wildlife crime in the UK; gathering and analysing intelligence in support of the UK's wildlife crime priorities; and providing direct assistance to individual police and customs officers through its investigative support officers.

All incidents of wildlife crime in England and Wales are required to be recorded by the police service under the National Standard for Incident Recording, which should enable enforcers to have a better understanding of the level of wildlife crime taking place.

The Government also strengthened police powers to investigate offences under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, the Destructive Imported Animals Act 1932, the Conservation of Seals Act 1970, the Deer Act 1991 and the Protection of Badgers Act 1992, through the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006.

In April this year, the Government updated their response to the Environmental Audit Committee's 2004 report of its inquiry into wildlife crime. The update gives full information about the Government's activities in this area and is available on request from the House of Commons Library.

Wildlife: National Parks

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to maintain wildlife stocks in the national parks. [221827]

Hilary Benn: National parks play an important role in wildlife conservation and have already made a significant contribution for priority species and habitats under the UK Biodiversity Action Plan. National park authorities have been collaborating with Natural England for some years to tackle issues such as overgrazing and burning on upland sites of special scientific interest. They will continue to work together to ensure the National parks' contribution to biodiversity conservation is delivered in an exemplary way.

Wood: Waste Disposal

Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of the recommendations for incinerating waste wood put forward in his Department's research and development project on carbon balances and energy impacts of the management of UK wastes. [222495]

Hilary Benn: The findings of the study helped to inform the conclusion, set out in our waste strategy in May 2007, that wood has relatively low embodied energy (energy consumed in extraction) but high calorific value. While for some kinds of wood waste re-use or recycling are better options, its use as a fuel generally conveys a greater greenhouse gas benefit than recovering the material as a resource (and avoiding primary production).

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to consult recyclers of waste wood on the recommendations for incinerating waste wood put forward in his Department's project on carbon balances and energy impacts of the management of UK wastes. [222852]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA has a project to take forward the policy on waste wood set out in the Waste Strategy 2007. As an initial step, DEFRA published an information report 'Waste Wood as a Biomass Fuel' in April 2008, prepared in consultation with waste wood recyclers and other stakeholders.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Entry Clearances

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to extend the scheme of entry clearance operating for locally employed staff in Iraq to similar staff in Afghanistan. [225526]

Bill Rammell: The Iraq scheme was introduced in the context of a particular set of difficult circumstances including significant violence and intimidation of our Iraqi locally-engaged staff. There are no current requirements, and therefore no plans to extend the scheme to staff in Afghanistan at present, although this is kept under review. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is doing everything it can to discharge its duty of care to all staff serving in Afghanistan, within the constraints of the environment in which it operates.

Bell Pottinger

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions representatives of Bell Pottinger or Chime Communications have requested advice from his Department in relation to whether they should provide public affairs or public relations services to foreign Governments. [202352]

David Miliband: Many UK companies make contact with Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff in the UK and in our embassies overseas for advice on their operations overseas. We do not keep central records of all these contacts.

Georgia: Overseas Residence

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to ensure the safety of Britons in Georgia. [225399]

Caroline Flint: As for all countries, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office offers guidance for British nationals in Georgia and those thinking of travelling to Georgia through our travel advice. Our embassy in Tbilisi, like all of our overseas missions, has emergency plans to ensure that British nationals are offered an appropriate level of assistance. In most cases this assistance will be offered through our travel advice and responding to inquiries. If necessary, we would consider reinforcing our embassy to assist the embassy in offering the necessary assistance to British nationals.

HEALTH

Lung Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of proposals received for a feasibility study and trial development for a United Kingdom-based screening programme for lung cancer; and what further steps he plans to take. [224579]

Dawn Primarolo: Following a call for proposals made earlier this year, the National Institute for Health Research Health Technology Assessment Programme has now commissioned a feasibility study and trial protocol development for a United Kingdom based screening programme for lung cancer utilising low dose computerised tomography. The six-month study will start once the necessary contracts have been signed.

Hepatitis

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people newly-diagnosed with the hepatitis C virus in each of the last 10 years. [225271]

Laboratory reports of hepatitis C received by the Health Protection Agency—England: 1997 to 2007

	Number of laboratory reports[1]
1998	3,812
1999	4,614
2000	4,489
2001	4,153
2002	4,761
2003	5,529
2004	6,206
2005	6,234
2007[2]	7,540

[1] Corrected annual totals at August 2008. All annual totals have been revised to take into account an updated routine to remove reports, which relate to the same patient. Laboratory reports of hepatitis C are newly diagnosed cases of both current and past infections. This is because present serological tests are not able to differentiate between current acute and chronic hepatitis C infections, or between current and past hepatitis C infections.

Hepatitis: Finance

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department plans to spend in (a) the 2008-09 and (b) the 2009-10 financial year on improving GPs' awareness of the risks of contracting the hepatitis C virus and its treatment. [225270]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is currently developing its ongoing hepatitis C awareness campaign for healthcare professionals and the public for 2008-09 and beyond.

Health professionals in primary care, including general practitioners, will remain an important audience for the campaign so that they are equipped to provide patients with information and advice about hepatitis C and to offer testing where appropriate.

The Department will spend about £2.5 million (excluding VAT) on the entire campaign for 2008-09. Budgets for 2009-10 and beyond are yet to be confirmed.

Hyperactivity

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts have allocated resources to tackle attention deficit hyperactivity disorder in adults. [224608]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is not possible to state how many primary care trusts have allocated resources to address the provision of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder for adults. This is because funding for primary care trusts to deliver health care, including mental health care, to their populations is allocated on the basis of a formula that takes account of a range of factors associated with population health need.

This formula does not take account of specific diagnostic categories such as attention deficit disorder and therefore we do not have specific information on the number of trusts that have allocated resources solely to address this disorder. Diagnosis and treatment are matters for local determination and primary care trusts are expected to adhere to recent National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance on the subject.

Independent Advisory Group on Sexual Health and HIV

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what process was followed in the appointment of the Chairman of the Independent Advisory Group on Sexual Health and HIV; where the post was advertised; how many persons applied for the post; how many were short-listed for interview; whether consideration was given to a candidate's (a) political views and (b) views on abortion; how each was appraised; what criteria were adopted for each candidate; how many candidates were rejected; and if he will make a statement. [225713]

Dawn Primarolo: In appointing the chair and members of the Independent Advisory Group on Sexual Health and HIV, the Department followed the guidance on appointments to public bodies, issued by the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments. This included recruiting an Independent Assessor, who was involved in all stages of the recruitment exercise. I agreed all appointments to the group.

The post was advertised in The Times, The Guardian, medical press and minority ethnic press. Three individuals applied for the post of chair and all were interviewed. All candidates for the chair were appraised using the same three criteria, which were:

experience of successfully chairing a large committee; ability to steer a programme of work and have the ability to think strategically across a range of issues; and possess a thorough knowledge and understanding of sexual health and HIV, or related social policy.

We are unable to give information on political views or views on abortion, as such information would identify candidates.

Infectious Diseases: Vaccinations

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the vaccine industry on public health priorities in addressing infectious diseases. [225698]

Dawn Primarolo: My right hon. Friend has had no meetings with the vaccine industry since his appointment in June 2007. The Department meets with the vaccine industry on an ad hoc basis and provides submissions to my office when needed.

Mental Health Services

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people medically recommended for treatment under sections 2 or 3 of the Mental Health Act 2007 could not be admitted to hospital due to shortage of beds during the last year for which figures are available, broken down by mental health trust area. [222500]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected centrally.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2008, Official Report, columns 345-6W, on the National User Forum on Mental Health, what discussions have taken place with service users on the replacement for the national service framework for mental health from 2009. [224891]

Phil Hope: Work on replacing the national service framework is being developed through the 'New Horizons' programme which began with a national event in November 2007. User and carer involvement is a key element.

An encouraging number of service user and carer representatives attended the four regional forums that have taken place and representatives have been invited to and are expected to attend the forum taking place in the east midlands later in October 2008.

'New Horizons' will also take full account of the visions set out recently by the 10 strategic health authorities as part of the Next Stage Review, and by various key stakeholders, such as the coalition that produced 'A New Vision for Mental Health'. All of these have involved, and continue to involve, users and carers.

NHS: Dental Services

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were on waiting lists to register for an NHS dentist in (a) Ribble Valley constituency, (b) Lancashire and (c) England in each year since 2000. [225519]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not collected centrally. It is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to determine how best to manage patients seeking national health service dental services.

However, increasing the number of patients seen within the NHS dental service is now a priority in the operating framework for the NHS in England 2008-09. We have supported this with an 11 per cent. uplift in overall dental allocations to PCTs from 1 April 2008. Copies of the operating framework have already been placed in the Library.

NHS: Eyesight

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received corrective laser eye surgery on the NHS in (a) Ribble Valley constituency, (b) Lancashire and (c) England in each year since 2000. [225521]

Dawn Primarolo: Corrective laser eye surgery is not carried out routinely on the national health service other than for exceptional clinical reasons and these will be very rare. The Department does not collect data broken down by this specific group.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the monies allocated to the reduction in the numbers of people with learning disabilities living in NHS campus-style accommodation will be distributed. [225423]

Phil Hope: To support the programme to close national health service campus-style services, £96 million in revenue grant and £175 million in capital grant was made available for three years; 2008-09, 2009-010 and 2010-11.

The revenue grant has been targeted on local authorities (LAs) where campuses are currently or have previously been located to ensure that the money is used to help more people into appropriate supported accommodation. LAs were invited to bid for funding for the grant.

The LAs that applied for the grant and were successful in their bid, will have their grant monies paid as a single payment on 1 June of the financial year to which the payment relates, or as soon after that as reasonable practicable. The total allocations for the revenue grant were £14 million in 2008-09, £31 million in 2009-10 and £51 million in 2010-11.

In addition, there is a three-stage bidding process in place for LAs and primary care trusts to bid for capital funding. Stages 1 and 2 of this programme have been completed and a total of £48 million over two years (2007-08 and 2008-09) has been allocated to help up to 700 people with a learning disability move to alternative accommodation in the community. An expert panel assessed the joint bids to decide on the allocations; this panel included a person with learning disabilities and a family carer.

Pregnant Women: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department plans to take to improve public awareness of foetal alcohol spectrum disorder; [224697]

(2) if he will (a) make foetal alcohol spectrum disorder (FASD) a core subject in training for new doctors and other medical professionals and (b) design and implement a catch-up training programme on FASD for medical professionals already in practice, with particular reference to (i) general practitioners, (ii) midwives, (iii) mental health workers and (iv) those working in paediatrics; [224698]

(3) if he will list the steps his Department plans to take to increase awareness of the dangers of drinking during pregnancy; [224699]

(4) if he will take steps to improve the awareness of foetal alcohol spectrum disorder (FASD) amongst (a) LEA members, (b) local authority members and (c) others responsible for decisions on the allocation of public funds in order to ensure appropriate future provision of funds to deal with FASD. [224700]

Dawn Primarolo: In early 2007, the four United Kingdom Chief Medical Officers considered the need for consistent advice across the UK on pregnancy and drinking alcohol. Following this, the Department's advice on drinking before and during pregnancy was revised and published in May 2007.

In March 2008, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published advice for health professionals on the treatment and care of women during pregnancy. This includes advice on drinking alcohol.

The Department's advice is that pregnant women and women trying to conceive should avoid drinking alcohol and that, if they choose to drink, to minimise risk to the baby, they should not drink more than one to two units of alcohol once or twice a week and should not get drunk.

The NICE guidelines emphasise the importance of avoiding alcohol completely during the first three months of pregnancy, the key time for organ and nervous system development.

The Department is working with the alcohol industry to include information about drinking when pregnant on alcohol labels. This voluntary agreement with the alcohol industry, announced in May 2007, is to include unit content and daily guideline information on labels. The Department expects that advice to women to avoid alcohol if they are pregnant or trying to conceive should also be included on most alcohol labels by the end of 2008.

In May 2008, we launched a campaign to raise awareness of the public's knowledge of units of alcohol and how they relate to today's drinks and servings—this included communication to highlight the updated pregnancy advice around alcohol consumption.

On 22 July 2008, the Department launched the Government's alcohol consultation, asking for the views of the public and key stakeholders on what action the Government should take in response to the rising levels of alcohol health harm and crime and disorder. One of the questions that the consultation asks is whether the alcohol industry should have to include information on alcohol unit content and health on the labelling of alcohol products.

We are working with the International Centre for Drug Policy to influence the development of the undergraduate medical curriculum and embed substance misuse, including a specific module on alcohol identification and brief advice, within the curriculum. This includes working with the Deans of the 24 English Medical Schools, who are all independent and set their own curriculum. The aims for undergraduate medical students are that:

students should be able to recognise, assess and understand the management of substance misuse and associated health and social problems and contribute to the prevention of addiction;

students should be aware of the effects of substance misuse on their own behaviour and health and on their professional practice and conduct; and students' education and training should challenge the stigma and discrimination that are often experienced by people with addiction problems.

In spring 2008, we announced funding to develop the implementation of the curriculum and the training of new doctors, including, as a core priority, ensuring that future doctors will be able to recognise, assess and understand the management of alcohol misuse and its associated health and social problems, and the funding of co-ordinators in medical schools, whose roles include working with curriculum developers to ensure that the guidance is implemented and to facilitate integration of the guidance into their curricula.

Guidance, issued in April 2007, has been developed to define the aims and core learning outcomes in substance misuse, which medical students should achieve during the undergraduate stage of their basic medical education.

The guidance goes on to say specifically that on graduation students should be able to advise women on the effects of substance use, including alcohol, and the impact on foetal and maternal health. Concerning specific diseases, students should be able to describe the effects on pregnancy and on the newborn of misuse or dependence on alcohol, tobacco or illicit drugs.

Currently, there are no plans to design a "catch-up training programme" on foetal alcohol spectrum disorder for those medical professionals already in practice.

Salt

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the food manufacturing industry on the salt content of packaged foods. [225517]

Dawn Primarolo: The "Healthy Weight Healthy Lives Strategy" published in January (copies of which have already been placed in the Library) sets out as one of its key aims, a plan to "finalise a Healthy Food Code of Good practice , in partnership with the food and drink industry, and other relevant stakeholders". This code challenges the whole industry to adopt practices to reduce levels of saturated fat, sugar and salt in processed foods among other measures.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no recent discussions with the food industry on salt reduction.

Skin Piercing

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were admitted to hospital as a result of medical problems resulting from body piercing in the last 12 months. [225723]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The Health Protection Agency has investigated the prevalence of cosmetic body piercing in the general population in England aged 16 years and over and associated complications. This research indicates that most complications associated with body piercing appear to be minor and self-limiting such as local, minor wound infections and that serious complications requiring hospital admission are rare—affecting less than 1 per cent. of those aged 16 to 24 having a piercing, the group in which piercing is most common.

This research was published in the British Medical Journal (BMJ) on 13 June 2008 and is available on the BMJ's website at:

www.bmj.com/cgi/content/full/336/7658/1426?maxtoshow=&HITS=10&hits=10&RESULTFORMAT=&fulltext=body+piercing&searchid=1&FIRSTINDEX=0&resourcetype=HWCIT

Copies have also been placed in the Library.

Smoking: Counselling

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been paid to stop-smoking counsellors in the last 12 months. [224723]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The latest data on overall expenditure on stop smoking services by the national health service were published by the Health and Social Care Information Centre in 'Statistics on NHS Stop Smoking Services: England, April 2007 to March 2008'. A copy has been placed in the Library.

SunSmart

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the timetable is for rolling out the SunSmart campaign; when he plans to evaluate the effectiveness of the scheme; and by what means; [224571]

(2) what timetable is in place for gathering more information about the effects of sunbed use. [224885]

Dawn Primarolo: SunSmart is the United Kingdom's National Skin Cancer Prevention and Sun Protection Campaign, run by Cancer Research UK on behalf of the UK Health Departments. The campaign runs on an annual basis, between April and September, and activities are evaluated by Cancer Research UK on an ongoing basis including both quantitative and qualitative factors.

The Department is not currently collecting information on the effects of sunbed use. However, it is taking steps to gather information on the distribution and extent of sunbed use by young people, as mentioned in the Cancer Reform Strategy, copies of which have already been placed in the Library. A report is expected in 2009.

Tobacco

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he will respond to the consultation on proposals for the next steps in (a) tobacco control and (b) the further regulation of tobacco products. [224572]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has received nearly 100,000 responses to the "Consultation on the future of tobacco control". A summary of consultation responses will be made available on the Department's website before the end of 2008.

The Government have committed to developing a new national tobacco control strategy to build on the achievements made since the publication of the "Smoking Kills" White Paper in 1998. The "Consultation on the future of tobacco control" is the first stage in developing this new strategy. A publication date for the new strategy will be announced in due course.

Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will publish the output data from the pilot studies conducted as part of the Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services programme; [225527]

(2) what guidance he is issuing to local authorities on the implementation of the new Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services programme model. [225528]

Phil Hope: The retail model developed for community equipment met with overall approval from the sector. The outline business case was sufficiently robust to support developing the outline model to operational status. This is currently being undertaken through a shadow running process in the north west with local authority (LA) and health partners in Manchester, Oldham and Cheshire.

The shadow running process demonstrated improvements in the user experience and efficiency of the service. Cheshire and Oldham have decided to implement the model locally. This confirms that, in their areas, the new prescription processes have been demonstrated to be effective and are capable of being scaled up to support full implementation of the retail model.

The business case for a new model of delivery of wheelchair services is currently being considered by senior officials in the Department. At the present time we are unable to specify a timescale for any future decisions to be made and announced.

There are no current plans to issue guidance to LAs. LAs and health partnerships continue in their statutory duty to meet the needs of those individuals eligible for support. Retailers also continue to offer a range of services, including installation and personal advice, to those who self fund.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 259W, on antisocial behaviour, what the timetable is for implementing the provisions of the 2006 Act; and whether she plans to implement the Act before implementation of the provisions of the Community Empowerment Bill. [222780]

Mr. Coaker: We have always been clear that the implementation of these proposals must give proper consideration to the wider local accountability agenda. We are therefore keen to ensure that implementation of these provisions properly takes into account the findings of Sir Ronnie Flanagan's Independent Review of Policing, along with the proposals from Louise Casey's review "Connecting Communities with the fight against crime".

The Policing Green Paper "From the neighbourhood to the national: policing our communities together" set out proposals for improving local accountability, and specifically asks for views on how the Councillor Calls for Action might complement the broader agenda.

The formal consultation period for the Green Paper runs until Friday 10 October. Any implementation timetable for the Councillor Calls for Action will need to be developed in light of the responses received.

Assaults on Police

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many assaults on (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers there were in each of the last five years, broken down by police force area. [224291]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is collected on behalf of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC).

(a) Data for the numbers of assaults on police officers and operational police staff for 2003-04 and 2004-05 can be found in the HMIC Annual Report, available in the Library of the House and from:

http://www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/hc0506/hc08/0842/0842.pdf

These data are not available by individual rank and therefore have been provided for police officers and operational staff as a combined figure.

Data for the numbers of assaults on police officers for 2005-06 to 2007-08 can be found in the supplementary tables of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 08/08 "Police Service Strength, England and Wales", available in the Library of the House and from:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb0808supptab1.pdf

(b) Data for the numbers of assaults on police community support officers for 2003-04 and 2004-05 were not separately identifiable in the information published by HMIC and are not available.

Data for the numbers of assaults on police community support officers for 2005-06 to 2007-08 are given in the following table.

[1] Provisional data collated on behalf of HMIC. Serious assaults are those for which the charge would be under Sections 18 and 20 of the offences Against the Person Act 1861. Other assaults include those with minor or no injury. Recording practices may vary over time and between forces.
[2] Financial year runs 1 April to 31 March inclusive.
[3] Cheshire and Warwickshire were not able to provide data from the HR recording system, data are therefore taken from the crime system and are not comparable with that from other forces.
[4] Cambridgeshire, Cleveland, Cumbria, North Yorkshire and South Wales were not able to provide data for one or more years.
[5] Derbyshire in all years and Devon and Cornwall in 2005-06 only were not able to separately identify the degree of assault. All assaults figures for affected years are given in the minor or no injury category.
[6] Dyfed-Powys were not able to provide consistent figures for the reporting period, and data for each year are therefore not comparable.

Asylum

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date her Department was informed of the decision of the High Court regarding the asylum claim of Mr. A. U. of Aylesbury (ref: U 1030958/2); on what date the case was allocated to a case worker for resolution; what the reasons are for the time taken in issuing a visa to Mr. A. U.; and when she expects such a visa to be issued. [224518]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The UK Border Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 2 October 2008.

Asylum: Employment

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will bring forward proposals to allow asylum seekers to work while their status is being determined; and if she will make a statement. [224552]

Mr. Woolas: We have no current plans to change the position whereby asylum seekers are only allowed to work if they have not had a decision on their asylum application within 12 months of the date of their application and the delay is not attributable to them.

Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will place in the Library a copy of the latest guidance from the Office of Surveillance Commissioners on the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 and the use of local authority CCTV systems for directed surveillance by a law enforcement agency. [222692]

Mr. Coaker: The Information Commissioner published in January 2008 revised guidance on the use of CCTV in line with the Data Protection Act 1998. No separate guidance has been published by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners, although in his recent annual report, for 2007-08, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner welcomed the dialogue between local authorities and the police on this matter.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many notifications (a) her Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222904]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office has published details of the protected personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its Resource Accounts published on 8 August 2008. In the first half of 2008-09 (April to September) a notification was made to the Information Commissioner regarding the PA consulting data loss incident.

In 2008-09, the UK Border Agency contacted the Information Commissioner about a potential incident involving the loss of a data stick on UKBA premises. The data stick was subsequently found at an internal location so this was not in fact a notifiable incident.

The Identity and Passport Service has published details of the personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its Annual Report and Accounts published on 26 June 2008. In the first half of 2008-09 no notifications were made to the Information Commissioner.

The Criminal Records Bureau, in accordance with Cabinet Office guidance, did not report any notification of loss or mishandling of any personal data to the Information Commissioner's Office for the period 2007-08. In the first half of 2008-09 no notifications were made to the Information Commissioner.

Before November 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of information security losses or breaches.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in government.

Deportation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many Bassetlaw residents were deported from the UK in each of the last five years; [224611]

(2) how many UK residents have been deported to Australia in the last five years. [224827]

Mr. Woolas: The information regarding how many Bassetlaw residents have been deported from the UK in each of the last five years is not available at the geographical level requested and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows the number of removals and voluntary departures from the UK to Australia, which includes those subject to a deportation order, from 2004 to 2007. These figures exclude persons refused entry at port and subsequently removed (including cases dealt with at juxtaposed controls) since they were not resident in the UK at the time.

Destination data have only been recorded since 2004, so information on persons removed to Australia during 2003 is not available.

Further National Statistics on removals from the UK are available from the Library of the House and the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

Removals and voluntary departures[1,2] from the UK to Australia, 2004 to 2007[3]

	Number of removals
2004	15
2005	50
2006	30
2007[4]	70
Total[4]	170

[1] Includes enforced removals, persons departing voluntarily after enforcement action had been initiated against them, persons leaving under the Assisted Voluntary Return Programme run by the International Organisation for Migration since January 2005, persons who it has been established have left the UK without informing the immigration authorities.
[2] Excludes persons refused entry at port and subsequently removed (including cases dealt with at juxtaposed controls).
[3] Figures rounded to the nearest five and may not sum to the total shown because of independent rounding.
[4] Provisional figures.

Extradition

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made by the working group initiated under the then Prime Minister's 12 point plan of August 2005 in order to deal with extradition requests to the UK; how many times the group met in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement. [224879]

Meg Hillier: Since August 2005, 13 people have been extradited by the UK for terrorism-related offences; five people have been discharged by UK courts; five cases are ongoing and one case was withdrawn by the requesting state.

The steering group established in 2005 to explore the issue of establishing a maximum time limit for extradition cases involving terrorism met on a monthly basis between September 2005 and November 2006. The original focus was to consult stakeholders on maximum time-limits. The group has continued to meet on a bi-monthly basis since November 2006 to discuss other extradition related issues and to maintain a watching brief on all ongoing terrorist-related extradition cases.

Immigration: Children

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many days children who were British citizens were in immigration detention in the last 12 months. [225202]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 7 October 2008]: The information requested on the number of days children with British citizenship have been detained in immigration detention is not centrally collated and could be provided only by examining individual cases in disparate locations (local enforcement offices) at disproportionate cost.

Information on the number of persons detained is published in the Quarterly Asylum Bulletin, on the Home Office Research Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Metropolitan Police: Finance

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost was of the Metropolitan Police Service's CB13 unit and its successor organisation in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [224709]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally.

Costs associated with individual force units and decisions on the distribution of resources are an operational matter for the Commissioner and the Metropolitan Police Authority.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the breakdown by nationality is of the 250 sentence-expired foreign nationals held in detention under immigration powers. [223148]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 10 September 2008]: In her letter of 18 February, the chief executive of the UK Border Agency referred the Home Affairs Committee to her appearance before them on 15 January, where she advised that the countries relevant in this respect were Jamaica, Nigeria, China and Vietnam.

The chief executive also advised the committee in her most recent letter of 23 July of the improvements being made to sustain and develop the agency's capability for returning foreign prisoners.

Offensive Weapons: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people aged (a) 16 and under, (b) between 17 and 18, (c) between 18 and 21 and (d) 21 years were arrested for carrying (i) knives and (ii) firearms in the non-metropolitan county of Hampshire in each of the last five years, broken down by district or borough. [222994]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Passports: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many war veterans in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK received a free passport in each year since the scheme's inception. [224561]

Meg Hillier: The then Home Secretary announced the introduction of free passports on 19 May 2004 as a special concession for the second world war generation, to recognise all those who had contributed to the national effort during the war years, whether in the armed services or on the home front. Those who qualify are British nationals born on or before 2 September 1929 and therefore were old enough by the end of the war to have made a substantial contribution to the national effort.

The number of free passports issued under the scheme, by financial year, is as follows:

	Free passports issued
2004-05	121,444
2005-06	157,229
2006-07	127,820
2007-08	109,655
2008-09[1]	45,344

[1] To end September 2008

Information on numbers issued by constituency could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Passports: Pensioners

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many free passports were issued to pensioners in 2007; [224828]

(2) how many free passports have been issued to pensioners in Bassetlaw constituency in the last two years. [224833]

Meg Hillier: The introduction of free passports was announced on 19 May 2004 as a special concession for the second world war generation. Those who qualify are British nationals born on or before 2 September 1929 and therefore were old enough by the end of the war to have made a substantial contribution to the national effort. From January to December 2007, 118,723 free passports were issued. Information on numbers issued by constituency could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Personation: Internet

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to address online identity fraud. [225760]

Meg Hillier: The Government have a number of ongoing work programmes, many operating in partnership with public and private sector stakeholders, to seek to combat all forms of fraud, including where computer systems are a factor in enabling fraudulent activity.

Government have allocated £29 million over three years to implement the recommendations of the Fraud Review. This includes the creation of a National Fraud Strategic Authority, launched earlier this month; a new national lead force role for the city of London police; and a National Fraud Reporting Centre (NFRC), expected to go live in 2009, which will radically streamline the way that the public report fraud, including fraud committed over the internet, to the police. The NFRC will also equip law enforcement agencies with a powerful intelligence tool and help form the basis of better prevention advice and alerts to fraud threats for business and the public.

To help people and organisations protect themselves from crime which may involve an online element, the website www.getsafeonline.org was developed by the Government, police and industry. The website gives advice on how to stay safe online when shopping, banking or doing business over the internet, and how to protect computers and the personal information they contain. More general advice regarding identity fraud can be found on the website www.identitytheft.org.uk which was developed in partnership between Government, law enforcement and industry to provide advice to the public and business around combating identity theft and fraud.

The Government are providing £3.5 million over three years to create the Police Central e-crime Unit (PCeU). This will provide support to the police service in developing a structured response to online crime, and its initial focus will be on the area of fraud-related electronic crime, working with the NFRC to develop a response to reports on such matters. The PCeU will act as the central unit for the police on promotion of standards for training, procedure and response to e-crime. It will bring together forces, the National Police Improvement Agency and other groups to develop training and to coordinate activity to build up the skill levels within policing. Outside of this the Serious Organised Crime Agency will continue its ongoing work to tackle the international and serious organised crime groups operating on the internet, supporting the NFRC and PCeU where appropriate.

Government continue to review and revise legislation to ensure that it is adequate to deal with modern ways of committing offences. The Fraud Act 2006 revised and updated legislation on fraud, including introducing an offence of fraud by false representation. This makes it an offence to commit any fraud by false representation in any form; it makes no difference if the representation is made to a machine or to a person, and there does not have to be any actual loss to a victim, it is merely enough to expose another to a risk of loss.

Ministers continue to have regular contact with the banking industry about crime reduction, including issues around online frauds.

Police: Notting Hill Carnival

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the cost of policing the 2008 Notting Hill Carnival was; [224681]

(2) how much was paid to the police by Notting Hill Carnival Ltd to cover the cost of policing the 2008 event. [224682]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally.

This is an operational matter for the Metropolitan Police Authority and the Commissioner, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers there were in Nottinghamshire in each of the last seven years. [224819]

Mr. Coaker: The available data are given in the following table.

Police officer strength[1] (FTE)[2] by police force as at 31 March 1996 to 31 March 2008

Nottinghamshire police force	Number
2002	2,330
2003[3]	2,411
2004[3]	2,484
2005[3]	2,502

Police officer strength[1] (FTE)[2] by police force as at 31 March 1996 to 31 March 2008

Nottinghamshire police force	Number
2006[3]	2,477
2008[3]	2,334

[1] This table contains full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.
[2] Full-time equivalent excludes those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
[3] Comparable strength (excludes those on career breaks, or maternity/paternity leave). The Police Numbers Task Force (2001) recommended that a clear presentation was made of the numbers of staff employed by police forces including those seconded into the force and those on any type of long or short term absence. These new calculations were first used in 2003, and are not comparable with data prior to March 2003. The data from 2003 onwards used here are termed comparable because they have been calculated on the old basis to allow comparison.

Police: Standards

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to include statistics on prosecution of (a) drink drivers and (b) disqualified drivers as part of the police national performance data. [225515]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The headline Statutory Performance Indicators within the policing performance framework are focused on a small number of key outcomes. The Assessments of Policing and Community Safety (APACS) framework for 2008-09 therefore contains an indicator on the number of people killed or seriously injured in road traffic collisions. This indicator is also one of the priorities for local government, as set out in the National Indicator Set for Local Government in England. More detailed information on issues relating to the objective of reducing road traffic casualties is collected, but it is outside of the national indicators list.

Sexual Offences: Victim Support Schemes

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what freephone 24-hour telephone lines exist for victims of rape and sexual assault in England and Wales. [225140]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The Government fund a matrix of helplines for victims of domestic violence across the country including the free 24-hour national domestic violence helpline. We are currently exploring options for expanding these to cover a 24-hour sexual violence helpline. In addition, the Government provide funding to help develop new sexual assault referral centres and support existing ones. Sexual assault referral centres are available 24 hours a day to provide support to victims of sexual violence.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to increase the number of sexual assault referral centres in England and Wales over the next five years. [225141]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The Government have a commitment in the Action Plan for Tackling Violence 2008 to 2011 to double the number of sexual assault referral centres (SARCs) from 19 to 38 by 2011. The Government are making good progress towards this target as there are already 22 SARCs in England and Wales. The Home Secretary's announcement on 7 October 2008 of the availability of £1.6 million to help develop new SARCs and support existing ones will contribute further to the expansion of SARCs.

Theft: Metals

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of (a) the incidence of metal theft and (b) the cost of such theft to (i) Government, (ii) local authorities and (iii) other public bodies; and if she will make a statement. [224901]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We are supporting the Association of Chief Police Officers-led Conductive Metal Theft working group to address the problem of metal theft and will be working closely with all stakeholders and Government Departments to establish effective responses to the problem.

The ACPO working group has produced an analysis which included an assessment of the overall cost of metal theft but this is not broken down into individual costs to Government and other public bodies. The analysis is being used as the basis for the development of the working group's strategy to address the issue

It is clear that the consequences of metal theft can be significant for local communities, businesses and the national infrastructure.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent estimate is of the (a) number and (b) monetary value of (i) aluminium and (ii) stainless steel beer barrels stolen in 2007. [225520]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have made no estimation of the monetary value of aluminium or stainless steel barrels stolen in 2007.

We are working closely with the Association of Chief Police Officers-led Conductive Metals Working Group to establish an effective response to the problem of metal theft.

We are aware that each year the brewing industry loses a considerable amount of money from the theft and misappropriation of barrels, kegs, and gas cylinders. Action to address the problem will be part of the ACPO working group strategy to tackle metal theft.

Work Permits

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) work permit holders and (b) dependants of work permit holders were given leave to enter the UK in each quarter since 1 January 2007. [225139]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The latest available data are for 2007 and shown in the following table.

Annual statistics on work permit holders and their dependants given leave to enter the United Kingdom are published in Table 2.5 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 'Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2007' which is available in the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1008.pdf

Work Permits: Overseas Students

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many overseas students have been granted visas to work in the United Kingdom in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) nationality, (b) age and (c) sex; what the average time taken by her Department to process such visa requests is; what recent representations she has received on work visas for overseas students; what steps she has (i) recently taken and (ii) plans to take to reduce the time taken to process such visa requests; how many such applications have been rejected in the last three years; on what grounds; and if she will make a statement; [216202]

(2) how many students from (a) Colombia and (b) the Maldives studying at UK universities have been granted visas to work in the United Kingdom in each of the last five years, broken down by (i) age and (ii) sex; what the average time taken by her Department to process such visa applications is; how many such applications were outstanding at the latest date for which figures are available; how many such applications have been rejected in the last three years; on what grounds; what steps she has (A) taken and (B) plans to take to reduce the time taken to process such visa applications; and if she will make a statement. [216203]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is as follows:

Overseas students

To accurately identify those who switched from student to employment status would involve reviewing each case individually which would result in disproportional costs.

Service standards

The current performance against service standards can be found on the UKBA website. The current service standards were introduced in 2005. Performances against the work permits and HSMP service standards are illustrated in Annex A. New services standards will be introduced as the Points Based System is fully rolled out.

Further information on service standards can be found in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin: Control of Immigration: Statistics UK – ISSN 1358-51 OX.

Section 4 of the publication details the official statistics relating to after-entry control (please see following table).

Annex A: Highly skilled migrant programme and work permits service standards

Target	2007	2006	2005
			Percentage
Highly skilled migrant programme
Percentage of applications cleared within 25 working days	90	87	83
Percentage of applications cleared within 70 working days	96	97	93
Work permits
Percentage of applications cleared within 5 working days	60	75	74
Percentage of applications cleared within 15 working days	88	92	91

Youth Mobility Scheme

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which countries have expressed interest in participating in her Department's Youth Mobility Scheme; and in respect of each, whether her Department has (a) accepted it into the scheme, (b) rejected it as unsuitable and (c) still to take a decision. [224473]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 6 October 2008]: We have agreed with our counterparts that discussions need to remain confidential in order for countries to feel able to explore their possible involvement and make any appropriate adjustments to fulfil all the criteria for inclusion in the scheme before any public statements about their involvement are made. No final decision has yet been taken on the inclusion of any countries on the Youth Mobility Scheme but a list of participating countries will be published in the Immigration Rules before the scheme is launched at the end of November and this list will continue to be updated as and when countries join or leave the scheme.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members' Centre

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate has been made of the (a) administrative and (b) maintenance costs of the Members' Centre in Portcullis House in its first year of operation. [225257]

Nick Harvey: The centre opened on 1 July. Staff costs to date have been £32,070. Staff costs for a full year to 30 June 2009 are estimated to be £134,100. Only £7,070 of the staff costs to date, and £34,100 of the full year costs, represents a net increase in spending because the remainder of the staff costs have been met by redeploying staff within the Department of Information Services. Full year maintenance costs, based on an average cost per square metre in Portcullis House, are estimated to be £4,000. It is not possible to distinguish other administrative costs. Most of these would have arisen in any case if the centre had not existed.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government has taken to assist apprentices with the costs of the apprenticeship scheme. [225335]

Mr. Simon: There is no cost to apprentices for the delivery of their apprenticeship. The Department funds training providers or employers directly for the cost of delivering an apprenticeship framework. Apprentices are waged or receive an allowance from their employer like other employees. Apprentices bear the normal costs associated with employment such as travelling and meals.

Higher Education: Asylum

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what procedures are in place to allow (a) asylum seekers under the age of 18 years and (b) asylum seekers who are 18 years old or over to obtain education and training; what guidance is given to universities; and if he will make a statement. [224553]

Mr. Lammy: The children of asylum seekers have the same rights as all other children in the United Kingdom during the period of compulsory education. All 16 to 18-year-old asylum seekers are eligible for Learning and Skills Council (LSC) funding in respect of their attendance on a further education course in the same way as UK students.

Asylum seekers aged 19 or over are treated as UK students for the purpose of fees for further education where they have been legally in the UK for longer than six months pending consideration of their application for asylum or where they have failed in their claim but have been granted support under the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999. This follows the granting of concessions to enable asylum seekers to access LSC funding in certain circumstances, for example for courses teaching English for speakers of other languages. Otherwise they are treated as international students, and may be required to cover the full cost of their course. However an FE college or provider has discretion over the level of fee that they actually charge.

Asylum seekers access higher education courses as international students and can expect to be charged the full cost of their course by the university concerned. However, universities have discretion over the level of fee that they actually charge. The Higher Education Refugees and Asylum Seekers network provides guidance on the detailed rules which apply.

Higher Education: Community Relations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government has taken to encourage colleges and universities to provide access to their facilities for the local community. [225570]

Mr. Lammy: Further Education colleges provide a broad range of services to their local communities, not just in education but in support of broader aims relating to economic development, cohesion and social mobility. Colleges draw most of their students from the local area and work in partnership with other local organisations to determine how their strengths, including their premises and facilities, can best meet their community's needs.

We are supporting them in this through record investment in buildings and equipment. Over the last 10 years, Government investment in the FE estate, including ICT, has totalled £2.4 billion.

The Learning and Skills Council is currently assessing the extent and nature of colleges' provision of wider community activities including the community's use of college facilities and will publish its findings in November. We will draw on these findings to identify good practice and to see what more might be done to support this aspect of colleges' work.

The DIUS consultation "Informal Adult Learning - Shaping the Way Ahead" identified the need for low cost, accessible learning venues as a key issue. DIUS will work with other Government Departments and local authorities to consider how access to a wide range of public spaces, including colleges, can be encouraged and supported to provide free or subsidised venues for book clubs, family history or other groups of people learning for pleasure.

Higher education institutions (HEIs) engage with the public in many ways, including providing access to sports facilities, museums, theatres and galleries; community volunteering by staff and students; and creating lifelong learning opportunities for a diverse body of learners. In 2006/07, over 110,000 people attended charged public lectures (and additionally 650,000 attended free events), and around 1,400,000 attended charged performance arts events organised by HEIs (and 412,000 attended free performance events). In addition, over 6,000 non-commercial partners, such as social, community and cultural organisations have benefited from the use of over £38 million worth of HEI facilities and equipments over the same period.

The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) has recently published the confirmed distribution for 2008-11 of nearly £400 million to HEIs from the Higher Education Innovation Fund round 4 (HEIF 4), following approval of HEI strategies for its work to engage with social, cultural and community organisations, as well as businesses and public services (HEFCE Report 2008/34). An overview and assessment of these strategies is also available (HEFCE Report 2008/35).

Higher Education: Intellectual Property

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on exploitation of intellectual property in universities in the last three years. [223822]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and its predecessors and agencies have commissioned four pieces of work on intellectual property and universities during the last three years. In August 2007, an independent report "Streamlining University/Business collaborative research negotiations" was submitted to the 'Funders Forum' of the Department. The SPRU (science and technology policy research unit, university of Sussex) reports "Exploiting University Intellectual Property in the UK" (January 2008) and "Disentangling knowledge transfer: Maximising university revenue, or social and economic benefit, or both?" (May 2008) investigated approaches and attitudes to IP exploitation at universities. Most recently Professor Paul Wellings, Vice Chancellor of Lancaster university, has undertaken a review of intellectual property and research benefits, and his report will be finalised very shortly.

Higher Education: Standards

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government have taken to improve the quality of higher education since 1997. [225197]

Mr. Lammy: Working with the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) we have supported the continuing enhancement of high quality teaching and learning in higher education (HE) through the core grant and a range of targeted initiatives.

In 1997 an independent body, the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education (QAA), was established to provide an integrated quality assurance service for UK HE. HEFCE has statutory responsibility for the quality assessment of HE in institutions that it funds, and it contracts with the QAA to fulfil this responsibility and to safeguard the public interest in sound standards of HE qualifications.

In addition to a programme of institutional audit, the QAA defines clear and explicit standards for HE, both for public information and as reference points for their quality assurance services. These include a framework for HE qualifications, subject benchmark statements, programme specifications, and the code of practice in HE.

We have encouraged the HE sector's introduction of the publication of a range of accurate and up to date information about each institution on the website www.unistats.ac.uk. This includes the results of the National Student Survey (NSS) which asks final year students for views on the quality of their teaching and learning experience. The results serve to inform prospective students and promote continuous improvement in institutions. Since it started the NSS has shown a high level of consistency in relation to overall student satisfaction with the quality of their courses— around 80 per cent. from 2005 to 2008.

We have also worked in partnership with the sector to raise the status and profile of teaching in HE through:

- the introduction in 2000 of the national teaching fellowship scheme to reward and recognise teaching excellence and spread good practice;
- the creation of the HE academy in 2004 to support institutions and individuals to provide the best possible learning experience;
- the development of 74 Centres for Excellence in Teaching and Learning (2005) with a focus on enhancing student learning through sharing excellent practice and promoting innovation; and
- development by the HE academy in 2006 of new professional standards for teaching in HE.

Higher Education: Student Wastage

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent steps the Government have taken to increase completion rates of university degrees. [225198]

Mr. Lammy: We are maintaining very good completion rates for first degrees with the latest statistics from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development showing that the UK ranks 3rd of the 27 countries reporting data in this area. This has been achieved and maintained during a period when higher education has been opened up to both increased numbers and a greater diversity of students.

However, the Government are not complacent and accept that there is more that we could do, which is why we welcomed the recommendations of the National Audit Office study and the follow-on Public Accounts Committee report on the retention of students in higher education.

The Higher Education Funding Council for England is taking forward these recommendations and working with the higher education sector to disseminate good practice and help higher education institutions learn from what works well elsewhere. HEFCE held regional workshops last spring to examine these issues and they are joint funding seven projects with the Paul Hamlyn Foundation over the next three years to inform better targeting of institutional support for students.

Learning Disability

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent steps the Government have taken to provide support to students who have learning difficulties. [225116]

Mr. Lammy: The Higher Education Funding Council for England provides higher education institutions with funding to support disabled students through the mainstream disability allocation. The Council's overall disability funding allocation for the sector has increased from £7 million in 2000/01 (when it was introduced) to £13 million in 2008/09.

We also provide funding directly to students through disabled students' allowances (DSAs), which can help to remove the obstacles that prevent disabled students (including students with specific learning difficulties) from entering and completing higher education courses. In 2006/07, the latest year for which figures are available, we provided approximately £81 million to 38,000 students.

From this academic year the non-medical helper's allowance (for undergraduates) and the postgraduate allowance will be increased by around 60 per cent. These increases mean that

- the maximum amount of DSA for non-medical helpers has increased from £12,420 in 2007/08 to £20,000 in 2008/09 for full-time undergraduates, and from £9,315 to £15,000 for part-time undergraduates.
- the maximum amount of the DSA for postgraduate students has increased from £5,915 in 2007/08 to £10,000 in 2008/09.

DSAs are provided in addition to the standard student support package; they are not means tested and do not have to be repaid.

Mathematics: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of over 16 year-olds who do not have a grade C or above in mathematics at GCSE or an equivalent qualification. [224565]

Mr. Simon: The Skills for Life survey in 2003 estimated the literacy and numeracy levels and functional ability of adults in England. The Skills for Life survey reported that 13 per cent. of adults aged 16-65 achieved a D-G grade or equivalent in GCSE maths. 42 per cent. have a maths GCSE A*-C grade or equivalent and 45 per cent. do not have a maths qualification at GCSE level.

Students: Loans

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of the student loan book has been sold in accordance with the provisions of the Sale of Student Loans Act 2008. [224171]

Mr. Lammy: No sales of income-contingent repayment student loans have yet been made. We are continuing to prepare for the first such sale and are monitoring market conditions accordingly.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Developing Countries: Underspent Budgets

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how his Department treats individual country budgets underspent in a financial year. [225569]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 104W, (UIN 224475).

St. Helena: Airports

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when a decision will be made on tenders for the construction of an airport on the Island of St. Helena; and if he will make a statement. [225663]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I expect a decision to be made shortly.

JUSTICE

Cemeteries: Lancashire

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received on topple testing in cemeteries in the borough of Blackburn with Darwen. [222831]

Mr. Straw: I have received a number of representations in my capacity as Member of Parliament for Blackburn. I therefore understand fully the concerns of my hon. Friend about this matter. My officials are currently working with the Health and Safety Executive and industry stakeholders to clarify what health and safety legislation does and does not require in respect of assessing and dealing with risks presented by unstable gravestones and ensuring proper communication with relatives.

Departmental Data Protection

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many instances of data lost by Government Departments there have been in the last 12 months. [220465]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 25-26WS.

Data losses by Government Departments are included in annual reporting for 2007-08 published by Departments.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many notifications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies made to the Information Commissioner following the loss or mishandling of personal information or data in each of the last three years; and what was notified in each case. [222898]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice has published details of the personal data related incidents notified to the Information Commissioner's Office in 2007-08 in its resource accounts laid before this House on 21 July 2008.

Before 2007 the Information Commissioner's Office did not specifically keep records of instances of security breaches. No formal notifications were made.

I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 25 June 2008, providing the final report on measures for data handling procedures in government.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many encrypted memory sticks have been supplied to (a) prison service staff, (b) National Offender Management Service staff, (c) National Probation Service staff, (d) court and judicial staff and (e) District, Circuit and High Court Judges and Lord Justices of Appeal. [225343]

Mr. Straw: The National Offender Management Service (including the National Probation Service and the Prison Service) has issued guidance to all staff, whether permanent or under contract, that they should only use encrypted memory sticks. Approved procurement arrangements have been put in place to enable staff to purchase suitable devices for their use. The rest of the Ministry of Justice has been instructed not to use non-approved memory sticks.

Departmental Legislation

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the Answer by Lord Hunt of King's Heath of 7 July 2008, Official Report, House of Lords, column 61WA, on crime: new offences, what the timetable for the assembly of the information is; and if he will place a copy in the Library when it has been prepared. [222196]

Maria Eagle: The information requested involved a manual trawl through primary and subordinate legislation from the past 11 years. I have today placed a copy in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much (a) his Department and its predecessors and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [221965]

Mr. Wills: The following tables show how much the Ministry of Justice and its predecessor, (the Department for Constitutional Affairs) and its agencies has spent in each of the last 36 months through the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework.

Ministry of Justice

EU Law

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many officials in his Department are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or administration of EU legislation and consequent policies. [222270]

Mr. Wills: This Government are firmly committed to the importance of the EU in delivering on 21st century challenges. The EU is of central importance to the work of HM Government across all Departments. It is relevant to a wide range of policy areas, and to the work of many Government officials.

Within the Ministry of Justice, there are currently 22 officials in total who are wholly or mainly tasked with the negotiation, implementation or the administration of EU legislation and consequent policies.

Offenders: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many ex-service personnel have been convicted of a criminal offence and sentenced to custody in the last five years; [225667]

(2) how many personnel who were discharged from the Army in the last five years have been subsequently convicted of a criminal offence; [225668]

(3) what the prison population is in England and Wales; and how many of those prisoners have served in the armed forces in the last 10 years. [225658]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of August 2008 there were 83,406 prisoners detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales.

This figure was drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Data from nationally representative surveys of some 2,000 sentenced prisoners near release conducted in 2001, 2003 and 2004 show the proportion of prisoners who had previously served in the armed forces as 6 per cent., 4 per cent. and 5 per cent. respectively.

We are unable to identify the occupation of an offender from the Court Proceedings Database. As such, we cannot tell the number of ex-service personnel that are convicted and sentenced to immediate custody.

Information held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform cannot separately identify the occupation of the defendant.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by his Department and its predecessor has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [221963]

Mr. Wills: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister of State for the Home Office my hon. Friend the Member for Gedling (Mr. Coaker) on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Procedural Reform

25. Mr. Allen: To ask the Leader of the House what procedural reforms of the House of Commons she and her predecessors have instigated since July 2001. [225261]

Chris Bryant: The Government have continued since 2001 to advance their programme of procedural reform in the Commons. This has included modernisation of sitting hours and the publication in advance of an annual parliamentary calendar.

There has been improved topicality with a reduced notice period for oral questions, the introduction of topical questions and debates, more effective limits for speaking times, and introduction of the tabling of written questions in September

The establishment of evidence-taking opportunities at the committee stage of Bills, improved explanatory material and plainer language for legislation, publication of a draft legislative programme, and the introduction of a new process to promote post-legislative scrutiny has enhanced Members' ability to scrutinise legislation.

The strengthening of Select Committees and payment of salaries to Committee Chairs, had encouraged greater examination of Government, with enhanced scrutiny of the Prime Minster by the Liaison Committee.

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House what (a) listening exercises and (b) public forums her Office conducted in each of the last two years; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost to her Office was of each such consultation. [221860]

Chris Bryant: The Leader of the House has initiated the following, which could be considered be either a public forum or listening exercise:

Public forum/ listening exercise	Date announced	Reference in Official Report	Cost (£)
Draft Legislative Programme public consultation 2007	11 July 2007	Vol. 462, Col. 1449	81,612[1]

Dorneywood

James Duddridge: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the answer to my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr. Haude) of 19 June 2008, Official Report, column 1187W, on Dorneywood: Official Hospitality, what use her Office has made of Dorneywood for official engagements in the last 12 months. [222191]

Ms Harman: None.

Members' Staff: Redundancy Pay

Lynne Jones: To ask the Leader of the House whether the redundancy arrangements available to staff of hon. Members will be part of the next Senior Salaries Review Body review of parliamentary pay, pensions and allowances. [225975]

Chris Bryant: The Senior Salaries Review Body is due to conduct a review of parliamentary pay shortly after the next general election. It is expected that this review will also include parliamentary pensions and allowances.

Careful consideration will be given as to the issues across these areas that should be brought to the attention the Review Body. However, as it may be up to 18 months before the Review Body begin their work it would be inappropriate to begin setting out now the detailed topics to be considered.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Leader of the House how much, on average, staff of hon. Members received in redundancy payments in each of the last 10 years. [226012]

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Leader of the House how much on average staff of hon. Members received in redundancy payments in each of the last 10 years. [225253]

Chris Bryant: Most redundancies involving hon. Members' staff arise from a Member leaving the House at a general election. Members' staff contracts specify that when a redundancy occurs the amount payable is set at the statutory rate, which is linked to a formula which takes account of salary, length of service and age.

In addition, Members can, at their discretion, top-up or match this contractual entitlement from their parliamentary allowances, or make a discretionary payment where there is no eligibility to a payment at the statutory rate.

The average redundancy payment in each year since 2003-04 was as follows:

	Amount (£)
2003-04	3,251
2004-05	3,420
2005-06	3,262
2006-07	5,194
2007-08	3,922

Information is not readily available for prior years.

Regional Committees

Mr. Heath: To ask the Leader of the House what plans she has to bring forward proposals for the orders of reference for regional Select Committees. [225252]

Ms Harman: On 21 July, the Government published their proposal on the introduction of regional committees—both Select Committees and Grand Committees—in response to the third report from the Modernisation Committee. As indicated in that response, we intend to bring forward the detailed proposals in the period before the end of the current Session with the hope that the committees—if approved by the House—could begin work in the new year.

PRIME MINISTER

Cabinet: Birmingham

Pete Wishart: To ask the Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the number of people from the public who attended the Cabinet meeting events in Birmingham. [225341]

The Prime Minister: The visit of the Cabinet to Birmingham was preceded by several ministerial visits across the region; a public engagement event with approximately 250 people was followed by a formal Cabinet meeting and an economic event.

In addition, I have today placed in the Library of the House the "Response to Cabinet public engagement event Birmingham 2008", copies are also available on the Cabinet Office website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/events/birmingham.aspx

Pete Wishart: To ask the Prime Minister what the total cost was of the Cabinet visit to Birmingham, broken down by (a) staff time, (b) staff travel, (c) staff accommodation, (d) Ministerial travel, (e) Ministerial accommodation, (f) hire and additional costs of venue, (g) publicity, (h) security and (i) costs of Ministerial visits and photocalls associated with the Cabinet visit. [225342]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Members for Worthing, West (Peter Bottomley) and for North Cornwall (Dan Rogerson) on 17 September 2008, Official Report, column 2229W.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister which organisations have received (a) free and (b) discounted room hire from (i) his office and (ii) its agencies in each of the last five years; and what the commercial value of the discount was in each case. [221593]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Corby (Phil Hope) on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1830W.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Prime Minister which projects his office has commissioned form (a) think tanks and (b) charities in each of the last two years for which figures are available; what the aim of each project was; which think tank or charity was commissioned; and how much was paid. [221623]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend, the Member for Cardiff, West (kevin Brennan) the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 651W.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Prime Minister how many and what proportion of staff in his office are disabled; and what the average salary in his office is of (a) full-time disabled staff, (b) full-time non-disabled staff, (c) part-time disabled staff and (d) part-time non-disabled staff. [220182]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary to the Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East on 8 October 2008, Official Report, columns 651-57W.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

Building Capacity in the Third Sector

Greg Clark: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission when the National Audit Office plans to publish its report "Building Capacity in the Third Sector"; and what the reason is for the time taken to publish the report. [225346]

Mr. Alan Williams: The Public Accounts Commission is responsible for oversight of the National Audit Office's funding and governance, but the Comptroller and Auditor General has complete discretion in the discharge of his work programme. The hon. Member may wish to write directly to the C and AG about the report referred to.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Victim and Witness Support

7. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps the Attorney-General's office and Crown Prosecution Service have taken to improve support provided by the criminal justice system for victims and witnesses with mental health difficulties. [225240]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service has taken a number of important steps with its criminal justice partners to improve support for victims and witnesses with mental health problems. They include needs assessments conducted by the police and witness care officers that assist the prosecutor in considering what support is necessary both in court and outside.

Human Trafficking

8. Mr. Bone: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions the Crown Prosecution Service has brought for offences of human trafficking in the last three years. [225241]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service's records show that the following prosecutions have been brought on charges under sections 57, 58 and 59 of the Sexual Offences Act 2003, alleging trafficking for the purposes of sexual exploitation in the last three years:

	Number of prosecutions
2006-07	40
2007-08	87

These data relate only to the number of charged offences which reached first hearing in the magistrates courts.

Human trafficking cases may also be prosecuted under other legislation for offences such as assisting unlawful immigration to a member state (facilitation), or other serious offences such as rape, kidnapping, false imprisonment, threats to kill and causing or inciting prostitution for gain.

Prosecutions: Cannabis

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions have been brought by the Crown Prosecution Service against people found running cannabis factories in the last five years. [225234]

The Solicitor-General: Offences relating to the cultivation of cannabis are prosecuted under s6 (2) of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. However, there is no distinct offence of running a cannabis factory, nor an agreed definition of what constitutes a cannabis factory, and therefore no discrete figures are held for such proceedings.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Fuels

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment his Department has made of improvements in aircraft fuel efficiency (a) in the last 20 years and (b) in the next 20 years. [225151]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The Department for Transport published its forecasts of UK air passenger demand and UK aviation CO_2 emissions in November 2007. Assumptions on future improvements in aircraft fuel efficiency were inputs to that process and are described in full in chapter 3 of "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts". An assessment of past trends in fuel efficiency is also presented. The document can be viewed at http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/ukairdemandandco2forecasts/airpassdemandfullreport.pdf.

Shipping: Fuels

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he plans to take to ensure that changes to the permitted level of sulphur content in marine fuel oils do not lead to disproportionate cost increases for UK ferry operators. [225207]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The Government are currently in the process of transposing the existing Annex VI (International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships) of MARPOL into UK law and will be following this legislation with the implementation of the EU Sulphur Content of Liquid Fuels Directive.

These measures have been agreed internationally and regionally and establish standards for the sulphur content of marine fuels. MARPOL Annex VI applies to all vessels equally while the EC measure targets emissions in port and from vessels engaged in regular service between EC ports.

In implementing Annex VI, the Government have undertaken a series of consultations and sought to ensure that the measures are applied in a fair, transparent and equal manner across the maritime sector to ensure a level playing field for the industry. A further consultation on the EC Directive will be carried out in the spring of 2009.

Additionally the revisions to Annex VI of MARPOL have been developed as a result of work by an International Maritime Organisation (IMO) group of experts and take account of the cost and availability of fuel. The implementation of this will in due course be subject to UK consultation.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with his European counterparts about changes to the level of sulphur content in marine fuel oil in ships operating in environmental control areas. [225208]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 8 October 2008]: Department for Transport officials are involved in regular discussions with officials from other member states and the European Commission on the issue of the sulphur content of marine fuels.

Recently there have been a series of both formal and informal experts meetings and other events hosted by the Commission considering emissions from shipping, notably in advance of the International Maritime Organisation (IMO) negotiations on the revision of MARPOL Annex VI (International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships). These discussions have focused around both the actual standards to be included in the revised Annex and the implications for the cost and supply of fuel.

The successful outcome at IMO on these revisions was in large part down to the work by EU member states to develop a compromise text that was agreed as being a significant advance on current standards while being financially and practically achievable by the international shipping community. Subsequent to this agreement member states have continued to coordinate on the issue in advance of implementation of the revised annex.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the likely effects on the UK ferry industry of the proposed change to the MARPOL regulations to reduce sulphur levels in marine fuel oil. [225209]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 8 October 2008]: Prior to entering into negotiations on the revised Annex VI package at the International Maritime Organisation (IMO), the Government consulted the shipping sector within the UK through the relevant trade associations. During work to finalise the revisions, the UK delegation worked closely with industry colleagues to confirm they were content with the final package.

The implications for the ferry industry have been discussed within EU working groups and the European Commission have confirmed they are undertaking work to consider the implications of the proposed package for the short sea sector. Additionally, the UK will undertake an impact assessment considering these issues and officials are currently developing proposals to undertake research into the environmental and economic implications of the revised Annex VI package which will consider the ferry sector.

TREASURY

Bank Notes: Visually Impaired

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to introduce paper currency with identifiable marks to assist visually-impaired individuals. [225160]

Ian Pearson: The existing features in Bank of England banknotes that are intended to assist the visually-impaired to recognise different banknotes are

(a) the four denominations are different sizes and colours;

(b) each note, except for the £50 which is an old design, carries large numerals of the denomination in a colour that is markedly differentiated from the background;

(c) all the notes are designed to look different from other currencies

This approach reflects consultation with the Royal National Institute of Blind People. The Bank will continue to take account of the views of the RNIB and others representing the partially sighted.

Child Benefit

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken to process child benefit applications in respect of first-born children was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [225158]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available.

Excise Duties: Kerosene

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what level of duty was charged on kerosene in each year since 2001. [225751]

Angela Eagle: Historical duty rates for kerosene are given in HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://customs.hmrc.gov.uk/channelsPortalWebApp/channelsPortalWebApp.portal?_nfpb=true&_pageLabel=pageExcise_RatesCodesTools&propertyType=document&id=HMCE_PROD1_023552

Housing: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 912-13W, on housing: valuation, if he will rank each individual locality according to the value significance of its coefficient. [225560]

Mr. Timms: The coefficient referred to is calculated by the automated valuation model using multiple regression analysis. The calculations use information specific to a valuation area (usually a billing authority) and so it is not possible to rank them.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 988W, on housing: valuation, how many localities there are in each individual billing area. [225641]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 7 July 2008, Official Report, column 1258W.

Income Tax: Foreign Workers

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much income tax revenue was received from non-UK citizens working in the UK in 2007-08. [225513]

Mr. Timms: Information on income tax contributions paid by non-UK citizens is not reported separately.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the hon. Member for West Chelmsford's letter of 21 July 2008 concerning Mr. S. Browne of Coval Lane, Chelmsford, sent to the Financial Secretary. [225134]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Repossession Orders

Ms Keeble: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to reduce the number of housing repossessions; and if he will make a statement. [222394]

Ian Pearson: On 2 September, the Government announced a significant package of measures to help borrowers in difficulty, help first time buyers and support the house-building industry. Further details of these measures are available on the websites of the Treasury, the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Department for Work and Pensions.

The Government also provide assistance for homeowners facing financial difficulties through the provision of debt advice. They announced in May 2008 a £10 million package of measures to ensure that financial advice and support is available for borrowers who may need it. Details of the announcement are available on the Treasury website.

Revenue and Customs

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases were pursued in each of the last nine financial years by HM Revenue and Customs in respect of Regulation 49 of the Income Tax (Employee) Regulations 1993 and section 8 of the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions etc) Act 1999; and of these, how many led to HM Revenue and Customs lodging an appeal in the High Court. [225662]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs do not hold this specific data.

Tax Allowances: Pensions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the proportion of tax relief on pensions which is claimed by higher rate taxpayers. [222942]

Ian Pearson: The proportion of tax relief on individual and employees' pension contributions that is claimed by higher rate taxpayers is estimated to be 60 per cent. The equivalent figures for employer contributions are not available.

This figure is sourced from 2005-06 survey data that have been adjusted to account for the 2008-09 tax rates, and have been rounded to the nearest 5 per cent.

Tax Yields

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the tax revenue accruing to the Exchequer in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10. [225514]

Angela Eagle: The latest central Government total current receipts forecasts were provided in Budget 2008. Updated forecasts will be provided in the forthcoming 2008 pre-Budget report.

Taxation

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's policy is on the levying of retrospective taxation. [224330]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The Government believe it is important to have a stable tax system that provides certainty for individuals and businesses, along with a commitment to fairness. The Government have therefore always limited the use of provisions applied to taxable events that have occurred prior to the enactment of the new policy. Only where the Government consider that it is necessary to protect revenue and also that it is fair, proportionate and in the public interest, will such provisions be used.

Valuation Office: Information and Communications Technology

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the title is of the mapping product that the Valuation Office Agency has licensed from TENET. [225646]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 140W.

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the status is of the contractual arrangement between Rightmove.co.uk plc and the Valuation Office; and whether the Valuation Office Agency continues to use the Rightmove interface to collect property data on domestic dwellings. [225652]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 19 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1106-07W.

VAT: Registration

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what time scale targets are placed on HM Revenue and Customs to register applications by companies for value added tax purposes; and if he will make a statement. [225665]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs do not have a time scale target for companies alone but have a departmental strategic objective to process 70 per cent. of VAT registration applications from all businesses within 10 days by 2010-11.

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many new companies are waiting for their applications for registration for value added tax purposes to be finalised by HM Revenue and Customs; what the longest waiting time was in the last three years from date of application; and if he will make a statement. [225666]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs does not separately identify applications received from companies.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Public Sector: Learning Disability

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the percentage of people in employment in the public sector who are categorised as having learning difficulties. [214291]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what estimate has been made of the percentage of people in employment in the public sector who are categorised as having learning difficulties. (214291)

For the three month period ending in June 2008, it is estimated that 0.3 per cent of people who reported that they were employed in the public sector said that they had severe or specific learning difficulties.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Alternatives to Imprisonment

12. Mrs. James: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues about alternatives to imprisonment for women. [225245]

Maria Eagle: The Government are fully committed to providing appropriate alternatives to custody for women who are not violent or dangerous, in line with Baroness Corston's review of vulnerable women in the criminal justice system. I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on this matter through the Inter Ministerial Group on reducing re-offending and the Inter Ministerial sub-group on Corston implementation.

Toilet Facilities

13. Bob Russell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what her policy is on the provision of an equivalent level of toilet facilities for men and women at places of entertainment. [225246]

Maria Eagle: Guidance on provision of toilet facilities is set out in British Standard 6465 parts 1 and 2.

Equal Pay

14. John Robertson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government is taking to ensure that men and women receive equal pay for work of equal value; and if she will make a statement. [225247]

Maria Eagle: The Government fund organisations ACAS, the Equality and Human Rights Commission and BusinessLink, to which employees and employers can go to for advice and support. We introduced the equal pay questionnaire in 2003 to help people who believe they may not have received equal pay. They can use this to request vital information from their employers in order to establish whether they have a case.

16. Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government is taking to reduce the gender pay gap. [225249]

Maria Eagle: The Government's proposals for the Equality Bill include the banning of secrecy clauses which prevent people discussing their own pay, extending the use of positive action, and getting public bodies to report on important inequalities such as gender pay. The Government will also work with business and unions to improve pay transparency, and consider the case for introducing representative actions in discrimination cases.

Workplace Sexism

15. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent steps the Government has taken to tackle sexism in the workplace. [225248]

Maria Eagle: We are taking steps to strengthen parental rights, improve provision of child care and extend the right to request flexible working. We have also strengthened laws to tackle sexual harassment and protect pregnant women. We are tackling low pay in the workplace through the national minimum wage and tax credits. There is still more to do, and we intend to take further steps through the Equality Bill.

Rape Crisis Centres

18. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what proportion of the emergency funding for rape crisis centres, announced in March, has been distributed. [225251]

Ms Harman: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave today to the hon. Member for Basingstoke (Mrs. Miller).

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which Minister has responsibility for the academies programme; and if he will make a statement. [225415]

Jim Knight: I am the Minister responsible for the academies programme.

There are now 130 academies open in 62 local authorities, with a further four projected to open in January 2009 (taking the totals to 134 in 64 LAs). I anticipate that a further 80 will open in 2009 and a further 100 in 2010.

The Government are committed to establishing at least 400 academies nationwide; and the National Challenge, launched this year by the Prime Minister and Secretary of State, has led to a further acceleration of the academies programme.

Self-reported provisional data from academies show that in this year's GCSE results, academies have increased by around five percentage points the proportion of pupils with at least five good GCSE results including English and maths compared to last year. This is the third year running that academies are likely to have achieved a substantially better improvement rate than the national average for all schools.

Academies: Disadvantaged

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of the number of children in academies in each year from 2002 to 2008; what proportion was entitled to free school meals in each year; and if he will make a statement. [224673]

Jim Knight: The information is given in the table.

Maintained secondary schools and academies: school meal arrangements[1] Position in January each year 2003 to 2008: England

	Maintained secondary schools			Academies
	Number of pupils (used for FSM calculation)	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	% of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	Number of pupils (used for FSM calculation)	Number of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals	% of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals

Pupil numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

School Census

Academies: Governors

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) parent governors and (b) local authority governors there are for each academy; and if he will make a statement. [225067]

Jim Knight: We do not hold information on the precise number of parent and LA governors for each academy, but as part of their funding agreements, all academies must have at least one local authority representative on their governing body, and at least one parent governor.

Where the local authority is a co-sponsor, the lead sponsor retains majority control over the Academy Trust, but can appoint two local authority appointed governors to the governing body.

Academies: Grants

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what start-up grants are made available to new academies; how long they last; and what their average amount is. [225066]

Jim Knight: New academies are eligible for two types of start-up grants. Start-up grant (a) is for books, materials and equipment. It is based on the expected pupil capacity of the academy and most of the total grant is paid in the first year after opening, although smaller amounts are payable in later years if pupil numbers are initially below 90 per cent. of capacity. Its value depends on whether there is a predecessor school and whether the academy has a sixth form. The average awarded to academies opening in 2008/09 was £873,601.

Start-up (b) grant is paid for two main purposes: to cover senior management overhead costs while an academy is building to capacity, and to meet transitional costs, for instance those arising while building work makes some facilities unusable, or meeting curriculum commitments for students of predecessor schools. It is mostly paid in the first two or three years after opening but will continue for longer if an academy has no predecessor. Because the grant (which is partly formulaic and partly assessed from bids) depends on the circumstances of each academy, the amounts awarded vary considerably. For academies opening in 2008/09, the average awarded has been £969,104 (the median was £780,335, with sums ranging from £122,740 to £3,203,252).

Academies: Manpower

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academies (a) do and (b) do not follow national pay and conditions for staff. [225069]

Jim Knight: The DCSF does not hold information on academy teaching staff, school leader or principals' salaries as these are matters for academy governing bodies.

Academies governing bodies have freedom to set pay and conditions for staff. However, staff transferring from predecessor schools are protected by TUPE and so it is likely that most academies will have some teachers on national pay and conditions.

Academies may use their freedoms around pay and conditions in order to tailor the teaching to the needs of the pupils. For example, many have varied the length of the school day and year, to better serve the demands of the pupils and communities.

Academies: Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on rates of exclusion from academies compared with other maintained schools. [224669]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Academies: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academies have been identified by his Department as making inadequate improvement in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [224834]

Jim Knight: During 2006, 2007 and 2008 there have been 21 section five inspections of academies; none have been deemed to be making inadequate progress.

The year after each academy opens, Ofsted inspect and report on progress. Ofsted send a letter to the academy with a result of their monitoring visit which is published on their website. In the third year after opening, there is a full section 5 Ofsted inspection. During 2006, 2007 and 2008 there have been 27 monitoring visits paid to different academies. Of these, in 2007 St. Mark's C of E Academy was monitored by Ofsted who judged it was making inadequate progress in raising standards. Its progress was monitored again in 2008 and it was judged to be making inadequate progress though the significant changes in the academy's leadership were reported positively. The DCSF is working closely with governors to ensure good improvement is made before the next monitoring visit.

Stockley Academy was monitored in March 2008 and judged at that time to be making inadequate progress. However it was monitored again in late September and at the oral feedback the inspectors judged it was now making at least satisfactory progress. The written report will be available on the Ofsted website in the next two weeks.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what powers his Department has to intervene where academies are making inadequate progress; and how often such powers have been used. [224835]

Jim Knight: The Funding Agreements and Memorandum and Articles of Association of Academies give the Secretary of State powers to appoint extra governors to the Governing Body of an Academy, and thereby take control of the Academy, when he is satisfied that:

The standards of performance of pupils at the Academy is unacceptably low and is likely to remain so, or

There has been a serious breakdown in the way the Academy is managed or governed which is prejudicing, or likely to prejudice, such standards of performance, or

The safety of pupils or staff of the Academy is threatened (whether by a breakdown of discipline or otherwise).

Such an action would only occur after a sequence of events involving the Secretary of State warning the Governing Body about the situation and the Governing Body not responding to the problem to his satisfaction.

The Secretary of State can also use these powers in the case of a Special Measures Termination Event. This occurs after a sequence of events involving OfSTED giving the Academy a special measures notice and finding insufficient progress on their next visit, and the Secretary of State not being satisfied with the Academy Trust's plans for dealing with the situation. The Secretary of State can also terminate the Funding Agreement in a Special Measures Termination Event.

At present the Secretary of State has not been required to use these powers. Where there have been concerns the Department has worked with academy sponsors to address them.

Academies: Trade Unions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academies (a) do and (b) do not recognise trade unions; and if he will make a statement. [225070]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect this information centrally. However, as stated in the academies prospectus of 2007, as good employers we would expect academies to recognise staff associations.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 928, on the Building Schools for the Future Programme, if he will (a) update the results for 2008 and (b) give the dates on which the Building Schools for the Future Programme (i) began and (ii) was completed in each school. [225043]

Jim Knight: The validated 2008 GCSE results will be available in January 2009. The following table shows the Building Schools for the Future start dates for schools in the National Challenge for each wave of the programme, based on the 2007 results. The start date relates to the local authority's entry to the programme. The table also shows the same information for BSF 'One School Pathfinders' and new academies procured under the Partnerships for Schools National Framework.

	Project started	Number of schools completed	Number of schools in progress	Total
BSF Quick Wins	2004	2 (in 2006)	0	2
BSF wave 1	2004	9 (in 2008)	38	47
BSF wave 2	2005	0	32	32
BSF wave 3	2006	0	26	26
BSF wave 4	2007	0	36	36
BSF wave 5	2008	0	33	33
BSF wave 6	2008	0	28	28
BSF wave 6a	2008	0	20	20
National framework academies	2007	0	39	39
BSF 'One School Pathfinders'	2006	0	8	8
Total		11	260	271

Note:
A further six school projects are expected to be completed in the current financial year.

Children's Centres

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children starting primary school in (a) Bassetlaw constituency, (b) Nottinghamshire and (c) England had previously attended a Sure Start children's centre in the latest period for which figures are available. [225277]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not collected centrally.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students were entitled to education maintenance allowance in each local authority area in the academic year 2007-08; and what percentage of students took up their entitlement. [225127]

Jim Knight: Eligibility for the education maintenance allowance (EMA) is based on household income. The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on household income for every eligible 16 to 18-year-old who participates in a course that meets the EMA valid provision criteria. Therefore it is not possible to calculate the number of students who were entitled to EMA in each local authority area, or what percentage of students took up their entitlement.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what costs are incurred by students seeking to re-take (a) mathematics and (b) English language GCSE examinations. [224934]

Jim Knight: The amount awarding bodies charge is the same whether a candidate is retaking an examination or sitting it for the first time. Examination centres (eg schools or colleges) decide whether or not they charge candidates who wish to retake exams.

Each awarding body based in England sets the examination fees they charge for GCSEs. The examinations and assessment regulator, Ofqual, works closely with the awarding bodies to monitor the costs of examination fees to ensure value for money. It is for the awarding bodies to publish details of these costs on their websites for each of the specifications they offer. Typically the cost of GCSE mathematics and English examinations is between £20 and £40.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students have taken (a) mathematics and (b) English language GCSE examinations for a second time in each of the last 10 years. [224935]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many key stage two scripts were unmarked as at 14 July; and if he will make a statement; [221782]

(2) how many key stage two and key stage three text scripts were sent out to the wrong markers in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and if he will make a statement; [221783]

(3) how many key stage two and key stage three text scripts were reported mislaid in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement; [221784]

(4) how many key stage two and key stage three test markers were rejected for lack of reliability during the live marking of the tests in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement; [221785]

(5) what proportion of (a) key stage two and (b) key stage three tests in (i) science, (ii) English and (iii) mathematics were (A) marked, (B) marked with results entered into a computer system and (C) marked and returned to the relevant school by (1) 8 July and (2) 15 July 2008; and if he will make a statement; [221787]

(6) what proportion of key stage two and key stage three scripts were sent out late to markers in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement; [221788]

(7) what percentage of appeals against key stage two and key stage three marking were upheld in each year from 2005 to 2008; how many appeals were received in each year; and if he will make a statement. [221789]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the development and administration of national curriculum tests. The National Assessment Agency (NAA) administers the tests and manages the delivery contract, on QCA's behalf. David Gee, Managing Director of the NAA has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his letter has been placed in the Library.

Parents: Employment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government have taken to assist parents seeking employment with their child care responsibilities. [224986]

Beverley Hughes: In September of this year, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families announced the new "Free Childcare for Training and Learning for Work" programme which is supported through £75 million of funding to run from January 2009 to March 2011. The programme will be piloted in 67 local authorities from January with a national roll-out from September 2009. The programme is aimed at lower income couple families where one parent is working and the second parent is not working and wishes to undertake training on route to employment.

Funding will cover travel costs and the full cost of child care subject to a maximum of £175 (£205 for London).

The programme will look to complement other existing child care support for families moving into work such as the Free Entitlement programme for 3 and 4-year-olds, £3.5 million of support made available through tax credit every day, the Childcare Affordability Programme in London and other initiatives run through Job Centre Plus and the Learning and Skills Council.

Pupil Referral Units

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils spent some time in a pupil referral unit in each year since their introduction; [224931]

(2) how many and what percentage of students in pupil referral units had been there for more than (a) three months, (b) six months, (c) a year, (d) two years, (e) three years, (f) four years and (g) five years in each of the last 10 years; [224932]

(3) how many pupils have spent more than (a) three months, (b) six months, (c) a year, (d) two years, (e) three years, (f) four years and (g) five years in a pupil referral unit since their introduction. [224933]

Jim Knight: Information on how long a pupil has attended a pupil referral unit is not collected centrally.

The available information shows the number of pupils attending a pupil referral unit in January of each year since 1999 and is shown in the table. The table excludes pupil with dual registration, information on the number of dual registrations can be provided only at disproportionate cost. Information prior to 1999 can also be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pupils: Special Educational Needs

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to provide assistance to children who fall behind in writing and mathematics in school. [225199]

Jim Knight: The Primary Framework for literacy and mathematics offers access to a broad range of guidance and resources to support teachers in planning and ensuring their teaching is personalised to the needs of every child. In addition to this we have established the Every Child a Writer and Every Child Counts programmes. Our Children's Plan commitment is to ensure each programme reaches every local authority by 2010/11, and alongside Every Child a Reader we will invest £169 million in ensuring every child masters the basics. All local authorities and schools must have regard to the Special Educational Needs Code of Practice which provides advice on their statutory duties to identify, assess and make provision for pupils' special educational needs.

Schools: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many requests for marking reviews of (a) key stage 2 and (b) key stage 3 2008 tests were received before 30 September 2008; and if he will make a statement. [225172]

Jim Knight: The National Assessment Agency, which administers National Curriculum Tests on behalf of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, is currently unable to publish figures related to the number of reviews received by 30 September. Work is still under way to reconcile data, particularly around review applications for English reading and writing. In addition, review applications continue to be received from schools that have had late delivery of scripts and/or results from prime marking.

Schools: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children eligible for free school meals received an A grade in (a) mathematics, (b) physics, (c) chemistry, (d) further mathematics, (e) history, (f) French and (g) German A Level in each of the last five years; [224799]

(2) how many and what percentage of children eligible for free school meals received an A or A* grade in (a) mathematics, (b) English literature, (c) English language, (d) physics, (e) chemistry, (f) biology, (g) French and (h) German GCSE examinations in each of the last five years. [224800]

Jim Knight: The information for 2006-07 is given in the following tables. Figures for the other years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what procedures govern the means by which capital funding is devolved to each category of maintained school; and if he will make a statement. [225082]

Jim Knight: Devolved formula capital is paid to local authorities or direct to academies, with amounts ring-fenced to be used for schools' individual priorities. No distinction is made between different categories of school. Modernised schools receive DFC at the standard rate, and unmodernised schools at the higher rate which is twice that of the standard rate.

Academies new-build and refurbishment is funded directly by the Department. Local authorities and voluntary aided schools' governing bodies are provided with further devolved funding, calculated on a formulaic basis, which is prioritised locally across each category of school. This includes funding for modernisation, for basic need expansion, for ICT and for specialist and extended schools. Further information can be found on:

http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/management/resourcesfinanceandbuilding/capialinvestment/

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advice he has given to local authorities on seeking clawbacks from individual schools' reserves; and what assessment he has made of the way in which this is being operated in Gloucestershire by the whole school forum. [225426]

Jim Knight: It is now mandatory for all local authorities to include surplus balance controls and from summer 2008 they have been required to operate clawback mechanisms for the 2007-08 revenue balances. DCSF published guidance, "Applying Clawback Mechanisms to Surplus School Revenue Balances", in August 2008. The guidance can be found on the Teachernet website on the School Revenue Balances page.

I explained in my statement to Parliament on 30 October 2007 that my Department will continue to monitor the overall level of surplus balances during the forthcoming spending review period and if the levels reported do not show a significant reduction we will come forward with further action. We have not made an individual assessment of Gloucestershire's clawback mechanism as it is a local matter for the authority and schools forum.

Schools: Languages

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in each local authority have had no entrants for (a) French, (b) German and (c) Spanish examinations in each of the last five years. [224797]

Jim Knight: The information for the past three years can be found in the answer given on 30 January 2008, Official Report, columns 428-33W to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb).

Further information is not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Schools: Local Authorities

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in each local authority area are in special measures; and if he will make a statement. [224609]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the number of schools in special measures by local authority at the end of the spring term 2008. The analysis is based on the latest published data from Ofsted, broken down by phase of education.

The Government have made excellent progress in reducing school failure. The overall number of schools in special measures is down from 524 at the end of the 1997/98 academic year to 254 at the end of the spring term 2008.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of pupils obtained five good GCSEs including English and mathematics in the 100 least deprived lower super output areas in 2008; [224876]

(2) what percentage of pupils obtained a GCSE at grade C or above in mathematics in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by decile of the indices of multiple deprivation; [224878]

(3) what percentage of pupils achieved five good GCSEs including English and mathematics in the 100 most deprived lower super output areas in 2008. [224881]

Jim Knight: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The available information is published in tables 21 to 24 of "DCSF: GCSE and Equivalent Examination Results in England 2006/07 (Revised)" Statistical First Release on attainment by deprivation, rurality and coalfield areas.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of the proportion of children in each local authority who obtained (a) five or more A* to C GCSEs and (b) five or more A* to C GCSEs including English and mathematics in each year between 1996 and 2008; and if he will make a statement. [225113]

Jim Knight: The available information on GCSE and equivalent results by local authority area is contained within table 18 of Statistical First Release (SFR) "GCSE and Equivalent Examination Results in England 2006/07 (Revised)" which was published in January 2008. This SFR can be found at:

Secondary Education: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will publish each local authority's latest estimate of the GCSE results of each school in the National Challenge for (a) 2008, (b) 2009 and (c) 2010; and if he will make a statement. [224664]

Jim Knight: We have no plans to publish local authorities' (LA) estimates of GCSE results for National Challenge schools. The information was provided by LAs on a confidential basis to help us identify which schools are in need of greatest support.

We have held initial discussions with LAs to agree what level of support should be provided for each of their National Challenge schools. National Challenge advisers will work through the detail of this support with individual schools from November. Once plans are in place, every LA with a National Challenge school will publish a summary for parents and others.

Social Services

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children under 11 years of age live in families where there has been social services involvement during the child's lifetime. [225479]

Beverley Hughes: The most recent Children in Need (CIN) census showed that approximately 120,000 children aged less than 11 years received services from social care in England during a census week in February 2005. This equates to approximately 2 per cent. of all children aged less than 11 years in England.

The 2005 CIN census (and previous censuses) only provided a snapshot of activity during a typical week in February. It did not give an indication of the involvement of services during a child's lifetime nor did it account for some families having more than one child receiving services included in the census.

The CIN census has been redeveloped and will be collecting longitudinal information on the characteristics of and services provided to Children in Need. It is anticipated that the first data from the new census will be available in autumn 2009.

Trust Schools

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many schools have applied to become trust schools; [224873]

(2) how many foundation schools have (a) become trust schools and (b) applied to become trust schools. [224870]

Ed Balls: Schools do not have to apply to the Department for Children, School and Families to become a trust or foundation school. A change of school category to foundation and the acquisition of a trust are 'prescribed alterations'. To make such a prescribed alteration, the governing body must publish statutory proposals in accordance with provisions set out in the Education and Inspections Act 2006 and regulations made under that Act. Since 25 May 2007, proposals are decided by the governing body (or the schools adjudicator where proposals to acquire a trust have been referred by the local authority). There is no role for Ministers in the decision-making process.

To date, 106 schools (including 26 foundation schools) have acquired a trust under the provisions of the Education and Inspections Act 2006. In addition, 378 schools (including 53 foundation schools) are on the Trust and Foundation Schools Support programme where they have access to advice and guidance on the processes associated with acquiring a trust.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Breast Cancer

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were diagnosed with breast cancer in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [224787]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people have been diagnosed with breast cancer in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997 [224787]

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2005. Numbers of cases of breast cancer for the years 1997 to 2005 for (a) Jarrow Parliamentary Constituency, (b) South Tyneside County District, (c) the North East Government Office Region and (d) England are given in Table 1 below.

Childbirth

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in which years since 1979 the number of births in England exceeded the number recorded for 2007. [225890]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question regarding in which years since 1979 the number of births in England exceeded the number for 2007. (225890)

In 2007 there were 655,357 live births to mothers usually resident in England. Since 1979 there have been two calendar years with a larger number of births: 1990 and 1991 (with 666,920 and 660,806 live births respectively to mothers usually resident in England).

Death: Colorectal Cancer

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) men and (b) women died of bowel cancer in each calendar year since 1997, broken down (i) by Government region and (ii) by those aged (A) under 30, (B) 30 to 40, (C) 41 to 50 and (D) 51 to 60 years. [225705]

The table attached provides the numbers of deaths where bowel cancer was the underlying cause of death in each government office region, for males and females aged (a) under 30, (b) 30 to 40, (c) 41 to 50 and (9) 51 to 60 years, from 1997 to 2007 (the latest year available).

[1] Cause of death for bowel cancer was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes 153-154 for 1997 to 2000 and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes C18-C21 for 2001 to 2007. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from this cause before 2001 are not completely comparable with later years.

[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Non-profit Making Associations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the implementation of the Social Enterprise Action Plan across Government. [225024]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) continuously monitors delivery and effectiveness of the Social Enterprise Action Plan both through OTS internal channels and through a project board which has representation from across Government and the sector.

"Social Enterprise Action Plan", an evaluation of the first year of the social enterprise action plan was published in November 2007. This report is available from the following website and copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/~/media/assets/www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/third_sector/social_enterprise_action_plan_one_year_on%20pdf.ashx

OTS intends to publish a similar document highlighting progress on the implementation of the Social Enterprise Action Plan—two years on—by the end of this year.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on social enterprise. [225025]

Kevin Brennan: I intend to meet with Treasury ministerial colleagues regularly to discuss a range of issues which impact on social enterprise and the third sector more generally.

The Office of the Third Sector is working closely with HM Treasury on the delivery of commitments in the Third Sector Review and Social Enterprise Action Plan; on co-operatives; and on social investment.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the community investment tax relief scheme in respect of social enterprise activities. [225026]

Kevin Brennan: No formal assessment of the effectiveness of the Community Investment Tax Relief (CITR) scheme has been made. The aim of the CITR scheme is to incentivise private investment from individuals and companies in financially excluded small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), within or serving disadvantaged communities. £47 million has been invested in Community Development Finance Institutions (CDFIs) through CITR.

Research by the Community Development Finance Association suggests that about half the loans (by value) made by CDFIs are to social enterprises. In practice, however, some CDFIs such as Big Issue Invest or the Social Enterprise Loan Fund only lend to social enterprises.

The recent operational review of CITR, announced in the Government's Social Enterprise Action Plan, indicated that with most of the more active CDFIs engaged in financing only charitable or social enterprises, CITR has contributed to an improvement in the financing provision for social enterprises.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the outcome of the cross-departmental third sector public services action plan has been in respect of social enterprise. [225027]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) monitors delivery and effectiveness of the Public Services Action Plan continuously both through OTS internal channels and through a steering group which has representation from across government and the third sector (of which social enterprise is an integral part). Key outcomes so far include: a national programme of training and professional development for public sector commissioners, in which social enterprise ambassadors have been closely involved; support for innovation through the Innovation Exchange; investing in capital development through Futurebuilders; and improving the sustainability of the sector by making three-year funding the norm rather than the exception, including for social enterprises.

"Partnership in Public Services: The Public Services Action Plan", an evaluation of the first year of the public services action plan was published in December 2007. This report is available on the OTS website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/~/media/assets/www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/third_sector/psap_one_year_on_web_final_2%20pdf.ashx and copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House. OTS intends to publish a similar document highlighting our successes on the implementation of the Public Services Action Plan by the end of this year.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what deficiencies he has identified in (a) regional, (b) sub-regional, (c) local and (d) sectoral social enterprise networks; and what steps he (i) has taken and (ii) plans to take to address such deficiencies. [225028]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector commissioned research into social enterprise networks from Rocket Science UK. The resulting "Review of Social Enterprise Networks" is on the following Cabinet Office website and copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/third_sector/news/news_stories/080328_social_enterprise.aspx

The report identifies national, regional, sub-regional and local networks and makes recommendations on how gaps might be addressed. In response, we are investing £6 million during 2008-11, through Capacitybuilders, to develop the capacity of social enterprise infrastructure organisations.

Capacitybuilders is working with social enterprise networks in each region and other local partners to identify the best ways to meet local needs.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how the £10 million social co-investment risk capital fund for social enterprise is to be used; and what Government funding sources are available for social enterprise start-ups. [225029]

Kevin Brennan: The £10 million risk capital fund will be used to invest in social enterprises, matched by co-investors. This will demonstrate the viability of investment in social enterprises; improve access to equity funding for new and growing social enterprises; demonstrate that there are meaningful numbers of investors interested in making commercial investment in the area of social enterprise; and develop equity funding instruments that can be used when making investments into social enterprises.

Wider government support for social enterprise start-ups includes the Department for Health's Social Enterprise Investment Fund. Other funding and finance available to social enterprises includes the Futurebuilders Fund, the Adventure Capital Fund, the forthcoming Communitybuilders fund and UnLtd—the foundation for social entrepreneurs. Each of these organisations aim to address a particular niche in the diversity of demand for finance among social enterprise.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which (a) regions and (b) council areas have the (i) highest and (ii) lowest number of registered social enterprises; and if he will make a statement. [225030]

Kevin Brennan: Social enterprises are not defined by particular legal forms. Rather, they are defined by their nature: their social/environmental aims and outcomes; the basis on which their social mission is embedded in their structure and governance; and the way they use the profits they generate through trading. Social enterprises are not, therefore, required to register with any one body. Information on the number of registered social enterprises in any particular area is consequently not available.

Shareholders

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his latest estimate is of the number of individuals in the UK who own shares. [225371]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the latest estimate is of the number of individuals in the UK who own shares (225371).

According to a survey carried out by the Office for National Statistics in 2006/07, 12% of people aged 16 or over in Great Britain held shares other than employee shares or share options and 5% held employee shares or share options. Applying these percentages to the mid-2006 population estimates suggests that 5.7 million people held shares other than employee shares or share options and 2.4 million people held employee shares or share options. These figures should not be added together to estimate the total number of people in Great Britain owning shares, as some individuals may own both types of share. The estimates do not include any indirect investment in shares through for example ISAs, unit trusts or pension funds.

The proportions of individuals holding shares are based on data collected from the Household Assets Survey, which is a new longitudinal survey that collects information about the economic well being of households and individuals in Great Britain. The proportions were among statistics published in the interim report in January 2008, based on half the Wave 1 sample (16,000 households) and labelled as experimental statistics. Experimental statistics are in the testing phase arid not fully developed as they do not yet meet the rigorous quality standards of National Statistics.

Unemployment: Lincolnshire

Mr. Morley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what percentage of children in North Lincolnshire live in households where neither parent is in employment. [224948]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on what percentage of children in North Lincolnshire live in households where neither parent is in employment. (224948)

Using the Annual Population Survey (APS) household dataset for the period January to December 2007, 14.7 per cent of children in North Lincolnshire lived in a workless household, which is a household where at least one person is of working age and no adults in the household are employed.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty as different samples give different results. This estimate is such that there is 95 per cent certainty that from all samples possible it will lie within the range 9.3 per cent to 20.2 per cent.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Public Participation

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) listening exercises and (b) public forums his Department has held in each of the last two years; what the (i) purpose and (ii) cost was in each case; and who the private contractor was and how much it was paid in each case. [221342]

Mr. Woodward: In 2007-08 the Northern Ireland Office held the following listening exercises and public forums:

2007-08

Number organised	Purpose	Private contractor	Cost
Listening Exercises
4	To consult with older people on the "Government's Proposals for the Safety of Older People."	Age Concern and Help the Aged	£1,828.37 for all 4 events
Public Forums
5[1]	Promote awareness of the consultation paper "Hidden Crime, Secret Pain" and outline key issues and strategic objectives to also coincide with the public consultation on developing proposals for a Regional Strategy on Addressing Sexual Violence in Northern Ireland.	None	n/a

2007-08

Number organised	Purpose	Private contractor	Cost
2[2]	To consult with various groups and the general public on the NIO Disability Action Plan.	None	n/a

[1] Organised jointly between the NIO and Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety.
[2] One event was organised jointly between the NIO and Criminal Justice Agencies. The other event was organised jointly between the NIO and Northern Ireland Civil Service Departments.

2006-07

There were no listening exercises or public forums.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Abortion

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether abortion policy would be devolved in the event of the devolution of policing and criminal justice to the Northern Ireland Assembly; and if he will make a statement. [226577]

Mr. Woodward: In Northern Ireland, legislation on abortion remains part of the criminal law, which will be transferred when responsibility for policing and justice is devolved.

Eames/Bradley Consultative Group

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment has been made of any potential overlap of work between the Eames/Bradley Consultative Group and the Victims Commissioners. [224743]

Mr. Woodward: The Consultative Group on the Past terms of reference explicitly require the group to consider "the landscape of initiatives that have already been taken by Government and non-governmental groups" and the "work already done—and ongoing—in this area".

It is for the group to interpret its terms of reference, but I would expect that in looking at the legacy of the past in its broadest sense the group will be considering issues relating to victims and survivors along with many other areas; I would also expect that the group will take into account the work being done by the Commission for Victims and Survivors. I look forward to receiving the group's report in the coming months.

When considering the group's report and recommendations, the Government will take into account any impact on, and overlap with, ongoing programmes of work, such as that of the Commission for Victims and Survivors.

EDF Energy

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have with EDF; and how much (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies paid to EDF in each of the last 10 years, broken down by the purpose of the payment. [221834]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office has no contract with EDF.

EDF supplies power to a number of residential properties in London leased by the Northern Ireland Office for staff on detached duty. These contracts would have been set up directly between the staff residing in the accommodation and EDF. Ascertaining payments for the properties over the 10 years would be at disproportionate cost.

Parades

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions have taken place with the Irish Government on the Strategic Review of Parades. [224742]

Paul Goggins: The Strategic Review of Parading Body met the Irish Government in December 2007 and in March and April 2008. Officials provided the Irish Government with updates on the progress of the Strategic Review of Parading in March and August 2008.

Police Patrolling

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average time spent by a police officer on street patrol was in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [224691]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and will arrange for a copy of the letter to be placed in the Official Report and the Library of the House.

Police: Complaints

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many complaints were made against the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [224692]

Paul Goggins: Dealing with such complaints is the operational responsibility of the Office of the Police Ombudsman for Northern Ireland. I have asked the chief executive to reply to the hon. Member directly, and will arrange for a copy of the letter to be placed in the Official Report and the Library of the House.

Police: Finance

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what revisions have been made to arrangements for the Police Service of Northern Ireland's budget; and if he will make a statement. [224599]

Paul Goggins: In the comprehensive spending review 2007 settlement, the PSNI were allocated a fixed allocation of some £3.5 billion over a three-year period (2008 to 2011).

Budget decisions within the funding allocation are a matter for the PSNI and the Policing Board, based on aligning operational priorities with resources.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent representations he has received calling for revisions to the Police Service of Northern Ireland budget arrangements. [224741]

Paul Goggins: In the comprehensive spending review 2007 settlement, the PSNI were allocated a fixed allocation of some £3.5 billion over a three-year period (2008-11).

The PSNI through the Northern Ireland Policing Board has the opportunity to notify the NIO of any proposed revisions to the budget allocation at in-year monitoring rounds. Any funding requests will be considered by the NIO taking into consideration financial commitments throughout the Department.

Prisoners

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) male and (b) female prisoners in Northern Ireland remain in custody having completed their sentence; and what the reason for such post-sentence detention is in each case. [224694]

Paul Goggins: At 8 October, 90 male prisoners and one female prisoner who had completed a custodial sentence remained in custody due to outstanding remand charges. In addition, three immigration detainees who had completed custodial sentences were being held under immigration detention orders.

Prisoners: Crimes of Violence

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many violent offences were committed by prisoners against other prisoners in Northern Ireland whilst in custody in each of the last five years. [224690]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is contained in the following table.

Financial year	Assault of prisoner on prisoner
2005-06	5
2006-07	7
2007-08	14
2008-end September 2008	5
Total	42

These figures are compiled using the Northern Ireland Prison Service key performance indicators definition of assault.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

British Library

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what income his Department received from the British Library in each of the last 10 years. [225286]

Barbara Follett: In each of the last 10 years my Department has received the following rental income from the British Library.

	Retained by DCMS	Surrendered to the Consolidated Fund
1998-99	0	590,000
1999-2000	0	645,000
2000-01	0	42,000
2002-03	0	0
2003-04	0	0

Departmental Furniture

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) chairs, (b) desks and (c) other office furnishings have been purchased by his Department and its agencies in each of the last five years; and at what cost in each case. [211770]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department holds the following information relating to the purchase of chairs, desk and other office furnishings in the last five years. The Department does not hold information for 2003-04.

		2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Chairs	Number	—	20	60	346	156
	Cost	—	9,035	27,105	92,742	34,260
Desks	Number	—	—	—	521	34
	Cost	—	—	—	367,026	30,373
Tables	Number	—	—	—	97	42
	Cost	—	—	—	22,488	16,021
Filing Cabinets	Number	—	—	—	263	6
	Cost	—	—	—	84,232	2,256
Other office furnishings	Number	—	—	—	18	3
	Cost	—	—		3,786	795

The Royal Parks (TRP) accounting system does not record the numbers of chairs, desks etc that have been purchased, so obtaining that information would involve retrieving and analysing paper copies of orders and invoices over five years, at disproportionate cost.

The following table sets out how much TRP has spent on these items over the past five financial years:

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Chairs	7,071	1,094	2,321	2,849	15,996
Tables	2,261	873	1,730	376	2,537
Other office furnishings	19,184	6,520	2,577	3,736	21,898

Departmental Land

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what valuations were made of the land to the north of the British Library in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06, (c) 2006-07 and (d) 2007-08. [224767]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The land to the north of the British Library was professionally valued on 31 March 2005 at £18.98 million and on 31 March 2006 at £26.6 million. At 31 March 2008 the land was being held for resale at a revaluation of £85 million. The sale was completed on 13 June 2008.

Departmental NDPBs

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 2 July 2008, Official Report, columns 51-52WS, on DCMS engagement, what changes are planned to the regional structures of (a) the Arts Council, (b) Sports England, (c) English Heritage and (d) Museum, Libraries and Archives Councils. [223004]

Barbara Follett: The right hon. Member for Barking (Margaret Hodge), explained in a written ministerial statement of 2 July 2008 that the precise nature of the new arrangements in each region will be negotiated regionally by the directors of the four key public bodies. She asked the four chief executives to present as soon as possible their proposals for how the new arrangements for culture will work in the regions following the wind up of the regional cultural consortiums on 31 March 2009.

My Department is committed to continuous improvement in delivery of public services to citizens and to providing value for money to taxpayers. To this end our NDPBs review their structures from time to time and as a result of such reviews, the following changes are proposed or being taken forward:

Sport England is proposing to replace Regional Sports Boards with a ministerial nominee in each of their 9 regions. The Nominee will act as an advocate for community sport. A decision on the London Regional Sports Board will be made following discussions with the Mayor.

The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) is reconfiguring as a single national agency with its head office functions in Birmingham. The unified MLA will then have the capacity to deploy up to 30 staff nationwide in flexible regional action teams.

Arts Council of England, as part of the review of support services, will move 60 staff from the London National Office to the North West Regional Office.

Gambling Act 2005

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when his Department completed the exercise measuring the cost of the Gambling Act 2005 as set out in the departmental Corporate Plan; what the estimated costs of the Act have been; and when he expects to publish the report in full. [224768]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department completed in June 2008 an administrative burdens measurement exercise of the Gambling Act 2005. This was carried out by using the better regulation executive's standard cost model method of assessment and by identifying each individual information obligation arising from the 2005 Act. The validity of the findings were tested by an expert panel, which included industry stakeholders, who challenged the assumptions, methodologies, outcomes of the assessment made by the Department and the Gambling Commission.

The work by the expert panel resulted in an agreed annual administrative burden of the 2005 Act of £17.4 million compared with an annual measurement of £74 million under the previous regulatory regime. Further details of the measurement exercise will be set out in the DCMS simplification plan 2008 to be published in December.

Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff he expects to work in the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting's private office; and where the office will be located. [226000]

Andy Burnham: The Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting will be supported by three members of staff in his private office, which will be co-located between the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of the working week he expects the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting to spend on his Department's business. [226001]

Andy Burnham: I expect the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (joint Minister with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform) to spend approximately 50 per cent. of his working week on departmental business.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting has been assigned an office in his Department. [226002]

Andy Burnham: The Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting has been assigned an office at the Department for Culture, Media and Sport.

Olympic Delivery Authority: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department will provide to the Olympic Delivery Authority in each of the next three years. [225676]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

Chapter 20 of the Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) White Paper, published on 9 October 2007, announced total grant in aid from Government of £1,559/£1,104/£1,050 million in 2008-09 to 2010-11. Provision for 2011-12 to 2013-14 will be confirmed in the next CSR.

The balance of the funding requirement will be met, as announced in March 2007, by contributions from the Mayor of London (GLA and LDA); and from the lottery.

Olympic Games 2012: Standards

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date he expects to publish the first full report on Olympic and Paralympic public service agreements and physical education and school sport. [225692]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

Progress made against the PSA 22 indicators will be published in the autumn performance report published by DCMS. The report will be published no later than 15 December.

World Heritage Sites

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to publish guidelines for applicants for World Heritage status. [224832]

Barbara Follett: The Government will publish a consultation document on its UK World Heritage Review shortly. Should we decide, following the outcome of the Review, to revise the current UK Tentative List, appropriate guidelines on applications for inclusion on the List will be made available.

OLYMPICS

Humanitarian Assistance Unit: Marketing

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much the humanitarian assistance unit spent on publicity in each year since its establishment. [225462]

Tessa Jowell: The Humanitarian Assistance Unit has not spent anything on publicity since it was set up in 2005.

Olympic Delivery Authority: Information Officers

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many press and communications officers are employed by the Olympic Delivery Authority. [224857]

Tessa Jowell: As of 30 September 2008 the ODA communications team employed 25 members of staff—five of which are specifically dedicated to dealing with the press.

The ODA communications team are responsible for a variety of communication and stakeholder engagement activities. These include dealing with local and national media, as well as public inquiries and community engagement, site visits, extensive stakeholder engagement, internal communications and ODA's external publications.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what date she expects the construction of the Aquatics Centre for the London 2012 Olympics to begin. [225464]

Tessa Jowell: Construction of the foundations for the Aquatics Centre began in July 2008, two months ahead of schedule.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the Government's contingency budget for the 2012 London Olympic and Paralympic Games is; and how much of that has been (a) spent and (b) allocated. [224706]

Tessa Jowell: The £9.325 billion funding package for the games announced in March 2007 included a provision for contingency of £2.747 billion. As announced, £500 million of this was transferred to the Olympic Delivery Authority's (ODA) baseline funding, and £238 million was set aside as a contingency for wider policing and security. This left a balance of £2,009 million: £968 million of which is programme-wide contingency for ODA programme-wide risks, and £1,041 million of which is Funders' Group contingency for risks beyond the project and programme level.

To date £21.5 million of ODA programme-wide contingency has been allocated to cover the net contingency requirements of a number of programmes. In addition £95 million of Funder's Group contingency has been allocated to the ODA as interim funding to enable work on the construction of the Olympic village to continue uninterrupted despite the current turmoil in the financial markets.

There is no direct spending from contingency, because once allocated it is incorporated into the ODA's programme expenditure. It is therefore only possible to provide information on the contingency allocated to the ODA and on ODA actual spend. Information on allocated contingency and actual spend are provided in the six-monthly progress updates. The next progress update will be published in the new year.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Solicitor-General how many letters her Department received from hon. Members and Peers in each session of Parliament since 1997. [174942]

The Solicitor-General: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. These reports are available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Harper: To ask the Solicitor-General how many staff work in her Office's parliamentary branch; and what proportion of their time is spent on dealing with (a) parliamentary questions and (b) correspondence from hon. Members and Peers. [174950]

The Solicitor-General: There is one person that deals with all my parliamentary business and there are three people in the correspondence team that deal with all correspondence from Members and Peers.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Solicitor-General how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day she has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226886]

The Solicitor-General: 11 (73 per cent.) of the written for named day questions have been answered on the due date in the current session.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Solicitor-General how many and what proportion of staff in the Attorney-General's Office are disabled; and what the average salary in the Office is of (a) full-time disabled staff, (b) full-time non-disabled staff, (c) part-time disabled staff and (d) part-time non-disabled staff. [220180]

The Solicitor-General: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 652W.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Solicitor-General what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by the Attorney-General's Office has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced powers of entry since May 1997. [222346]

The Solicitor-General: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Climate Change and Energy Strategy Board

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what work the Climate Change and Energy Strategy Board has undertaken; what further work is planned; and if he will make a statement. [225366]

Joan Ruddock: The senior board which oversees the climate change and energy programme across Government is the Delivery and Strategy High Level Board (DASH Board). The board is made up of senior officials from all the contributing Departments (DECC, BERR, DEFRA, Cabinet Office, CLG, DfID, DfT, FCO and HMT) and is co-chaired by the heads of DECC's Climate Change Group (formerly in DEFRA) and the Energy Group (formerly in BERR). The board puts advice to the ED(EE) Cabinet Committee, and is also the Delivery Board for the Climate Change Public Service Agreement (PSA 27).

The board meets at least every six weeks, and takes regular reports from the programme boards which cover the three aspects of the overall programme: international energy and climate change; national energy and climate change mitigation; national climate change adaptation. The board considers reports on progress from the programme boards, decides on any action to put progress on track and seeks to identify the key strategic issues and risks to the programme that need to be addressed.

Warm Front Scheme

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many complaints he has received from (a) local authorities and (b) others in relation to the management of the Warm Front 2 scheme; and what the subject of each complaint was. [224262]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 17 September 2008]: Complaints received by the Secretary of State are not classified and recorded in the way requested. However, Eaga plc, who manage the scheme on DECC's behalf, do record and classify all complaints received about Warm Front, for which the Secretary of State is ultimately responsible.

Between 1 June 2005 (start of Warm Front 2) and 31 August 2008, there was a total of 3,508 upheld complaints in relation to the Warm Front Scheme, made by a variety of bodies. Over the same period, there were 834,269 successful applications to the scheme, giving a percentage of upheld complaints against successful applications of 0.42 per cent.

Warm Front does not specifically record the numbers of complaints received from local authorities. However, the following table shows the breakdown of upheld complaints received by source since the start of Warm Front 2[1]. Local authority complaints are recorded in the stakeholder category.

[1] The total figure in the table comes to 3,506 rather than 3,508, as two complaints received that related to the HEES Scheme in Wales have been removed.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps the Government have taken to encourage business growth. [219552]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 21 July 2008]: Encouraging business growth is a key aim of the Department, and "Enterprise: Unlocking the UK's Talent" (available at http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file44992.pdf), published in March 2008, announced a number of new measures designed to support business growth. For example the Government are:

encouraging women's enterprise, an area where the UK is lagging behind major competitors, through initiatives such as women's business centre pilots;

improving access to finance to support business growth such as extending eligibility to the Small Firms Loan Guarantee; encouraging innovation, a key driver of growth, through initiatives such as the launch of innovation vouchers.

The Manufacturing Strategy, published on 8 September 2008, builds on the Enterprise Strategy with additional measures to promote growth in this sector.

Although the global outlook is uncertain, through maintaining a stable macroeconomic environment, the Government have created an environment conducive to businesses growth, and contributed to a thriving business sector:

The UK has a record number of businesses—4.7 million at the start of 2007—around 970,000 (26 per cent.) more than in 1997;

Private sector employment has risen by 1.7 million (8 per cent.) since 1997;

Business survival rates are higher than a decade ago—92 per cent. of VAT registered firms still registered after one year; 71 per cent. after three years.

The UK is the only G7 economy to have avoided any quarters of contraction in output since 2001, in spite of slow growth in key export markets in the recent past; and over the past 10 years the UK has enjoyed more stability in terms of GDP growth and inflation than in any decade since the war.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the Minister for Communications, Technology and Broadcasting has been assigned an office in his Department. [225917]

Mr. McFadden: Yes.

Gyms

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many gymnasiums operated for the use of staff members his Department funds. [225048]

Mr. Thomas: BERR's gymnasium is funded by Minerva, the in-house sports and social association, from membership subscriptions not and from the departmental budget.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members' Staff: Pay

Lynne Jones: To ask the Leader of the House (1) if she will examine the financial implications of extending the House of Commons staff redundancy arrangements to staff of hon. Members; [225976]

(2) if she will examine the financial and administrative implications of automatically increasing the pay of staff of hon. Members annually by the rise in staffing allowance. [225977]

Chris Bryant: Under the House of Commons (Administration) Act 1978, House staff are employed by the House of Commons Commission. The Act requires the Commission to keep staff conditions of service broadly in the line with those in the Home Civil Service. This requirement applies to redundancy arrangements. The Members Estimate Committee report, Review of Allowances (HC578), considered the central employment of Members' staff by the House but rejected this in favour of Members themselves remaining the employer.

Members' staff are employed by Members, under standard contracts prepared by the Department of Resources. The contract requires the Member to review annually his or her employee's salary. Members can then decide whether an increase is appropriate, which could depend on factors such as staff performance and budget constraints. Automatic pay rises would restrict Members' ability to match the needs of their office to the resources available.

Parliamentary Resources Unit

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House how much has been paid to the Parliamentary Resources Unit through the Department of Resources and its predecessors in each year since 1997. [224836]

Chris Bryant: The amount paid to the PRU for each year since 2003-04 is as follows:

2003-04	183,879
2004-05	397,867
2005-06	637,421
2006-07	536,142
2007-08	598,067

Information is not readily available for prior years.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much was spent on salaries for press and communications officers in (a) his Department, (b) its NDPBs and (c) its agencies in each of the last three years. [224549]

Ann McKechin: The figures are as follows and include ERNIC etc; the Office had a reduced number of press officers for part of 2006-07 and assistance was provided by staff of the Government News Network.

2005-06	93,114
2006-07	70,283
2007-08	113,236

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many and what proportion of staff in his Department are disabled; and what the average salary in his Department is of (a) full-time disabled staff, (b) full-time non-disabled staff, (c) part-time disabled staff and (d) part-time non-disabled staff. [220175]

Ann McKechin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 651W.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he will reply to Question 220175, on staff, tabled on 15th July. [226924]

Ann McKechin: This parliamentary question was answered today.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Secondary Schools: Closure

8. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the process is for consultation over closure of secondary schools; and if he will make a statement. [225785]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Consultation is the first part of the five stage statutory process for proposed changes to school provision, including closures. The later stages are publication of proposals; a period for representations; decision and implementation, if approved.

Proposals are decided under local decision making arrangements. Ministers have no direct role in the process. However, proposers are required to consult with interested parties and take into account their views when reaching a decision on whether to progress with proposals.

Educational Standards: Secondary Schools

9. Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to raise educational standards in secondary schools. [225786]

Ed Balls: Secondary schools standards have risen substantially over the past decade with the number of schools not reaching our basic benchmark of 30 per cent. Five A*-C GCSEs including English and Maths down from over 1,600 in 1997 to a provisional 475 in 2008.

Our National Challenge programme will ensure that by 2011 every school will have at least 30 per cent. of its pupils over the basic benchmark and today I have written to all National Challenge heads updating them on our progress with our plans.

Academy Programme

10. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the prospects for the academies programme over the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [225787]

Jim Knight: The prospects for the academies programme are secure. In addition to the 130 academies now open, four are projected to open in January 2009, 80 in September 2009 and a further 100 in 2010. The Government are committed to establishing at least 400 academies nationwide.

Trust Schools

11. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in the development of trust schools; and if he will make a statement. [225788]

Ed Balls: 106 schools have already become trust schools, the large majority of them in collaborative trusts with other schools. And last month I announced that a further 65 schools have successfully applied to enter the trust schools programme. This brings the total number of schools seeking to apply trust status to 378, including three national challenge trusts. I expect a further round of application from schools at the end of November 2008.

Sure Start

12. Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress the Sure Start programme has made; and if he will make a statement. [225789]

Beverley Hughes: We exceeded the 2008 target, with over 2,900 children's centres offering services to almost 2.3 million children under five and their families. By 2010 there will be a centre for every community. The most recent wave of the National Evaluation of Sure Start found that Sure Start Local Programmes have had a positive impact on a number of outcomes. The report showed a marked improvement on the findings of the earlier study published in 2005.

New Schools: Costs

13. Phil Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average cost of establishing a new school is. [225790]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: For the strategic centrally managed BSF programme the average capital cost of a new secondary school was £26 million. This average does however mask big variations across projects owing to the size and type of school, local cost pressures, site constraints and other abnormal factors.

The Department does not hold capital cost information on new primary and secondary schools delivered by local authorities through their devolved capital programmes, nor on authorities' revenue expenditure on establishing new schools.

Adoption

14. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made on the Government's plans to encourage adoption; and if he will make a statement. [225791]

Beverley Hughes: Since the Prime Minister's review of adoption in 2000, the Government have introduced new legislation—the Adoption and Children Act 2002—which represents a complete overhaul of the adoption system in England and Wales; new statutory guidance; new practice guidance and a range of other linked initiatives to modernise and reform adoption practice. In addition, we have commissioned the Adoption Research Initiative specifically to examine the impact of the Act.

21. Mr. Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to encourage adoption; and if he will make a statement. [225798]

Beverley Hughes: Through the implementation of the Adoption and Children Act 2002 we have already overhauled the adoption system in England and Wales. We will next year issue strengthened care planning guidance to ensure that each child has a thorough assessment of their needs and circumstances leading to the right permanence plan. We will also disseminate good practice and the findings from the Adoption Research Initiative to ensure that adoption continues to be seen as an important option for those children who need it.

Special Needs Pupils

15. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps have been taken to integrate special needs pupils into mainstream education; and if he will make a statement. [225792]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The present statutory framework provides for children with statements of special educational needs to be taught in mainstream schools where this is what their parents want and is compatible with the efficient education of other children. It also provides for parents to seek a special school place and to have this preference considered. We published guidance last year which encourages local authorities to have a range of provision for children with SEN and disabilities.

Education Maintenance Allowances

16. Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average time to process an education maintenance allowance application is; and if he will make a statement. [225793]

Jim Knight: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) have informed me that due to problems with their automatic system, their contractor have had to resort to manual processing of EMA applications. As a consequence it is taking longer than in previous years to process EMA applications. It is not yet possible to give an average time to process applications under these revised arrangements.

I know that some students are still waiting for their allowances, and we have asked colleges to use their discretionary support funds for learners who may need financial help in the meantime. No learners should lose out as a consequence of the current delays.

Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services

18. Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made of the review of child and adolescent mental health services; and if he will make a statement. [225795]

Beverley Hughes: The independent review of CAMHs is progressing extremely well. A comprehensive programme of research, visits and consultation events has been completed, and an interim report published in July 2008. The Secretary of State for Health and I recently met the review's expert group to discuss the emerging findings with them. As the independent chair, Jo Davidson, is planning to publish the final report in November, it would be pre-emptive to make a statement at this point.

Sex and Relationship Education

19. Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the review of the provision of sex and relationship education in schools to report. [225796]

Jim Knight: The sex and relationships education (SRE) review steering group has had its final meeting and is in the process of finalising its report, which it intends to publish shortly.

School Meals

22. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to increase the percentage of school children who have a cooked school lunch; and if he will make a statement. [225799]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children Schools and Families and the School Food Trust have a wide programme to increase take-up of cooked school lunches, including:

£240 million subsidy to help keep down prices;

£150 million capital for new kitchens and dining rooms; support for local authorities where take-up is stuck or declining;

training for catering staff;

School Food Trust promoting what works in increasing take-up; and encouraging take-up of free school meals, including piloting universal free meals for primary pupils.

Secondary School Funding (Rural Areas)

23. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much and what proportion of secondary school funding was allocated to rural areas in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [225800]

Jim Knight: Secondary school funding is not identified nationally as separate from primary school funding. DCSF distributes revenue funding for schools to local authorities (LAs) through the Dedicated Schools Grant.

Each LA decides the distribution of core funding to individual schools, according to their local funding formula, which will have been agreed with the schools forum and designed to reflect local need. It is for local discretion how much of that authorities spend on the increased costs associated with rural schools and some authorities have specific protection for small rural schools within their local formulae.

Sandhill View School: Sunderland, South

25. Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will visit Sandhill View School in Sunderland, South constituency to discuss its standards. [225802]

Ed Balls: I understand that Sandhill View school has made excellent progress in the proportion of students gaining five or more good GCSEs including English and mathematics, and I congratulate the school's staff and students on their success in the past year and wish them well for this academic year. I hope that my diary will permit me to visit the school when I am next in the area.

Building Schools for the Future

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the performance of the Building Schools for the Future programme. [225784]

Jim Knight: Our assessment has two main strands. First, PricewaterhouseCoopers is evaluating the impact of Building Schools for the Future investment on pupil achievement. We aim to publish the second annual report of that evaluation later this year. Secondly, schools capital including Building Schools for the Future is one of three strands of a Public Value Programme review that we are conducting with HM Treasury. We expect to finish that review this winter.

Bullying

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to tackle bullying of children with special needs in schools. [225794]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We published guidance in May 2008 which reminds schools of their legal obligations in respect of children with special educational needs and disabilities. The guidance provides comprehensive advice on how to prevent the bullying of these children, and how to respond to bullying incidents. We are funding the Anti-Bullying Alliance and National Strategies to ensure the guidance is effectively implemented on the ground, and to provide challenge and support. We are monitoring the situation closely.

Academy School: Wirral, South

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether there are plans to introduce an academy school in Wirral, South constituency. [225797]

Jim Knight: My Department is not aware of any plans to introduce an academy school in the Wirral, South constituency.

Free School Meals

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the cost of providing free school meals to all pupils in maintained (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in England. [225801]

Jim Knight: The Department has not made an estimate. However, a report commissioned by the School Food Trust estimated that providing free school meals for all pupils would cost at least an additional £853 million in maintained primary and £673 million in maintained secondary schools.

The Department together with the Department of Health recently announced a £20 million free school meals pilot. Local authorities in deprived areas will be invited to bid to take part in the pilots.

Public Libraries: Newcastle Upon Tyne

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much additional spending has been allocated for public libraries in the Newcastle upon Tyne area for the next 12 months. [222629]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

Funding for public libraries is allocated to local authorities by the Department for Communities and Local Government, as part of the local government settlement. Local authorities then distribute funding among local library authorities. In addition, funding for various libraries related programmes such as "Boys into Books" and "Book Ahead" are made available from other funding streams in Government to fulfil certain strategic aims.

We have defined the "Newcastle upon Tyne area" as the locality containing Newcastle upon Tyne city council, Gateshead metropolitan borough council and Sunderland city council. We have interpreted the wording of the question as a request for projected spend for these local authorities for the next 12-month period, and also as a request for comparative historic data.

As funding arrangements relate to specific financial years it is not a simple matter to provide 12-month projected spend from a set starting point within year.

The figures set out in the table have been provided by the local authorities in question as projected spend for the financial year 2008-09, alongside comparative figures for the financial year 2007-08.

Local authority	Projected library spend, 2008-09	Library spend 2007-08
Newcastle upon Tyne	7.305	7.216
Gateshead	6.737	5.268
Sunderland	4.986	6.506

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Annual Leave

Lynne Jones: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 788W, on annual leave, when the leave arrangements for the Senior Commons Service were put in place; and if the Commission will review all leave arrangements for House staff and Members' staff. [225044]

Nick Harvey: The leave arrangements for the Senior Commons Structure have been in place for at least 10 years. There are no current plans to review leave arrangements. I understand that minimum leave arrangements for Members' staff are set out in the standard contract, but individual Members have discretion to grant more leave if they wish.

Catering

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 9W, on Department of Facilities: fats, what the nine products purchased by the House of Commons catering service are that contain hydrogenated fats or oils. [226138]

Nick Harvey: The nine products purchased by the House of Commons catering service so far identified as containing hydrogenated fats or oils are:

Cadbury's Highlights hot chocolate drink;

Cadbury's Instant Break hot chocolate drink;

Jacob's Club Biscuits (orange flavour only);

M and Ms (Mars confectionery);

Snickers Bars (Mars confectionery);

Brakes Vegetable Suet;

Maggi Beef Bouillon;

Maggi Chicken Bouillon;

Trenwax (spray fat used to grease baking moulds).

Four of the nine products already identified as containing hydrogenated fats or oils were specifically selected because they are gluten-free and, hence, are suitable for coeliacs.

Departmental Manpower

Ben Chapman: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission (1) how many staff were employed by the House at the most recent date for which figures are available; [223927]

(2) what the total salary costs of House staff were in each of the last five years; [223928]

(3) what the pay grades for all House staff were in each of the last five years. [223929]

Nick Harvey: The House employed 1,696 full-time equivalent permanent staff during 2007-08. Total salary costs incurred during the last five years were:

	Salary cost (£000)
2003-04	39,174
2004-05	41,983
2005-06	44,302
2006-07	46,705
2007-08	50,450

The pay bands for all House staff during the last five years were:

Members: Allowances

Mr. Allen: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate has been made of the effect on paper usage by the Department of Resources of meeting freedom of information requests in respect of the publication of hon. Members' reimbursements; how many person hours this work has involved; and what the total cost of this operation has been to date. [224146]

Nick Harvey: There has been no discernable effect on paper usage by the Department of Resources in relation to the preparing of allowance expenditure information from the years 2004-05 to the first quarter of 2008-09 for publication later this year. The records are being reproduced electronically and will be published on the internet. The work of preparing the information for publication is being undertaken by the Department of Resources and by an outside contractor under secure conditions. Within the Department of Resources approximately 2,660 person hours have been dedicated to the project. No record is held of person hours expended by the contractor. The overall cost to date of preparing the information for publication is approximately £600,000.

Nurseries

Lynne Jones: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what recent consideration has been given by the House authorities to the provision of crèche facilities on the parliamentary estate as an alternative option alongside the childcare voucher scheme for staff of hon. Members. [225978]

Nick Harvey: The provision of a crèche on the estate has not been considered since July 2003. Following a feasibility study and a survey of Members, the Commission weighed the options carefully and considered that most parents prefer younger children to be cared for at or near their home. Child care vouchers continue to be available for staff of hon. Members and staff of the House. Following suggestions that the voucher scheme be extended to Members, the Commission recently asked the Administration Committee to look at child care again and assess the level of demand among Members for any change to the current arrangements.

Official Report

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the average cost of making the Official Report available online was per sitting day in the latest period for which figures are available. [223991]

Nick Harvey: House of Commons printing and publishing charges, including electronic publication charges, are calculated in arrears by financial year. The Official Report is made available online as 'Today in the Commons', daily part text and bound volume text forms. For FY 2007-08, the average cost of making all of these forms available online was £1,100 per sitting day. Other costs associated with the production of House Papers, particularly staff costs which are not attributed to individual forms of publications, are not included.

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the average printing cost of the Official Report was per sitting day in the latest period for which figures are available. [223992]

Nick Harvey: House of Commons printing and publishing charges are calculated in arrears by financial year. The Official Report is made available in printed form as daily parts and bound volumes as well as weekly volumes; and indexes are also produced. Printing costs are not separately identifiable from the total overall charge raised by the contractor, for making copies of the Official Report available in the various forms and quantities required. For FY 2007-08, the average cost of making all the forms of the Official Report available in printed form in the total quantities required was £22,000 per sitting day.

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many copies of the Official Report were printed on average per sitting day in (a) each year from 1998 to 2007 and (b) 2008 to date. [223993]

Nick Harvey: The following figures for the average number of copies of the Official Report printed in each year from 1998 to 2007 have been provided by the House's printer as follows:

	Copies
1998	2,788
1999	2,655
2000	2,479
2001	2,296
2002	2,203
2003	2,165
2004	2,022
2005	1,987
2006	1,923
2007	1,549

In 2008 to date, 1,339 copies have been printed on average per sitting day.

Palace of Westminster: Theft

Mr. Sanders: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many articles have been reported stolen from the Palace of Westminster in the last 12 months; and what those items were. [225374]

Nick Harvey: From the latest statistical information collected, there were nine reported thefts from the Palace of Westminster in the last 12 months. Detailed information is given as follows:

One computer laptop;

One digital camera;

One set of golf clubs;

One pair of candlesticks; and Five amounts of cash, all under £100.

Parliament: Internet

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what guidelines govern the blocking of access to websites from the parliamentary network; and if he will place in the Library a list of all blocked websites. [224558]

Nick Harvey: The Administration Committee approved the introduction of web filtering for Members on 30 January 2007 on the basis of a recommendation from the Joint Committee on Security. They did so as part of Parliaments' range of security measures designed to protect the parliamentary network and all its users from unauthorised access and viruses. The type of sites that are blocked relate to those that are associated with deploying or containing spyware, malware, phishing and other malicious content.

Members and staff have been notified of the process that they should follow if a site is incorrectly blocked or if they wish to view a site for research or other parliamentary purposes that has been blocked correctly.

No list is maintained within Parliament of individual websites that are blocked and the filtering service runs constantly to rate and block, if appropriate, new sites that appear on the web.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the operation of the law relating to abortion. [225311]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not commissioned or evaluated any research evidence on the operation of the Abortion Act 1967, as amended.

I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Southend, West (Mr. Amess) on 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 839W.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission an independent investigation into the operation of the law relating to abortion. [225937]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government keep up to date with all the latest evidence and developments in this area. For these reasons, the Government have no plan to set up an independent review.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished admission episodes where the admission method was via accident and emergency for an alcohol-related diagnosis there were in each NHS trust where the patient was (a) under 10, (b) between 11 and 15 and (c) between 16 and 18 years old in each of the last five years. [222800]

Dawn Primarolo: Tables have been placed in the Library which give the number of finished admission episodes where the admission method was via accident and emergency for an alcohol-related diagnosis in each NHS trust for the last five years where the patient was under 10, between 11 and 15 and between 16 and 18 years old.

Data concerning hospital admissions are collected, analysed and published by the Information Centre for health and social care (IC). The IC methodology represents a count of all finished admission episodes where one or more of the following three diagnoses was mentioned in any of the 14 diagnosis fields in a hospital episode statistics record:

mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol (F10); alcoholic liver disease (K70); and toxic effect of alcohol (T51).

The North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO) have developed a new methodology for analysing data concerning alcohol-related hospital admissions. Following international best practice, the NWPHO methodology uses alcohol attributable fractions (AAFs). These AAFs consider a much wider range of diseases and injuries in which alcohol plays a part and estimate the proportion of cases that are attributable to the consumption of alcohol. This methodology is currently being finalised and figures will be made available in due course.

Health: Tourists

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what financial assistance is available to people who are travelling abroad to help them pay for essential medicines or injections; and if he will make a statement. [225985]

Dawn Primarolo: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State recommends that all United Kingdom residents intending to travel either within or outside of Europe, take out private travel insurance before they go. Within the European Economic Area (EEA) and Switzerland, the European Health Insurance Card does entitle British tourists to treatment that may become necessary during their trip including maternity care, renal dialysis and managing the symptoms of pre-existing or chronic conditions. The UK also has reciprocal agreements with a limited number of non-EEA countries which provide UK residents with emergency treatment at a reduced cost or sometimes for free. However, neither of those provisions cover UK residents for all potential healthcare costs for example, repatriation back to the UK or private sector treatment.

Independent Advisory Group on Sexual Health and HIV

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) financial and (b) other assistance his Department has given to the Independent Advisory Group on Sexual Health and HIV in each year since its inception; how much is planned for 2008-09; how many officials provide the secretariat for the advisory group; what the grade is of each; what restrictions his Department places on the use of such funds; and if he will make a statement. [225712]

Dawn Primarolo: The Independent Advisory Group on Sexual Health and HIV was established in 2003 to provide advice to government and to monitor the overall success of "Better prevention, Better Services, Better Sexual Health: the National Strategy for Sexual Health and HIV", published in 2001. Copies of this publication have already been placed in the Library. Departmental officials have a close relationship with the chair of the group and with members. The secretariat is provided by one official at higher executive officer level on a part-time basis. Departmental funding covers the chair's salary, members' fees and expenses, events and publications. The value of the financial assistance to the group since its establishment is set out in the following table. In addition to this, in 2007-08 £90,000 was provided to enable the Independent Advisory Group to commission a review of the Sexual Health and HIV Strategy. The review—"Progress and priorities—working together for high quality sexual health: Review of the National Strategy for Sexual Health and HIV" was published in July 2008, copies of this publication have been placed in the Library. We plan to allocate £150,000 to the group in the financial year 2008-09.

2004-05	70,173.39
2005-06	98,954.99
2006-07	104,179.63
2007-08	137,350.54

Medical Treatments: Lasers

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to introduce secondary legislation to deregulate Class 3B and 4 lasers and intense light sources. [225016]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following the responses to the "Private and Voluntary Healthcare Consultation: care Standards Act 2000. Regulations and national minimum standards consultation document", (copies of which have already been placed in the Library) we are currently undertaking further detailed work in order to examine a range of different deregulatory options regarding lasers and lights.

NHS Direct: Translation Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which non-English languages are offered to users of NHS Direct services; and what the total budgetary allocation for NHS Direct translation and language services is; [225324]

(2) what assessment he has made of the efficacy of NHS Direct translation and language services in providing equitable and accessible medical advice for non-English speakers. [225325]

NHS: Buildings

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much capital expenditure there was on buildings in the NHS between (a) 1979 and 1997 and (b) 1997 and 2007 in real terms using 2006-07 prices; and if he will make a statement. [225033]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information in the following table shows total capital expenditure in the NHS over the period specified. The Department does not hold historic records that identify the proportion of this expenditure on buildings.

NHS capital expenditure, England, 1979-80 to 2007-08

NHS: Consultants

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what amendments he proposes to table during the passage of the Health and Social Care Bill to rectify the omission of the names of current NHS consultants from the Specialist Register when it was created. [225994]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Health and Social Care Act received Royal Assent on 21 July 2008. The Government will lay before Parliament the draft Medical Profession (Miscellaneous Amendments) Order 2008. This is an Order in Council under section 60 of the Health Act 1999 subject to affirmative resolution. The draft order contains a provision, which will reinstate the powers of the General Medical Council to grant late entry to the Specialist Register to those consultants who did not join the register when it was created.

Paracetamol: Children

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what investigations his Department plans to undertake to evaluate the possible effects on children of taking paracetamol suspension type medicines; [224731]

(2) whether his Department will be introducing new guidelines for the retailing of paracetamol suspensions. [224735]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) continuously monitors the safety of all medicines in the United Kingdom and, where necessary, takes suitable action to safeguard public health.

As new evidence comes to light, the MHRA seeks advice on safety issues from its independent scientific advisory group—the Commission on Human Medicines (CHM). If action is needed, following an assessment of the risks and benefits of the medicine, then a number of regulatory options are available, including: withdrawal of a product from the market; and, amending the labelling and Patient Information Leaflet (PIL).

In relation to the use of paracetamol in children, a paper was published in The Lancet on 20 September 2008 which explored the possible link between asthma in children aged six-seven years and earlier use of paracetamol. This issue has previously been considered on a number of occasions by the predecessor to CHM, the Committee on Safety of Medicines, and its Sub-Committee on Pharmacovigilance, which concluded that a causal relationship had not been established. The data from the most recent paper is under careful consideration by the CHM, and appropriate regulatory action, including the issuing of guidance, will be taken if necessary in the light of the advice obtained.

Parkinson's Disease: Medical Treatments

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in which primary care trusts Duodopa has been prescribed for the treatment of Parkinson's disease in the last 12 months. [225272]

Dawn Primarolo: Between June 2007 and July 2008, Duodopa was prescribed in Central Lancashire, Leeds and Nottinghamshire County Teaching Primary Care Trusts.

Patient Choice Schemes

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the choose and book service; and if he will make a statement. [226581]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has not undertaken a specific assessment of the effectiveness of choose and book.

The Department does collect data on the number of general practitioner referrals to first out-patient services booked via choose and book each month. The end of month position for August 2008 showed that 49 per cent. of all out-patient referrals were made through the choose and book system.

To date over 10 million patients have been referred through choose and book of which over 8.5 million have been referred to out-patient care.

Trusts using choose and book are reporting significant improvements in operational efficiency and service delivery. For example, Kettering General Hospitals NHS Trust reported that choose and book helped to cut their missed hospital appointments by approximately a third.

Standish Hospital

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the arrangements are for the protection of the Standish Hospital site; what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the placing of guardians there; and what investigation he has undertaken into the competence of (a) Camelot and (b) Safe Estates in relation to this site. [225864]

Mr. Bradshaw: The current arrangements for the protection of the Standish Hospital site are 24-hour manned security together with alarm arrangements and boarding of the property, including metal shuttering.

The Department was concerned that the use of guardians was not providing the desired level of site security. A tendering exercise, with appropriate evaluation, was therefore undertaken to put in place the current arrangements.

JUSTICE

Borders: Personal Records

Mr. Spellar: To asks the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2008; when the agreement between the EU and the United States on the processing and transfer of passenger name record data by air carriers to the United States' Department for Homeland Security will next be reviewed. [225003]

Mr. Wills: The review is expected to begin before the end of this year.

Children: Protection

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make it his policy, acting as central authority under the Hague convention, where a family has had further children since emigrating with one or more children subject to an interim or final care order, to seek to transfer jurisdiction for child protection to the family's current habitual residence. [225035]

Bridget Prentice: The role and functions of the Central Authority are established through International law. The Central Authority has no power to transfer jurisdiction. Only a court seized of proceedings regarding a child may do so, and then only in accordance with international law.

Where a child is subject to an interim or final care order, and the family removes the child from the UK against the wishes of the local authority with care of the child, the local authority is entitled to use the Hague convention on the civil aspects of international child abduction to obtain return of the child from the jurisdiction to which he or she has been taken. The Central Authority is legally obliged by that convention to transmit an application for return of the child to the jurisdiction to which the child has been taken. These matters are not susceptible to policy review because they arise as a result of the UK's international legal obligations.

Upon return of the child under the convention, the courts here have jurisdiction to deal with all issues regarding the welfare of the child, and will take into account the importance of the child's family and sibling relationships. The mechanism in the convention providing for swift return of a child wrongfully removed is important in ensuring that children's cases are heard by the courts of the jurisdiction where they are habitually resident, which will be best placed to assess the child's welfare. Further, it ensures that people cannot seek to evade proceedings and orders by removing the child to another jurisdiction in the hope of escaping the attention of the authorities or getting a more favourable outcome from the court of another country which is less well-placed to assess the child's welfare than the courts of his or her habitual residence. This is essential for child protection.

If a parent or parents of a child subject to a care order wish to emigrate they can apply to the court prior to the emigration for an order allowing the move. In determining that decision the court can hear from all appropriate parties. If such an order is made the family is free to move and the courts of the new jurisdiction would assume jurisdiction for the child once its habitual residence was established there.

Consent to Medical Treatment: Children

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make an estimate of the average age at which a child has been considered to be Gillick competent and able to instruct a solicitor in family court proceedings relating to his or her medical treatment. [225034]

Bridget Prentice: Data about cases in which children have been considered to be Gillick competent and able to instruct a solicitor in relation to medical treatment are not collected in a way which would enable an estimate to be provided of the average age of children in such cases.

Courts Service: Land

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to dispose of land owned by HM Courts Service at Spring Bank, New Mills. [224705]

Bridget Prentice: HM Courts Service is currently seeking to dispose of the freehold interest in the land at Spring Bank, New Mills as the planning consent for a new courthouse has expired and the site is now considered surplus to operational requirements. We remain committed to provision of court services to the High Peak area.

Courts: Northern Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his most recent estimate is of the required expenditure for the courts estate in Northern Ireland over the next three years. [226213]

Bridget Prentice: The Northern Ireland Court Service settlement for the CSR period 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 includes a capital allocation of £7 million/ £7.4 million/£7.4 million respectively. This allocation will cover expenditure on essential buildings maintenance and other capital projects including ICT systems.

The Court Service has initiated a review of its future estate requirements for the medium to longer term which will inform the Department's bid in the next CSR spending round.

Criminal Proceedings: Interpreters

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent steps he has taken to ensure that there is an adequate number of qualified interpreters available for criminal proceedings. [224784]

Bridget Prentice: We have taken forward a range of measures aimed at improving both the quality and the availability of interpreters in the criminal justice system. In particular, we have sponsored a conversion course aimed at immigration interpreters from EU accession countries. The purpose of this is to upgrade their qualifications so they can register on the National Register of Public Service Interpreters which will enable them to work for the criminal justice system in this country. We have also supported bids for European funding from organisations interested in working in this area, resulting in two universities being granted funding to develop training in this area and explore video-interpreting.

Crown Dependencies: Meetings

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what meetings he has held with representatives of the Isle of Man in the last 12 months; [222966]

(2) what discussions he has had with the president or members of the states of Alderney in the last 12 months; [222967]

Mr. Wills: The Secretary of State has held no meetings with representatives of the Isle of Man in the last 12 months. I met with the Isle of Man's Chief Minister, Chief Secretary and Director of External Relations on 5 December 2007 in London and met with representatives of the Isle of Man Government, including the Chief Minister, in the Isle of Man on 29 September.

There have been no discussions between the Secretary of State and the President or members of the States of Alderney in the last 12 months.

Debt Collection: Parking Offences

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received on the powers bailiffs have to collect monies for unpaid parking fines under the provisions of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007. [225722]

Bridget Prentice: Bailiffs' powers currently stem from common law and numerous pieces of legislation resulting in an array of mechanisms depending on the type of debt or type of agent responsible for enforcement.

The Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 introduces a single piece of bailiff law which brings together in one place the legal structure for all warrant enforcement, written in terms that are easily understandable and which clearly outline the rights and responsibilities of creditors, debtors and enforcement agents.

To implement these provisions, underpinning rules and regulations will be required. A recently completed scoping exercise, which involved a series of meetings with relevant stakeholders, identified issues that require further public consultation. It is anticipated that the consultation will generate representations from a wide range of stakeholders, including the enforcement industry, local authorities, other Government Departments and lobby groups. Our proposed approach to progressing this and achieving implementation of the Act is being developed and we anticipate that this part of the work will be completed shortly.

Although formal consultation on the regulations has yet to begin, correspondence is regularly received on the enforcement reforms contained within parts 3 and 4 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act. However, due to volume, it is considered time disproportionate to review all correspondence to identify representations specific to unpaid parking fines.

Departmental Manpower

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham of 23 June 2008, Official Report, columns 54-55W, on departmental manpower,

(1) what records his Department's human resources department holds on the number of (a) permanent staff without fixed posts and (b) staff classified as priority movers; [222194]

(2) what records the human resources departments of his Department's agencies hold on the number of (a) permanent staff without fixed posts and (b) staff classified as priority movers. [222195]

Mr. Wills: There are 53 MoJ permanent staff who are classified as priority movers, or who are currently without fixed posts. They are employed within the Department's agencies, including Her Majesty's Courts Service, The Tribunals Service, Office of the Public Guardian and Her Majesty's Prison Service. A break down for those currently without fixed posts are:

	Number
MOJ	19
HMCS	8
Tribunals Service	2
HMPS	24

All are in active employment, and their redeployment is being managed by their line managers and the Human Resources Directorate within the Ministry of Justice, and across the wider civil service.

Each case is actively managed in accordance with published departmental policy and procedures.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff from public relations or public affairs firms or consultancies were seconded to (a) his Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies in each of the last five years. [222197]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice has not seconded any staff from public relations, public affairs firms or consultancies from within its former Department for Constitutional Affairs agencies and associated offices or from Her Majesty's Prison Service or National Offender Management Service and the Office for Criminal Justice Reform within the last five years.

Departmental Research

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of his Department's budget and that of its predecessor was used for research within its areas of responsibility in each of the last 10 years. [218073]

Mr. Wills: The information requested is in the following table.

	MOJ HQ	OPG	HMCS	Percentage OCJR
1998-99	[1]—	n/a	[3]—	n/a

[1] Ministry of Justice Headquarters and Associated Offices.
1998-99 to May 2003: Lord Chancellor's Department.
June 2003 to April 2007: Department for Constitutional Affairs.
May 2007 to present: Ministry of Justice.
The proportion of spend for 2007-08 comprises 0.32 per cent. administration expenditure and 1.33 per cent. programme expenditure. The increase over 2006-07 reflects the creation of the new Ministry following a machinery of government change. National Offender Management Service HQ elements and Office of Criminal Justice Reform are included in the make up of the 'core Department' in the 2007-08 Resource Accounts.
Expenditure for all years is in respect of research and development. Identifying the research element could be done only at disproportionate cost.
The proportion of spend for 1998-99 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.
[2] Office of the Public Guardian.
2001-02 to September 2007: Public Guardianship Office.
October 2007 to present: Office of the Public Guardian.
The Public Guardianship Office became an executive agency of the Lord Chancellor's Department in April 2001. The proportion of spend for 2001-02 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.
[3] HM Courts Service.
1998-99 to 2005-06: Court Service.
2005-06 to present: HM Courts Service.
The proportion of spend for 1998-99 to 2004-05 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.
[4] Office for Criminal Justice Reform.
OCJR was launched in 2004 and therefore prior year figures are unavailable. The proportion of spend for 2007-08 was 0.23 per cent. This has been consolidated with the MOJ HQ figure as OCJR was included in the 'core Department' in the 2007-08 resources accounts.

Tribunals Service.

No direct research costs have been incurred since the Tribunals Service was launched in April 2006.

HM Prison Service and National Probation Service.

No direct research costs have been incurred by the HMPS and NPS as research is undertaken at NOMS HQ level.

Research and development expenditure can be identified in the relevant Department/Agency's resource accounts available on their internet site and via the Office of Public Sector Information.

Historic data are also collated by ONS and can be found at

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of staff in (a) his Department and (b) the executive agencies for which he is responsible are disabled; and what the average salary in his (i) Department and (ii) executive agencies is of (A) full-time disabled staff, (B) full-time non-disabled staff, (C) part-time disabled staff and (D) part-time non-disabled staff. [220173]

Mr. Wills: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, columns 651-57W.

Electoral Register: Commonwealth

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of Commonwealth citizens who are registered to vote and do not have leave to remain in the UK. [224333]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 6 October 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what estimate has been made of the number of Commonwealth citizens who are registered to vote and do not have leave to remain in the UK. (224333)

The Office for National Statistics publishes information collected by local authorities on the numbers of people on electoral rolls who are registered to vote in the United Kingdom. The data available from local authority electoral returns do not make it possible to distinguish those who are Commonwealth citizens, nor do they include information on eligibility to remain in the UK.

Family Law

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the consequences for his Department's responsibilities of the European Court of Human Rights case X v Croatia, reported in July 2008. [224772]

Bridget Prentice: This case involved a mother who was divested of capacity to act under Croatian law. She played no part in the adoption proceedings. The European Court of Human Rights held that there was insufficient involvement of the mother in the decision-making process and it was this that breached her Article 8 rights. In England and Wales the parent is a party to the placement and adoption proceedings. A party, or an intended party, who lacks capacity (within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005) to conduct the proceedings must have a litigation friend to conduct proceedings on his or her behalf. This means that the person is represented in the proceedings.

Freedom of Information: Local Authorities

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his policy is on whether responses prepared by local authorities' freedom of information officers should be passed to council group leaders for approval or amendment. [225657]

Mr. Wills: The Freedom of Information Act 2000 does not require responses to freedom of information requests made to local authorities to be passed to council group leaders for approval or amendment and the Ministry of Justice has issued no guidance on this issue. It is the responsibility of each authority covered by the Freedom of Information Act to ensure that it complies with its statutory obligations and follows the section 45 code of practice when handling requests for information.

Legal Systems: Islam

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether there are any courts in England and Wales which incorporate elements of Sharia law in their work; and if he will make a statement. [225996]

Bridget Prentice: The legal system that operates the courts in England and Wales does not incorporate any elements of Sharia law.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State plans to reply to the letter to him from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 25 July 2008 (reference: 209717) on a court case. [225991]

Maria Eagle: I replied to the hon. Member on 9 October. I apologise for the delay.

Open Prisons: Prisoner Escapes

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners absconded from open prisons in each of the last five years, broken down by prison establishment. [225387]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the number of prisoners who have absconded from open prisons between April 2003 and March 2008 broken down by (a) prison and (b) year. The number of absconds last year was the lowest level since centralised recording began in 1995 and levels have continued to fall in the current year. Escapes too have been falling for over a decade with the current low levels having been sustained for some years now. This is despite considerable increases in population over the same period. It is my intention to continue this downward trend.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system. The data are not subject to audit.

Parc Young Offender Institution

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when representatives of (a) his Department, (b) the Youth Justice Board and (c) the National Offender Management Service met representatives of Parc Young Offender Institution (YOI) to discuss the provision of inreach child and adolescent mental health services at Parc YOI in each of the last eight years; and when he expects such services to be provided. [226708]

Mr. Hanson: The director of HM prison and young offender institution Parc is responsible for the young persons' custodial facility there and during the last eight years, there have been regular meetings involving representatives from the Home Office, who previously had responsibility for the contract management of Parc, my Department, the Youth Justice Board and the National Offender Management Service. The provision of in-reach child and adolescent mental health services for young people has been an important issue for discussion, and has involved the Welsh Assembly Government in respect of the devolved responsibilities for health services in Wales.

The clinical director and directorate manager of the child adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) directorate, Cwm Taf trust has been involved in work with Bridgend local health board to progress the development of mental health service provision to adolescents sent to Parc. A meeting held on 19 September, was attended by representatives of Parc prison management, Parc prison health team (Primecare), Bridgend local health board, CAMHS directorate, Cwm Taf NHS trust and my hon. Friend the hon. Member for Bridgend (Mrs. Moon).

At the meeting it was agreed that a business base proposal would be developed for CAMHS provision in Parc in the form of an 'inreach' team similar to that currently provided by adult mental health services. It is intended that this proposal will be discussed at a forthcoming Bridgend Local Health Board Prison Health Partnership meeting for approval and will then be forwarded to the relevant NHS Wales bodies for funding and commissioning.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will write to those juvenile courts which sentence young offenders to sentences at Parc young offender institution to inform them of the absence of inreach child and adolescent mental health services at that institution; and if he will make a statement. [226711]

Mr. Hanson: It is the responsibility of the Youth Justice Board to allocate placements to young people who are sentenced to custody, taking into account factors such as vulnerability, other individual needs and distance from home. The courts do not play any part in that process.

At a recent meeting it was agreed that a business base proposal would be developed for the child adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) provision in Parc in the form of an 'inreach' team similar to that currently provided by adult mental health services. It is intended that this proposal will be discussed at a forthcoming Bridgend Local Health Board Prison Health Partnership meeting for approval and will then be forwarded to the relevant NHS Wales bodies for funding and commissioning.

Prisoners: Armed Forces

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proposals his Department and its predecessor implemented since May 1997 to reduce the number of former and serving armed forces personnel sentenced to custody by the civilian courts in England and Wales; and what plans his Department has in this area. [224444]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 6 October 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The armed forces are underpinned by a culture of discipline which is reinforced through codes of conduct. Military law supplements UK civilian law but does not replace it. The Ministry of Defence takes seriously all unlawful acts committed by service personnel, but recognises that unlawful behaviour can be indicative of wider social or mental health problems. A variety of measures are therefore in place to address such problems where they arise and to reduce the risk of former and serving personnel encountering such difficulties.

Welfare support is available for all personnel in service, for their families and for service leavers, and we have arrangements in place to identify and address mental health problems quickly where they arise. All personnel receive a mandatory briefing and a guidance pack to help their return to civilian life. Since 2006-07, those leaving service early are assessed for their vulnerability to social exclusion and offered specialist help. A pilot project is in progress to test whether mentoring would also reduce the risks that vulnerable leavers can face when leaving the armed forces. Veterans facing difficulties in their civilian lives also have access to the free Veterans helpline and the Veterans Welfare Service which can signpost to sources of advice and help.

Through the 'Prison In-Reach' initiative, which the Government put in place in partnership with the relevant Third Sector organisations, veterans who have offended (and their families) are made aware of the specialist support available to them, both before and after release. In addition to the improvements in mental health care during service, a new model of community-based mental health care is being piloted at six sites across the UK providing veterans with access to culturally sensitive expert care; if successful, it is intended to roll out the model more widely. In areas not covered by these pilots, veterans serving since 1982 have access to specialist mental health advice from the Medical Assessment Programme at St. Thomas' hospital in London; this service is available to those veterans in prison whose health professions would like an expert assessment. The Ministry of Defence and National Offender Management Service are working in partnership to put in place measures to assess the current veteran offender population; this work should inform what further measures might be appropriate to help those who have served in the armed forces and to reduce offending.

Prisoners: Death

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what steps are taken to investigate the death of a prisoner from non-natural causes on the Prison Estate; [224750]

(2) what the average cost of investigating the death from non-natural causes of a prisoner on the Prison Estate is. [224751]

Mr. Hanson: The steps taken to investigate the death of a prisoner by non-natural causes are essentially the same as for all deaths in prison custody. In every case the police are notified and will investigate. Once their investigation is concluded the prisons and probation ombudsman initiates a further independent investigation. The key elements of their investigation are:

a named investigator will lead the investigation and a family liaison officer will liaise with the bereaved family.

the investigator examines all relevant documents and policies, and will interview relevant staff and prisoners as appropriate.

the primary care trust will also carry out a clinical review of the health care provided to the person before their death.

Other required actions following any death in prison custody are set out in Prison Service Order 2710: Follow up to Deaths In Custody.

Investigations into non-natural cause deaths, particularly suspected homicides, can take much longer to complete than those into apparent natural causes because, investigations by the prisons and probation ombudsman are suspended until the police have completed their investigations.

The costs of death in custody investigations are borne centrally by the Ministry of Justice and can vary widely. The prisons and probation ombudsman estimates that the average costs of his office in 2007-08 in carrying out deaths in custody investigations, including those occurring in prisons, young offender institutions, and among the residents of approved premises, was just over £16,000 per case. Separate figures for specific types of deaths such as non-natural are not available.

Prisoners: Employment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the effect of the introduction during 2008 of changes to the core working day on the progress of prison establishments towards their purposeful activity key performance target. [226255]

Mr. Hanson: Following consultation with staff groups, unions, prisoners, external providers and stakeholders the Standard Core Day was introduced in the prison estate on 6 July 2008. Regular contact has been kept with the operational line throughout the implementation. A three-month review and assessment of the impact of the core day is due to begin in October 2008.

I will write to the hon. Member to inform him of the outcome of this review and will place a copy in the Library of the House.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many hours on average prisoners spent on (a) work, (b) other purposeful activity and (c) out of cell each week (i) in July 2008, (ii) in July 2007, (iii) in July 2006, (iv) in July 2005, (v) in July 2004, (vi) in July 2003, (vii) on each day of the latest week for which figures are available and (viii) on each Friday of the last four months for which figures are available in each (A) adult (1) male and (2) female prison and (B) (I) male and (II) female young offender institution in England and Wales. [226258]

Mr. Hanson: The average number of weekly hours of work and other purposeful activity, per prisoner per week, for each of the months requested has been placed in the Libraries of the House due to the volume of the information. Weekday time out of cell data are collated centrally each month. Therefore, the average number of weekday hours out of cell per prisoner in each of the months requested is shown in the table that has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Purposeful activity and time out of cell data are not collated on a daily basis. Therefore, data cannot be shown for each day of the latest week for which figures are available and on each Friday of the last four months for which figures are available.

Prisons

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many category A prisoners are serving sentences in category B, C or D prisons. [225042]

Mr. Hanson: There are currently no category A prisoners outside the High Security Estate. The High Security Estate consists of eight prisons; Manchester, Woodhill, Belmarsh, Long Lartin, Wakefield, Whitemoor, Frankland and Full Sutton. These are the only prison establishments in England and Wales permitted to hold category A prisoners or those evaluated as provisional category A prisoners, unless the director of high security prisons approves otherwise.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison cells have en-suite showers. [225054]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is not held centrally, but I have asked that the National Offender Management Service take steps to obtain this information. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Prisons: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of assaults upon prison officers in the course of their duties in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [226683]

Mr. Hanson: The following data is subject to important qualifications. The NOMS incident reporting system processes high volumes of data which are constantly being updated. The numbers provide a good indication of overall numbers but should not be interpreted as absolute. There is a slight lag in reporting which means that the provisional number mentioned here will rise a little in the coming months.

Data on incidents where one or more staff are victims are shown as follows. Figures provided are for calendar years from 2005 to end of September 2008 for comparison purposes.

Assault incidents with staff as victim

	Number
2005	3,170
2006	3,150
2007	2,930
2008[1]	2,157

[1] This is for the first nine months of 2008 only.

Note:
From 2007, figures do not include the three prisons (Albany, Camphill and Parkhurst) where the incident recording has transferred to the NOMIS system.

Assault data are complex and the numbers need to be interpreted with caution. The numbers supplied refer to the number of individual assault incidents; these may also include threatening behaviour, projection of bodily fluids and other non-contact events and allegations. Information recorded as assault incidents may involve one or more victim.

NOMS and the Prison Officers Association are jointly committed to 'zero tolerance' on assaults on staff. The Secretary of State for Justice has written to the Attorney-General and Home Secretary, both of whom are committed to pursing a robust and consistent approach to the involvement of the police and Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) in prosecuting such assaults. Along side working with the CPS and the police, enhanced guidance is also currently being developed by Police Advisers Section in NOMS headquarters on a much wider agenda of crime reporting in prisons. This guidance will address the subject of the reporting and investigation of allegations of assault on prison staff and aims to provide national consistency in classifying and responding to crime committed in prisons. The guidance will be an important step in making sure that the most serious incidents are referred to the police.

Assault information is categorised and recorded at establishment level. The recorded incidents of assaults on prison officers are not completely exclusive to officers; establishment recording sometimes includes assaults on other prison staff in this category.

Probation

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the likely effect of his Department's planned efficiency savings for the Probation Service in England and Wales for 2009-10 and 2010-11 on the service's service delivery and quality. [225867]

Mr. Hanson: Probation service budgets for 2009-10 and 2010-11 have not yet been agreed. The National Offender Management Service is developing specifications for all services delivered by the national probation service to ensure that resources are matched to priorities and offender's needs.

Repossession Orders: Wrexham

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) immediate and (b) suspended orders for possession have been made in mortgage possession proceedings in Wrexham County Court in the last five years for which records are available. [224621]

Bridget Prentice: The following table shows the number of mortgage possession claims issued and the number of suspended and outright orders made in Wrexham county court since 2003. However, the statistics on orders made in 2007 are not available for this court. Estimates have been produced for 2007 for Wales as a whole and these are shown in the table.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2007 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgagelandlordpossession.htm

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. As county courts' jurisdictions are not coterminous with the borough boundaries, any single court's repossession actions are likely to relate to homes in a number of different boroughs.

Mortgage[1] possession claims issued and orders made in Wrexham county court and the county courts of Wales, 2003-07

	Wrexham county court			Wales region
	Claims issued	Suspended orders[2]	Outright orders[3]	Claims issued	Suspended orders[2]	Outright orders[3]
2003	139	57	32	4,193	1,729	1,099
2004	186	54	60	4,314	1,527	1,120
2005	236	92	78	6,469	2,156	1,789
2006	301	118	106	8,207	2,700	2,736
2007[4]	362	—	—	9,187	[4]2,991	[4]3,208

[1] Mortgage possession data include all types of lenders whether local authority or private.
[2] The court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually requires the defendant to pay the current mortgage instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.
[3] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.
[4] The rollout of the Possession Claim On-Line (PCOL) system in late 2006 has affected the availability of court-level data on mortgage possession orders. As a result it is possible only to provide court-level figures for those courts with direct on-site PCOL access for 2007. Wrexham does not have this access and therefore the required court level data are not available. Estimated figures for Wales as a whole are shown instead.

Voting Behaviour

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what budget has been established for the planned citizens' summit on weekend voting. [222929]

Mr. Wills: We are currently considering the budgeting and procurement of the citizens' summit to consider issues around election day and how best to provide value for money.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 24 June 2008, Official Report, columns 9-11WS, on the consultation on weekend voting, whether he plans to pilot or introduce weekend voting in the 2009 European or local elections. [225562]

Mr. Wills: No. The 'Election Day: Weekend Voting' consultation ended on 26 September. Analysis of the responses received is now under way. The evidence gathered will be used to inform the debate on the merits of moving polling day to the weekends. The Government do not consider that it would be practicable to bring in the legislation necessary to introduce weekend voting for the 2009 European or local elections.

PRIME MINISTER

10 Downing Street: Shops

Philip Davies: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what the most popular item purchased from the Downing Street gift shop was in the last 12 months; [222603]

(2) how much profit has been made by the Downing Street gift shop in the last 12 months. [222604]

The Prime Minister: A small selection of unsubsidised gifts are available for staff to purchase on a not-for-profit basis.

Departmental Manpower

Philip Davies: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many secretarial staff have (a) left and (b) joined his Office since 27 June 2007; [222605]

(2) how many full-time members of staff are employed in Number 10 Downing Street. [222821]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 1 May 2008, Official Report, column 624W.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Prime Minister how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day he has answered on the due date in the current Session of Parliament to date. [226884]

The Prime Minister: My Office aims to answer all ordinary written parliamentary questions within five working days, and named day written parliamentary questions on the day named.

Since the start of the current parliamentary Session 96 per cent. of named day questions were answered on the day named.

Lehman Brothers

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister what meetings he has held with representatives of senior management of Lehman Brothers in the last 12 months. [226665]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

Lord Mandelson: Pay

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister how much has been paid to Lord Mandelson as a consequence of his leaving ministerial offices; if he will bring forward proposals for a mechanism by which former ministers re-appointed to the cabinet could make voluntary repayments of severance monies; and if he will make a statement. [226712]

The Prime Minister: Severance pay is payable in accordance with section 4 of the Ministerial and other Pensions and Salaries Act 1991.

Meetings

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Prime Minister what meetings have been held between officials in 10 Downing Street and representatives of (a) Ogilvy UK and (b) WPP since 27 June 2007. [225561]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

Ministers

John Mann: To ask the Prime Minister which former Cabinet Ministers registered (a) directorships and (b) employment with the Cabinet Secretary after leaving office in the last 20 years; and in respect of which companies the registration was made in each case. [224905]

The Prime Minister: The requirements placed on Ministers after leaving office are set out in the Ministerial Code and its predecessor document Questions of Procedure for Ministers. Copies are available in the Library of the House.

Ministers: Pay

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Prime Minister how many Ministers do not receive a ministerial salary; and what estimate he has made of the annual cost to the public purse of maintaining their (a) private office, (b) staff, (c) driver and (d) car. [226007]

The Prime Minister: I refer my right hon. Friend to the ministerial appointments press notices released by my Office. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House and are also available on the No 10 website: http://www.number10.gov.uk/news/press-notices.

National Economic Council

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister in what capacity the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform attended the first meeting of the National Economic Council on 6 October; and if he will publish the full minutes of each meeting of the Council on his departmental website and that of HM Treasury. [225931]

The Prime Minister: The National Economic Council meets in private. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform is a member.

Official Residences

James Duddridge: To ask the Prime Minister what recent discussions he has had with the Cabinet Secretary about the provision of Prime Ministerial accommodation and its implications for claims against the additional costs allowance. [225129]

The Prime Minister: The additional cost allowance is a matter for the House Authorities.

Security and Intelligence Committee: Manpower

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 17 June 2008, Official Report, column 883W, on the Security and Intelligence Committee: manpower, what the reasons are for not naming the Clerk of the Intelligence and Security Committee; and if he will make a statement. [225567]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave my hon. Friend on 17 June 2008, Official Report, column 883W.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Harper: To ask the Prime Minister when he will reply to question 220182, on staff, tabled on 15 July. [226920]

The Prime Minister: I replied to the hon. Member on 9 October 2008, Official Report, column 796W.

Written Statements

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1806W, on written statements, if he will take steps to ensure that information is ready for publication other than on the days immediately prior to a parliamentary recess. [226560]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 1806W.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average level of debt of those committed to prison for non-payment of child maintenance payment debts in each year since 2002-03 was; and how many people were in this category in each year. [223864]

James Purnell: The information requested is not available.

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency cases in Sunderland are being processed as clerical cases arising from (a) pre-2003 and (b) post-2003 legislative changes. [223865]

James Purnell: The information requested is not available.

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) written complaints and (b) telephone complaints from Child Support Agency customers based in the Sunderland area there were in each year since 2003; and how many of these did not receive (i) acknowledgement within two working days and (ii) an outcome or progress report within 15 working days. [223866]

James Purnell: The information requested is not available.

Council Tax Benefits: Scotland

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much subsidy for the provision of council tax benefit was provided to each local authority in Scotland in the latest year for which figures are available. [224643]

James Purnell: Local authorities in Scotland claim subsidy directly from the Department for Work and Pensions for council tax benefit they award to eligible claimants.

The latest available information is in the table.

Council tax benefit subsidy claimed[1] by Scottish local authorities in 2007-08

Departmental Surveillance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to (i) undertake directed surveillance, (ii) use covert human intelligence sources, (iii) acquire communications data and (iv) undertake intrusive surveillance in the last 24 months. [222128]

James Purnell: Figures on public authority use of covert techniques controlled by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA) are published annually by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, the Chief Surveillance Commissioner and the Intelligence Services Commissioner who each have particular inspection and oversight responsibilities under RIPA. The latest reports were laid before Parliament and copies placed in the House Library on 22 July. The figures provided in the reports are not broken down by individual public authority use of specific covert technique. The question of further disclosure for any particular public authority is a matter for the relevant Commissioner.

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to make a decision on the payment of disability living allowance to UK citizens currently living in EEA countries in the light of the recent court decision on the matter. [222398]

James Purnell: People who are already receiving disability living allowance when they leave the UK to live in another European economic area state or in Switzerland can often continue to receive the allowance. The rules are set out on the Directgov website. The Pensions Disability and Carers' Service has considered about 500 claims and confirmed that these customers will continue to receive disability living allowance. We are considering the implications of the European Court's decision for people who are UK citizens but who live in another European economic area state or in Switzerland and who wish to claim disability living allowance. We will publish the criteria for awarding the allowance on the Directgov website as soon as possible.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many persons claimed the mobility component of disability living allowance in each year since its introduction, broken down by type of disability; and how much was paid to claimants with each disability type in each year at the (a) higher and (b) lower rate. [222515]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The available information has been placed in the Library.

Income Support: Disabled

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of awards of income support on grounds of incapacity for work had a duration of (a) less than 13 weeks, (b) between 13 weeks and 28 weeks, (c) between 28 weeks and one year, (d) between one and two years, (e) between two and three years and (f) more than three years in the most recent period for which figures are available. [224154]

James Purnell: The available information is in the table:

Proportion of incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance claims where recipient is also receiving income support by duration of income support award

Percentage

	Less than 13 weeks	Between 13 weeks and 28 weeks	Between 28 weeks and one year	Between one and two years	Between two and three years	Three years and over
May 2007	5.7	5.1	6.4	9.7	8	65.1
August 2007	6.1	5.2	6.1	9.7	7.9	64.9
November 2007	6.2	5.4	6.0	9.8	7.9	64.7
February 2008	5.5	5.7	6.3	10.0	7.7	64.8

Notes:
1. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place.
2. Durations refer to the latest income support award. Claimants may not have been getting incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance for the whole duration of their income support award as repeat claims are not linked.
3. Incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance is taken fully into account when working out how much of the applicable amount of income support can be paid.

Maternity Benefits: Telephone Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many complaints he has received about the operation of the maternity allowance telephone line in the last 12 months; and what steps he is taking to improve its operation; [222665]

(2) what plans he has to reduce the time taken to make a first maternity allowance payment from the time of an application being submitted; [222666]

(3) what plans he has to reduce the backlog of maternity allowance applications and to speed up the process for future applications; [222667]

(4) what measures are in place to assist expectant mothers with the processing of maternity allowance payments. [222668]

Jonathan Shaw: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your questions on the processing of Maternity Allowance applications. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We started to centralise the administration of Maternity Allowance claims in December 2007 and migration completed in August 2008 into four central units throughout the country at Yeovil, Wrexham, Hanley and Bury St Edmunds Benefit Delivery Centres.

Clearance times for Maternity Allowance had increased slightly over the summer months resulting in a backlog of 7000 cases awaiting action. This is as a result of an increase in births leading to an increase in Maternity Allowance applications by a fifth. This increase coincided with centralisation into the four units and a temporary dip in productivity associated with retraining existing members of staff.

We are responding to these difficulties by increasing the staffing in the centralised sites by a fifth, so they can cope with the increase in new applications. The 7000 backlog cases are being dealt with separately by sharing the cases across our wider network of Benefit Delivery Centres. We are making progress now on clearing these cases. Over the last 5 weeks record numbers of claims were cleared, by over 1,000 more than the weekly intake. The backlog has now reduced to 2000 cases. We expect to have fully cleared the backlog within the next two weeks.

Statistics relating to complaints about Maternity Allowance are not separately available.

Pensions

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the unfunded pension liability for (a) 2010, (b) 2020 and (c) 2030. [224895]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not produce figures for overall public service pension liabilities in future years. Page 38 of the Long Term Public Finance Report published on 12 March 2008 has further details of the total unfunded public service pension liabilities.

Pensions: Mining

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the annual cost to his Department of disregarding pensions payable to former miners for the purpose of benefit entitlement calculations. [224180]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Miners' pensions are treated in the same way as other occupational pensions in the calculation of benefit entitlement. The information necessary to estimate the cost of changing current benefit rules to fully disregard miners' pensions is not available.

Rent Service

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the consequences of the decision of the House of Lords in R (on the application of Heffernan) v the Rent Service [2008] UKHL 58 on the Rent Service's approach to the determination of broad market rental areas; what action he plans to take following that decision; and if he will make a statement; [225175]

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the Rent Service to complete its review of procedures resulting from the Heffernan judgment. [224563]

James Purnell [holding answer 8 October 2008]: Following the judgment in the case of R (on the application of Heffernan) v. The Rent Service, The Rent Service have revised their guidance to rent officers on the setting of locality boundaries. The Department for Work and Pensions and the Rent Service are working closely together to consider the wider implications of the judgment. The Rent Service aims to be in a position to provide details of their plans to recommence their rolling programme of reviews at the end of October 2008.

Social Security Benefits: Uprating

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what research his Department has (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) evaluated on the effects of (i) increases in energy and food prices and (ii) the timetable for benefits uprating on those in receipt of benefits; and if he will make a statement. [223835]

Ms Rosie Winterton: No specific research has been undertaken or commissioned by the Department for Work and Pensions on the increases in energy and food prices or the timetable for benefit uprating. However, the Government continue to monitor the situation closely.

The Chancellor announced in his Budget 2008 speech that for winter 2008-09 an additional payment will be made alongside the winter fuel payment. Households with a member aged 60 to 79 will receive an additional £50 and households with a member aged 80 or over will receive an additional £100.

On 11 September 2008 the Government announced a new £1 billion package of measures to help people cut their energy bills. Measures on offer deliver significant energy savings including increased help with cavity wall and loft insulation. 11 million lower income and pensioner households are eligible for these free of charge. And for winter 2008-09 cold weather payments will increase in value from £8.50 to £25.00. Cold weather payments are made to vulnerable people in receipt of qualifying benefits, including pension credit, if there is a period of very cold weather in their area.

In terms of benefit uprating, there is a statutory requirement to review all social security benefits each year and to increase certain benefits from April each year.

The increases are calculated for most benefits using the annual inflation figure for the preceding September. This ensures that benefits keep their real value in broad terms. In order to complete all of the action necessary to ensure that the new social security benefit rates are put into payment in April of any year up-rating activity must commence in the previous year, which is why the inflation figure for September is used.

Unemployment

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish the details of the Labour Force Survey showing the number of economically inactive people who want to work and can work and who are not counted in the International Labour Organisation definition of unemployment. [226198]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking for the details of the Labour Force Survey showing the number of economically inactive people who want to work and can work and who are not counted in the ILO definition of unemployment. (226198)

Estimates of economic activity and inactivity derived from the Labour Force Survey (LPS) follow the international convention as defined by the International Labour Organization (ILO). This does not require the LFS to record specifically whether people can or cannot work and, consequently, estimates on this precise basis are not available.

According to the LFS, people who are economically inactive are neither in employment nor unemployed and can be further categorised as follows:

1. those who have been looking for work in the past four weeks but are unable to start work within the next two weeks;

2. those who have not been looking for work in the past four weeks but would like to have a regular paid job; and

3. those who have not been looking for work in the past four weeks and who would not like to have a regular paid job.

This applies to all people aged 16 to 69. Economically inactive people aged 70 and over who were not looking for work are not asked if they would like a regular paid job and are therefore included in the third category.

Estimates for all three categories are provided in the attached table and are for the three month period April to June 2008, the latest available. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Number of people economically inactive aged 16 and over, by main category of economic inactivity—Three month period April to June 2008, United Kingdom, not seasonally adjusted

Category of economic inactivity	[1]Number (Thousand)
Looking for work in past four weeks but unable to start work within next two weeks	284
Not looking for work in past four weeks but would like to have regular paid job	*2,089
Not looking for work in past four weeks and would not like to have regular paid job	*15,563
Total economically inactive	*17,937

[1] Coefficients of variation have been calculated as an indication of the quality of the estimates. See following Guide to Quality.

Guide to Quality:

The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV—for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.

Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical robustness

* $0 \leq CV < 5$ Estimates are considered precise.

 $5 \leq CV < 10$ Estimates are considered reasonably precise.

* $CV \geq 20$ Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes.

It should be noted that the estimates exclude people in most types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites etc.).

TRANSPORT

A12: Accidents

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents have occurred on the A12 between junction 30 (Dedham) and junction 31 (East Bergholt), including accidents on the said junctions, in each of the last five years. [225078]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of reported personal injury road accidents on the A12 between junctions 30 and 31 at Dedham and East Bergholt in 2003 to 2007 are shown in the table.

	Number of accidents
2003	10
2004	9
2005	7
2006	6

Aviation: Exhaust Emissions

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the (a) carbon dioxide and (b) nitrogen oxide emissions output of each fleet model of aircraft which (i) uses and (ii) is expected within the next 10 years to use (A) Heathrow and (B) other designated airports. [224995]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The data are not readily available by aircraft type. However, the analysis underpinning the consultation on adding capacity at Heathrow used certification data on the emissions of oxides of nitrogen by aircraft type. The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) hosts the databank of certification data for jet aircraft which is available at http://www.caa.co.uk/default.aspx?catid=702&pagetype=90

Similar data was also estimated for aircraft fleets in various future scenarios at Heathrow. The results of this work can be viewed at http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/closed/heathrowconsultation/

Similarly CO_2 emissions from aircraft, at fleet level, are addressed at section 6 of annex B of the above report. These are based on forecasts of UK air passenger demand and UK aviation CO_2 emissions published by the DFT in November 2007. The document can be viewed at

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/ukairdemandandco2forecasts/airpassdemandfullreport.pdf

Buses: Accidents

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road accidents involved buses in the last 12 months. [225625]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There were 8,442 reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one bus or coach in Great Britain in 2007.

These data are available in table 23 of 'Road Casualties Great Britain' at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/162259/162469/221412/221549/227755/rcgb2007.pdf

Copies of this publication have been deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Cycling

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many miles of cycle lanes have been introduced in the last five years; and at what cost. [225613]

Paul Clark: This information is no longer collected centrally by the Department as part of the drive to reduce our burden upon local authorities in respect of the information we request annually from them.

However we do hold some historical data from earlier Local Transport Plan returns for the local transport authorities in England (outside London). The information is set out in the following table:

	Cycle lane (kilometre)	Cycle lane (number)
2001-02	405	352
2002-03	369	416
2003-04	386	424
2004-05	308	375
2005-06	234	267
2006-07[1]	140	253

1 Estimated.

Source:

Data taken from LA Local Transport Plan finance forms for: 2004-05; 2005-06; 2006-07; 2007-08; 2008-09; 2008-09 (received July 2007).

We do not hold any data on the cost to local authorities of introducing cycle lanes. Local authorities have indicated in their local transport plans that they planned to spend around £60 million on cycle facilities in 2006-07.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what proportion of staff in (a) her Department and (b) the Executive agencies for which she is responsible are disabled; and what the average salary in her (i) Department and (ii) executive agencies is of (A) full-time disabled staff, (B) full-time non-disabled staff, (C) part-time disabled staff and (D) part-time non-disabled staff. [220177]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, columns 651-57W.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Personal Records

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many instances of the loss of personal documents have been recorded by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last five years. [225092]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of cases in which personal documents were claimed to be lost during an exchange with DVLA in each of the last five years were:

	Number
2003	4,021
2004	4,240
2005	3,242
2007	2,782

Of these, the following numbers of claims were subsequently abandoned because the documents were either delivered late by Royal Mail or were subsequently found at home:

	Number
2003	2,584
2004	1,603
2005	1,615
2006	1,100
2007	880

To provide context, in the last financial year DVLA issued 7,285,931 driving licences.

Driving: Sleep Apnoea

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in how many road deaths obstructive sleep apnoea was a contributory factor in the last five years. [226310]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information on the number of fatalities resulting from reported road accidents caused by drivers with specific medical conditions is not collected.

The number of fatalities resulting from reported road accidents in Great Britain for which a police officer attended the scene and recorded the contributory factor 'Fatigue' was 87 in 2005, 78 in 2006 and 92 in 2007. Information on contributory factors is not available prior to 2005.

The contributory factor 'Fatigue' is recorded in accidents in which the police officer's opinion at the time of reporting is that the driver/rider was unable to drive effectively or perceive hazards due to being too tired. This may or may not be due to a medical illness.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether there are procedures in place to provide regular screening of lorry drivers for obstructive sleep apnoea. [226311]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Drivers applying for a Group 2 licence (lorries and buses) must declare if they have a history of obstructive sleep apnoea (OSA). In addition, the medical report form D4, which has to accompany the application must be completed by a doctor and includes a specific question on sleep disorders. These forms have to be completed on licence reapplication every five years from the age of 45 until 65, and annually thereafter.

There are no procedures in place to provide regular screening of lorry drivers for undiagnosed obstructive sleep apnoea. However, to ensure sleep disorders are identified, DVLA includes relevant questions in the medical report that applicants for a vocational licence must have completed by a qualified medical practitioner.

The agency's publication 'At a Glance Guide to the Current Medical Standards of Fitness to Drive' provides advice to medical practitioners and includes a section on sleep disorders making specific mention of sleep apnoea. The guide is freely available on DVLA's website at:

www.dvla.gov.uk

Heathrow Airport

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether a decision has been taken by the Government to proceed with a third runway at Heathrow. [225868]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As the Secretary of State made clear in a written statement on 8 July 2008, Official Report, column 75WS, the analysis of the 'Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport' consultation responses and updating of the impact assessment is not yet complete. We are aiming to reach conclusions later this year and will inform Parliament of our decisions.

London to Midlands Railway Line

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government has taken to improve railway services between Coventry and (a) London and (b) Birmingham. [224981]

Paul Clark: The introduction of new timetables from December 2008, on the West Coast Main Line, will bring further improvements to train services between Coventry, Birmingham and London.

The Virgin Trains Pendolino operated London service will increase from a half hourly frequency, to one every 20 minutes. This will be provided throughout the week. The journey time will be one hour, compared with one hour 11 minutes in 2004, before the first stages of modernising the route were implemented.

The service provided between Coventry and Birmingham by London Midland is being increased to three trains an hour. Additional new rolling stock is also being introduced by this operator, of similar design to the modern Desiro units already in operation on the semi fast services between Birmingham, Coventry and Northampton.

London Underground

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions his Department has had with (a) the Mayor of London and (b) Transport for London over future funding of the London Underground; and if he will make a statement. [226127]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The then Secretary of State my right hon. Friend the Member for Bolton, West (Ruth Kelly) made a written statement to the House on the future funding of London transport as a whole on 6 February 2008, Official Report, columns 74-75WS, the position of which remains unchanged. Departmental officials continue to hold regular meetings with Transport for London (TfL) to monitor spending and pressures across the TfL estate, including London Underground.

Lorries: Lighting

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to distribute Fresnel lenses free of charge to drivers of left-hand drive heavy goods vehicles entering the UK. [225932]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have already done so. We handed out 40,000 lenses at ports of entry in November 2006; a further 90,000 over the winter months in 2007; and, we are in the middle of handing out a further 60,000 at the moment.

Motor Vehicles: Licensing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to (a) increase access to and (b) improve the performance of the facilities available for online renewals of vehicle licence fees. [226684]

Jim Fitzpatrick: DVLA's electronic vehicle re-licensing (EVL) and statutory off road notification (SORN) service is not experiencing any performance issues, is accessible 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and takes less than four minutes to re-license a vehicle.

Motor Vehicles: Taxation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the likely effects of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's free prize draw for online customers on the number of people who renew their vehicle tax at their local post office. [225491]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Post Office Ltd. has, through regular discussions, been made fully aware of DVLA plans for electronic vehicle licensing and the volumes forecast to continue transacting through post office branches.

There was no separate impact assessment ahead of the prize draw as this had already been built into the transaction forecasts and shared with Post Office Ltd. This information has been incorporated into Post Office Ltd.'s plans for their branch network through to 2011. There has been no reduction in the number of post office branches issuing tax discs for DVLA.

Public Transport: Disabled

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps the Government have taken to respond to concerns expressed by disabled public transport passengers. [224283]

Paul Clark: We are committed to providing an accessible transport system. We have regulated to ensure that all new trains, buses and coaches are accessible to disabled people. We made provision in the Disability Discrimination Act 2005 to extend the "right of access" disabled people already have to other services to transport and to introduce other measures to improve accessibility.

New regulations which came into force on 4 December 2006 gave disabled people a 'right of access' to goods, services and facilities with respect to transport services. These duties make it unlawful for a transport operator to discriminate against a disabled person imply because they are disabled, treat disabled people less favourably or fail to make a reasonable adjustment to the way they provide their services.

Railway Stations: Greater London

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made on the allocation of funds to enhance passenger facilities at James Street and Liverpool Central stations. [224490]

Paul Clark [holding answer 6 October 2008]: In its draft determination of the outputs that Network Rail should be funded to deliver in the period 2009-14, the independent Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) decided that there was not at present a sufficient case to include the James Street and Liverpool Central schemes. In its response to the ORR's consultation on its draft determination, which closed on 4 September, Network Rail accepted this independent view. The ORR's final determination is expected on 30 October.

Liverpool Central station has however been identified by the industry as a candidate station for funding from the National Stations Improvement Programme. The final selection of stations will be influenced, among other things, by the extent to which third party funding—from local authorities and the private sector—is secured to supplement the industry's own proposals.

Railways: Infrastructure

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the Government's policy is on encouraging separation of train and station operations from infrastructure mainten..nce and renewals. [223867]

Paul Clark: It is generally accepted that the structures put in place at privatisation were flawed. The 2004 Rail White Paper and the Railways Act 2005 set out a new streamlined structure, which meets the requirements of the European Commission's First Rail Package, to deliver safer, more reliable railways that work efficiently. The new arrangements provide much-needed stability for the industry as a whole.

Road Traffic

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost to business of traffic congestion; and if he will make a statement. [225551]

Paul Clark: This cost is not routinely estimated by the Department. However, in 2006, the independent Eddington Study, which was sponsored by the Department for Transport and HM Treasury, did present forecasts of costs to business of congestion. The report noted that by 2025, congestion on England's roads, if unchecked, will increase costs to business and freight by over £10 billion a year.

The full study is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/transportstrategy/eddingtonstudy/

Roads: Safety Measures

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice he has given to local authorities which wish to introduced shared spaces on how to integrate this with safe access for those with disabilities. [225420]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has not issued guidance to local authorities on the general topic of shared space. However, it has provided advice on shared surface schemes, a particular type of shared space known to cause difficulties for some people with disabilities.

This advice is contained in the Manual for Streets published in March 2007. It states that "Consultation with the community and users, particularly with disability groups and access officers, is essential when any shared surface scheme is developed.".

Sea Rescue: Lancashire

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many calls to HM Coastguard were made by residents of Lancashire in each year since 2000. [225405]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information is not collected in the format requested.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency's Maritime Rescue Co-ordination Centre, based at Liverpool has dealt with the following number of incidents in each year since 2000.

	Number of incidents
2000	844
2001	751
2002	772
2003	825
2004	845

	Number of incidents
2005	992
2006	1,006
2007	[1]

[1] Not available because of industrial action.

Shipping: Pay

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect on (a) the recruitment and (b) the retention of British maritime professionals of the decision by HM Revenue and Customs to review the guidance on the vessels that do not qualify under the Seafarers' Earnings Deduction income tax rules. [225630]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. I am of course concerned about any changes which may affect employment prospects for UK seafarers. However, taxation policy is a matter for Treasury Ministers.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect of the reclassification of seafarers' earnings deduction on the recruitment and retention of British seafarers. [226149]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. I refer to the answer that I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle) today (UIN 225630).

Tolls: Humber Bridge

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to review the level of toll charges on the Humber Bridge. [226707]

Paul Clark: The Humber Bridge Board has recently put forward a proposal to raise tolls under Section 10 of the Humber Bridge Act 1971. The Board have undertaken a consultation giving the opportunity for anyone to register objections with the Department for Transport. The deadline for objections was 6 October. The Secretary of State must now decide, in line with the relevant legislation, whether to order a public inquiry before considering a decision on Humber Bridge Board's application.

Tour Operators: Insolvency

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) for what reason his Department was not able to grant the necessary indemnities to allow the fleet operated by XL Airways to be used to repatriate customers stranded overseas by the entry into administration of the associated tour operator; and if he will make a statement; [226104]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with (a) the travel industry, (b) the aviation industry and (c) consumer representative organisations on protection for all pre-payments made in respect of travel arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [226105]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport, alongside the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA), worked with the administrators to try to develop a contingency measure that would allow XL's aircraft to fly their customers home. However, in the short time available it was not possible to reach a solution which did not involve an unacceptable level of risk to taxpayers' money. This is a complex area because of the range of potential creditors and liabilities in the UK and abroad when an airline goes into administration.

In 2005 the Government decided not to extend statutory financial protection for air travellers beyond the current Air Travel Organisers Licence (ATOL) arrangements, which apply to package holidays, in accordance with European law.

The Government are keen to learn the lessons of, XL's failure and over the coming weeks officials and Ministers will be discussing a range of issues arising with stakeholders with a view to improving the experience of passengers in possible future airline or tour operator failures.

Tour Operators: Licensing

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what recent consideration he has given to the licensing of tour operators; and if he will make a statement; [226060]

(2) what assessment he has made of the financial effect on consumers resulting from the entry into administration of XL Airways; and if he will make a statement. [226061]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The European package travel directive came into effect in 1990, and requires the financial protection of passengers on package holidays, so that in the event of insolvency they are reimbursed advance payments or repatriated. This was implemented in the UK by the Package Travel Regulations 1992. Anyone who (other than occasionally) sells or offers for sale package holidays must comply with these regulations. Where a flight is part of the package, the financial protection requirements of the Package Travel Regulations are provided by the Air Travel. Organiser's Licence (ATOL) scheme operated by the Civil Aviation Authority.

Those of XL's passengers who were on, or who had booked, a package holiday will be fully protected against any additional financial cost through the ATOL scheme. Passengers whose travel arrangements were not part of a package holiday may face additional costs, to the extent that they are not protected through credit card arrangements or scheduled airline failure cover which can be part of some travel insurance policies.

The Government are keen to learn the lessons of XL's failure and over the coming weeks officials and Ministers will be discussing a range of issues arising with stakeholders with a view to improving the experience of passengers in possible future airline or tour operator failures.

Traffic Lights: Accidents

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents have been caused by failed traffic lights in the last five years. [225610]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of personal injury accidents in Great Britain for which a police officer attended the scene and recorded the contributory factor 'defective traffic signal' was 268 in 2005, 259 in 2006 and 256 in 2007. Information on contributory factors is not available prior to 2005.

The defective traffic signal factor is recorded in accidents in which the police officer's opinion at the time of reporting is that a totally or partially defective automatic traffic signal contributed to the accident.

Transport: Environment Protection

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the National Transport Model Team (a) has taken and (b) plans to take on climate change; and if he will make a statement. [225506]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The National Transport Model estimates the impacts of transport policy on traffic and the associated carbon dioxide emissions. A number of analyses have been published providing the details of such work. Recent examples are:

Advanced motorway signalling and traffic management feasibility study, DFT, March 2008

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/network/policy/mtorsigntrafmanagement/advancemotorsign

The Eddington Study annex: Transport Demand to 2025 and the Economic Case for Road Pricing and Investment, December 2006

Road Transport Forecasts for England 2007, October 2007

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/economics/ntm/071023_AnnualForecast07.pdf

We are planning to publish an update of the Road Transport Forecasts for England later this year.

Transport: Exhaust Emissions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of tonnes of carbon dioxide produced on average each day by public transport. [225614]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table provides estimates of carbon dioxide emissions for buses, domestic aviation and railways. The National Atmospheric Emissions Inventory (NAEI) is published annually by DEFRA and provides estimates of CO_2 by transport mode, these annual figures for 2006 have been divided by 365 to give a daily rate.

Estimates of average CO_2 emissions per day in 2006, UK

	Average CO_2 emissions per day (tonnes)
Buses	13,419
Domestic aviation	6,398
Railways (diesel trains only)	3,487

National Atmospheric Emissions Inventory 2006

Transport: Finance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role regional development agencies will play in the allocation of transport block funds currently allocated directly to local councils. [226374]

Paul Clark: Transport block funds are allocated to local authorities by the Department for Transport. However, the Government have sought advice from regions on their priorities for the allocation of a number of funding streams, including block grant. The guidance provided by the Government stresses that the advice should represent that of the whole region, and that regional development agencies, regional assemblies, leaders' forums (where they have been established) and local government will all have a key role to play in developing it. Final decisions on how block funds should be distributed remain with Ministers.

Transport: Schools

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving public service vehicles and minibuses carrying school children there were in each region in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [225534]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one school pupil casualty on their way to or from school on a public service vehicle or minibus in each Government office region in 2003 to 2007 are given in the table.

Government office region	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
North East	7	13	11	4	9
North West	35	38	27	31	19
Yorkshire and the Humber	15	22	16	16	8
East Midlands	19	21	16	11	10
West Midlands	11	20	6	10	13
East of England	18	13	14	9	13
South East	25	23	28	22	22
London	42	34	22	22	23
South West	9	13	13	13	6
Wales	18	15	17	12	11
Scotland	20	13	21	18	11
Great Britain	219	225	191	168	145

It is not possible to identify the number of accidents involving vehicles carrying school pupils where there was no school pupil casualty.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving public service vehicles and minibuses carrying school children there were in (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [226008]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one school pupil casualty on their way to or from school on a public service vehicle or minibus in Scotland and Wales in 2003 to 2007 are given in the table.

	Wales	Scotland
2003	18	20
2004	15	13
2005	17	21
2007	11	11

Tyne and Wear Metro

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will publish business cases submitted by the Nexus PTE in the last two years in respect of the future of the Tyne and Wear Metro. [223868]

Paul Clark: Nexus (the Tyne and Wear Passenger Transport Executive) has submitted two business cases to the Department for Transport in the last two years in respect of the Tyne and Wear Metro.

The Metro Reinvigoration Business Case was submitted to the Department in January 2007. This document is on Nexus' website at:

http://www.nexus.org.uk/wps/wcm/resources/file/eb1bd00c5571bc6/MetroReInvigorationBusinessCaseFinal110307.pdf

http://www.nexus.org.uk/wps/wcm/resources/file/eb1bd10c55796e2/Appendices140207.pdf

The Business Case for the Ticketing and Gating Scheme was submitted in March 2007. This is available on Nexus' website at:

http://www.nexus.org.uk/wps/wcm/resources/file/eb7cb04aedbf98e/Metro.pdf

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment has been made in respect of value for money for the future of the Tyne and Wear Metro in respect of (a) keeping the Metro as an integrated railway and (b) separating train and station operations from infrastructure maintenance and renewals. [223869]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport believes that the funding it intends to provide for the renewal of major capital assets on the Tyne and Wear Metro represents value for money as a capital investment. The Department believes that this value for money is most likely to be secured by retaining the capital infrastructure of the system within public ownership and under the direct control of Nexus, the Tyne and Wear Passenger Transport Executive. However the Department believes that a market test, such as Nexus are intending to undertake, for the running of train services and station operations, should provide an effective way to secure best value for money in the ongoing operation of the system.

Bill Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether tendering of Tyne and Wear Metro operations is a condition of future funding. [223870]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport announced, on 31 July 2008, its intention to provide funding to Nexus (the Tyne and Wear Passenger Transport Executive) to support a programme of asset renewal on the Tyne and Wear Metro and the continued operation of the system until 2019.

The funding was approved on the basis of Nexus' procurement plans, which involved a proposal to tender for the operation of the system. Final approval of the funding will be considered only once the tender process has been completed to the Department's satisfaction.

Vehicle Number Plates

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been raised by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency from the sale and auction of registration marks in each of the last four years. [224659]

Jim Fitzpatrick: During the last four financial years the income raised from the sale and auction of registration marks has been disclosed in the agency's accounts as follows:

Financial year	Gross income	Costs	Net income to Treasury
2007-08	86,948	(14,353)	72,595
2006-07	87,427	(13,143)	74,284
2005-06	83,986	(12,192)	71,794

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many UK troops were wounded in Afghanistan in each month of operations in the last two years; [225726]

(2) how many injuries in each category were suffered by UK forces in Afghanistan in each month of operations in the last two years. [225727]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since January 2006 a total of 138 UK service personnel have been seriously injured or wounded and 470 have been admitted to field hospital as wounded in action in Afghanistan. A further 1,289 were admitted to a field hospital with disease or non-battle injuries over the same period. The following table provides a breakdown by year and month of these figures.

[2] The admissions data contain UK personnel admitted to any field hospital, whether operated by UK or Coalition Medical Facilities.
[3] The personnel listed as VSI or SI may also appear in the UK field hospital admissions and Aeromed Evacuations data.
[4] The 2006 disease or non battle injury figures are non battle injuries only until 27 October, disease is included from 28 October to be consistent with Op Telic reporting.
[5] 2006 field hospital admissions data starts 1 March 2006.
[6] The VSI and SI injury data includes records classified as 'other causes'. This classification is used when there is insufficient information to attribute a casualty to injury or natural cause.
[7] The 2006 data may include civilians, service numbers were not provided until the end of 2006.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many enemy combatants were killed by UK troops in Afghanistan in each month of operations in the last two years. [225728]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave on 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 832W, to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell).

Armed Forces: Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many servicewomen requested an abortion in each of the last three years, broken down by (a) the age of the woman, (b) the grounds for the abortion, (c) the number of weeks of gestation at which the request was made, (d) the procedures used and (e) whether the operation was performed. [225671]

Mr. Kevan Jones: These figures are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Alcoholic Drinks

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of the (a) Army, (b) Navy and (c) Royal Air Force alcohol strategies; and if he will make a statement. [225910]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Officials are preparing a joint service publication which will incorporate the MOD's alcohol strategy. It is expected to be published by the end of this year. I will place a copy of the alcohol strategy element in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Career Breaks

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of HM Armed Forces have availed themselves of the scheme enabling them to have a career break; and if he will make a statement. [225664]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 9 October 2008]: Members of the armed forces have been able to apply to take a career break since 31 May 2005. Career breaks for service personnel are granted at the absolute discretion of the service, when manning margins allow and where they do not compromise operational capability. In that time, the number of career breaks taken has been: Royal Navy, 19 (figures only available from March 2006); Army, 45; and Royal Air Force, 35.

Armed Forces: Casualties

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent progress has been made on measures to prevent blue on blue engagements by armed forces units. [223823]

Mr. Hutton: The MOD has a Combat Identification programme to improve its capability in this area and is working with NATO working groups and Coalition allies to develop interoperable solutions. Recent progress has included equipment procured for operations in response to specific theatre requirements, such as an improved aircraft targeting pod capability and improved forward air controller equipment, as well as further developing combat ID awareness and pre-deployment training. Further information can be found on page 103 of the MOD annual report and accounts 2007-08 at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/AnnualReports/MODAnnualReports0708/

A copy is available in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department have held discussions in the last four months with Essex County Council about possible involvement by his Department or Colchester Garrison in the future of secondary school education in Colchester; and if he will make a statement. [226217]

Mr. Kevan Jones: There have been no discussions in the last four months between the Ministry of Defence and Essex county council concerning the future of secondary school education in Colchester.

Armed Forces: Education

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what sources of funding there are for further and higher education payments to be made to service personnel as outlined in the Service Personnel Command Paper; and whether these payments will cover living costs. [222072]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Funding to meet this commitment comprises that already allocated as employer contributions to the Armed Forces Enhanced Learning Credits (ELC) scheme supplemented by resources made available by DIUS and the Scottish and Welsh administrations.

The commitment in the Service Personnel Command Paper (Cm 7424) applies to tuition fees. Additional living or other expenses incurred by service leavers in further or higher education are not covered, but a range of other support sources are available to help with non-tuition related costs where appropriate such as discretionary learner support funds for students in further education who need help with additional costs associated with their learning such as books, travel and child care.

Armed Forces: Finance

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the annual (a) operating and (b) support costs are for one unit of (a) an armoured regiment equipped with Challenger 2 tanks, (b) a formation reconnaissance regiment, (c) an engineer regiment, (d) a Royal Marine Commando battalion, (e) a Regular Army equipment support battalion, (f) a Royal Logistics Corps regiment and (g) a (National Communications) Signal Brigade. [224701]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Mentally Ill

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel were medically discharged for mental and behavioural disorders in each year since 2001. [226981]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The number of service personnel medically discharged for mental and behavioural disorders in each year since 2001 is contained in the following table.

Naval service, Army and RAF medical discharges for mental and behavioural disorders, numbers[1], 2001-07

	All years	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007

[2] Includes the Royal Navy and the Royal Marines.

All numbers presented have been rounded to the nearest five to avoid disclosure of individual identities.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many out-of-court settlements there were regarding war pensions in each of the last five years; and what information his Department holds on the reasons for such settlements being made. [222531]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Details of the number of common law compensation claims brought against the MOD together with payments made and the basis for settling such claims is set out in the Department's claims annual report. Copies of the report are available in the Library of the House for each year since it was first published in 1997-98. About 97 per cent. of such claims are settled one way or the other out of court. The 2007-08 report is scheduled to be published in the autumn and a copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

Details of compensation payments made under the War Pensions Scheme in respect of War Disablement Pensions in each of the last five years are set out in the following table.

Armed Forces: Post Traumatic Stress Disorder

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what research his Department has commissioned on post-traumatic stress syndrome and related topics in order to facilitate the discharge of its duty of care for members of HM Armed Forces. [225499]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1581W, to the hon. Member for Teignbridge (Richard Younger-Ross).

Armed Forces: Resignations

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) officers, (b) non-commissioned officers or equivalent ranks and (c) other ranks or equivalent left (i) the Royal Navy, (ii) the Royal Marines, (iii) the Army and (iv) the Royal Air Force in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and how many from each of the above rank categories in each service were involuntarily discharged. [225142]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The following table shows the number of trained officers, non-commissioned officers (NGOs) or equivalent ranks and other ranks or equivalent that left the Royal Navy, Royal Marines, the Army and the Royal Air Force Regular Forces[1] in each of the last five financial years.

[1] UK Regular Forces exclude Gurkhas, Full -Time Reserve personnel, and mobilised reservists.

Due to the rounding methods used, totals may not always equal the sum of the parts. When rounding to the nearest 10, numbers ending in five have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Army: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Army employees have been charged with a violent offence in each of the last five years. [225660]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Cadets: Schools

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on the creation of new combined cadet forces in secondary schools; how many have been created in the last three years; at what cost; what target has been set for the number of such forces to be created in the next five years; and what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of meeting this target. [225000]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD's policy on the creation of new Combined Cadet Force (CCF) contingents in schools is to do so where resources permit. This applies equally to any independent or state school seeking the creation of such a contingent.

Eleven new CCF contingents have been formed in secondary schools in the last three years. This figure is skewed by the initiation of six state school pilot CCF contingents in 2007. This was a one-off project, set up with the assistance of the Treasury, at a cost of £800,000 (covering both equipment and infrastructure requirements). The set up costs at the remaining five schools varied due to the nature of their existing facilities and as such the costs are not held centrally and could be determined only at disproportionate cost.

Details of the schools gaining new CCF contingents since the start of the academic year 2005-06 are:

School	Independent/state	Date established	Comment
Culford School, Bury St. Edmunds	Independent	1 September 2005	—
Gad's Hill School Rochester	Independent	13 December 2005	This opening was concurrent with the closure of a contingent at a neighbouring school—kit was transferred
Aidenham School Elstree, Herts	Independent	1 April 2006	This CCF re-opened after being closed for 18 years
Archers Court Maths and Computing College, near Dover Budmouth Technical College, Weymouth Haberdashers' Federation, SE London Thomas Deacon Academy, Peterborough Treorchy Comprehensive School, Mid-Glamorgan, Wales Walker Technical College, Newcastle	State	1 April 2007	The six "pilot" state school contingents opened with Treasury support
Hartridge High School Newport, Mon., Wales	State	1 October 2007	Cadets paraded for the first time September 2008
Lucton School, Leominster, Herefordshire	Independent	1 September 2008	Converted to a closed ACF in the early 1990s. Now re-badged as CCF

It must be remembered that new CCF contingents are only one way to increase the numbers of cadet units in schools. As mentioned in the Service Personnel Command Paper, the MOD continues its work with the Department for Children, Schools and Families on increasing the number of cadet units in state schools and therefore no targets have been set for the number of CCF contingents to be created in the next five years.

Currently, the only new CCF contingent is planned for Wellington Academy, Wiltshire. This CCF will start up in September 2011 and THE Capital works are being funded by the Department for Children Schools and Families in this instance.

Climate Change

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what preparations his Department has made for the possible effects of climate change on the armed forces' (a) estate, (b) personnel, (c) equipment capabilities and (d) policies; and if he will make a statement. [225363]

Mr. Kevan Jones: A wide range of research (both general and defence specific) is already under way to help the Ministry of Defence understand better the possible impact on our estate, personnel, equipment and policies. This research will inform a risk-based approach to adapting to climate change across the Department.

We plan to publish our strategy on climate change before the end of the year. This will address both mitigation (the reduction of our own emissions) and adaptation (how we will adapt to a changing climate) and set targets as far out as 2050. Specifically:

Estates

MOD is developing a site based risk assessment methodology considering the environmental and physical factors associated with climate change likely to affect our core sites. This will allow us to identify and manage a proportionate response to the impacts of climate change on our estate.

Personnel

Research has been commissioned to investigate the effects of extreme climate on the nutritional requirements of operational troops and consideration will be given to how future personal clothing and equipment can be adapted both to reduce degradation and also to contribute to the maintenance of optimum health.

Policy Planning

MOD is conducting research with other Government Departments to assess the global impacts of climate change and how these will impact on Defence policy planning.

Equipment Capabilities

The outputs from the policy planning work will be factored into our plans for force development, equipment capability and personnel to ensure that our armed forces are equipped for and capable of a range of different operations.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the potential effects of climate change on international peace and stability; and if he will make a statement. [225364]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The National Security Strategy describes climate change as potentially the greatest challenge to global stability and security; and paragraphs 3.34 to 3.37 of the strategy describe the potential effects. The Ministry of Defence shares that assessment.

Databases

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what use (a) his Department and (b) its agencies make of (i) MOSAIC data and (ii) ACORN data [221944]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence has no central record of having purchased or made direct use of MOSAIC data or ACORN data. It is not possible to ascertain if data from these or similar tools has been used by external agencies or subcontractors working for this Department as it would be of a disproportionate cost to find out.

Departmental Buildings

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many properties owned by his Department are unused; and how long each such property has been unused. [226631]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) keeps its estate of around 240,000 hectares, which comprises some 80,000 of built estate and 160,000 of rural estate, under continual review to ensure that it is still required for defence purposes. Details of all MOD properties that are void (not in use for their intended purpose) and how long each has been void is not centrally available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Some details of void living accommodation are held centrally. The following table shows that service family accommodation (SFA) in the UK which was void at 8 October 2008. The majority of these properties are owned by Annington Homes Ltd (AHL) and leased to the Department until it no longer has a use for them and they are returned to AHL.

Timescale	Number of SFA
Under 3 months	3,539
Between 3 months and 6 months	1,256
Between 6 months and 12 months	1,524
Between 1 year and 5 years	2,270
Over 5 years	457
Total:	9,046

The majority of the SFA properties that have been void for the longest periods are those that are held pending large future redeployments of personnel, pending return to AHL or awaiting demolition, pending decisions on the future of MOD sites or where there is likely to be a long-term (rather than short-term) need for SFA in that area or pending major modernisation or upgrade work.

Departmental Telephone Services

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which agencies or units for which his Department is responsible require the public to make telephone calls to them on numbers which charge more than the national call rate; and how much income each such agency derived from such charges in each of the last three years. [225748]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 9 October 2008]: It is MOD policy that all calls made by the general public to MOD civilian/military establishments covered by the Defence Fixed Telecommunications Service contract should either be to a freephone number or be charged at local/national rates.

Ex-servicemen

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the categories of support his Department makes available to ex-service personnel; what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of such support; and if he will make a statement. [224562]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Veterans Strategy has three main pillars, delivered in close partnership with other parts of Government and the Third Sector: these are high quality preparation for service leavers returning to civilian life; advice and support for those ex-service personnel who need it and the promotion of understanding and recognition of the role veterans play in society. Support takes many forms including the provision of occupational pensions and no-fault compensation, resettlement training, help with employment and accommodation, as well as welfare support and tailored health care for those areas where veterans have special needs.

The needs of veterans and the provisions to meet these are kept under review in consultation across Government and with the charitable sector. Most recently, the Nation's Commitment outlined in the Service Personnel Command Paper of July 2008 reviewed areas of existing provision and set out the further enhancements that will be delivered in the support for service personnel, their families and veterans. These commitments will be assured by a reference group that will provide regular external and cross-Government audit, including an annual report to the Prime Minister and Defence Secretary.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England were awarded a veteran's badge in each year since the inception of the award. [224896]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

We have, however, identified that 146 individuals applying for the badge have included Jarrow in their address. Between May 2004 and 3 October 2008 over 661,000 HM armed forces veterans' badges have been issued.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of servicemen and women leaving the armed forces in each of the last five years for which figures are available had completed (a) 22 years' service and (b) fewer than five years' service. [225023]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The percentage of service personnel leaving the trained UK regular forces in each of the last five years by length of service is provided in the following table:

Percentage

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-06
All services
Fewer than 5 years service	34	34	30	[1]29	[1]26
5 to 21 years service	40	40	40	[1]43	[1]51
22+ years service	27	26	30	[1]28	[1]23

[1] Provisional. Due to ongoing validation of data from the Joint Personnel Administration System, all service flow statistics for financial year 2006-07 and 2007-08 are provisional and subject to review.

Notes:
1. Figures show outflow from UK regular forces including recalled reservists on release and outflow to the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment. The Royal Irish Regiment disbanded on 31 March 2008.
2. Percentages are calculated from unrounded data and may not sum to 100.

Helicopters: Finance

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the annual running cost was of (a) HMS Illustrious and HMS Ark Royal, (b) one Harrier GR9, (c) HMS Albion, (d) one Lynx Mk 8 helicopter, (e) one Merlin Mk1 helicopter and (f) one RFA support tanker in each of the last three years. [225079]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held in the format requested. The annual running cost in 2007-08 for the surface ships identified, including depreciation and the cost of capital, was as follows:

	Financial year 2007-08 (£ million)
HMS Illustrious and HMS Ark Royal	[1]138
HMS Albion	38
RFA Wave Knight (support tanker)	16

[1] Total for the two ships.

Directly comparable figures for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are not available.

The total cost per flying hour for the aircraft was as follows:

Financial year	Harrier[1]	Lynx[2]	Merlin Mk1
2005-06	36,000	16,000	[3]—
2006-07	37,000	16,000	40,000
2007-08	38,000	19,000	42,000

[1] The available data is not spilt between Harrier GR7 and GR9
[2] The available data is not split between Lynx Mk3 and Lynx Mk8
[3] Directly comparable figures for this year are not available

Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will bring forward proposals for national events to mark the bravery of UK personnel who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan. [226212]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The enormous courage and bravery displayed by the men and women of the armed forces in Iraq and Afghanistan is recognised in many ways. For example, returning personnel are often involved in local homecoming parades which are widely reported in the media. At a national level, we recognise the contribution and the sacrifices made by the armed forces at events such as Remembrance Sunday. In addition, the announcement of the six monthly operational honours list of gallantry awards, mostly to those serving in these two operational theatres and who have undertaken acts of particular bravery, are given a high profile.

It is usual for the end of significant operations to be marked in some way, and while we have no specific plans at present, this will be considered when the time is right in the case of Iraq and Afghanistan.

Sea Harrier FA2: Finance

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the annual running costs were for one Sea Harrier FA2 in each of the last three years before it was withdrawn from service; and how much was spent on manning in each year. [225080]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information is not available in the format requested. Operating costs for the Sea Harrier FA2 were calculated on an hourly basis only. These costs include both the fixed and marginal costs incurred in using the assets, comprising servicing costs, fuel costs, crew capitation and training costs, support costs and charges for capital and depreciation.

The cost per funded flying hour for the Sea Harrier FA2 is shown in the following table:

Financial year	Total cost per funded flying hour (£)
2003-04	44,000
2004-05	45,000
2005-06	46,000

Manning costs are included in the hourly operating cost, but are not discreetly recorded.

Stress

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements his Department has in place to assist officials to overcome the effects of stress experienced in the workplace. [222174]

Mr. Kevan Jones: MOD is committed to protecting the health, safety and well-being of its employees and has a number of procedures in place to reduce stress at work. A stress management framework, based on the Health and Safety Executive's management standards, is available to all employees and gives easy to use advice on the successful prevention, recognition and management of stress at work.

Our Intranet Web Portal complements this with a page dedicated to health promotion which carries specific advice to employees on how to reduce stress. Responsibility for identification of the factors leading to stress rests with business areas, and line managers within these areas are required to use risk assessment to adapt the culture of their business and reduce stress levels. We provide specific training on managing stress and recognising stress in others and have published a guide for line managers, which includes reference to work/life balance issues including long hours, taking work home and recognising and managing stress. The Guide includes Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development indicators for identifying stress. All of this promotes good management practices and actively encourages a positive approach to life at work and at home.

Confidential support for employees affected by stress caused by either work or external factors is also available through the MOD Occupational Welfare Service. This includes "signposting" to external agencies where appropriate. Special arrangements are in place to provide psychological support to any civilian employee affected by post-traumatic stress following deployment in support of operations with the armed forces.

In cases of sickness absence for stress-related illnesses, MOD policy is to make an early referral to our occupational health providers. Outcomes include rehabilitation plans allowing a phased return to work so that employees can adjust gradually to their normal work pattern. We also actively encourage the use of return to work interviews and keeping in touch schemes for staff on long-term sickness absence.

Type-45 Destroyer: Finance

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what he estimates the annual running costs, including manning costs, will be for a Type-45 Destroyer. [225081]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The annual running costs for the Type 45 destroyers have yet to be fully determined and it is departmental policy not to publish such costs until they have been approved in the Main Gate Business Case, which we expect to be early next year.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Amphibians: Conservation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department is undertaking into the effect of habitat destruction and climate change on European amphibians, with particular reference to common toads; and if he will make a statement. [225437]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA is not undertaking any specific research in these areas itself.

Natural England, the Government's statutory advisor on nature conservation, believes there is already a good evidence base relating to the loss of amphibian habitat, such as the 1996 Lowland Pond Survey. As a consequence ponds were added to the UK Biodiversity Action Plan (UK BAP) as a priority habitat in 2007. Four species of amphibian, including the common toad, are UK BAP priority species and included in the Section 41 list of species of principal importance in England.

Natural England contributes expertise on amphibians to the work of the Amphibian Conservation Research Trust which is funding a project addressing the impacts of climate change.

Bees: Pesticides

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has commissioned or supported into the effects of pesticide use upon the bee population; and whether he has given consideration to banning any pesticide that is harmful to bee colonies. [225435]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The rigorous EU scientific process for approval of pesticide active substances and the supporting national processes for individual products protect human health and the environment, including wildlife, providing products are used in accordance with the approval and any related conditions of approval. This approval process takes account of the potential impact on bees. My Department will, of course, act immediately on any concrete evidence of adverse impacts of pesticides on bees which occurs in the UK.

As part of its pesticides research programme the Government are funding a number of projects in support of the development of this risk assessment process. A number of projects specifically relate to the potential impact of pesticides on honeybees, both from wide scale professional use and home-garden use of insecticides. These projects are still in progress.

Bluetongue Disease: Disease Control

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will extend the bluetongue protection zone to Shropshire. [221816]

Jane Kennedy: The Bluetongue protection zone was rolled out to parts of Shropshire on 28 July, and to the rest of Shropshire on 7 August.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle were destroyed because of contracting bovine tuberculosis in each of the last five years; and what the cost to the public purse was of paying compensation to the farmers so affected in each year. [225750]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 9 October 2008]: The number of animals slaughtered under bovine tuberculosis control measures in Great Britain in the last five years, and the amounts of compensation paid, are given in the following table:

	Number of animals slaughtered under bovine TB control measures	Amount of compensation paid (£ million)
2007	28,200	30
2006	22,282	28
2005	30,093	43

	Number of animals slaughtered under bovine TB control measures	Amount of compensation paid (£ million)
2004	23,064	34
2003	23,821	38

Bovine Tuberculosis: Wales

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on their tuberculosis health check programme. [225540]

Jane Kennedy: Responsibility for bovine tuberculosis (bTB) is fully devolved and bTB policy in Wales is a matter for the Welsh Assembly.

However officials in my Department are in regular contact with those in the Welsh Assembly Government on bTB-related matters.

Carbon Reduction Commitment Scheme

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what proportion of the organisations that were originally proposed to be included in the Carbon Reduction Commitment Scheme will now no longer be included as a consequence of the qualifying threshold being doubled from 3,000 to 6,000 megawatt hours of annual electricity consumption; [222335]

(2) what proportion of (a) Government departments, (b) executive agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies will be included in the Carbon Reduction Commitment Scheme. [222336]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The threshold for electricity consumption through half hourly meters was increased from 3,000 to 6,000 megawatt hours (MWh) per annum in order to help ensure that participants who are large energy consumers see net benefits from the scheme in reduced energy bills if they act to reduce their energy consumption.

It is estimated that the 6,000 MWh threshold will include 95 per cent. of the emissions that would be covered by the 3,000 MWh threshold. It is difficult to assess accurately the number of organisations that this relates to because of the lack of accurate energy consumption data aggregated to organisation level (for example, organisations and their subsidiaries may have several electricity suppliers). The number of organisations at a 6,000 MWh threshold may not be substantially different from that at 3,000 MWh, and is thought to be at the high end of a wide range of 2,000-5,000. The analysis demonstrating the range of estimates made can be seen in the partial regulatory impact assessment (RIA), published on 6 July 2007. This is available to view on DEFRA's website.

All central Government Departments, irrespective of whether they meet the qualification threshold, will participate in the carbon reduction commitment (CRC).

In general, Government Departments and their statutory delivery bodies will participate in CRC as separate entities where they meet the qualifying threshold. However, those Government sponsored bodies that do not have separate legal status will participate under their parent Government Department—in practice this generally means executive agencies and possibly some smaller advisory/tribunal non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs).

We will not know exactly what proportion of executive agencies and NDPBs will be included in CRC until the formal registration process for the scheme is under way in 2009.

Carbon Sequestration: Brazil

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Government of Brazil on the inclusion of provisions on carbon capture and storage in the Kyoto Clean Development Mechanism; and if he will make a statement. [225006]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The Secretary of State has not yet had any meetings with the Government of Brazil on the subject of carbon capture and storage (CCS). General discussions on the potential for CCS and possible approaches to financing, including the Clean Development Mechanism, have taken place at official level.

Carbon Trust

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Carbon Trust is covered by the provisions and obligations of the Environmental Information Regulations 2004. [222856]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Bodies specified as subject to the Freedom of Information Act (in schedule 1 to the Act) are thereby also subject to the Environmental Information Regulations (EIRs). But, this apart, there is no definitive list of organisations covered by the EIRs. All bodies which carry out functions of public administration and bodies that are under the control of a public authority and have responsibilities, exercise functions or provide public services relating to the environment are covered by the EIRs organisations must therefore come to their own view as to whether they or some of the functions they exercise are covered, seeking individual advice from DEFRA as necessary.

The Carbon Trust is not included in schedule 1 of FOIA. Moreover the Carbon Trust and DEFRA's view is that the Carbon Trust is an independent private company limited by guarantee and not a public sector organisation. The Carbon Trust does not fall within the definition of a 'public authority' for the purposes of the Environmental Information Regulations. It is not a 'public authority' for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, and it does not carry out statutory or administrative functions but uses its government funding in its own programmes to achieve its mission of accelerating the move to a low carbon economy; nor is it controlled by any body which is a public authority for the purpose of the regulations.

However, the Carbon Trust has achieved ISO 14001 accreditation and publishes an annual environmental report on its own environmental impacts, together with information about its businesses and the impact of those businesses in terms of CO_2 emission reductions, in its annual report and accounts. It has obtained independent assurance of the application of its impact assessment methodology. The Carbon Trust annual report and accounts for 2007-08 was published in September.

Any dispute about such coverage is subject to appeal under the enforcement provisions of the regulations.

Coastal Areas

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans the Environment Agency has to draw up proposals for parts of the British coastline to be surrendered to sea erosion; in which parts of the UK; and if he will make a statement. [226375]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency already has strategic Shoreline Management Plans (SMPs) for the coastline of England and Wales. These identify the flood and coastal risk management policies around the coast in order for the coast to be managed in a sustainable way. They are a strategic, evidence based approach to planning investment and ensuring the security of as much of the coastline as possible for the next 100 years. These policies include maintaining the existing line of defence or realigning the coast either through natural or managed processes.

The Environment Agency is also developing a long-term investment strategy for flood and coastal erosion which will look at what the risk is, how to manage it and what it will cost over the next 25 years.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government Departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul flights. [221930]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The air mileage used to calculate DEFRA's payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in 2005-06 was 6,043,505. This figure includes DEFRA's agencies State Veterinary Service (SVS), Government Decontamination Service (GDS), and the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA). Records at this time did not distinguish between domestic, short-haul and long-haul categories.

Figures for 2006-07 are detailed in the following table, broken down into the categories requested, and also include SVS/Animal Health, GDS and MFA.

	Mileage
Domestic	50,422
Short-haul	503,575
Long-haul	2,124,031
Unknown	3,101,211
Total	5,779,239

Figures for 2007-08 are currently being compiled.

DEFRA also offsets its rail travel by contributing to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund. Mileage offset in 2006-07 was 3,709,435.48.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether those staff of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies who are entitled to business class or first class air travel are permitted to (i) travel in a cheaper class to the destination and (ii) benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving. [221937]

Jonathan Shaw: Departmental staff entitled to business class or first class travel are permitted to travel in a cheaper class without benefit in monetary terms or kind from the saving.

Departmental Procurement

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the names and addresses of each organisation that supplied goods and services to his Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the Department's financial database. [221933]

Jonathan Shaw: I will place in the Library the names of each organisation that supplied goods and services to the core-Department in 2007-08, based on the purchase order data held in the core-Department's financial database. However, these organisations comprise a mixture of companies and sole traders and it would be a disproportionate cost to separate out the addresses of companies from those of individuals sufficient and necessary to ensure DEFRA that complies with its obligations under the provisions of the Data Protection Act.

Domestic Waste: Recycling

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the annual average time taken by households to sort domestic rubbish so that it may be recycled; and if he will make a statement. [225266]

Jane Kennedy: No such estimate has been made by DEFRA.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities (a) are considering, (b) are piloting, (c) are planning to move to and (d) have moved to household waste collections where residual rubbish is collected (i) once every three weeks and (ii) once every month, according to records held by (A) his Department and (B) the Waste and Resources Action Programme; and what guidance or support has been produced on the issue. [224618]

Jane Kennedy: Neither DEFRA nor the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) hold any records on the information requested. However, neither body is aware of any local authority in this position.

Neither DEFRA nor WRAP has produced any guidance or provided any support on this issue.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether funding from the Waste and Resources Action Programme's local communications fund has been used to support the introduction of fortnightly rubbish collections. [225543]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste and Resources Action Programme's Behaviour Change Local Fund (BCLF) was designed to increase public participation in recycling and composting services by supporting communications and awareness raising activities carried out by the partner local authorities. BCLF funding has been awarded to a large number of local authorities, running a variety of waste collection schemes. In each case, the purpose was to support the local authority's communication of its strategy for improving recycling rates. What this strategy was in each case, and whether or not it involved the introduction of alternate weekly collection of residual waste, was a matter for the local authority to decide.

Environment Agency: Pumps

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will publish the Environment Agency's review of the efficiency of its pumps; what actions were recommended in the review; what estimate has been made of the potential (a) carbon dioxide emission reductions and (b) costs arising; what progress has been made to date in implementing the review's recommendations; and if he will make a statement. [222990]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The Environment Agency has worked with the Carbon Trust to undertake a review of the energy efficiency of a sample of flood risk management pumping stations. A report has been published and is available on the Environment Agency's website.

The report identifies opportunities for energy reduction, quantifies the likely savings in carbon dioxide and identifies the cost of implementing various technical options. The Environment Agency will consider the report as it takes measures to further reduce energy use relating to pumping. However it will take time to assess the options, understand the costs and plan the work at all pumping sites.

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account will be taken of representations received on the consultation on restructuring of inland drainage boards in formulating policy on their future structure. [224627]

Jane Kennedy: The internal drainage boards sub catchment review was not a formal consultation, but a direction of travel proposed following an independent report produced in 2006. The independent report outlined the strengths and weaknesses of the current performance of internal drainage boards and made recommendations for future improvements. Currently all representations have either been accepted or are under review with relevant internal drainage boards.

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps have been taken to (a) clear ditches, (b) widen and deepen drainage channels and (c) create holding areas for surplus water in periods of heavy rain in the last 12 months. [224936]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency, local authorities and internal drainage boards have all undertaken extensive maintenance operations and capital construction schemes in the past 12 months to secure the efficient working of existing channels and to reduce flood risk through flood alleviation schemes.

Holding areas are one of the many techniques known as Sustainable Urban Drainage Systems. Developers are encouraged to incorporate such systems into new developments. Many Environment Agency flood alleviation schemes also incorporate these techniques in preference to more traditional channel enlargement options.

Floods

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the number of (a) households, (b) deprived households and (c) rural households at risk from flooding, broken down by local authority area. [224219]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The National Flood Risk Assessment undertaken in 2006 by the Environment Agency identified the number of properties in areas that are at risk from flooding across England and Wales. These data were broken down by each local authority. The number of deprived households or rural households at risk in each local authority area was not assessed as part of this work. The flood risk in areas of deprivation was, however, considered in the Environment Agency's research project "Addressing Environmental Inequalities: Flood Risk" published in March 2006.

Floods: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what hydrological studies the Environment Agency has initiated to assess future flood risk in Bassetlaw constituency; and when the reports of such studies will be completed. [224442]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: Following the flooding of June 2007 the Environment Agency commissioned consultants to produce reports about the events that occurred in Worksop and Retford.

Both reports will be used to aid the Environment Agency's understanding of the possible improvements to flood defences on the River Ryton in Worksop and to the Retford Beck in Retford. The Environment Agency has completed the report for Worksop. The study for the Retford Beck will start soon and is due to be completed by the end of March 2009.

In addition to the studies of potential works to reduce flood risk, the Environment Agency has carried out the following mapping studies, which include hydrological analyses, within the Bassetlaw constituency:

River Idle Flood Risk Mapping, March 2005

River Maun, Strategic Flood Risk Mapping, March 2007
River Meden, Strategic Flood Risk Mapping, June 2008
River Ryton, Strategic Flood Risk Mapping, March 2008
Tidal Trent Strategy, April 2005
Laneham Beck Strategic Flood Risk Mapping, 2007

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment the Environment Agency has made of the size and condition of pumping stations in Bassetlaw constituency. [224589]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency operates and maintains two pumping stations in Bassetlaw, at West Stockwith and at Beckingham.

All Environment Agency pumps at both West Stockwith and Beckingham are currently monitored on a daily basis, fully maintained and are operational.

Floods: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet the hon. Member for Castle Point and a delegation from the Canvey Island Town Council to discuss the effects on Canvey Island of the Environment Agency's Thames Estuary 2100 proposals. [224487]

Jane Kennedy: My right hon. friend the Secretary of State for Environment (Hilary Benn) or I would be happy to meet with the hon. Member for Castle Point and I will ensure a meeting is arranged.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department has had with other Departments on the likely effects of the Environment Agency's Thames Estuary 2100 scheme on Canvey Island's (a) public safety and (b) proposed levels of future building. [225149]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 October 2008]: Discussions regarding the Thames Estuary 2100 (TS2100) project have been held with the Department for Communities and Local Government through the Thames High Level Steering Group. The Environment Agency's TE2100 project recommends that flood risk is managed to keep pace with rising seas caused by climate change. This work is being undertaken at a strategic level and detailed discussions of public safety on Canvey Island have not yet taken place. Any proposals arising from the TE2100 project will fully address public safety.

Future development on Canvey Island is not a factor that the TE2100 Project has been tasked to consider; this is a matter that the local planning authority will address in drawing up their local development framework. Any future development will need to be strategically assessed for flood risk and therefore in accordance with Planning Policy Statement 25.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what area of land on Canvey Island is being considered for flooding under the Environment Agency's Thames Estuary 2100 scheme. [225150]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The Environment Agency's Thames Estuary 2100 (TE2100) project is considering the creation of new inter-tidal habitat on West Canvey Marshes. This is in response to the need to replace the inter-tidal habitats (laid down in the EU habitats directive) that will be lost around Canvey Island as sea levels rise.

This habitat creation would involve a controlled breach of existing flood defences to create new inter-tidal areas. If consultation demonstrated support for such a scheme a new flood defence would need to be constructed to protect people and property. This defence would ensure flood risk is managed to keep pace with rising sea levels.

The TE2100 project is still in development and there will be opportunities for representations on the final recommendations when the draft plan goes to consultation in spring 2009.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds on the likely effects of the Environment Agency's Thames Estuary 2100 scheme on sites on Canvey Island. [225161]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 October 2008]: There has been on-going dialogue between the Environment Agency and Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB) throughout the development of the Thames Estuary 2100 (TE2100) plan.

The Environment Agency and RSPB have agreed to work together to establish the most effective management of inter-tidal and freshwater habitat on both the south and east coast. TE2100 and RSPB jointly recognise that there needs to be a combination of sustainable inter-tidal and freshwater habitat in the Thames Estuary. Discussion specific to West Canvey Marshes is on-going.

The TE2100 project is still in development and there will be opportunities for representations on the final recommendations when the draft plan goes to consultation in spring 2009.

Floods: Crops

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of damage caused to crops during recent floods. [224595]

Jane Kennedy: The 2008 harvest has been one of the wettest on record with rainfall around double normal levels. The main impact has been that the harvest has taken much longer than normal to complete, which is likely to have led to higher labour, fuel and machinery costs, particularly where grain has had to be dried. However, cereal yields are reported to be higher than normal. DEFRA will publish farm income figures by farm type at the end of January 2009 which will show the net impact of the weather and other factors on the incomes of cereal and other cropping farms.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of loss of crops incurred as a result of recent floods. [224812]

Jane Kennedy: While the 2008 harvest was one of the wettest on record, the scale of flooding was not of that seen in 2007 and the overall impact of flooding on arable cropping is not believed to have been significant. DEFRA will publish its first forecast of arable crop production later in October.

Floods: Environment Protection

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to ensure that (a) sites of special scientific interest and (b) important wildlife habitats are not destroyed by the implementation of Environment Agency plans to flood areas in the Thames estuary. [224626]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency is required by law to protect the environment and promote conservation. The conservation and enhancement of Thames estuary habitats and species are key objectives of the Thames Estuary 2100 (TE2100) project.

Throughout the development of the TE2100 plan the Environment Agency has been in close dialogue with Natural England to ensure the plan is compliant with UK and EU wildlife legislation. Full details of how the wildlife and species of the Thames estuary have been considered in relation to future flood risk management will be contained in the TE2100 consultation plan due to be launched in spring 2009.

Floods: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of draining systems serving (a) households and (b) businesses in (i) Castle Point and (ii) Canvey Island are privately owned. [224613]

Jane Kennedy: Defra does not hold information on the proportion of draining systems serving (a) households and (b) businesses in (i) Castle Point and (ii) Canvey Island that are privately owned.

Floods: Inland Waterways

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with Natural England on the requirement to clear and widen watercourses to prevent flooding. [224584]

Jane Kennedy: The Secretary of State meets the Chairman of Natural England, Sir Martin Doughty, on a regular basis, and the subject of flooding and sustainable solutions has been discussed in the light of the Government's review of the 2007 floods. I am not aware that the specific topic of a 'requirement to clear and widen watercourses' has arisen. This is a matter for the Environment Agency and Internal Drainage Boards in their byelaws. Natural England has been working with Internal Drainage Boards to produce "The Drainage Channel Biodiversity Manual—integrating wildlife and flood risk management", which was launched at the annual conference and exhibition of the Association of Drainage Authorities on 17 and 18 September.

Floods: Insurance

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial support his Department provides to households to assist with measures required to become eligible for flood insurance cover. [222508]

Jane Kennedy: Currently there is no Government grant scheme offering assistance to those wishing to install property-level resistance and resilience measures.

On 30 July 2008 Defra launched a consultation on options to increase the use of property-level measures to mitigate the impacts of flooding for homes that have a high chance of flooding every year. The consultation builds on the grants pilot scheme that Defra recently completed.

Under the Regulatory Reform (Housing Assistance) (England and Wales) Order 2002, local authorities have some flexibility in providing discretionary assistance for repairs and adaptations. It is for local authorities to decide the circumstances in which to give discretionary assistance and what form that assistance may take (e.g. grants, loans, equity release schemes etc.)

Floods: Nottinghamshire

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment the Environment Agency has made of the likelihood of flooding at North Leverton and North Wheatley primary schools. [224588]

Jane Kennedy: The responsibility for carrying out flood risk assessments for North Leverton and North Wheatley primary schools lies with the education authority and local authority.

The Environment Agency was contacted in July 2007 by MHI Design requesting flood risk information on a number of school sites including North Leverton and North Wheatley. The Environment Agency recommended that robust flood protection measures should be incorporated into any refurbishment of either school, if refurbishment was deemed to be the way forward by the education authority and local authority.

MHI Design subsequently submitted a Simple Flood Risk Assessment and Evacuation Plan for temporary accommodation for North Wheatley primary school, to which the Environment Agency had no objection.

Floods: Warnings

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of procedures for flood warnings. [224886]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency undertakes regular post flood incident surveys and performance reviews. During the summer 2007 floods, over 80 per cent. of the warnings issued provided at least two hours advance warning. This commitment is stated within the Environment Agency's customer chapter.

The Environment Agency continues to make appropriate investments to improve its flood warning services so that flood warnings will be given in good time to ensure they are acted upon and damage minimised.

Floods: Worksop

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment the Environment Agency has made of the flooding risk in Worksop. [224590]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency has recently completed a flood risk feasibility report for Worksop. The report looked at the possible use of storage areas for flood water upstream of Worksop as well as flood walls and banks through the town.

Fly Tipping: Finance

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how much funding his Department received for the detection and prosecution of fly tipping in each year from 2002 to 2008; and what funding is planned for (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11; [224327]

(2) what proportion of revenue from landfill tax was allocated to the Environment Agency for the detection and prosecution of fly tipping in each year from 2002 to 2008; and what proportion is planned for (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [224328]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The Environment Agency received £2 million per year from 2005-08 under the Business Resource Efficiency and Waste Programme funded by Landfill Tax receipts to tackle illegal waste activity. The focus of these projects was to reduce the level of illegal dumping and improve the detection of offenders.

This programme has been extended and is now funded through the Resource Efficiency and Carbon Programme £1.5 million has been allocated for 2008-09 and 2009-10. Funding for 2010-11 has yet to be determined.

Food Supply

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent changes have been made to his Department's strategy on security of food supply within the UK; and what factors prompted such changes. [224523]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the discussion paper published in July entitled 'Ensuring the UK's Food Security in a Changing World' which described the current trends, and set out the challenges facing the food supply chain in the future, including high energy prices, poor harvests, rising demand, the use of biofuels and export bans.

No recent changes have been made to the Department's strategy on UK food security. However, DEFRA is currently consulting on the questions raised in July's paper. We will publish the results of the consultation and the Government response in due course.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the results of the consultation upon food security are expected to be published; and when the Government expects to make a response. [225536]

Jane Kennedy: In July 2008 DEFRA published a discussion paper entitled 'Ensuring the UK's Food Security in a Changing World' which described the trends leading to the current global situation, set out the challenges facing the food supply chain in the future, and discussed whether the UK food supply chain is sufficiently resilient to withstand short-term shocks and longer-term challenges. Its purpose was to encourage public debate on what more needs to be done with relation to food security in the UK and the rest of the world. DEFRA is currently engaging with stakeholders on the questions raised in July's paper. It is intended to publish initial conclusions before the end of the year.

Food: Imports

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of food consumed in the UK in the last period for which figures are available had been imported; what information he holds on the land area used to produce this food; and if he will make a statement. [226579]

Jane Kennedy: In 2006, 51 per cent. of food consumed in the UK was imported to the UK. This is based on the value of unprocessed food. The UK imports food from a diversity of countries in Europe and around the world, with a variety of production systems and land requirements.

Food: Land

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much farming land in the UK was not used for food production in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [226580]

Jane Kennedy: Results from the UK June surveys of agriculture showed that the total area of agricultural land not used for food production in 2008 was 1.2 million hectares. This accounts for 7.0 per cent. of the total area of land on agricultural holdings. Results are provisional and will be revised in December 2008.

	Thousand hectares
Bare fallow/arable land not in production	198.6
Area of industrial crops (miscanthus, short rotation coppice, linseed, borage)[1,2]	34.1
Hardy Nursery Stock, bulbs and flowers grown in the open[3]	12.8
Farm woodland	677.0
Land not used for agriculture (e.g. ponds, roads, buildings etc.)	287.9
Total area not used for food production	1,210.4
Total area of land on agricultural holdings	17,323.4

[1] Miscanthus, short rotation coppice and borage areas are for England only.
[2] Food crops which can be grown for non-food purposes (e.g. oilseed rape for bio-energy) are not collected separately in these surveys so are included in the main crop area.
[3] 2007 data as 2008 results will not be available until December 2008.

Food: Prices

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the likely effect on food prices of the European Commission's amendment to Regulation 91/4/14. [224493]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 6 October 2008]: In May 2008 the Pesticides Safety Directorate published an assessment of the agronomic impact of the restrictions set out in the Commission Proposals. This has recently been developed into an economic assessment by Sean Rickard, Senior Lecturer in Business Economics at Cranfield University School of Management, which is available at the Cranfield university website.

Grasslands: Nature Conservation

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 8 July 2008, Official Report, column 1473W, what area of (a) lowland heathland and (b) acid grassland restoration has been undertaken by (i) Forestry Commission England, (ii) other Government departments and (iii) non-governmental organisations; and in which geographical areas this restoration has taken place. [225133]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The information requested is as follows:

(i) Forestry Commission England

Lowland heathland and dry acid grassland on the Forestry Commission estate in England: restoration from woods and forests to April 2008

ha

Forest district	(a) Lowland heathland restoration since 1990	(b) Lowland dry acid grassland restoration since 2004[1]
New Forest	1,284	32
East Anglia	628	0.4
Sherwood and Lines	235	0
South-east England	130	3
Peninsula	95	0.2
West midlands	64	0
Forest of Dean	45	0
North York Moors	56	0
Total	2,537	36

[1] FC only started recording lowland dry acid grassland in the database in 2004.

(ii) Other Government Departments

The only figures available to DEFRA are for Natural England through the Environmental Stewardship Scheme data (in particular higher level stewardship).

(a) 11,664 ha are currently under options to improve or restore lowland heathland in the higher level scheme (which has run since 2005). A regional breakdown of this figure is presented in the following table. A further 865 ha has also been improved or restored in Hampshire through Natural England's Countdown 2010 Biodiversity Action Fund over the last three years.

ha

Region	Area of lowland heathland under restoration options in HLS
East midlands	190.91
East of England	726.96
London	47.59
North-east	114.13
North-west	354.23
South-east	6,032.44
South-west	4,008.57
West midlands	142.18
Yorkshire and the Humber	47.29
Total	11,664.30

Natural England

(b) 744 ha are currently under options to restore or recreate lowland dry acid grassland in the Higher Level Scheme since 2005. There is no regional breakdown of this figure currently available. A further 125 ha have also been improved or restored in Hampshire, Nottinghamshire and Durham through Natural England's Countdown 2010 Biodiversity Action Fund over the last three years.

(iii) Non-governmental organisations

The Government currently do not have details on the combined contributions of non-governmental organisations towards the delivery of the habitat restoration targets. Estimates of progress towards the delivery of Biodiversity Action Plan (BAP) targets, incorporating information from a range of sources and stakeholders, will be available in early 2009 following completion of the 2008 BAP reporting round.

Ivory

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the ivory trade; and if he will make a statement. [225983]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The global ban on international commercial trade in ivory remains firmly in place. The UK fully supports this and is absolutely clear that illegal and unsustainable trade in ivory should not be permitted.

However, we draw a distinction between one-off sales of ivory which is legally held by governments, for the benefit of their wildlife conservation programmes, and a general return to commercial trading in ivory, where we are not convinced that current conditions will ensure proper protection for elephants.

Landfill: Recycling

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for the recovery of plastics and other waste material from closed landfill sites for the purposes of recycling; and if he will make a statement [224060]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The Government have no plans to recover plastics and other materials from closed landfills for recycling. However, the Government aim to reduce the amount of waste entering landfills by encouraging waste prevention, re-use and recycling.

Livestock: Waste Disposal

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will amend regulations relating to fallen stock to better facilitate their swift disposal. [224809]

Jane Kennedy: The EU Animal By-Products Regulation (1774/2002) requires fallen stock to be disposed of without undue delay by rendering or incineration and there is a good service in place through the National Fallen Stock Scheme which ensures fallen stock are collected for disposal speedily and safely.

National Rights of Way Casework Team

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the performance of the National Rights of Way Casework Team against its targets for reviewing representations. [224639]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Defra regularly reviews the performance of the National Rights of Way Casework Team and has recently acknowledged that the new transport work for the Department for Transport being carried out by the Government office north east is having an impact on the rights of way casework. Officials are discussing, with Government office north east, the problems of meeting targets for the issuing of decisions on Schedule 14 appeals and what needs to be done to ensure the level of service is improved.

National Rights of Way Casework Team

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance he has given to (a) the National Rights of Way Casework Team and (b) surveying authorities on how to determine whether modifications to the definitive map of rights of way have been made as soon as reasonably practicable. [224641]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Section 53(2)(a) of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 requires modifications to the definitive map and statement, the legal record of all rights of way to be made, "as soon as reasonably practicable". Defra has issued no guidance as to what timeframe "as soon as reasonably practicable" constitutes, as every case will be judged by individual circumstances. If a person believes that a highway authority is not fulfilling its duties under section 53(2), he can challenge its actions through the local government ombudsman, who has the power to investigate complaints of maladministration.

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people are assigned to the National Rights of Way Casework Team. [224642]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There are three people who work full time and one person who works part time on the National Rights of Way Casework Team.

Nature Conservation: Crime

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many appeals have been made to him under Schedule 14 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981; how many appeals have been allowed; what the (a) longest, (b) shortest and (c) average time taken for a decision to be issued is; and what the longest time an appeal has remained without the issue of a decision is. [224640]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Prior to the establishment of the National Rights of Way Casework team in July 2005, work was carried out under Schedule 14 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 by the regional Government offices. There are no detailed central records of the Schedule 14 work carried out by those offices and the information requested could be gathered only at a disproportionate cost. However, as a guide a report estimated that the regional Government offices collectively received between 50 and 70 Schedule 14 appeals every year prior to 2005. Since 2005, the National Rights of Way Casework team has determined 150 appeals, of which 76 have been upheld. The additional information on appeal handling times can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Nitrate Vulnerable Zones

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding he has made available to assist farmers to comply with nitrate vulnerable zones. [224649]

Jane Kennedy: There are a number of potential existing sources of financial support available to farmers which could help with implementation of the revised Action Programme for nitrate vulnerable zones. For example, the England Catchment Sensitive Farming Delivery Initiative is providing grants for farmers with land in a priority catchment for a range of capital items including roofs for slurry stores and improving yard drainage (clean and foul water separation). There have been two rounds of applications for these grants since April 2007. Subject to funding being available we expect there will be further rounds.

Funding is also available for a range of activities under the Rural Development Programme for England 2007-13. The socio-economic elements of this programme are the responsibility of the regional development agencies (RDAs). Individual regional implementation plans set out objectives and priorities for these socio-economic elements and may include support to help farmers meet the requirements of the Nitrates Action Programme.

As part of this funding we have also asked RDAs to use voluntary modulation receipts, amounting to £98 million at current exchange rates over the lifetime of the programme, specifically to address priorities in the livestock industry including providing support for farmers in enhancing the efficiency and effectiveness of on-farm management of nutrients.

Furthermore, slurry storage facilities are eligible for plant and machinery allowances such as the new annual investment allowance, capped at £50,000 per year, included in this year's Finance Bill. Slurry pits also qualify for allowances in their own right under the Capital Allowances Act 2001.

Office of Climate Change

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what work the Office of Climate Change has undertaken; and what further work is planned. [222405]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The Office of Climate Change has undertaken work in the following areas:

Draft Climate Change Bill
Analytical audit
Standards for voluntary offsetting
EU Emissions Trading Scheme review project
Household emissions
Heat
Carbon budgets
Adaptation finance

Currently the Office of Climate Change is working in the following areas:

Climate change governance and delivery
Global carbon finance
Global technology project
Global carbon markets
Shadow Committee on Climate Change
Stern team
Eliasch Review

Further information about its work can be found on its website.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 26 July 2007, Official Report, column 1528W, on the Office of Climate Change, what progress the Office has made in (a) developing policy options for reducing emissions from heating and cooling of buildings, (b) its assessment of the UK's institutional arrangements and their ability to support domestic climate change goals and (c) its assessment of the global carbon finance flows required to support developing countries in moving towards low carbon economies. [222518]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

(a) The heating and cooling project looked at how carbon emissions can be reduced from heating and cooling across industrial, commercial and domestic sectors. Following this, the Department for Business, Energy and Regulatory Reform, along with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Department for Communities and Local Government, undertook a call for evidence from January 2008 to 31 March 2008 and analysis of the findings are now underway.

(b) The Office of Climate Change has established strengthened capacity for supporting the programme management across government of both domestic and international climate change goals.

(c) The Office of Climate Change has made good progress with its model of global carbon finance flows. Some results were presented at the United Nations Conference on Climate Change COP 13 in Bali at a UK side event and the material can be found on the office's website.

Plastic Bags: Voluntary Work

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, of 22 August, transferred from the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (reference: CMS 101711), on charity shops re-using carrier bags. [225990]

Jane Kennedy: Policy officials have looked into the matter raised in this letter. A response is now being drafted and will be issued shortly.

Primates: Pets

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pet primates have been recorded in the UK through licences issued under the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 since 2000 [225077]

Huw Irranca-Davies: This information is not held centrally. The administration and enforcement of the licensing regime under the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 is the responsibility of local authorities.

Recycling: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what changes there have been to the levels of household recycling in (a) Devon, (b) Plymouth and (c) Torbay since 1997. [225372]

Jane Kennedy: The following table shows the percentage of household waste that was sent for recycling or composting by Devon county council, Plymouth city council and Torbay council since 1997.

These figures were reported to the Audit Commission by local authorities under the Best Value Performance regime. There have been some changes in the definitions of the waste indicators over time which affect the comparability of data, particularly prior to 2001.

Recycling: Waste Management

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to encourage businesses to divert waste from landfill to recycling. [225011]

Jane Kennedy: The Government's Waste Strategy Annual Progress Report, published on 10 July 2008, presents an overview of progress made in the last year on the actions set out in the Waste Strategy for England 2007. The report shows how the Government are taking forward actions to reduce waste, including encouraging businesses to divert waste from landfill to recycling. Furthermore, since the Waste Strategy was published, we have been engaging with key waste stakeholders on priorities for commercial and industrial waste reduction. We aim to publish a further statement of our strategic aims in this area in the new year.

The Waste Strategy announced an increase in the landfill tax escalator to provide greater incentives to business to reduce, re-use and recycle waste. The scheduled £8 per tonne landfill tax escalator came into effect from April 2008.

In order to help businesses reduce waste and disposal and other costs, the Government are funding a range of business support. The aim is to change behaviours amongst businesses by raising awareness and understanding of the value and importance of recycling and waste prevention, and to develop solutions. The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), the National Industrial Symbiosis Programme (NISP) and other delivery bodies aim to achieve significant amounts of business waste recycling and reduction. For example in 2008-09, NISP is looking to help divert 750 kilotons of waste from landfill, in addition to a number of other important environmental and business benefits.

The Government are simplifying the regulatory system through waste protocols to clarify when waste ceases to be waste, and so is no longer subject to regulation. As a result, businesses are increasingly able to recycle materials that would previously have been sent to landfill. Early indications suggest that over the next 10 years, Waste Protocols could encourage the recovery and reuse of 17 million tonnes of materials, potentially adding close to £700 million to the economy and reducing CO_2 emissions by 1.5 million tonnes.

Additionally, the London Waste and Recycling Board is a new statutory Board which has been set up to bring together the Mayor, the boroughs and others involved in managing the capital's waste, with the key aims of boosting London's recycling rates and reducing the amount of waste being sent to landfill. The board is funded by £60 million from DEFRA (for three years) and £24 million from the LDA (for four years). The board is chaired by Boris Johnson and he has reiterated how he wants London's recycling rates, both in the business and domestic sector, to increase dramatically.

Finally, the Waste Strategy set out the vital role of local government and regional bodies in providing advice and services to businesses and developing partnership working. The Government are supporting the development of this wider role by funding pilot initiatives by local authorities and supporting the provision and dissemination of guidance and best practice. Furthermore, the Government are encouraging local authorities to consider non-municipal waste when planning facilities for municipal waste.

River Lymington: Ferries

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what measures he is taking to ensure that regulators involved in determining Wightlink's application for shore works on the Lymington River co-ordinate their separate responsibilities to ensure full compliance with the EU Habitats Directive is achieved; and if he will make a statement; [225981]

(2) when he plans to respond to the letters of (a) 5 September and (b) 19 September from the hon. Member for New Forest West on the future of the Lymington River; [225982]

(3) what assessment he has made of the request by New Forest District Council that the application by Wightlink for shore works in the Lymington River be the subject of a full environmental impact assessment; and if he will make a statement. [226574]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Marine and Fisheries Agency is responsible for determining the application for shore works on the Lymington river under the Food and Environment Protection Act. However, its focus is the deposition of materials in the sea. The delays in determining the decision are as a result of ongoing discussions over the environmental impacts of the ferry operations. There are many regulators involved in this wider project, including Lymington Harbour Commissioners, New Forest district council, Natural England and the Environment Agency. DEFRA is one of the parties involved in the process of establishing who is responsible for regulating the ferry operations in this area, and is aware that a number of related environmental issues need to be considered, potentially with an environmental impact assessment. The Government office south-east will also be expected to play an independent role in resolving the situation.

The Minister for the Natural and Marine Environment, Wildlife and Rural Affairs plans to respond to previous letters sent in September as soon as possible.

Rural Payments Agency

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many occasions legal proceedings resulting in a court hearing have been initiated against the Rural Payments Agency since the Agency's establishment; and if he will make a statement. [225008]

Jane Kennedy: There have been eight cases brought against the Rural Payments Agency resulting in a court decision, of which three were judicial review claims and five were civil claims.

Sewers

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timescale is for the transfer of all private sewers and lateral drains that drain to the public sewer to the ownership and responsibility of water and sewerage companies; and if he will make a statement. [225317]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend (Mr. Woolas) on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1942W.

Sewers: Lancashire

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with United Utilities on sewage works in Fleetwood and Wyre. [224650]

Jane Kennedy: None.

Slaughterhouses: Animal Welfare

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the proposal of the EU to appoint an animal welfare officer for each slaughterhouse. [225541]

Jane Kennedy: We are currently considering the proposed regulation and will be consulting formally before finalising our policy.

Trapping

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what role the Central Science Laboratory will play in the proposed research into the use of snares. [225716]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The research into the use of snares was put out to open tender and has recently been let. The Central Science Laboratory (CSL) and the Game and Wildlife Conservation Trust put in a joint bid, with CSL as the lead partner. They were successful in securing the contract. They will therefore be responsible for carrying out the research.

Warm Front Scheme

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to co-ordinate the Warm Front Scheme with existing schemes to fund fuel switching and insulation works offered by utility companies. [222006]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Warm Front has an established history of working with energy suppliers who are looking to achieve their targets under the carbon emissions reduction target (CERT) and its predecessor, the energy efficiency commitment. Through these relationships the vast majority of households receiving first time loft or cavity wall insulations through Warm Front have their measures funded through CERT. This provides benefits to the householder by freeing up more of their Warm Front grant allowance for other measures and provides a more joined-up form of delivery.

Waste Disposal: Departmental Responsibilities

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the proposals for the new charges for the collection of household waste within the Climate Change Bill will remain the responsibility of his Department or become the responsibility of the new Department for Energy and Climate Change. [225215]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 8 October 2008]: I can confirm that responsibility for household waste collection will remain with Defra.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timetable is for the selection of the local authorities which will pilot charges for the collection of household rubbish. [222861]

Jane Kennedy: Under the powers included in the Climate Change Bill, up to five local authorities in England will be permitted to pilot incentive schemes for encouraging householders to reduce and recycle their waste.

In June, my predecessor, the hon. Member for Lewisham, Deptford (Joan Ruddock) wrote to local authorities inviting them to come forward with proposals to pilot a waste incentive pilot scheme, with a deadline of eight weeks after Royal Assent to the Climate Change Bill. Once the powers in the Bill are commenced, the Government will be able to designate up to five local authorities to proceed with pilots. We anticipate that pilots could begin from spring 2009 onwards, though the exact timing will depend on the nature of proposals put forward by authorities.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter sent to chief executives of local authorities inviting them to participate in the pilots of charges for the collection of household waste. [222864]

Jane Kennedy: I am arranging for copies of the letter to be placed in the Library of the House.

Waste Management

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance he has given to county councils and unitary authorities to develop waste-processing technologies. [225098]

Jane Kennedy: To date over £1.7 billion in private finance initiative (PFI) credits has been committed to 31 local authority waste projects.

Also, for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11 DEFRA is making £185 million of grant funding available to local authorities through the Waste Infrastructure Capital Grant (WICG) and £60 million through the London Waste and Recycling Fund. These will be paid to upper tier and unitary authorities to enable appropriate infrastructure to be developed in time to help English authorities meet landfill targets.

DEFRA also operates the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme to demonstrate innovative waste treatment technologies as possible alternatives to landfill. Each of the eight sites will have a visitor centre open to representatives from local authorities and the waste sector to enable them to learn more about the particular strengths and weaknesses of each technology.

Waste Management: Industrial Disputes

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect of local government industrial action by municipal refuse collectors in the summer months in areas with fortnightly rubbish collections. [225647]

Jane Kennedy: No such assessment has been made by Defra. It is the local authority's responsibility to assess the impact of industrial action on their services, including waste collection.

Weedkillers

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 435W, on manure, what representations he has received on the withdrawal of the provisional authorisation of aminopyralid. [222382]

Hilary Benn: The first representation relating to withdrawal was received by the Pesticides Safety Directorate's helpline on 25 June 2008. Ten such representations had been received up to 8 September 2008. Ministers have also received around 30 letters which made some reference to withdrawal.

Wildlife: Conservation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government has taken to enforce provisions on the protection of endangered species in the UK. [224317]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Primary responsibility for enforcing wildlife legislation rests with the police service and HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC). DEFRA actively supports their activities through the Partnership for Action Against Wildlife Crime (PAW).

DEFRA, together with the Home Office, is the main source of funding for the National Wildlife Crime Unit (NWCU)—a police-led, stand-alone, multi-agency unit with the UK-wide remit for Wildlife Crime established in 2006. The unit gathers intelligence on national wildlife crime and provides analytical and investigative support to police and customs officers across the UK.

DEFRA, together with the other relevant Government Departments and enforcement authorities appraises the impact of wildlife crime and sets out the wildlife crime priorities for the NWCU. Current wildlife crime priorities include hen harrier persecution, offences against bats and poaching, among others.

Endangered species listed on annex A to the convention on international trade in endangered species (CITES) require licences in order to be traded within the UK. Animal Health operate a panel of wildlife inspectors who carry out inspections to ensure that the legislation is complied with; and also have an enforcement team who provide information from its records in support of prosecutions.

Wildlife: Environment Protection

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to reduce the harmful effects of pesticides on wildlife. [224979]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The rigorous EU scientific process for approval of pesticide active substances and the supporting national processes for individual products protect human health and the environment, including wildlife, providing products are used in accordance with the approval and any related conditions of approval. My Department is currently considering whether it is necessary to use further powers contained in the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 to prohibit the possession of certain pesticide ingredients that may be harmful to wildlife.

Monitoring of pesticide poisoning cases is carried out through the Wildlife Incident Investigation Scheme which investigates any reported cases of suspected pesticide poisoning. Published data from this scheme show that, of those cases where a cause can be attributed to pesticides, the vast majority arise from abuse or misuse.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to address the illegal poisoning of wildlife. [224980]

Huw Irranca-Davies: On 26 July my right hon. Friend the noble Lord Rooker relaunched the Government's renewed Campaign against Illegal Poisoning to protect wild animals from illegal poisoning by pesticides. Over the next three years this will focus on preventing poisoning, educating people against accidental poisoning, and improved detection of poisoning cases.

The National Wildlife Crime Unit is also assessing the extent of illegal poisoning and will make any appropriate recommendations.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1704W, on staff: 10 Downing Street (1), which companies employ the members of staff working in the Cabinet Office seconded in from outside the Civil Service; and how many employees are seconded by each; [211880]

(2) what the (a) job descriptions and (b) daily rates of pay are for the agency staff and consultants working in the Cabinet Office; [211881]

(3) what the job titles are of the fee-paid staff; and what daily fees the fee-paid staff are paid; [211882]

(4) how many of the 87 members of FTE staff working in the Cabinet Office not employed by the Civil Service are staff seconded in from outside the Civil Service; [211886]

(5) if he will break down the staff numbers by employment type; [215145]

(6) how many of these staff are paid for by organisations other than the Government; and which organisations pay for them in each case. [215144]

Mr. Watson: Due to the wide ranging and topical nature of Cabinet Office work, we require a flexible resourcing model which allows us to bring in and move out skills and expertise as the business demands. Consequently, we use a mixture of non-permanent employment contracts including secondments from outside the civil service, consultants, fixed term appointments, fee-paid and agency staff.

As at 31 December 2007, there were 87 members of staff (FTE) working in the Cabinet Office who were not employed by the civil service. This figure included staff seconded in from outside the civil service, fee-paid staff, agency staff and consultants but excluded service contractors. The breakdown was as follows:

Employment type	Number FTEs
Secondees to Cabinet Office	14.4
Agency staff	30.4
Consultants	22.5
Contractors	8.2
Fee-paid staff	12.2
Total	87.7

All of these staff are paid for by the Cabinet Office.

Complete records of staff working in the Cabinet Office but being paid for by another organisation are not held centrally.

Of the 87 FTE staff not employed by the Cabinet Office, 14.4 FTE staff were seconded-in from outside the civil service, as at 31 December 2007. These are shown as follows:

Secondment organisation	Number employees (FTE)
Stanton Marris	1
The Work Foundation	1
SOCA	1
Surrey County Council	1
PricewaterhouseCoopers	1
Macclesfield Council	1
National Centre for Social Research	0.4
Essex Police	1
House of Commons	1
Audit Commission	1
FCO	1
The Bank of England	1
House of Lords	3

Job titles and remuneration details for each person employed in a consultancy, fee paid or agency capacity are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Cabinet: Birmingham

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost was of holding the Cabinet meeting in Birmingham in September 2008. [226622]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Perth and North Perthshire (Pete Wishart) by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 9 October 2008, Official Report, column 796W.

Central Office of Information: Training

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what media training courses the Central Office of Information provides or commissions. [217794]

Mr. Watson: The Central Office of Information offers the following type of media training courses across the public sector:

A full day course examining how the media operate, understanding audiences and techniques required for communicating through TV and radio media, including several practice interviews.

A half day media awareness course examining how the media operate, this includes one practice interview.

Bespoke one-to-one training is available looking at specific issues upon request.

Childbirth

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many home births there were (a) in total and (b) as a percentage of all births in each region of England in each year since 1997. [225888]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many home births there were a) in total and b) as a percentage of all births, in each region of England in each year since 1997. (225888)

The latest year for which figures on home births are available is 2006. The attached tables show a) the number of women who gave birth at home in each Government Office Region of England in the years 1997-2006 and b) the number of women who gave birth at home as a percentage of all births in each region, 1997-2006.

Andrew George: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) live births and (b) stillbirths there were in each region of England in 2007. [225948]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question regarding how many a) live births and b) stillbirths there were in each region of England in 2007. (225948)

The table below shows the numbers of live births and stillbirths in each Government Office Region of England in 2007. The 2007 figures for the number of stillbirths is provisional, final figures will be published in Birth Statistics, Series FM1, no. 36, and the release date will be announced shortly.

Climate Change

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what work the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake on climate change; and if he will make a statement. [225359]

Mr. Watson: The Strategy Unit has supported work on several cross-departmental reviews of energy policy which have fed into statements of government policy including the 2007 Climate Change Strategic Framework and the 2007 Energy White Paper. In particular, the unit supported the energy and environment strand of the Policy Review, published in June 2007 and worked jointly with the then DTI and other Departments on the Energy Review Report of July 2006. The unit has no immediate plans to undertake specific work on climate change.

Information on the Strategy Unit's work is available on the Cabinet Office website at:

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/strategy/.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what work the European and Global Issues Secretariat (a) has undertaken in the last five years and (b) plans to undertake on climate change; and if he will make a statement. [225360]

Mr. Watson: The secretariat's role is to support the Prime Minister and the Cabinet in achieving collective agreement for the Government's EU and global policy objectives, including on tackling climate change. This has included preparation and support to the Prime Minister at European Council and G8 meetings, which have been used to advance the UK Government's policy on climate change. It is established practice not to disclose the details of Cabinet Committee discussions.

Cost of Living: Southend on Sea

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the average increase in (a) fuel prices, (b) food prices and (c) incomes in Southend-on-Sea in each year since 1997. [223423]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated September 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what estimate has been made of the average increase in (a) fuel prices, (b) food prices and (c) incomes in Southend-on-Sea in each year since 1997. (223423)

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/tsdtables1.asp?vlnk=mm23

The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) is responsible for producing household income data. However, the information is not available at the level requested.

Death: Cancer

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people died from cancer in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997; [224786]

(2) how many people died from breast cancer in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [224788]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent questions asking:

1) How many people have died from cancer in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. (224786)

2) How many people have died from breast cancer in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. (224788)

The tables attached provide the numbers of deaths where (1) cancer and (2) breast cancer were the underlying cause of death in (a) Jarrow parliamentary constituency, (b) South Tyneside local authority, (c) North East government office region and (d) England from 1997 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Table 1. Number of deaths where cancer was the underlying cause of death[1], Jarrow parliamentary constituency, South Tyneside local authority, North East government office region, and England, 1997 to 2007[2, 3]

Deaths (persons)

	Jarrow	South Tyneside	North East	England
1997	282	531	7,776	127,038

2007	250	514	7,780	127,719

[1] Cause of death for cancer was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes 140-208 for the years 1997 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes C00-C97 for the years 2001 to 2007. The introduction of ICD-10 in 2001 means that the numbers of deaths from this cause before 2001 are not completely comparable with later years.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 24 June 2008, Official Report, column 236W, on departmental aviation, what information on the number of flights and journeys is transferred to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund by the Cabinet Office in order to calculate the carbon offset payment to the fund. [222215]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office provides the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund information on the number of miles travelled by officials on departmental business in order to calculate the carbon offset payment to the fund. This mileage is broken down by long haul, short haul and domestic flights. No information on the number of flights is required and therefore is not provided by Cabinet Office.

Departmental Public Relations

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the policy of (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Central Office of Information is on the hiring by departments and executive agencies of external public relations agencies to undertake public relations work. [222931]

Mr. Watson: PR consultancies can provide valuable support to Government communications work when specialist expertise, not readily available within Government, is required. When Government Departments and executive agencies are considering the use of public relations consultancies or agencies they must follow the criteria set out in the civil service 'Propriety Guidance'.

The guidance includes the following key points:

Public relations agencies cannot represent ministers. Only civil servants who are directly controlled and answerable to ministers may explain minister's policies and deal with media or others on their behalf;

Public relations agencies cannot be used for any task that would be improper for a civil servant, such as opinion-forming in political support of ministers or image building; and Public relations agencies must not be used when internal resources are available for the task.

The civil service Propriety Guidance is available through the following website and copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/documents/pdf/communities/gen/guidance.pdf.

Departmental Recordings

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 1046W, on departmental recordings (1) what records are kept by the Cabinet Office website or IT team of the videos stored on the departmental intranet; [217443]

(2) whether videos used by the Cabinet Office are produced by the Department or by others. [217444]

Mr. Watson: Videos used by the Cabinet Office are produced through a partnership agreement with the Central Office of Information (COI). The majority of these films are for internal use only. Central records of all films produced across the Cabinet Office are not kept.

The following information is recorded in respect of films uploaded onto the departmental intranet:

category;

creator of the film;

CO unit;

date submitted;

the title of the film;

keywords; and description.

The system also records the number of viewings for each film as they occur.

If more complex films are required management units can source other film production companies. They may also use COI's film production unit.

Departmental Video Conferencing

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will set a target to increase the use of video-conferencing by his Department to reduce the need to travel to meetings. [195875]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office has video conferencing equipment located throughout its offices in central London, Basingstoke, Birchwood and Easingwold. The equipment is utilised whenever possible to reduce travel costs and to help limit carbon emissions. The Department's travel policy requires staff, as a first step before taking any travel decisions, to consider use of video conferencing facilities. There are no plans to set any specific usage targets.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226885]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office has received 149 named day questions during the current session to the end of September. Of these, 86 were answered on the due date.

Electorate

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the average number of electors in (a) English, (b) Scottish, (c) Welsh and (d) Northern Ireland parliamentary constituencies was in (i) 2001, (ii) 2004 and (iii) 2007; [225861]

(2) what the average number of electors in the areas covered by the (a) English, (b) Scottish, (c) Welsh and (d) Northern Ireland parliamentary constituencies which will be in effect at the next general election was in (i) 2001, (ii) 2004 and (iii) 2007. [225862]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your questions asking the Secretary of State for Justice:

1) What the average number of electors in (a) English, (b) Scottish, (c) Welsh and (d) Northern Ireland parliamentary constituencies was in (i) 2001, (ii) 2004 and (iii) 2007 (225861).

2) What the average number of electors in the areas covered by the (a) English, (b) Scottish, (c) Welsh and (d) Northern Ireland parliamentary constituencies which will be in effect at the next general election was in (i) 2001, (ii) 2004 and (iii) 2007 (225862).

Table 1 shows the average number of parliamentary electors in (a) English, (b) Scottish, (c) Welsh and (d) Northern Ireland parliamentary constituencies on existing boundaries for the years requested.

Table 2 shows the figures on boundaries that come into effect at the next General Election. Data on these boundaries were only collected for England and Wales for 2007. For Scotland and Northern Ireland electoral data are available only on existing boundaries.

Table 1: Average number of parliamentary electors on existing boundaries

	2001	2004	2007
England	70,503	70,026	71,489
Wales	55,892	55,837	56,392

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the (a) employment rate and (b) the number in employment of the working age population was for (i) the UK population of working age, (ii) foreign nationals of working age, (iii) UK nationals of working age and (iv) UK born workers of working age in each quarter since 1 January 2007; and what the equivalent figures are for all persons in work irrespective of age. [223544]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated September 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the (a) employment rate and (b) the number in employment of the working age population was for (i) the UK population of working age, (ii) foreign nationals of working age, (iii) UK nationals of working age and (iv) UK born workers of working age in each quarter since 1st January 2007; and what the equivalent figures are for all persons in work irrespective of age. (223544)

The attached tables give the number of people in the categories requested together with the corresponding rates from 1 January 2007. Table 1 shows the working age estimates (16-64 for men and 16-59 for women); table 2 shows the estimates for those aged-16 and over.

The data for analysing employment comes from the Labour Force Survey. Estimates according to nationality are based on the nationality of people at a given time in the LFS.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV— for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical Robustness
* 0≤CV< 5 Estimates are considered precise
 5 ≤CV < 10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise
 10 ≤CV < 20 Estimates are considered acceptable
* CV ≥20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes

Higher Civil Servants: Car Allowances

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what mileage rate for motoring expenses is paid to senior civil servants. [226623]

Mr. Watson: The Department does not provide central rules regarding levels of reimbursement of car mileage undertaken on Government business. Departments and agencies have delegated authority to reimburse the expenses incurred by their own staff, including senior civil servants, in connection with their employment subject to the conditions set out in Section 8 of the Civil Service Management Code:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/iam/codes/csmc/online_report/8.asp

Copies of the Civil Service Management Code are available in the Libraries of the House.

Internet

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether webmail accounts are blocked in the offices of (a) 10 Downing Street and (b) the Cabinet Office. [198183]

Mr. Watson: Access to webmail accounts from the corporate IT networks in the Cabinet Office is tightly controlled to mitigate any threat that such accounts may pose to the integrity, security and availability of Government data.

Local Government: Contracts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether local government employers were consulted before the decision was made to extend the Joint Statement on Access to Skills, Advice and Trade Unions in Government Contracting to local government. [224077]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 17 September 2008]: No decision has yet been taken to extend the Joint Statement on Access to Skills, Trade Unions and Advice in Government Contracting, which aims to improve the quality of services delivered under Government contracts by raising the skills of employees working on these contracts. This is explicitly stated in the Joint Statement. The Local Government Employers' organisation agreed to hold a consultation with local authorities to seek views on the application of the Joint Statement to local government.

Media Monitoring Unit

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his policy is on the release to third parties of transcripts of broadcast interviews (a) produced and (b) commissioned by the Media Monitoring Unit at public expense. [222218]

Mr. Watson: The Media Monitoring Unit (MMU) produces transcripts commissioned by Government Departments. Transcripts are then distributed to Government Departments.

Office of the Third Sector: Consultants

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the Office of the Third Sector spent on outside consultancy in financial year (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [225264]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) has engaged outside consultants for specialist recruitment exercises for senior public appointments, for procurement exercises and for the development and/or review of data sources, policies and programmes. The OTS spent just over £590,000 on consultancy in 2007-08, excluding VAT.

Details of outside consultancy spend in 2008-09 will only be available when the Department's resource accounts are fully audited and laid before Parliament. This is expected to be before the 2009 summer recess.

Office of the Third Sector: Manpower

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff are employed by the Office of the Third Sector. [225263]

Kevin Brennan: As at 30 September 2008, The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) employed 66 staff. This includes all staff paid by OTS. The figure includes 57 staff in post and nine staff not currently working in the office, such as staff on maternity leave, short term appointments and staff on long term sick leave.

Official Residences: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer of 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1307W, on official residences: repairs and maintenance, what the (a) nature and (b) purpose was of the work incurred on Project Silent Night. [199104]

Mr. Watson: The expenditure in 2000-01 was to convert rooms into office accommodation.

Private Sector: Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the Joint Statement on Access to Skills, Trade Unions and Advice in Government Contracting, whether private sector firms with public sector contracts who provide information to their employees about trade union membership will be (a) required or (b) encouraged by the Cabinet Office to include information about union members' rights to opt out of the political levy. [223371]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The Joint Statement on Access to Skills, Trade Unions and Advice in Government Contracting provides an Annex containing information on skills, trade unions and advice which service providers may be asked to distribute to employees. Both this Annex and the Joint Statement are available in the Library of the House. The Annex sets out employees' legal rights concerning trade union membership and other basic information relevant to the workplace and, like the whole Joint Statement, was agreed by Government, union and private and third sector representatives.

Not all unions have a political fund or levy, but it is a legal requirement for union members to be informed about the right to opt out of these. The Joint Statement Annex supplied to employees refers them to sources which explain the rules regarding political levies.

Public Services Forum Task Group

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on which dates the Public Services Forum Task Group has met; and if he will place in the Library copies of the agendas and minutes of each meeting. [197452]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 31 March 2008]: Details of task groups' meetings, such as agendas and minutes, are not generally disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of discussions.

Training: Prime Minister

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what diversity training is provided to new staff as part of their induction process in the Prime Minister's Office. [199063]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

Diversity training is incorporated into all aspects of Human Resources including the induction of new entrants.

Unemployed: Young People

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) UK citizens and (b) people in the UK aged 16 to 24 years old were unemployed in each quarter of the last two years for which figures are available; and what the employment rate of each group was in each such quarter. [223547]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated September 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many (a) UK citizens and (b) people in the UK aged 16 to 24 years old were unemployed in each quarter of the last two years for which figures are available; and what the employment rate of each group was in each such quarter. Unemployment: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were unemployed in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (b) the London Borough of Bexley in each of the last six months. [225850]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people were unemployed in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (b) the London Borough of Bexley in each of the last six months. (225850)

The Office for National Statistics compiles unemployment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and model based estimates following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions. These are available only for rolling 4 quarter periods. The latest available estimates cover the 12 months ending September 2007 and December 2007 and are 2,000 for Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and 5,000 for the London Borough of Bexley in both periods.

Table 1 attached shows the number of persons claiming Job Seeker's Allowance resident in the Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and the London Borough of Bexley for each of the last six months.

These figures along with a wide range of other labour market data for parliamentary constituencies and local authorities are also published on the Office for National Statistics' Nomis® website:

Unemployment: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were unemployed in (a) West Chelmsford constituency and (b) Chelmsford local authority area in each of the last six months for which figures are available. [224481]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell dated 13 October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question asking how many people were unemployed in (a) West Chelmsford constituency and (b) Chelmsford local authority area in each of the last six months for which figures are available. (224481)

The Office for National Statistics compiles unemployment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and model based estimates following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

The APS classifies as unemployed people who are without a job, who were available to start work in the two weeks following their APS interview and who had either looked for work in the four weeks prior to interview or are waiting to start a job already obtained.

Table 1, attached, shows the numbers of people aged 16 and over who were unemployed and resident in (a) West Chelmsford constituency and (b) Chelmsford local authority area for the 12 month periods ending March 2008, which is the most recent period for which estimates are available, and September and December 2007. As these estimates are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

These figures along with a wide range of other labour market data for parliamentary constituencies and local authorities are also published on the Office for National Statistics's Nomis® website:

Guide to Quality
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV - for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220

* 0 ≤ CV <5 Estimates are considered precise.
 5 ≤ CV<10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise.
 10 ≤ CV <20 Estimates are considered acceptable.

Unemployment: Yorkshire and the Humber

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people living in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire were unemployed in each of the last 12 months. [226394]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people living in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire were unemployed in each of the last 12 months. (226394)

The Office for National Statistics compiles unemployment statistics for local areas such as Leeds using model based estimates and for regions such as Yorkshire and The Humber using the Labour Force Survey (LFS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

The model based estimates for Leeds are available only for rolling four quarter periods. The latest available estimates cover the twelve months ending September 2007 and December 2007 and are provided in Table 1. The estimates for Yorkshire and The Humber from the LFS are available for rolling three monthly periods and the latest available estimates are provided in Table 2.

Table 3 gives the number of persons claiming Jobseeker's Allowance resident in Leeds and Yorkshire and The Humber for each of the last twelve months.

Ascension Island

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what procedure will operate in relation to the UK's Atlantic seabed claim around Ascension Island; what the deadline is for objections to be made; who may object; what the deadline is for a decision on the claim; for what reasons the UK has made the claim; and if he will make a statement. [223487]

Gillian Merron: In accordance with article 76 of the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea, on 9 May 2008, the UK submitted to the Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf, information on the limits of the continental shelf beyond 200 nautical miles from the coastline of Ascension Island.

Under the Rules of Procedure of the Commission, the executive summary of the submission was made public and circulated to all UN member states (a copy can be found at:

http://www.un.org/Depts/los/clcs_new/submissions_files/submission_gbr.htm

A period of at least three months then had to follow before the submission could be formally heard by the Commission, during which time any and all member states of the United Nations had the right to transmit Notes Verbale making observations on, or objecting to, the submission.

No such observations or objections having been made, the UK formally presented its submission to the Commission in New York on 27 August 2008.

We expect that the Commission will now proceed to establish a sub-commission of seven members to examine the UK submission. The time scale for this will depend on the overall work load of the Commission. There is no deadline for a decision.

Once satisfied, the Commission will make its recommendations to the UK regarding the establishment of the outer limits of the continental shelf around Ascension Island. In line with the provisions of the convention, the limits subsequently established shall be final and binding in international law.

In 2006, the UK made another submission to the Commission—jointly with France, Ireland and Spain—in respect of the sea bed in the bay of Biscay. We await the Commission's recommendations.

UK officials and scientists are also in the process of examining two further areas of continental shelf where the geological conditions may exist to justify further submissions—in the 'Hatton Rockall Area' of the North East Atlantic, and around the Falkland Island islands and South Georgia. In both instances, the UK will take appropriate action before May 2009, as required by the convention.

The UK has confirmed to the Commission that it is not submitting data for the continental shelf around the British Antarctic Territory, but that it reserves the right to do so in future.

The UK—and many other countries—is taking these actions in order to safeguard for the future its sovereign rights over its continental shelf, where the conditions laid down by the convention allow. It is an ordinary process, entirely in line with international law, and recognised by the UN General Assembly.

British Overseas Territories: Historic Buildings

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many historic assets there are in each of the British overseas territories; what estimate he has made of the value of such overseas heritage assets; whether there is a registered list of overseas assets; and who has responsibility for managing such overseas assets. [222384]

Gillian Merron: The British overseas territories have listed the following historical assets. As agreed with my hon. Friend, these include historical and heritage sites covering churches, forts, caves, cemeteries, buildings and officially recognised World Heritage sites:

Overseas territory	Number of heritage/historical sites
Anguilla	88
Ascension	43
Bermuda	[1]874
British Antarctic Territory	26
British Indian Ocean Territories	14
British Virgin Islands	240
Cayman Islands	12
Cyprus SBAs	7
Falkland Islands	50
Gibraltar	151
Montserrat	35
Pitcairn	2
St. Helena	11
South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands	9
Tristan da Cunha	2
Turks and Caicos Islands	[2]

[1] The figure for Bermuda includes buildings of architectural interest as well as historical and heritage sites. A separate list of historical and heritage sites does not exist.

[2] Figures are currently unavailable. Due to recent hurricane activity in the Turks and Caicos Islands. We will forward details as soon as they are available.

An estimate of the value of these assets has not been carried out. Most of the overseas territories maintain a list or register of their historical and heritage sites. These sites are owned by overseas territory Governments, private individuals, who own the majority of the sites, non-governmental organisations and, in very few cases, by the British Government, for example the Governor's former residence in Plymouth, Montserrat and land and properties in the British Indian ocean territories. The responsibility for managing the sites lies with the owner of the individual site in accordance with local legislation and regulations.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the EU High Representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy is expected next to meet Iranian nuclear negotiators to discuss Iran's nuclear programme; and if he will make a statement. [224190]

David Miliband: There are no such meetings scheduled at present. However, the E3+3 engagement offer remains on the table, and Javier Solana will continue to make himself available for a meeting with the Iranians on behalf of the E3+3.

Iran: United Nations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to meet next his counterparts from the permanent membership of the UN Security Council and Germany to discuss a new UN Security Council Resolution on Iran; and if he will make a statement. [224189]

David Miliband: The UK, US, France, Germany, Russia and China hold a close dialogue on the Iranian nuclear issue, and met at official and ministerial levels during the recent UN General Assembly. The result was the unanimous adoption of new Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1835 on 27 September, which calls upon Iran to comply without delay to the requirements of UNSCRs 1969, 1737, 1747 and 1803 and suspend its nuclear programme. Consultations between all six states continue.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department has received from the Contingency Reserve in respect of the civilian costs of crisis management in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each of the last five years; what contingency funding is foreseen; and if he will make a statement. [220642]

David Miliband: All funding received by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) from the Treasury Reserve is reported to Parliament as part of the estimates process. The FCO does not hold disaggregated information relating to the civilian costs of crisis management in Iraq and Afghanistan, and this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Any future requests for funding will be reported through the estimates process in the usual way.

Somalia: Piracy

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what involvement the UK has in counter-piracy measures in and around Somali waters. [224467]

Gillian Merron: We have been working with EU and North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) partners to consider options to counter-piracy in the region, both directly and through development activity to undermine it at its roots. In support of UN Security Council resolution 1816, the EU has set up a cell in Brussels to co-ordinate EU activity in the region, and the EU and NATO are considering options to undertake further naval action. We have also supported the French drafting of a new UN Security Council resolution which aims to strengthen the international community's response to piracy.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether a report has been made available by the UN on the recent conflict in Abyei, Sudan; and what effect on the operation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement the conflict has had. [223577]

Gillian Merron: The fighting in Abyei in mid-May could have posed a serious threat to the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. The National Congress party and Sudan People's Liberation Movement have shown their commitment to the Comprehensive Peace Agreement by agreeing a Roadmap on 8 June to resolve the Abyei dispute which has been an obstacle to implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement. We are working with both parties and with international partners to implement fully the Abyei Roadmap and the Comprehensive Peace Agreement.

We expect the UN to report on the Abyei conflict in the next report of the Secretary-General on the Sudan, which is due in November.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his (a) EU and (b) UN Security Council member counterparts on the situation in Darfur. [224295]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN have had regular discussions with EU and UN Security Council partners on the Darfur peace process and the deployment of the UN-Africa Union peacekeeping mission, including most recently at the UN General Assembly in New York on 24-27 September. The Foreign Secretary, on his visit to Khartoum on 9 July, also raised the situation in Darfur with President Bashir of Sudan.

Uganda: Politics and Government

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the expected date of completion of the trial of Uganda opposition leader Dr. Kizza Besigye; and if he will make a statement. [224249]

Gillian Merron: There has been no date set for the completion of Dr. Besigye's trial. It was put on hold pending the outcome of a petition to the Constitutional Court, made by Dr. Besigye's lawyers in May 2007.

We continue to follow the case closely and remain in contact with the defence team. In the course of our regular dialogue with the Government of Uganda, we continue to press them on all aspects of good governance and the rule of law.

Visits Abroad

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries have not received an official visit from a Minister since the last general election. [224822]

Gillian Merron: There are no centrally held records of ministerial overseas visits, therefore this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Western Sahara: Human Rights

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will ask the UN Human Rights Commissioner to release the Office for the High Commissioner for Human Rights' report on the visit of its mission to Rabat, Laayoune, and Tindouf between 15th and 23rd May 2006 and Algiers on 19th June 2006. [224173]

Gillian Merron: The office of the high commissioner for human rights visited Morocco, Western Sahara, refugee camps in Tindouf (Algeria), and Algiers in May to June 2006 to gather information on the human rights situation. The office of the high commissioner for human rights shared its report privately with Morocco, Algeria and the Polisario on 8 September 2006, but did not publish it, in line with terms of reference agreed by all parties prior to the visit. The UN high commissioner for human rights continues to maintain the position that the report should remain an internal document, not for official publication, and the UK respects this decision.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Businesses: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will assess the likely effect on businesses of the imposition by local authorities of (a) infrastructure levies, (b) congestion charges and (c) workplace parking taxes over each of the next three years. [225655]

Mr. Iain Wright: Decisions as to whether to introduce congestion charging and work place parking taxes schemes are for local authorities to take. No work place parking taxes schemes are operative at present. It is not possible for the Government to predict what level of charges might be imposed on business by these schemes over the next three years as potential revenues are subject to too many variables to be able to offer the House a meaningful estimate.

The Government are in the process of legislating for the introduction of a new community infrastructure levy (CIL) through clauses in the Planning Bill, now before Parliament. The Bill empowers, but does not require, authorities to introduce a CIL. Again, as a discretionary tool, it will be for individual authorities to decide whether to adopt CIL and the level of CIL that should apply in their local areas.

Canatxx: Natural Gas

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Ministers and officials from her Department have met representatives of Canatxx Ltd to discuss gas storage facilities in the UK. [225406]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ministers meet many people as part of the process of policy development. Details of meetings between Ministers and outside interest groups are provided on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/about/freedom-of-information/disclosure-log/

After the Secretary of State issued her decision to refuse planning permission for development of a natural gas storage facility at Preesall Saltfield, Fleetwood, Lancashire on 16 October 2007, policy officials met with representatives of Canatxx Ltd on 6 December 2007 to discuss general policy on gas storage facilities.

Council Housing: Private Finance Initiative

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effect of the economic situation on the delivery of private finance initiative housing projects; and if she will make a statement. [226569]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department is monitoring the situation and working closely with all PFI schemes to help support them in finding solutions where difficulties arise.

Council Tax: Concessions

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities may demand internal inspections of domestic dwellings as a condition of applying a single person's council tax discount. [226373]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst on 10 September 2008, Official Report, columns 1987-88W.

Departmental Accountancy

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent under general ledger account numbers 40017 and 60002 in the latest year for which figures are available. [225651]

Mr. Khan: General Ledger account number 40017 is titled "Furniture and fittings" and expenditure in 2007-08 was £3,182,099. This expenditure was largely on projects to rationalise and improve utilisation of the Department's headquarters office accommodation. Account code 60002 is not used and there was no expenditure recorded against it in 2007-08.

Departmental Consultations

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to hold online consultations in the next two years. [225015]

Mr. Khan: All public consultations that the Department undertake are available online. As the new Code of Practice on Consultation makes clear, consultation exercises are designed to be accessible to, and clearly targeted at, those people the exercise is aimed to reach. Therefore due consideration is given to this issue before deciding on how we actually consult. However, we would always make hard copies available of our public consultations on request.

The Department is aware of the opportunities that technology offers to improve the effectiveness of our consultations. Communities and Local Government have used online surveys as part of public consultation and will continue to do so when appropriate to inform the policy making process. The following list sets out examples of consultations where we have used online technology from November 2007 to October 2008.

Consultations

Local Petitions/Community Calls for Action;

Empowerment White Paper;

Creating Strong, Safe and Prosperous Communities Statutory Guidance;

The Future of Building Controls; and

The New Place Survey Consultation.

Departmental Contracts

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by her Department on subscriptions to overseas bodies under general ledger account number 40104 in the latest year for which figures are available. [225559]

Mr. Khan: There was no expenditure recorded against this code in 2007-08.

Departmental Manpower

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by her Department on agency staff under general ledger account number 40002 in the latest year for which figures are available. [225446]

Mr. Khan: The Department spent £21,666,709 on temporary or agency staff in the financial year 2007-08.

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in her Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226414]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Member for Gloucester (Mr. Dhanda) to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) on 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 538W.

Departmental Telephone Services

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what agencies or units for which her Department is responsible require the public to make telephone calls to them on numbers which charge more than the national call rate; and how much income each such agency derived from such charges in each of the last three years. [225719]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government does not require the public to make telephone calls on numbers which charge more than the national rate. The Department does not derive revenue from callers dialling its contact numbers.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day her Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226901]

Mr. Khan: In the period 6 November 2007 to 10 October 2008, Communities and Local Government received 4,445 written parliamentary questions, including 716 for answer on a named day. Of the 716,389 (54 per cent.) were answered on the due date and a further 209 (29 per cent.) were answered within a working week of the date for answer.

Eco-Towns: Greenfield Sites

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of greenfield land she estimates to be developed in each eco-town. [225642]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are still consulting on the shortlisted locations for eco-towns and decisions on locations with potential to become eco-towns will be taken early in 2009, and updated information was included on the sites in "Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report", published on 24 July 2008. The Sustainability Appraisal (SA) and draft Planning Policy Statement (PPS) will shortly be published for consultation, and in the SA there will be more details about each of the shortlisted locations, including development on greenfield land. Copies of the SA and draft PPS will be placed in the House Library.

Eco-Towns: Planning

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether full planning inquiries will be held into eco-town proposals which are not already allocated in local authority structure plans, local development frameworks or regional spatial strategies. [225643]

Mr. Iain Wright: The processes for the preparation of a regional spatial strategy and for development plan documents, which form part of the local development framework, provide for an independent examination to be held. Where proposals for eco-towns are identified in either the regional spatial strategy or in development plan documents, these would form part of the considerations at independent examination.

As is the case with any other proposal, planning applications for eco-towns will be decided on their merits, firstly by the local planning authority. If the application is refused planning consent and subsequently appealed by the applicant, the appeal would be handled by the Planning Inspectorate. One of the ways of hearing the appeal would be through a planning inquiry.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will publish the draft Planning Policy Statement on eco-towns. [225051]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Cotswold on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 309W.

Eco-Towns: Public Participation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many responses have been received on eco-towns consultations; and what the deadlines are for responses to such consultations. [225649]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have completed the first stage of consultation on "Eco-towns—living a greener future", which sought views on the principles of eco-towns and the shortlisted locations. This ran from April to the end of June and we will shortly be publishing a summary report of the responses received, including numbers of responses. The second stage of consultation will begin shortly and this will be on the draft Planning Policy Statement and Sustainability Appraisal, and will be a public consultation running for three months.

Eco-Towns: Sustainable Development

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the minimum Code for Sustainable Homes level will be that homes in eco-towns built before 2016 will have to meet. [225448]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave her on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 306W.

Electoral Register

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the outcome of neighbourhood management pathfinders against objectives to increase electoral registration. [224823]

John Healey: The 35 neighbourhood management pathfinders aim to help deprived communities and local service providers work together at the neighbourhood level to improve and join up local services. No assessment has been made of the pathfinders' contribution to increasing electoral registration rates as this does not form one of their objectives.

Environment Protection

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether tree safety inspections required by her Department will require homeowners to pay a specialist to examine regularly their garden trees. [225447]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not require safety inspections to be carried out on trees in private gardens. We have no proposals to make such inspections compulsory.

Fire Services: Manpower

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many firefighters there were per 100,000 residents in (a) England, (b) Derbyshire and (c) Chesterfield in each year since 1997. [225897]

Mr. Khan: Information on the number of firefighters per 100,000 population in Derbyshire and England is set out in the table. Information for UK and Chesterfield is not centrally held and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Annual returns to Communities and local government.

Fire Services: Pensions

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) for what reasons the commutation factors used in the Firefighters' Pension Scheme were not revised between 1998 and 2008; [225331]

(2) when her Department was advised by the Government Actuary's Department of the desirability of revising the commutation factors used in the Firefighters' Pension Scheme leading to the adoption of new factors in May 2008; and if she will place in the Library copies of subsequent correspondence between her Department and the Government Actuary's Department on the commutation factors used in the Scheme. [225332]

Mr. Khan: The Firefighters' Pension Scheme 1992 allows a member to commute part of their pension for a lump sum. This is the actuarial equivalent of the commuted portion calculated from tables provided by the Government Actuary.

The then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister raised issues relating to commutation with the Government Actuary's Department on 23 December 2005 as part of the continuing review of the pension arrangements for firefighters. GAD responded on 22 August 2006 setting out the assumptions which would be adopted in determining new factors. Following extensive discussions with GAD and the Home Office, GAD recommended new factors for the 1992 scheme and the Police Pension Scheme, in which similar commutation arrangements apply. Subsequently, HM Treasury agreed that the new tables should be backdated to 1 October 2007.

Retired firefighters, who did not benefit from the new factors, are now lodging grievances with the Department and these are currently being considered.

Copies of the letters of 23 December 2005 and 22 August 2006 have been placed in the Library.

Housing Associations: Fraud

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the level of fraud perpetuated against housing associations. [224721]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation has issued guidance to registered social landlords (RSLs) (Circular 07/07—Internal Controls Assurance) which states that RSLs should report cases of actual or attempted fraudulent activity to the relevant field director at the Corporation at the earliest opportunity. The report should include actions taken or to be taken by the RSL. Each regional office of the Housing Corporation maintains a list of fraudulent activity that has been reported to them.

In June 2008, the Corporation had a record of 107 cases of fraud/attempted fraud reported to it by RSLs in the last three years. Of these, 36 cases were still under investigation in June. The total amount of fraud in the 107 cases equates to £3,540,082, although this figure is subject to variation where the value of the fraud is not known or an estimate of the value has been provided by the RSL. In the majority of cases where the outcome of an investigation is known, funds were recovered.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether there are plans to revise the house building targets in the new regional spatial strategies as a consequence of the downturn in the housing market. [225451]

Mr. Iain Wright: Regional spatial strategies (RSS) are strategic high level development plans with a 15 to 20-year life-span and housing targets in them reflect the long term need for housing over that period rather than the level of supply at any particular point in the economic cycle. RSSs must continue to reflect the long term housing need. Although the Government recognise the current challenges faced by our housing markets, in the long term it remains committed to increasing supply to 240,000 homes. Further RSS reviews will be undertaken to test both the long term need and capacity in each region.

Housing: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many ex-service personnel in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England were registered as council tenants in each year since 1997; [224684]

(2) how many ex-service personnel in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England were registered as homeless in each year since 1997. [224685]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about the number of ex-service personnel who are council tenants is not collected centrally.

Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level, in respect of households rather than individuals. The parliamentary constituency of Jarrow falls within two local authority districts: South Tyneside and Gateshead.

Data collected include the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure suitable accommodation).

Since 2005-06, data have been collected on the number of accepted households whose reason for loss of last settled home was having left HM Forces. Data for England, the North East, and the districts of South Tyneside and Gateshead are shown in the following table:

Main reason for loss of last settled home due to having left HM Forces

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
England	268	204	218
North East	41	27	32
South Tyneside	1	0	3
Gateshead	[1]	17	16

[1] Data not reported.

Source:
Quarterly P1E homelessness return.

Information about homeless acceptances is also collected by category of "priority need" of the applicant. This includes applicants who have priority need primarily because they are vulnerable as a result of having served in HM Forces. These data are shown in the following table, for the same areas:

Household accepted with primary priority need of being vulnerable as result of having served in HM Forces

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
England	104	95	73	53	36
North East	17	17	14	14	11
Gateshead	[1]	[1]	[1]	9	8

[1] Data not reported.

Source:
Quarterly P1E homelessness return.

The two sets of figures above will overlap because some homeless acceptances who are ex-service personnel will fall within both (that is, in priority need because they were vulnerable as a result of having served in HM Forces, and the reason for loss of their last settled home is due to leaving Forces accommodation).

It is also likely that some ex-service personnel will be hidden within other priority need categories (for example the presence of dependent children) or other reasons for loss of last settled home (for example, having to leave the family home), and so will not be identifiable in the above figures. It is therefore not possible to identify what proportion of all homeless acceptances are ex-service personnel.

Local authorities who conduct rough sleeper counts collect information on any individuals sleeping rough, and these are published annually on our website. Figures include those rough sleepers who have previously served in HM Forces, but these are not shown separately.

Rough sleeping among ex-armed forces personnel has dropped. There are no specific data for 1997 but studies at the time suggested between a quarter and one fifth of rough sleepers had been in the armed forces at some stage. There is specific information for London provided under the Combined Homelessness and Information Network (CHAIN) recording system. In 2006-07, for those rough sleepers in London contacted by services, 5 per cent. had spent some time in the armed forces in the past. This has remained consistent over the last four years.

The Ministry of Defence provides advice and support to veterans with housing problems. All ex-service personnel facing homelessness are advised to contact the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency via its free phone helpline or Veterans UK website to access specific help.

Housing: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with insurance companies on requiring repairs to houses affected by flooding to make residences more flood resilient, with particular reference to (a) installation of electrical sockets higher up and (b) the replacement of wooden skirting boards with a water-resistant version. [225401]

Mr. Iain Wright: The issue of flood resilient repairs has formed part of discussions between Ministers and the Association of British Insurers on a number of occasions since the summer 2007 floods, in particular in October 2007 and January 2008.

Housing: Greater London

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to ensure future housing provision to meet London's housing needs. [225378]

Mr. Iain Wright: Planning for housing provision in London is primarily a matter for the Mayor of London and the boroughs. Both carry out studies to assess the housing requirements and potential of their areas. These studies provide evidence to inform housing supply targets, for inclusion in their regional and local development plans.

The Mayor's London Plan sets a London-wide target to provide a minimum of 30,500 homes per year and targets for each borough. As required by Government, the new Mayor is updating the London-wide evidence base on housing requirements and potential, to inform new housing supply targets for inclusion in a revised London Plan by 2012 at the latest.

Government provide funding for affordable housing. In London, around £3 billion of public funding through the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing Programme is being invested over three years, 2008 to 2011, to deliver substantial numbers of affordable homes to help meet housing need.

Housing: Heating

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what regulations and guidance her Department and its predecessors have issued on the use of non-barrier piping for central heating systems in the last 15 years. [224906]

Mr. Iain Wright: None—the England and Wales Building Regulations do not generally prescribe the use of particular materials or products (such as non-barrier piping), as they are functional regulations. Regulation 7 covers materials and workmanship, and requires that relevant building works must be carried out with proper materials in a workmanlike manner. The accompanying Approved Document guidance provides further advice on ways of demonstrating that products are fit for purpose.

Housing: Insulation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average additional cost of wall insulation for a home with solid walls; and if she will make a statement. [224922]

Mr. Iain Wright: The report: 'Review of Sustainability of Existing Buildings: The Energy Efficiency of Dwellings—Initial Analysis', published by my Department in November 2006, estimated that it would cost £3,150 to provide solid wall insulation in an average home. It was also estimated that the annual cost saving on energy bills would be £380, and that payback would be achieved in 7.5 years. This contrasts with figures of £342 for cavity wall insulation, saving £133 a year and achieving payback in 2.6 years. The 2006 report is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/doc/320213.doc

Housing: Solar Energy

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many representations she has received from local authorities seeking amendments to planning law to give preferential planning to new build with solar energy installed in the last two years. [224914]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities and other stakeholders have made representations to the Department on preferential planning for new build with low or zero carbon emissions. Unlike submissions received relating to microgeneration on existing buildings, these representations have not focused on changes to planning legislation. Nor have they concentrated on particular renewable technologies, such as solar energy. Instead, their emphasis has been on ensuring a positive response from local authorities to proposals for low or zero carbon new buildings. In the light of these representations, our new planning policy on climate change underlines that developers with proposals which would secure high levels of resource and energy efficiency and reductions in emissions should expect their planning application to be handled expeditiously and sympathetically.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when representatives of her Department last met housebuilders to discuss the promotion of solar energy in new build housing. [224918]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government (CLG) officials and Ministers continue to engage regularly with the house building industry, and other important stakeholders, regarding the use of microgeneration technology, including Solar Hot Water and Solar PV (photovoltaic), in new build housing. In 2006 we introduced a regulatory framework that encourages renewable systems without prescription. CLG forums that include representation from homebuilders and discuss the future of various renewable technologies are (with last meeting dates in brackets); the Code Implementation Advisory Group (15 September 2008) Code's Technical Advisory Group (21 July 2008), the Industry Advisory Groups which are working on proposals for revising Part L of the Building Regulations (6 August 2008) and the 2016 Zero Carbon New Homes Taskforce (5 June 2008).

Housing: South East

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's latest estimate is of the number of new homes required to be built in the south-east region; and how many of these homes are required to fulfil housing need for those living in the south-east region. [224607]

Mr. Iain Wright: Figures for housing provision are set out in Regional Spatial Strategies (RSS). Build rates set out in the current RSS are 29,500 per year in the south-east region. The Government are currently consulting on their Proposed Changes to a replacement RSS, which sets out a figure of 33,125 dwellings per year to be built up to 2026.

The latest 2004 based household projections showed a need for around 35,900 new dwellings in the south-east. The number of additional households to be formed by net migration is estimated at the England level only. These estimates show that 223,000 households will form per year from 2004 to 2026 in England, of which 73,000 (33 per cent.) will be attributable to net migration.

Work carried out for the South East of England Regional Assembly, which prepared the draft RSS now subject to consultation suggested that around two-thirds of new homes built in the region would be occupied by those already in the south-east.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the demand for new homes in (a) the south-east Region and (b) other regions from (i) UK nationals already living in the south-east region, (ii) UK nationals living outside the south-east region, (iii) European Union citizens and (iv) citizens of other countries. [224756]

Mr. Iain Wright: The latest 2004 based household projections showed a need for around 35,900 new dwellings in the south-east. The number of additional households projected to be formed by net migration is estimated at the England level only. These estimates show that 223,000 households are projected to be formed per year from 2004 to 2026 in England, of which 73,000 (33 per cent.) will be attributable to net migration.

Work by the South East of England Regional Assembly, which prepared the draft RSS, suggested that around two-thirds of new homes built in the region would be occupied by those already in the south-east.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 19 July 2008, Official Report, columns 1635-36W on housing: sustainable development, if she will assess whether it would be possible for a home using any tumble dryer currently available on the market to achieve over 90 per cent. of the credits available within the Code for Sustainable Homes. [225566]

Mr. Iain Wright: Yes, providing that it is rated either A or B, of which there a number available on the market. To achieve code level 6 the house builder must achieve at least 90 per cent. of all the available credits within the code and all the mandatory elements. To achieve the credits within the "Energy Labelled White Goods" (Ene 5) category of the code, either a washer dryer or a tumble dryer that has at least a B rating under the EU Energy Efficiency Labelling Scheme must be installed or information on the EU Energy Labelling Scheme is provided to each dwelling. There is also a credit available within the code for providing a space for air drying clothes.

Housing: Young People

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to ensure access to supported accommodation for vulnerable young adults who abuse alcohol and other substances. [225486]

Mr. Iain Wright: As part of our drug strategy, 'Drugs: protecting families and communities' (February 2008), we will be encouraging local authorities to work with partners to meet locally-identified need for housing and support for those affected by drug use, including young people. We will also work to develop more personalised approaches to treatment services, to help us best support those leaving and planning to leave treatment with packages of support to access appropriate housing.

Through the Housing Corporation's affordable housing programme we are providing capital investment to deliver affordable housing for vulnerable groups including young adults who abuse alcohol and other substances. In 2007-08 the Housing Corporation approved over £30 million for social rented schemes to assist young people at risk and people with alcohol related problems.

The Supporting People programme funds housing-related support services to vulnerable people, including young people at risk and people with alcohol and/or drug problems. In the financial year 2006-07, £42,506,026 of supporting people funding was spent on services in England for people with drug or alcohol problems.

Land: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects Milton Keynes Unitary Authority to publish its landscape character assessment. [224927]

Mr. Iain Wright: As a result of the Planning Inspector's recommendations on Policy S11 (Areas of Attractive Landscape) and the adoption of the Milton Keynes Local Plan, the council identified that further work was needed to formulate a workable policy approach for the Core Strategy and other Local Development Plan Documents.

This has led to the preparation of two documents—the Local Landscape Designations Study (October 2006) and the draft Landscape Character Assessment (March 2007) both prepared by the Landscape Partnership. The draft Landscape Character Assessment covers the rural part of the borough. The next stage is to seek wider views of borough residents in order to assess the extent to which the different landscapes are valued. This work is currently under way and is being taken forward via a randomised postal survey to households and will be incorporated into the final version of the LCA. This is expected to be published in January 2009.

Local Authorities: Investment Returns

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent guidance has been given to local authorities on maximising returns on their investments. [226571]

John Healey: Government guidance to local government on investments, which was issued in 2004 following the 2003 Local Government Act, emphasises that priority should be given to the security and liquidity of invested funds. The guidance says that it would be appropriate for local authorities to seek the highest rate of return, but makes clear that this should be consistent with the proper levels of security and liquidity.

The guidance is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.local.odpm.gov.uk/finance/capital/data/lginvest2.pdf

Local Authorities: Mortgages

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will reduce the national rate for local authority mortgages. [225744]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 9 October 2008]: The SNR is regularly reviewed in line with building society lending rates as required by the 1985 Act. At present the rate remains at 6.89 per cent.

Local Authorities: Standards

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the future use of best value practices by local authorities. [225650]

John Healey: Local authorities are under a general duty to make arrangements to secure continuous improvement in the way in which their functions are exercised, having regard to a combination of economy, efficiency and effectiveness. How authorities fulfil this best value duty is largely left to their discretion.

Under the provisions of Part 7 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 we have streamlined best value and refocused it away from prescribed process and more towards involving local people. Best value now gives authorities more discretion in the way they achieve continuous improvement in their functions better reflecting the needs of local people.

On 9 July 2008 we issued statutory guidance to best value authorities and their partners on creating strong, safe and prosperous communities. This includes guidance on how best value authorities should continue to meet their best value duty under the new regime. It also covers their duties around Local Area Agreements. The guidance can be found on the Communities website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/strongsafeprosperous

Local Authorities: Surveillance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities will be able to use directed surveillance under the provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 to monitor tensions between different communities. [225634]

Mr. Khan: Local authorities are permitted under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') to access some types of communications data (including billing and subscriber data), to use directed surveillance (essentially covert surveillance in public places) and deploy covert human intelligence sources (such as undercover officials or informants) for the purpose of preventing or detecting crime or disorder.

RIPA requires that authorisation of any of these covert investigatory techniques must be necessary and proportionate to what the local authority seeks to achieve. DCLG is not aware of any local authorities using the powers available under RIPA to conduct their tension monitoring. RIPA also provides for independent oversight to ensure that local authority authorisations of these techniques meet RIPA requirements. It is a matter for the local authority and the Office of Surveillance Commissioners, the oversight body for directed surveillance, having regard to the circumstances of a particular case as to whether individual authorisations fulfil those requirements.

Tension monitoring is not a mandatory requirement for local authorities. Local authorities and their partners will wish to take legal advice to ensure that their local tension monitoring arrangements are lawful.

Local Authorities: Waste Management

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether there will be a presumption or expectation that local authorities in a two-tier area should join a joint waste authority. [226372]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

Under powers in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007, local authorities that wish to work together to discharge their waste functions can submit a proposal to the Secretary of State requesting the establishment of a statutory Joint Waste Authority (JWA). There will be no element of compulsion: it is for authorities to determine whether JWA status is appropriate for their area and whether they wish to pursue this voluntary option for partnership working.

Local Authority Business Growth Incentives Scheme

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much local government business growth initiative funding has been given to Bassetlaw Council over the last four years. [226257]

John Healey: Bassetlaw district council has received a total of £1,502,509.88 in LABGI funding in the last four years, made up as follows:

Year funding received	Amount of funding (£)
2005-06	443,074.88
2006-07	614,504
2007-08	444,931
Total	1,502,509.88

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requests her Department has received from Bassetlaw Council for new local government business growth initiative funding. [226273]

John Healey: None.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has been given to local authorities and public corporations in relation to investing or depositing in overseas or foreign-owned banks. [226570]

John Healey: CLG's guidance on local government investments issued under section 15 of the Local Government Act 2003 is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.local.odpm.gov.uk/finance/capital/data/lginvest2.pdf

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of how the financial situation in Iceland's banks has affected the investments of UK local authorities. [226614]

John Healey: The Economic Secretary to the Treasury and I met the Local Government Association (LGA) on 9 October to discuss local authorities' investments in Icelandic banks. At that meeting it was agreed that, once the LGA has completed its urgent analysis of the effects of the situation on individual local authorities, we will look at issues arising on a case by case basis.

The joint statement issued by the Government and the LGA following the meeting is on the CLG website at:

www.communities.gov.uk

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to respond to the letter to her dated 22 July from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Miss C. Doran. [225390]

Mr. Khan: A response has now been sent to my right hon. Friend.

National Fraud Initiative

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the use the National Fraud Initiative has made of information from joint bank accounts on the financial affairs of spouses. [225020]

Mr. Khan: The NFI is a data matching exercise carried out by the Audit Commission to assist in the prevention and detection of fraud. Data matching involves comparing sets of data, such as the payroll or benefits records of a body, against other records held by the same or another body to see how far they match. A number of different data set types are collected for the NFI, including payroll data. The limited type of payroll data collected includes the bank account number and sort code details of the employee. Transactions relating to the bank account cannot be accessed or disclosed within NFI. NFI data matching is based on a combination of the data subject's surname, forename, date of birth, national insurance number or address depending on the data available for the match and/or the desired outcome from the data match. NFI does not collect the name in which the bank account is held, so has no way of linking the employee details back to a partner/spouse.

The intelligence that bank account details provides ensures that investigators prioritise their resources on cases where employment income has potentially been withheld (e.g. in an undeclared bank account) when benefits are claimed. For example, matches between payroll and housing benefit claimants can reveal whether the bank accounts declared to the employer or the housing benefit paying body are the same or different.

The effectiveness of such matches in identifying potential fraud would be reduced if joint accounts were excluded from the exercise as employees could use a joint account to escape detection.

Planning: Environment Protection

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the effect of planning policy guidance on the preservation of back-garden land and maintenance of bio-diversity in urban and suburban neighbourhoods. [225582]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is for local planning authorities, in consultation with communities, to decide the priorities for housing development in their area within an overall national target that 60 per cent. of development should be on previously developed land.

If local authorities wish to preserve existing residential areas from over-development then they are able, under PPS3, to develop policies that set out the circumstances in which applications will and will not be considered.

Planning: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what area of land situated on the western border of the M1, in the Milton Keynes unitary authority area is currently subject to (a) outline and (b) detailed planning permission; and what percentage this represents of all land in that area. [225351]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held by central Government, as detailed monitoring of planning permissions is the responsibility of the relevant local authority.

Information on extant planning permissions for housing and employment development across the whole authority area will be available from the council's local development framework annual monitoring report. Milton Keynes council should be able to supply more detailed information if required.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which bodies are the planning authorities for the land (a) on the eastern boundary of the M1 and (b) on the western boundary of the M1 in the Milton Keynes unitary authority area. [225352]

Mr. Khan: Milton Keynes borough council is the planning authority for land to the east of the M1 within the Milton Keynes unitary authority area. It is also planning authority for areas west of the M1 motorway within the unitary authority area, except for areas where the Milton Keynes Partnership exercises planning controls, as set out in the Milton Keynes (Urban Area and Planning Functions) Order of 2004.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the (a) number and (b) cost of additional bridges required to cross the M1 to facilitate the proposed development in the latest edition of the South East Plan east of the M1 in Milton Keynes. [225353]

Mr. Khan: The Government's proposed changes to the draft South East Plan are currently out for consultation, and views are being sought. The closing date for comments is 24 October.

The South East Plan will provide a broad development strategy for the region for a 20-year period. Once completed, this overarching strategy will be taken forward by more local and detailed planning strategies, implementation plans and development schemes, each of which will make an assessment of the level of infrastructure needed to support new development. For this reason it is not possible to state the number or cost of any new bridges required to support potential development east of the M1 at Milton Keynes.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effects of development east of the M1 proposed in the most recent revisions of the South East Plan on traffic congestion on key routes into Milton Keynes, with particular reference to junctions 13 and 14 of the M1. [225354]

Mr. Khan: The draft South East Plan is intended to provide a broad development strategy for the region for a 20-year period, and as such it is not possible to forecast the precise impacts of new development at this strategic scale. More detailed matters including the planning and delivery of infrastructure requirements will be addressed through local development frameworks produced by local authorities in partnership with the development industry. Any new proposals would be expected to meet Government policy requirements to support public transport and assist modal shift from car-based transport.

Government are currently inviting views on their proposed changes to the draft South East Plan and would welcome any comments submitted by the closing date of 24 October.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons the latest proposed revision of the South East Plan has preferred development east of the M1 in Milton Keynes Unitary authority area over development to the south-east and south-west of the city. [225355]

Mr. Khan: The document setting out the Government's proposed changes to the draft South East Plan contains a schedule of reasons for the changes, including a section on development east of the Ml motorway at Milton Keynes. These proposed changes are currently out for public consultation and views are being sought. The closing date for comments is 24 October. Copies can be viewed in the House of Commons Library or obtained from the Government Office for the South East.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received from the Milton Keynes Partnerships on the proposed development east of the M1 in Milton Keynes contained in the most recent version of the South East Plan. [225857]

Mr. Khan: The South East Plan remains in draft form, and consultation on proposed changes to the plan is currently under way. Any representations to the draft consultation will need to be made through the formal consultation process, where they will be taken into account when Government finalise the plan. The closing date for comments to be made is 24 October. No representations have yet been received from Milton Keynes Partnership.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account was taken of views of local residents in the decision to approve the proposed development east of the M1 in Milton Keynes as part of the proposed revision of the South East Plan. [225858]

Mr. Khan: Development east of the M1 motorway at Milton Keynes is included in the Government's proposed changes to the draft South East Plan. These proposed changes are currently out for public consultation and views are now being sought. The closing date for comments is 24 October. Copies can obtained from the Government Office for the South-East (GOSE) or accessed through the GOSE website www.gose.gov.uk.

Planning: Public Participation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research her Department has commissioned on the extent to which people feel they are able to influence planning decisions (a) locally and (b) nationally since 2007. [225443]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department has not commissioned any research on this specific topic since 2007.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by her Department and its predecessors has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [221978]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Gedling (Mr. Coaker) on 8 October, Official Report, columns 663-64W.

Rates and Rating: Ports

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with other Departments on the issuing of backdated bills by the Valuation Office Agency in respect of the change from prescriptive rating of docks and harbours to rating by conventional methods. [226319]

John Healey: Departments are in contact all the time, in the interests of gathering information about the impacts of Government policies, including between officials from Communities and Local Government, Treasury and Department for Transport on this matter.

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consultation was held before the decision to change from prescriptive rating of docks and harbours to rating by conventional methods; and when that consultation took place. [226376]

John Healey: Consultation about removal of the power of the Secretary of State to prescribe rateable values was undertaken in "Modernising Local Government Finance: A Green Paper" published by DETR in September 2000 available at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/greenpap/index.htm

in "Strong Local Leadership—Quality Public Service" a White Paper published by ODPM (CM 5237 December 2001); and through the Consultation Paper published by OPDM in June 2002 alongside the Draft Local Government Bill and scrutinised by the House of Commons Transport, Local Government and the Regions Committee (the report (Fifteenth Report of Session 2001/02—HC 981-1) and proceedings of the Committee are available at:

http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm200102/cmselect/cmtlgr/981/98102.htm#evidence)

Rented Housing: Private Sector

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the outcome of the Review of Private Rented Sector Housing announced by the former Housing and Planning Minister on 23 January 2008 will be published. [226573]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Review of the Private Rented Sector, carried out by Julie Rugg and David Rhodes at the Centre for Housing Policy at the university of York, will be published on 23 October 2008.

Supporting People Programme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what budget was given to each local authority for the Supporting People programme in each of the last three years. [225441]

Mr. Khan: I refer my hon. Friend to the announcement on local government finance by the Minister for Local Government on 5 December 2005, Official Report, columns 627-30, for the two-year Supporting People settlement covering 2006-07 and 2007-08 allocations, and to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing on 4 February 2008, Official Report, columns 47-48WS, confirming Supporting People final grant allocations for 2008-09. Tables showing the Supporting People allocations were placed in the House of Commons Library following each of these statements, and in these my hon. Friend will find the Supporting People budget given to each local authority in each of the last three years.

Terrorism

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on the implementation of point 11 of the then Prime Minister's 12-point counter-terrorism plan issued in August 2005. [226069]

Mr. Khan: On progress against the 12-point plan, I refer the hon. Member to the update provided by the Secretary of State for the Home Department on 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1594W.

On the consultation referred to in point 11 in the 12-point plan, I refer the hon. Member to the statement laid by the then Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Charles Clarke) on 15 December 2005. The Department for Communities and Local Government is supporting Muslim communities to build the resilience of mosques and Muslim faith leaders to violent extremism. I refer the hon. Member to a document published by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on 18 July 2008: 'Preventing Violent Extremism: Next Steps for Communities'. I have placed a copy of the document in the Library of the House.

Thames Gateway: Finance

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding is available to the Thames Gateway over the next three years; and what direct democratic controls are in place to monitor the use of that funding. [224614]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information is as follows:

Departmental allocations to the Thames Gateway Programme as at 6 October 2008

£ million

Type of funding	Financial year
	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11	Total
Near cash	17	19	19	57
Non cash	3	4	5	12
Capital	155	155	155	465
Total	175	178	179	532

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Margaret Beckett) has responsibility for monitoring the use of Thames Gateway funding and is answerable to Parliament. Further to this, local authorities monitor the use of funding through their local regeneration and economic development plans.

The Thames Gateway Executive publishes an annual report describing capital expenditure in the Thames Gateway. This is available to the general public on Communities and Local Government's website, as well as to Members of this House in the House Library.

Urban Areas: Research

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 25 June 2008, Official Report, column 345W, on the INTERREG programme: finance, if she will place in the Library a copy of the final report or conclusions of the POLYNET project. [222895]

John Healey: The Department has investigated the scope to place a copy of the book "The Polycentric Metropolis", which contains the conclusions of the POLYNET project, in the Library. However, I am informed that the book is not a Government publication. It was written and edited by Peter Hall and Kathy Pain and was published by Earthscan Publications Ltd. in July 2006. Electronic copies of the book are unavailable. Hard copies of the book, priced £99, may be ordered online from them at:

http://www.earthscan.co.uk

Waste Management

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what national guidance she issues on consultation of local residents on the construction of new waste management facilities. [222721]

Hilary Benn: I have been asked to reply.

The Government reformed the planning system in 2005 with the publication of a new planning policy statement 10. It is too early for the benefits of this reform to have been fully felt, but actions to support local authorities remain a high priority for DEFRA and CLG. For example, in August 2007, DEFRA's Waste Infrastructure Delivery Programme published guidance on improving the interaction of local authorities with waste planning. It underlines that the approach to community engagement, taken by those seeking to secure permissions for waste infrastructure projects, is critical to all stages of both the planning process and preparation of the municipal waste management strategies by local authorities. Furthermore, DEFRA requires local authorities, as part of the application process for PFI credits for residual waste treatment facilities, to set out their strategy relating to community engagement.

CDC

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) if he will place in the Library copies of the reports containing the assessment of development impact produced by CDC for the consideration of the Best Practice and Development Committee; [225060]

(2) if he will place in the Library copies of the reports received by CDC from its fund managers under the CDC/Actis umbrella agreement on procedures to deliver policies. [225061]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The evaluation reports that the management of CDC produces for CDC's Business Principles and Development Committee and the reports it receives from its fund managers are produced for CDC's own internal use. The reports are prepared on the understanding that information provided by CDC's counterparties will not be disclosed, and contain information that is commercially sensitive. It would therefore not be appropriate to place these in the House of Commons Library.

China

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department allocated to cover expenses associated with employees, offices and funded projects in China in each of the last three years. [225413]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The cost of staff and facilities management are shown in the following table.

2005-06	2,838,340
2006-07	2,517,508
2007-08	2,342,892

Departmental Aviation

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 10 July 2008, Official Report, columns 1831-32W, on departmental aviation, if he will place in the Library a list of the starting point and destination of each flight. [222209]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: A list containing the information requested will be placed in the Library.

Humanitarian Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the principles of good practice in humanitarian aid are to which donors commit in the good humanitarian donorship process. [224137]

Mr. Michael Foster: In June 2003, 17 donor Governments met in Stockholm, and endorsed 23 principles of Good Humanitarian Donorship. These principles state that their humanitarian work will be;

Guided by the principles of humanity, impartiality, neutrality and independence;

Promote adherence to international humanitarian, refugee and human rights law;

Ensure flexible, timely and predictable funding

Allocate funding in proportion to needs;

Involve beneficiaries in the design and evaluation of humanitarian response;

Strengthen local capacity to prevent, prepare for and mitigate crises;

Support the UN, the Red Cross and NGOs; and affirm the primacy of civilian organisations in humanitarian action;

Support learning and accountability initiatives, and encourage regular evaluation;

The 23 principles of good humanitarian donorship are listed in full on the Good Humanitarian Donorship website:

http://www.goodhumanitariandonorship.org/

Iraq: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to improve the education system in Iraq. [224992]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 2003, the Department for International Development (DFID) has not provided any direct financial assistance to develop the education sector in Iraq. We have, however, contributed £70 million to the International Reconstruction Fund Facility for Iraq (IRFFI), which encompasses two trust funds administered by the United Nations and World Bank. 25 donors have committed over $1.8 billion to IRFFI since 2003. This money has been used to provide assistance in a range of sectors and development projects across Iraq. In the education sector, the UN has now allocated from IRFFI $190 million and the World Bank $106 million on 29 projects which include the rehabilitation of schools, the provision of essential text books, and the training of Iraqi teachers.

Iraq: Employment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent support the Government have given to the development of employment opportunities in Iraq. [224993]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We believe that the best way to develop employment opportunities in Iraq is to support the Iraqis to stimulate economic growth through the private sector. To achieve this, the UK is supporting two institutions—the Basra Development Commission (BDC) and Basra Investment Commission (BIC). The Department for International Development (DFID) is also looking at ways to improve the availability of credit to small and medium-sized enterprises.

Co-chaired by Michael Wareing, the CEO of KPMG International, the BDC is bringing international and regional private sector expertise to Southern Iraq, and working on a range of economic projects. Most recently, the BDC launched a youth employment scheme (YES) which aims to provide an initial 500 vocational training placements for unemployed youths to work with local businesses, after which the businesses will offer them permanent employment. This scheme is modelled on best practice adopted by Business in the Community in the UK.

The BDC is also working with the Iraqi National Investment Commission (NIC) to facilitate visits to Iraq for the investors interested in commercial opportunities—11 such visits have now taken place. These investors are looking at taking forward projects with a potential value in excess of $4 billion and employing 1,200 to 1,500 people in the first year alone.

Katacha: Overseas Aid

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the Government's contribution to provision of food, medicine, education and army disengagement in the Katacha homeland is. [224602]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development's (DFID) contributions in 2008 through the Common Humanitarian Fund for humanitarian and early recovery activities in Southern Kordofan are:

Education and culture	660,000
Health and nutrition	1,076,000
Security and livelihoods	1,191,000

It is not possible to disaggregate these figures for the Katcha homeland. DFID also contributes to the Multi Donor Trust Fund (MDTF), which in 2007 provided at least US$9 million for South Kordofan.

The UN Mission in Sudan (UNMIS) has promoted and supported the integration of informal militia into the armed forces of the Northern and Southern Governments, as well as the redeployment of these forces. The UK Government have worked closely with UNMIS on this, including in Southern Kordofan, and provide financial support indirectly through their assessed contributions to the UN in New York.

Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how the £264 million in centrally-issued contracts in 2007-08 was distributed amongst aid agencies. [224144]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details of all centrally issued contracts since January 2005 are available on the Department for International Development's website; http://www.dfid.gov.uk/procurement/contractslet.asp.

This includes the project/programme title, name of supplier, the related sector and contract award value. Low value contracts issued by our overseas offices are not recorded centrally and it would incur disproportionate cost to collate this information.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether the international development spending by the devolved Administrations is included in his Department's calculation of the UK's total official development assistance; and if he will make a statement. [225577]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK's reporting of official development assistance (ODA) has included data on the Scottish Government's aid programme since 2005. No data are reported for the Welsh Assembly Government or the Northern Ireland Executive.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the financial position was of each recipient country's allocated budget, with regard to (a) allocation, (b) draw down and (c) expenditure, in each of the last five years. [225860]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 106W. Further information is available in the Department for International Development's (DFID) Annual Report which is available online:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Pubs/files/departmental-report/2008/default.asp

Pakistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 792W, on Pakistan: overseas aid, if he will place in the Library a copy of the last annual review of his Department's funding to North West Frontier Province. [225628]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We are unable to provide a single annual review of our funding activities in North West Frontier Province, as our annual reviews are undertaken on an individual programme and project basis rather than by province.

To date our support to North West Frontier Province has been provided mainly through federal level programmes (for example in health). Our portfolio with the provincial government is relatively new and only one programme, the Rural Water and Sanitation Programme, has so far been subject to an annual review. A copy of this review will be placed in the Library.

Palestinians: Humanitarian Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) amount and (b) proportion of the Government's contribution to the additional humanitarian funding for the Palestinian Authority pledged by the European Union at the United Nations on Monday 22 September is. [225062]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The European Commission (EG) pledged an additional €82 million in financial support to the Palestinian Authority's budget, including €1 million in earmarked funding from Austria. It will be used to help pay for salaries and pensions, social allowances to vulnerable Palestinian families and fuel for the power plant to provide electricity to the people of Gaza.

The UK's overall share of the EC budget for 2008 is 15.8 per cent., which implies that the UK share of the €81 million pledge is €12.8 million (£10.1 million). The UK has directly provided a further £50.45 million in bilateral financial support to the Palestinian Authority's budget in 2008.

South America: Research

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what companies are contracted to carry out the £50 million project for research and capacity building in Latin America and Asia; and how they were chosen. [224139]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) in partnership with the Canadian International Development Research Centre (IDRC) have just completed scoping studies to identify priority themes and geographic locations for the proposed climate change adaptation in Asia and Latin America research programme. The Institute for Social and Environmental Transition (ISET) carried out the Asia work. The Foundation for the Future of Latin America (Fundacion Futuro Lationoamerica - FFLA) carried out the Latin America work. Both organisations were contracted by IDRC. We are currently considering the results of these studies.

DFID will be able to comment on plans for implementation when the detailed programme design is completed.

South Asia: Childbirth

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 1042W, on South Asia: childbirth, what assessment he has made of the effects of his Department's funding for India, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Nepal on the proportion of births attended by a skilled attendant in those countries; what the child mortality rate has been in each country in each year since 1998-99; and what initiatives his Department has utilised to reduce child mortality and increase the provision of skilled attendants at birth in those countries. [223851]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides funding in South Asia to the governments of India, Pakistan, Nepal and Bangladesh to strengthen health services. This includes initiatives to increase the provision of skilled attendants at birth, and to reduce infant and child mortality. For details of DFID funded programmes you may refer to my answer of 18 June 2008 Official Report, column 1042W.

Currently close to half of women in India and a third of women in Pakistan are being assisted by a skilled birth attendant at delivery. There has been substantial progress since the early 1990s, when only one third of women in India and one fifth of women in Pakistan were assisted by a skilled birth attendant. Bangladesh and Nepal have also recorded improvements in skilled birth attendance rates over the past five years. In 2006 one fifth of women in these countries was delivered by a skilled birth attendant.

DFID has been assessing progress in skilled birth attendants and reductions in infant and child mortality in partnership with country Governments, UN and other development organizations. DFID support for assessment includes the National Family Health Survey (NFHS) and district health and facility surveys in India; in Pakistan, the Federal Bureau of Statistics, and in Bangladesh, the International Centre for Diarrhoeal Disease Research (ICDDR.B); in Nepal, maternal mortality and morbidity studies and vital registration systems. Progress on skilled birth attendance and child mortality rates for South Asia countries are set out in the following table.

Country	Skilled birth attendant rates (%)	Under-five mortality (deaths per 1,000 live births)
India
1998-99	43	95
2005-06	47	74
Bangladesh
1999-2000	12	94
2006	20	65
Pakistan
1990-91	19	117
2006-07	39[1]	94
Nepal
2001	11	91
2006	19	61

UN Convention on Watercourses

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what plans he has for the UK's accession to the UN Convention on the Law of Non-Navigable Uses of International Watercourses; and if he will make a statement. [222231]

Mr. Thomas: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell) on 17 March 2007, Official Report, column 828W.

Youth Parliaments

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which overseas youth parliaments his Department has funded in the last five years; and how much his Department has provided for each. [226180]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) has provided the following support to youth parliaments and related programmes:

DFID is providing £800,000 to the Commonwealth Youth Programme (2008-09), managed by the Commonwealth Secretariat. The programme supports the organisation of national youth councils in Commonwealth member states, and regional caucuses of young people, through which they can debate the issues of the day with Ministers responsible for youth.

Over the past two years, DFID funding has also supported a five-day Children's Parliament in Namibia, as part of a Southern Africa regional programme of support to the UNICEF "Children and AIDS Regional Initiative". The programme has also established forums through which children engage with and learn about legislative processes in South Africa, and national and district level governance. These activities form part of the wider £18 million regional programme.

TREASURY

Bank Notes

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which banks are authorised to issue their own bank notes; and in what circumstances such authority would be revoked. [225498]

Ian Pearson: The Bank of England is authorised to issue notes throughout the United Kingdom. In addition, Bank of Scotland plc, the Royal Bank of Scotland plc and Clydesdale Bank plc are authorised to issue in Scotland; and the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland, Ulster Bank Ltd., First Trust Bank (a trading name of AIB Group (UK) plc) and Northern Bank Ltd. are authorised to issue in Northern Ireland.

If any of these commercial banks should become bankrupt, cease to carry on the business of a banker, or discontinue the issue of bank notes, it may not issue notes thereafter.

Child Benefit: Telephone Services

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of callers to the Child Benefit Helpline whose call was logged with the promise of a call back received a call back in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [225583]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the length of time is of the automated message on the Child Benefit Helpline; and if he will make a statement. [225584]

Mr. Timms: HMRC uses several different automated messages on the Child Benefit Helpline. These include messages played when the customer is first connected, at particularly busy times and when the customer is held in a queue. The length of message varies from 10 seconds to 27 seconds.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost per minute is of calls made to the Child Benefit Helpline; and if he will make a statement. [225585]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the former Financial Secretary (Jane Kennedy) gave the hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander) on 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 51W.

Child Trust Fund

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much and with which institutions he has invested child trust fund contributions that have been unclaimed by families. [224644]

Ian Pearson: Eligibility to the child trust fund is not subject to a claim. Where parents do not use the Government voucher to open an account themselves HMRC opens an account for the child instead. Up to 30 June 2007 the total number of child trust fund accounts opened by HM Revenue and Customs under these default arrangements was 858,000. These accounts are allocated on a strictly rotational basis to those 16 providers who have volunteered to take these accounts. A current list of these providers is obtainable at the following address:

http://www.childtrustfund.gov.uk/templates/Page_1320.aspx

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families with low incomes have not claimed the child trust fund payment since 2005. [224648]

Ian Pearson: No families have failed to claim the child trust fund payment since 2005 as no claim is necessary. All UK resident children in a child benefit award, who are born on or after 1 September 2002 and who are not subject to immigration control, will have a child trust fund account.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many dwellings in Wales have had their council tax banding amended upwards since the initial 2005 council tax revaluation process, according to records held by the Valuation Office Agency, expressed in terms of the (a) original and (b) revised banding. [225445]

Mr. Timms: Statistics, showing all cases where the listing officer has made a change since 1 April 2005 as a result of an inquiry or an appeal, can be found on the Valuation Office Agency website at www.voa.gov.uk.

Departmental Domestic Visits

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which parliamentary constituencies his predecessor visited between 6 May 2005 and 6 May 2006; on what dates each such visit took place; and what the purpose of each such visit was. [225403]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers regularly visit all parts of the country on Government business.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which parliamentary constituencies his predecessor visited between 6 May 2006 and 27 June 2007; on what dates each such visit was made; and what the purpose of each such visit was. [225410]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers regularly visit all parts of the country on Government business.

Departmental Official Visits

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many times his predecessor visited (a) Cardiff, (b) Edinburgh, (c) Swansea, (d) Glasgow, (e) Aberdeen and (f) Dundee between 2 May 1997 and 8 June 1999; on what dates he made such visits; and what the purpose was of each visit; [224942]

(2) how many times his predecessor visited (a) Cardiff, (b) Edinburgh, (c) Swansea, (d) Glasgow, (e) Aberdeen and (f) Dundee between 8 June 1998 and 8 June 1999; on what dates he made such visits; and what the purpose was of each visit. [224943]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers regularly visit all parts of the country on Government business.

Economic Situation: Bank Services

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the international banking turbulence on (a) public sector pay policy, (b) fuel prices, (c) utility bills and (d) food prices in the UK. [224736]

Ian Pearson: The Government will provide an updated assessment of developments and prospects for the UK and world economy, including prices, in the pre-Budget report, based on all relevant factors, as normal. The objectives of the Government's pay policy remain: to recruit and retain high quality work forces; affordability and value for money for the tax payer; and consistency with achievement of the inflation target.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate the Government have made of the number of UK employees who may be made redundant due to the recent uncertainty in the international banking sector, broken down by region. [224738]

Ian Pearson: Consistent with the practices of previous Governments, the Treasury does not publish labour market forecasts.

Economic Situation: Economic Growth

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect which would result from 1 per cent. lower growth in the economy in a year on the published annual deficit. [224941]

Angela Eagle: The latest public finance projections were published in Budget 2008. A full assessment of the impact of changes in the economic outlook on the public finances will be provided in the normal way in the forthcoming 2008 pre-Budget report.

Equitable Life: Compensation

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he intends to provide a compensation package for Equitable Life investors. [225099]

Mr. Swire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many Equitable Life policyholders are estimated to be affected by the regulatory failure set out in the Parliamentary Ombudsman's report Equitable Life: A Decade of Regulatory Failure; [225814]

(2) what progress has been made towards the implementation of a compensation scheme for those Equitable Life policyholders who the Parliamentary Ombudsman identified as having undergone a loss as a consequence of regulatory failure; [225815]

(3) what estimate has been made of the cost to the Government of compensating former Equitable Life policyholders under the recommendations set out by the Parliamentary Ombudsman in her report Equitable Life: A Decade of Regulatory Failure. [225816]

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take following publication of the Parliamentary Ombudsman's report on the regulatory supervision of Equitable Life; and if he will make a statement. [226578]

Ian Pearson: As my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, told this House on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 287, the Government will report on Equitable Life shortly.

Expenditure: Asylum

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of expenditure from the public purse on asylum seekers in each of the last 11 years (a) in cash terms and (b) adjusted for inflation. [224559]

Angela Eagle: An estimate of total public expenditure on asylum seekers can be produced only at a disproportionate cost.

Expenditure: Sport

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the progress achieved by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in achieving the target set by his Department to raise £20 million per year in private sector support for elite sport; what plans he has to guarantee the funding; and if he will make a statement. [224761]

Yvette Cooper: DCMS continue to make progress towards raising private sector support for elite sport. Fast Track Sales were appointed as the Department's official adviser in July this year. Fast Track are working with DCMS and UK Sport on the detail of the 'Medal Hopes' funding scheme which it is hoped will attract sponsorship from national, regional and local businesses to help realise the potential of those athletes on UK Sport's World Class Performance Programme.

Finance: Department for Culture Media and Sport

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what targets for asset sales have been set for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in each of the next three years. [224865]

Yvette Cooper: The 2007 comprehensive spending review required all Departments to publish an asset management strategy. DCMS' asset management strategy will set out an asset disposal plan and indicate expected asset disposals over the CSR.

Finance: Devolution

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to publish his Department's factual paper on the operation of the Barnett formula. [225021]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Carmarthen, East and Dinefwr (Adam Price) on 21 July, Official Report, column 729W.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if his Department will consider the report, Unequal Shares: The Definitive Guide to the Barnett Formula, published by the Taxpayers' Alliance. [225022]

Yvette Cooper: The devolved funding arrangements were updated in the Statement of Funding Policy published by the Treasury in October 2007.

Financial Services Authority

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the operational independence of the Financial Services Authority. [224683]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is an independent non-governmental body, given statutory powers by the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000. This statutory independence means that the Government do not have any control over the day-to-day running of the organisation. However, the FSA is still accountable to Parliament, Government, the public and industry in a number of ways including the requirement for the FSA to publish an annual report on the discharge of its functions and the extent to which its regulatory objectives have been met.

Fireworks: Imports

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date a prosecution was last made against an importing company for giving false information to HM Revenue and Customs in relation to the licensed destination site for imported fireworks. [226687]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs prosecutions are undertaken by the Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO). RCPO has advised that it has no record of any prosecution made under section 11 of the Fireworks Regulations 2004 against an importing company for giving false information to HM Revenue and Customs in relation to the licensed destination site for imported fireworks.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many individuals pay more income tax following the abolition of the 10 pence band as modified by the changes announced on 13 May; and if he will break down the data according to those earning (a) under £10,000, (b) between £10,000 and £15,000, (c) between £15,000 and £20,000 and (d) above £20,000 a year. [225223]

Mr. Timms: The Government's memorandum to the Treasury Committee inquiry "Budget Measures and Low-Income Households" explained that information relating to the Budget 2007 reforms can be provided only on a household basis.

A breakdown of the remaining households that are still paying more net tax than they were prior to the Budget 2007 reforms, following the changes announced on 13 May, can be found in the answer to Q15 of Annex A of the Government memorandum.

Income Tax: Tax Yields

Mr. Byers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the income received from income tax revenues came from (a) the top 1 per cent. of earners, (b) the top 5 per cent. of earners, (c) the top 10 per cent. of earners, (d) the top 25 per cent. of earners, (e) the lowest 50 per cent. of earners, (f) the lowest 25 per cent. of earners and (g) the lowest 10 per cent. of earners in (i) 1975, (ii) 1980, (iii) 1985, (iv) 1990, (v) 1997, (vi) 2000 and (vii) each year since 2000. [225568]

Mr. Timms: Information on the shares of income tax paid by different percentiles of taxpayers for the period 1999-2000 to 2008-09 is set out in Table 2.4 "Shares of total income (before and after tax) and income tax for percentile groups" on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_tax/menu.htm

The share of income tax for percentile groups of taxpayers, premised on total income before tax, for tax years 1990-91 and 1997-98, is set out in the following table. The data are based on the "Survey of Personal Incomes".

	1990-91	Percentage 1997-98
Lowest
10 per cent.	0.7	0.8
25 per cent.	4.0	3.3
50 per cent.	15.8	13.0
Highest
25 per cent.	62.2	67.4
10 per cent.	40.8	47.5
5 per cent.	30.1	37.2
1 per cent.	14.2	19.5

The information covering parts (i) to (iii) of the right hon. Member's question is not available.

Insurance: Floods

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications for insurance companies of the cost of repairs to houses affected by the recent floods. [225402]

Ian Pearson: Her Majesty's Treasury maintains a close dialogue with the insurance industry that includes the implications to the industry of the costs of flooding.

Landfill Tax

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely financial effects of changes in the landfill tax escalator on local authorities over the next two years. [225580]

Angela Eagle: The costs of landfill tax, including the increase in the landfill tax escalator, were taken into account when agreeing the local government settlement.

Local Income Tax: Scotland

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on the implementation of the powers of the Scottish Parliament to alter existing arrangements for local taxes; and if he will make a statement. [225496]

Yvette Cooper: Treasury Ministers discuss a range of issues from time to time with the Scottish Executive.

Marginal Tax Rates

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people with marginal tax deduction rates of (a) between 50 to 60 per cent., (b) between 60 to 70 per cent., (c) between 70 to 80 per cent., (d) between 80 to 90 per cent. and (e) between 90 to 100 per cent. and (f) over 100 per cent. in each year since 1997 for which information is available. [226206]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of the number of families with marginal deduction rates above 60 per cent. have been published in Budget reports since 1999 (table 4.2 in Budget 2008 shows the latest estimates). Comparable estimates over time for those with marginal deduction rates below 60 per cent. are not available.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date the chief executive of HM Revenue and Customs received the letter dated 24 September 2008 from the right hon. Member for Birkenhead on his constituent, reference chm/08593/2008; and when he expects the matter to be resolved. [226106]

Mr. Timms: The acting Chief Executive Officer of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) received a letter dated 16 September 2008 from the right hon. Gentleman on 22 September 2008. He will be writing to him this week to explain the circumstances surrounding his constituent's tax credits claim. HMRC will also be sending his constituent the tax credits payments that are due.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to answer the letter dated 26th August from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mr Raja Afzal, transferred to his Department from the Department of Work and Pensions. [226546]

Mr. Timms: I have replied to the right hon. Member.

Members: Meetings

Mr. Allen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will meet the hon. Member for Nottingham North to discuss early intervention. [225190]

Angela Eagle: Ministers are always happy to meet to discuss issues, when this is appropriate.

Non-departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 880W, on departmental NDPBs, how many times his Department has been asked to approve (a) capital projects of £6 million and above, (b) gifts and non-statutory contingent liabilities of £100,000 and above, (c) spending which exceeded limits set out in the relevant financial memoranda and (d) spending which could have set a potentially expensive precedent, caused repercussions for others or which was novel or contentious by bodies which the Department for Culture, Media and Sport sponsors in each of the last five years. [218762]

Yvette Cooper: The Treasury keeps proposals for spending above delegated limits, and spending which would be novel and contentious, under review as part of an on-going discussion among officials. Detail of all discussions is not held centrally and the information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Non-domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of his predecessor's response to the letter of 4 May 2007 from John Nichols on behalf of the Urban Redevelopment Chief Executives' Group regarding the impact of the proposed abolition of the empty property relief on business rates; and if he will make a statement. [225302]

Angela Eagle: I have placed a copy of the contents of my official's reply to John Nichols' letter of 4 May 2007 in the Library.

Non-Domestic Rates: Small Businesses

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to review recent changes to (a) business rates and (b) empty properties relief in view of the current economic situation and its effect on small businesses. [226179]

Angela Eagle: The reforms to empty property relief only come into effect in April 2008. The Government keep all taxes and reliefs under review.

Non-Domestic Rates: Tax Yields

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of likely changes to levels of revenues to be received from property business rates over the next three years; and what assessment he has made of the reasons for such changes. [225544]

Mr. Timms: Estimated and projected revenues for business rates for Great Britain, for 2007-08 and 2008-09, are published in table C6 of the Budget 2008 report. Receipts for 2007-08, estimates for 2008-09 and projections for 2009-10 will be published in the 2008 pre-Budget report.

Northern Rock

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the forecast is of total (a) losses and (b) cash requirements of Northern Rock for (i) 2008-09 and (ii) 2009-10. [224938]

Ian Pearson: Northern Rock published a summary of the business plan on 31 March 2008. As stated on 5 August 2008 Northern Rock intends to revise this business plan.

During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its board at arm's length from the Government on commercial principles. It is a matter for the company's management to release specific business information and updates or provide any required disclosures in their audited annual report and accounts.

Oil: Northern Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many litres of oil were recovered from sites producing illegal fuel oils in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [226242]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available. Figures for all Northern Ireland fuel seizures are published in HMRC Autumn Performance Reports, available on the HMRC website at www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/reports.htm.

Pensions

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the level of unfunded pension liabilities in the public sector is. [224940]

Yvette Cooper: The information is available on page 38 of the Long Term Public Finance Report published on 12 March 2008.

PFI: Contracts

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the annual costs of PFI/PPP contracts across the public sector were in the latest period for which figures are available. [224937]

Yvette Cooper: The full list of all signed PFI projects can be found on HM Treasury's website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/documents/public_private_partnerships/ppp_pfi_stats.cfm

For each PFI project, this list details the project name, the capital value, the annual cost, the constituency and the procuring authority.

Revenue and Customs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was to HM Revenue and Customs of compliance and enforcement in each year since 2003-04. [224946]

Mr. Timms: There was a major restructuring of directorates following the merger of the Inland Revenue and HM Customs and Excise on 18 April 2005. Cost figures for the directorates involved in enforcement and compliance activities in the new structure are available from 2006-07.

For 2006-07 the total pay bill costs for the main directorates involved in enforcement and compliance activity was £835 million.

For 2007-08, the total pay bill costs for the main directorates involved in enforcement and compliance activity was £833 million.

Revenue and Customs: Complaints

Mr. Moore: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what timetable has been set for the Adjudicator's Office by his Department for the completion of investigations into complaints about HM Revenue and Customs. [224898]

Mr. Timms: There is no set timescale for the completion of investigations by the Adjudicator's Office into complaints about HM Revenue and Customs.

Revenue and Customs: Legal Costs

Bob Russell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the costs to date arising from the actions pursued by HM Revenue and Customs against Mr. Philip J. Wright of Rowhedge Road, Colchester, in respect of Regulation 49 of the Income Tax (Employee) Regulations 1993 and section 8 of the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions etc) Act 1999 for tax relating to the years ending 1999-2000 to 2003-04; and what estimate he has made of the number of staff hours spent on this case. [225661]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs has a statutory duty of taxpayer confidentiality. This precludes the disclosure of information about a taxpayer's affairs publicly or to third parties.

Revenue and Customs: Personal Records

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many instances of the loss of personal documents were recorded by HM Revenue and Customs in each of the last five years. [225093]

Mr. Timms: Information on the loss of personal documents was not recorded centrally by HMRC and its predecessor Departments throughout this period. Improved central recording of data security incidents, consistent with the recommendations of the Poynter Review, has more recently been put in place.

A summary of the incidents formally reported to the Information Commissioner's office in 2007-08 can be found in HMRC's 2007-08 Accounts at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/hmrc_dep_acct0708.pdf

Revenue and Customs: Redundancy

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what redundancy costs have (a) already been incurred and (b) are budgeted for by HM Revenue and Customs in each year from 2002-03 to 2010-11. [224945]

Mr. Timms: HMRC have incurred no redundancy costs to date for staff in the grades below the senior civil service. Post savings in excess of 18,000 have been achieved since 2004 without redundancies.

No specific funding has currently been allocated in the 2008-09, 2009-10 or 2010-11 budgets for redundancy costs, although the possibility of redundancies in this period cannot be ruled out.

Save as You Earn

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to raise the limit for the maximum monthly investment into a Save as You Earn Sharesave plan to £400 to take account of inflation since 1991. [224703]

Ian Pearson: The Government keep all savings incentives under review. The average monthly amount saved by employees under SAYE is considerably less than the current £250 limit.

Tax Rates and Bands

Ian Lucas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many UK taxpayers would pay tax at 50 per cent. if a 50 per cent. rate were introduced for taxpayers with annual pay of (a) £100,000, (b) £150,000 and (c) £200,000. [224540]

Mr. Timms: The estimated numbers of UK taxpayers in 2008-09 with incomes in excess of the thresholds requested are in the table.

Threshold	Number of taxpayers with income above the threshold
£100,000	650,000
£200,000	180,000

Ian Lucas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much additional revenue would be raised if a 50 per cent. tax rate were introduced for UK taxpayers receiving annual pay of (a) £100,000, (b) £150,000 and (c) £200,000. [224716]

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimated additional revenue would be raised in 2009-10 by increasing the higher rate tax band to 50 per cent. for those with incomes in excess of £100,000 per annum from April 2009. [226211]

Mr. Timms: Table 2a of the Generic Tax Tables 2008-09: "Additional full-year yield from the introduction of additional higher rates of tax on GROSS incomes (Earnings and Savings) over a specific amount" contains comprehensive information on income tax and is available in the Library of the House. The table excludes any estimates of behavioural response which could be significant and might eliminate a large proportion of the yield from any new higher rate band.

Taxation: Aviation

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what account he has taken of varying regional impacts of the proposed aviation duty in the formulation of the policy; and if he will publish his Department's modelling of the likely effects of the duty on each region before a decision on implementation is taken. [224994]

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what account he has taken of the potential impact of the proposed aviation duty in each region; [225477]

(2) what modelling has taken place of the impact of the proposed aviation duty in each region; and if he will make a statement. [225478]

Angela Eagle: A formal consultation on the proposed aviation duty was published on 31 January and closed on 24 April 2008.

The details of the tax have not yet been set. The Chancellor of the Exchequer plans to make an announcement in the autumn.

Taxation: Football

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many professional and semi-professional football clubs have entered administration with debts outstanding to HM Revenue and Customs in the last three years. [224916]

Mr. Timms: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the then Financial Secretary on 9 October 2007, Official Report, columns 582-3W.

Taxation: Investment Income

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to ensure that people who have investment income taxed automatically at 20 per cent. but who are not on PAYE and are not issued with a tax return annually, are made aware that a repayment of tax may be due to them. [225912]

Mr. Timms: HMRC encourages savers to claim back any overpaid tax, using their website, the DirectGov website and a leaflet (IR111) available to all banks and building societies to do so. The HMRC website includes sections on 'Claiming back tax' and 'Guidance on the 10 per cent. starting rate for savings income'.

HMRC will also be running a tax on interest campaign, targeted at pensioners, to encourage those that are non-taxpayers to register their accounts so that they receive their interest without tax deducted and to encourage those who have paid too much tax on their interest to claim it back.

USA Treasury Securities

Angela Browning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much in UK holdings of USA Treasury securities there was in each month from April 2005 to August 2008. [226536]

Ian Pearson: The UK Government's US dollar denominated assets are held in the UK's official foreign currency reserves. The Bank of England also holds foreign currency reserves of its own. Information on the exact composition of these assets is market sensitive. More information on how the UK official reserves are managed, including which assets the reserves can be invested in, can be found on the Treasury's websites.

Angela Browning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what communications have taken place since January 2008 between his Department and (a) the Governor of the Bank of England and (b) the Chief Executive of the Financial Services Authority on the monthly changes from January 2008 to July 2008 of UK holdings of USA Treasury securities. [226537]

Ian Pearson: The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Governor of the Bank of England and the chief executive of the Financial Services Authority meet on a regular basis to discuss a wide range of economic and financial issues.

Valuation Office: Geographical Information Systems

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will produce a privacy impact assessment for the Valuation Office Agency's Geographical Information System project. [225653]

Mr. Timms: The need for a privacy impact assessment will be considered as part of the due process within the Geographical Information Project.

VAT: Energy

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 29 September 2008, Official Report, column 2308W on VAT: energy, if he will estimate the additional revenue that will be raised from VAT on domestic energy as a result of increases in fuel prices in 2008-09. [225095]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on VAT relating to individual goods and services.

There are practical difficulties in estimating the revenue impact of price changes in specific sectors, as to obtain a true estimate the effects across the wider economy must also be considered. Consumers will change their behaviour and expenditure patterns as specific prices rise.

Welfare Tax Credits: Appeals

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many appeals against a tax credit decision taken by his Department there have been in each (a) year and (b) month since tax credits were established; and if he will make a statement. [225737]

Mr. Timms: For information up to and including February 2008 I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) and the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) on 11 March 2008, Official Report, columns 371-72W.

Information for March 2008 to September 2008 is:

Month 2008	Number of appeals against tax credits decisions
March	850
April	1,130
May	772
June	866
July	1,128
August	1,093
September	1,116

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many TC846 forms his Department has received disputing a tax credit overpayment in each (a) year and (b) month since tax credits were established; and if he will make a statement. [225736]

Mr. Timms: For information up to and including 2007-08, I refer the hon. Member to the answers my predecessor gave the hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander) on 17 March 2008, Official Report, columns 901-902W, and 20 May 2008, Official Report, column 212W.

The corresponding Information for 2008-09 is:

Month 2008	Households Number of newly disputed overpayments
April	10,500
May	5,800
June	8,500
July	17,800
August	12,100
September	19,500

Working Tax Credit

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on the childcare element of tax credits paid to families in England and Wales who have children under five years of age and who work fewer than 24 hours per week in each year since the element was introduced; and what estimate he has made of equivalent costs in each of the next five years. [225330]

Mr. Timms: The total increase in annualised entitlement due to the child care element is provided in Table 2.4 of the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised annual awards" for each relevant year. These are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

This information is available only at a disproportionate cost by country, age of children, and hours worked per week.

HMRC do not produce forecasts for the individual elements of child and working tax credits.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families in England and Wales who have children under five years of age and who work fewer than 24 hours a week have claimed the childcare element of tax credits; and what estimate he has made of the number of families in this group in each of the next five years. [225333]

Mr. Timms: Estimates of the average number of families in England and Wales benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit are reported in Table 1B of HMRC's publication 'Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards. Geographical Analyses' for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Estimates of the total number of families benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit at selected dates, by age group of children, and hours worked per week, are reported in Table 4.4 of HMRC's publication 'Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics'. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

HMRC do not produce estimates of the number of families who will benefit from the child care element in the future.

Working Tax Credits

Tom Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families with children aged between one and five years in (a) Carshalton and Wallington constituency, (b) Greater London and (c) England have been awarded the childcare element of the working tax credit since the element was introduced. [224969]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, estimates of the total number of families benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit, by age group of children, including those under five years, at selected dates are published in Table 4.4 of the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics". These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

Estimates of the average number of families benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit, by country, region, local authority and constituency, are available in the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics Finalised Annual Awards. Geographical Analyses", for each relevant year. These are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many working hours were spent administering the issue of annual review forms to tax credit recipients in 2007-08; [225046]

(2) what the cost of (a) sending and (b) processing the return of annual tax credit review forms was in 2007-08. [225047]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) does not keep separate information pertaining to the working hours spent administering the issuance of annual review forms.

In 2007-08 HMRC sent out around 9 million annual renewal packs. For the cost of sending annual renewal packs I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1954W to the hon. Member for South-West Hertfordshire (Mr. Gauke). The cost of processing annual tax credits renewals in 2007-08 was around £10.45 million.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the cost effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of his Department. [226509]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office incurred no expenditure on advertising in 2007-08.

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226429]

Ann McKechin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave on 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 530W, to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond).

WALES

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [226505]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My office paid 90 per cent. of all invoices received within 30 days, and of the small amount of invoices received from small businesses, 92 per cent. were paid within 30 days of receipt in 2007-08. The Wales Office does not have any agencies.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many and what proportion of written Questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current Session of Parliament to date. [226888]

Mr. Paul Murphy: This Session my Department has answered 24 out of 27 named day questions on the due date, a proportion of 89 per cent.

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department has spent the following amounts on taxis:

2002-03	1,266
2003-04	1,154
2004-05	625
2005-06	2,321
2006-07	2,194

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1052W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, (1) what the details were of each confirmed report of theft; [224126]

(2) how many cases of theft are being investigated; and on what date each investigation began. [224127]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 17 September 2008]: I will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Substantive answer from Bob Ainsworth to Liam Fox:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your Parliamentary Questions on 29 September 2008, (Official Report, column 2432W), about the theft of military supplies during transit to Afghanistan.

Below is a list of those reports which have been confirmed as theft. I have omitted some of those cases referred to in my original answer to you on 22 July 2008, (Official Report, column 1052W) regarding reported thefts, as subsequent investigations proved that some losses were due to other causes, such as accounting errors or having been destroyed by enemy forces while in transit. The information given in the table is sourced from the records held by the Royal Military Police, who investigate all reports received. At the time of writing there are no cases of reported theft of goods in transit still being investigated.

Date reported	Actual incident	Background	Remarks
11 October 2007	Theft in Transit	Tools removed from ISO* while in transit on Contractor convoy between Lashkar Gah and Camp Bastion	*ISO standard shipping container
16 October 2007	Theft in Transit	Personal items removed from ISO while in transit between UK and Camp Bastion.	—

I am placing a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many enemy combatants were taken prisoner in Afghanistan by UK forces in each month of operations in the last two years. [225730]

Mr. Hutton: The Ministry of Defence is currently undertaking a review of its detention records and I will write to the hon. Member when the review has been completed.

Armed Forces: Food

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department's ration packs cost on average. [226766]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The average cost of the components required to make one Operational Ration Pack (ORP) are as follows:

24 Hr General Purpose ORP	8.75
24 Hr Sikh/Hindu ORP	8.77
24 Hr Halal ORP	9.34
24 Hr Vegetarian ORP	8.89

China: Military Alliances

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the Memoranda of Understanding on military-co-operation signed during the Prime Minister's visit to China in January 2008. [225408]

Mr. Hutton: Although a number of Memoranda of Understanding and bilateral agreements were signed during my right hon. Friend's very successful visit to China in January 2008, none related to military co-operation.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of staff in (a) his Department and (b) the executive agencies for which he is responsible are disabled; and what the average salary in (i) his Department and (ii) the executive agencies is of (A) full-time disabled staff, (B) full-time non-disabled staff, (C) part-time disabled staff and (D) part-time non-disabled staff. [220189]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 651-57W.

European Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for future orders of Tranche 3 Typhoon fighters; and if he will make a statement. [227033]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Negotiations with partner nations and industry on Tranche 3 are continuing; decisions will be taken once these negotiations are complete.

Iran: Weapons

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many deaths of UK armed forces personnel in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan are considered to have resulted from the use of technology, explosives, ordnance or other weapons whose provenance is believed to be Iranian; and if he will make a statement. [225085]

Mr. Hutton: It is not possible to identify the origin of all technology, explosives, ordnance or weapons employed against British Forces operating in Iraq and Afghanistan. Some evidence suggests that a proportion of the equipment and armaments used in attacks originate from within the borders of Iran but the precise number is not available.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in transferring Basra airbase to Iraqi civilian authority; and if he will make a statement. [222018]

Mr. Hutton: As the Prime Minister set out in his statement on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 662, finalising the preparations for transfer of Basra International Airport (BIA) to Iraqi control is one of the key remaining tasks for UK forces in southern Iraq.

With some support from the Royal Air Force, the Iraqi civilian authorities are already able to operate BIA as a civil airport during daylight hours. We continue to assess that—subject to security conditions on the ground—the Iraqi authorities will be able to take over development of the airport at the turn of the year.

Porton Down

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when and for what purpose South Africa's Surgeon-General, Neil Knobel, visited Porton Down; and if he will make a statement. [225084]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I believe that your question relates to a claim made by Dr. Wouter Basson, during the Truth and Reconciliation Council hearings in August 2001, that Neil Knobel visited Porton Down. Officials at DSTL Porton Down have reviewed their records and have found no evidence to support the claim that this individual visited the establishment.

Trident Missiles

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 29 September 2008, Official Report, column 2440W, on Trident missiles, how many Trident warheads are either operationally available or undergoing maintenance. [225908]

Mr. Hutton: The UK has fewer than 160 operationally available Trident warheads. I am withholding further information as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice national security.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will reply to question 220189, on staff, tabled on 15 July. [226916]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I replied to the hon. Member today.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crime Prevention

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the terms of reference of the review of community safety partnerships are. [224597]

Paul Goggins: An NIO-led review group is considering the optimum local arrangements for the delivery of the functions currently undertaken by Community Safety Partnerships (CSPs) and District Policing Partnerships (DPPs). The review will take account of the implementation of the Northern Ireland Executive's Review of Public Administration, and in particular the introduction of community planning. The main focus of this work is to establish how best to deliver effective local services and accountability, consistent with developments in community planning.

The review group will shortly bring forward recommendations on the way forward. I will then consult with key stakeholders before initiating a wider public consultation.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many and what proportion of staff in his Department are disabled; and what the average salary in his Department is of (a) full-time disabled staff, (b) full-time non-disabled staff, (c) part-time disabled staff and (d) part-time non-disabled staff; [220174]

(2) when he will reply to Question 220174, on staff, tabled on 15 July. [226923]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 8 October, Official Report, column 652W.

The statistics in respect of the Northern Ireland Office, as referred to in that response, relate only to its Home Civil Service employees. There are also a number of Northern Ireland Civil Servants working in the Department. When Northern Ireland Civil Servants are included in the total, there are 54 staff (4.1 per cent.) in the NIO core and 36 staff (4.7 per cent.) in its executive agencies who have advised the Department that they have a disability.

Nuclear Power

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) meetings and (b) discussions he has had with the Minister for the Department of Enterprise, Trade and Investment in the Northern Ireland Executive on the implications for electricity consumers in Northern Ireland of the Government's plans for nuclear generation in Great Britain in the last 12 months; and what correspondence has been undertaken between his officials and those in the Northern Ireland Executive on the matter of the same timescale. [224763]

Mr. Woodward: I have had no such meetings or discussions in the last 12 months, but I know that officials in the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform maintain close links with their counterparts in the Northern Ireland Department of Enterprise, Trade and Industry.

Vetting: Standards

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of the applications made to Access NI for criminal record checks in each of the last three months took more than four weeks to complete. [225356]

Paul Goggins: During the period in question, AccessNI maintained a performance target to complete 90 per cent. of basic disclosure applications within two weeks and 90 per cent. of standard disclosure applications within three weeks. Unfortunately, we have failed to meet our target of 90 per cent. of enhanced disclosures within four weeks.

I will write to the hon. Gentleman to explain the steps taken to address this issue.

Water Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for North Shropshire, of 26 June 2008, Official Report, column 441W, on water charges, what estimate he has made of the effect on funding to be provided from central Government to the Northern Ireland Executive as a result of not implementing a policy of revised water charges in Northern Ireland. [225545]

Mr. Woodward: Policy on water charging is a devolved matter for the Northern Ireland Executive. Any associated costs would be met from within the Northern Ireland block grant, which was set out in the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Better Government for Older People

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for the future of the Better Government for Older People programme; and if he will make a statement. [225530]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 13 October 2008]: On 22 May 2008 the Minister for Pensions Reform (Mike O'Brien) announced a review by John Elbourne to examine how Government can best engage with older people. The review is looking at how Government support mechanisms to engage with older people, including Better Government for Older People.

Council Tax Benefits: Scotland

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what research his Department has commissioned on the effects of a local income tax on the administration of the council tax benefits system in Scotland. [225411]

Kitty Ussher: None to date.

Elderly

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the relationships are between his Department, the Better Government for Older People programme, the Older People's Advisory Group and the Centre for Policy on Ageing. [225531]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Work and Pensions is the main funder of Better Government for Older People (BGOP). BGOP supports a network of volunteers, the Older People's Advisory Group. The Centre for Policy on Ageing hosts BGOP, employing staff and providing accommodation.

Occupational Pensions: Public Sector

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many new public sector pensions have been opened in each of the last 10 years. [226177]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Membership data on individual public sector pension schemes are available in their published resource accounts.

Social Security Benefits

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate the Government has made of monetary value of unclaimed benefits in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by benefit and allowance type. [225280]

Kitty Ussher: Estimates of the value of unclaimed income-related benefits in Great Britain, covering income support, pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and jobseeker's allowance (income-based) are published in the report "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2006-07". A copy of this report, along with past reports, has been placed in the Library.

Estimates are not available for other benefits and allowances.

Social Security Benefits: Disqualification

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many written warnings have been issued to benefit claimants about the consequences of failure to engage in a rehabilitation programme in respect of antisocial or criminal behaviour under the provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 as amended by the Welfare Reform Act 2007; in how many cases benefit sanctions have been applied; what progress has been made in the pilot areas; how many warnings and sanctions have been issued in each pilot area; and if he will make a statement. [225574]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 9 October 2008]: There have been no written warnings issued or sanctions applied in the pilot areas for the sanction of housing benefit related to antisocial behaviour.

The eight local authorities all have the necessary processes in place to offer suitable rehabilitation in cases where it would be appropriate. Some have introduced details about the sanction into their literature and warning letters to tenants.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equal Pay: Prosecutions

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many prosecutions of private sector employers took place under the Equal Pay Act 1970 for the underpayment of female workers between 2000 and 2007. [216492]

Maria Eagle: The Equal Pay Act 1970 does not contain any criminal offences, so there can be no prosecutions under it. Anyone who considers that they have been paid less than a person of the opposite gender for doing like work, work rated the same, or work of equal value can make a civil claim under the Equal Pay Act 1970 before an employment tribunal.

The number of equal pay claims made to employment tribunals is published by the Employment Tribunal Service (ETS), but information on whether the claim was brought against a public or private sector is not recorded.

The following table records the number of claims made in each period which included a claim for equal pay.

	Equal pay claims
2000-01	4,712
2001-02	8,762
2002-03	5,053
2003-04	4,412
2004-05	8,229
2005-06	17,268
2006-07	44,013

Data in this table are taken from the ETS Annual Reports for the years 2003-04 and 2005-06, and the Annual Statistics 2006-07, all of which are published on the ETS website:

http://www.employmenttribunals.gov.uk/publications/publications.htm

Government Communications

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many staff in the Government Equalities Office (a) are classified as Government communicators and (b) have access to the Government Communication Network. [215116]

Maria Eagle: There are five communications specialists in the Government Equalities Office. All civil servants have the option of accessing the Government Communication Network and those who mainly work in a communications role have exclusive access to the resources it provides.

Women: Violence

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the effects of gang culture on levels of violence against women. [223002]

Maria Eagle: To date no assessment has been made by my Department of the effects of gang culture on levels of violence against women.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Legislation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Leader of the House (1) how much has been spent on (a) the publicity for and (b) the solicitation of responses to the Government's Draft Legislative Programme for 2008-09; [226096]

(2) how many responses to the Government's Draft Legislative Programme for 2008-09 were received by (a) e-mail, (b) post and (c) another method; and if she will make a statement. [226098]

Chris Bryant: £32,035 was spent on publishing the Government's Draft Legislative Programme for 2008-09. The cost of the consultation exercise on the Government's Draft Legislative Programme for 2008-09 was £30,922.38.

The Government's Draft Legislative Programme for 2008-09 received the views of around 1,900 people and organisations. These comprised 566 responses to the Leader of the House of Commons' website, at least 1,200 people and organisations who participated in the 62 regional events and 115 individuals and organisations who responded by post.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Finance

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much was allocated to adult learning support at higher education colleges in Leeds by the Learning and Skills Council in 2007-08. [226389]

Mr. Simon: The total Additional Learning Support (ALS) allocated to further education colleges in Leeds by the LSC in the year 2007-08 was £5,005,573. The breakdown of this allocation to individual colleges is set out as follows, and includes ALS for both 16 to 18-year-olds and adults (those aged 19 or over):

College name	2007/08 ALS allocation (£)
Joseph Priestley College	579,887
Leeds College of Art and Design	177,000
Leeds College of Building	188,728
Leeds College of Music	35,000

College name	2007/08 ALS allocation (£)
Leeds College of Technology	554,295
Leeds Thomas Danby	1,015,147
Northern School of Contemporary Dance	18,000
Notre Dame Catholic Sixth Form College	455,000
Park Lane College	1,937,434
Swarthmore Education Centre	45,082
Total ALS funding for FE colleges in Leeds	5,005,573

Apprentices

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government have taken to increase the numbers of applications for apprenticeships. [225336]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 9 October 2008]: "World-class Apprenticeships" confirmed our commitment to making apprenticeships a top-quality option for both young people and adults and set out steps to increase the numbers of people undertaking adult apprenticeships. In the summer we published a Draft Apprenticeships Bill to underpin and help sustain the improvements in the quality of the programme. Through this proposed legislation we aim to ensure that apprenticeships are a badge of quality skills for young people, for adults and for employers. The legislation will also drive forward the provision of sufficient apprenticeship places to meet the entitlement for our young people to have an offer of an apprenticeship place by 2013. Last year we abolished the upper age limit for apprenticeships and we are increasing Apprenticeships funding to over £1 billion between 2007-08 and 2010-11. Expanding apprenticeships will play a key role in improving the nation's skills base and we plan to deliver over 250,000 apprenticeship starts and 190,000 successful completions by 2020.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government have taken to reduce the burden of administration within the apprenticeship scheme. [225337]

Mr. Simon: On 7 August this year my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills announced Government proposals to cut red tape concerning Apprenticeships in response to employers' concerns. We will remove unnecessary bureaucracy such as demands to store paperwork for up to six years; multiple inspection visits; and minimise reporting requirements at the earliest possible opportunity. In line with the successful actions of some of Britain's leading employers, we will introduce improvements including more efficient use of electronic audit and storage, simpler and faster registration and certification processes, and more streamlined payment and reporting systems. These practical measures will enable more employers to meet their present and future skills needs, unimpeded by time-consuming and costly administration.

We are also working with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, who recently surveyed SMEs to establish how the new National Apprenticeship Service can better meet the needs of employers. The survey focused on, although was not limited to, reducing the administrative burden on business. Together we will consider how best to incorporate the recommendations coming out of the survey.

Chelmsford College

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will provide funding for adult learning support at Chelmsford college for 2008-09 to make up for the shortfall contingent on the changes made to the funding formula. [225340]

Mr. Simon: The level of additional learning support (ALS) based on the new funding methodology was finalised through the negotiation and allocation process between the Learning and Skills Council and Chelmsford college as part of wider discussions on overall funding allocations for the college. This resulted in the final funding allocation being agreed for 2008/09. ALS is part of the overall funding allocation for Chelmsford college. The overall funding allocation for the college (including ALS) is £9.7 million in 2008/09 (an increase of 3.7 per cent. compared to 2007/08).

Changes to the way ALS was calculated for 2008/09 were made following consultation across the full range of FE colleges and providers. These changes were introduced to ensure that the funding was better focused on need rather than purely on an historical basis.

We recognise that with any change to funding approach there is a period of transition and to allow for this and to minimise the impact on colleges' budgets only 60 per cent. of ALS has been distributed using the formula approach in 2008/09. The remaining 40 per cent. has been allocated on the basis of the historical proportion of the budget.

European High Power Laser Energy Research Facility

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which UK companies are involved in the European High Power Laser Energy Research facility; and what financial and other assistance his Department is providing to those companies. [226146]

Mr. Simon: The first phase of the High Power Laser Energy Research facility project (HiPER) was launched in London on 6 October 2008. This event marked the formal start of a three-year preparatory phase that is jointly funded by the European Commission, the UK (through the Science and Technology Facilities Council), and various European partners. A number of UK companies attended the event.

The purpose of the preparatory phase is to establish the technical, legal, financial, industrial and strategic development path for this large scale scientific facility. During this phase the project will develop relationships with potential industrial suppliers, particularly in lasers and optics, over the next three years. There is no substantial procurement in this first phase.

Students: Fees and Charges

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what fees were charged by colleges for A-level courses to students in each of the last three years, broken down by college; and what fees are proposed for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10 in each case. [225454]

Mr. Simon: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) use a national funding system in which national rates determine the amount of public funding payable for courses funded through the 16-18, adult learner and employer responsive funding models. The actual funding a college or provider receives for a particular course is based on the number of hours required to complete the course.

Learners aged 16-18 at the start of their programme will be entitled to full fee remission and therefore will not be charged fees. Adult learners (aged 19 or over) in receipt of income-related benefits will be eligible for full fee remission. Those who are not eligible for fee remission will be expected to contribute towards the cost of the course in line with the national fee assumption. For the 2008/09 academic year the national fee assumption is 42.5 per cent. of the national funding rate, increasing to 47.5 per cent. in 2009/10.

While a college or provider receives the national fee assumption affecting the level of public funding, it is for colleges and providers to determine the actual fee charged. It is therefore not possible to provide a breakdown of the fees charged to adult learners doing A-levels either at national level or by college.

Training: Interpreters

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will recommend that the Learning and Skills Council establish a source of ring-fenced funding for the training of public service interpreters; and if he will make a statement. [224783]

Mr. Simon: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is responsible for the funding of post-16 further education (FE) and training delivered through FE colleges and providers in England.

Government funding through the LSC is focused on supporting adults and young people to gain the skills they need for sustainable employment and progression in learning. Investment is prioritised on basic literacy and numeracy, full level 2 and full level 3 qualifications as well as a range of first steps provision offering opportunities for progression below level 2. The LSC also funds some provision at level 4 and above, for example the Diploma in Public Service Interpreters. For courses at this level, where the learner/employer sees the greatest private returns, they are expected to make a contribution towards the cost of the course.

In line with our response to the Leitch Review of Skills we are committed to increasing funding through demand-led routes to ensure that funding is responsive to learner and employer needs. We would therefore not seek to ring-fence funding for a specific course as this would run counter to this aim.

Training: Trade Unions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what level of funding he has made available for trade union training in each of the last three years. [225855]

Mr. Simon: Trade unions have a key role to play in promoting the development of learning and skills in the workplace. To help them do this more effectively we introduced the union learning fund in 1998. This source of funding is helping trade unions use their influence with employers, employees and training providers to encourage greater take-up of learning at work and boost their own capacity as learning organisations. The level of funding in each of the last three financial years has been as follows:

	£ million
2005-06	15.4
2006-07	16.9
2007-08	18.4

With the help of the union learning fund, trade unions and their union learning representatives have been able to develop successful partnerships with employers to raise skill levels in the workplace. There are now over 20,500 trained union learning reps who have helped over 600,000 workers back into learning since the fund was introduced. Over 200,000 were helped last year, many from those hard to reach groups, who employers and training providers find it so difficult to engage with, including over 34,000 workers with poor basic literacy and numeracy skills.

Union learning representatives and other trade union representatives and officers can also access LSC funded training, delivered through a network of approved colleges, to help them carry out their duties more effectively. There is no separate budget allocated for this type of training.

Vocational Qualification Day

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what support his Department gave to Vocational Qualification Day 2008; and if he will make a statement. [225936]

Mr. Simon: The Department welcomed VQ Day as the first national day to celebrate the achievement of those who gain vocational qualifications, and to recognise the contribution made by all those working in colleges and other training organisations who teach and support learners during their courses. Minister of State Bill Rammell attended the launch of VQ Day at the House of Commons, and Secretary of State John Denham attended the national celebration event on VQ Day itself at the Royal Opera House, where he was pleased to give a short speech and meet learners.

JUSTICE

Alternatives to Prison: Mentally Ill

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what alternatives to a custodial sentence upon conviction there are for those offenders who have been diagnosed with severe mental health problems. [225913]

Mr. Hanson: Sentencing is a matter for the courts in the light of the offence, any medical evidence, the history of offending and the implications of a particular disposal for the offender's future management.

People who, on conviction, meet criteria for detention under section of the Mental Health Act 1983 (MHA) may be given a hospital order under section 37 of the Act, or hospital and limitation directions under section 45A, detaining them in hospital for treatment in the setting that most appropriately balances treatment needs, security and public protection. It is also possible for courts to order offenders who meet certain criteria to be made subject to guardianship under the MHA.

People with mental ill health not meeting these criteria who are not given a custodial sentence may access general NHS community mental health services as other unrestricted patients do.

The Government have asked Lord Bradley to consider the diversion of offenders with mental health problems and learning disabilities away from prison and we look forward to considering his report which we expect will be available at the end of the year.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current Session of Parliament to date. [226893]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice answered 621 named day written questions on the day specified out of a total of 837 questions from 6 November 2007 up to and including 13 October 2008. This represents 74.19 per cent. We also answered 1,955 ordinary written questions out of 2,548 during the same period. This represents 76.73 per cent.

Driving Offences: Mobile Phones

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many successful prosecutions there have been for illegal use of a mobile telephone whilst driving in each year since it became an offence, broken down by police force area. [225439]

Maria Eagle: Available information on prosecutions and convictions in the period 1 December 2003 to end 2006 (latest available) taken from the Court Proceedings Database held by my Department, are provided in the following table. 2007 data should be available later this year.

The majority of "use of hand held mobile phone while driving" offences are dealt with under the fixed penalty notices scheme. The table does not include fixed penalty notices but does include cases where fixed penalty notices were issued but not paid and subsequently referred to court.

[1] Offences under the Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986, Regulations 110(1), 110(2) and 110 (3). Introduced 1 December 2003.
[2] Includes cases where a fixed penalty notice was originally issued but not paid and subsequently referred to court.

Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to review the law relating to the responsibility of a supplier of a toxic substance to a person when that person voluntarily takes the substance themselves with consequent harm in the light of the House of Lords judgement R v. Kennedy. [226772]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice have no plans to review the law in this area. If a person of sound mind freely and voluntarily administers a drug to himself, it would not be appropriate for the law to hold the supplier of the drug responsible for that decision. In the case of R v. Kennedy (No 2) ["2007] UKHL 38 the defendant was found guilty of supplying a controlled drug. That is a serious offence reflecting the harm that controlled drugs can do. The maximum penalty is life imprisonment, or a fine, or both. The defendant was sentenced to three years imprisonment.

In this particular case, the person supplied subsequently died as a result of taking the drug. But the conviction for manslaughter was not upheld on appeal, because administering the drug was the decision of the deceased and the appellant could not be said to have committed a criminal act which had been a significant cause of the deceased's death.

Elections: Greater London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 1037W, on elections: Greater London, if he will assess the extent to which voters understood the conceptual differences between the second preference in the Supplementary Vote Election System for Mayor of London and the second vote in Additional Member System for the London Assembly, when casting their votes. [225564]

Mr. Wills: The Government have no plans to undertake an assessment of this issue. Under the terms of section 6 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 the Electoral Commission may submit reports on local government elections, including elections for the Mayor of London and the London Assembly. In July 2008, the Electoral Commission published its report on the administration of the Greater London Authority elections on 1 May 2008. The report covers levels of rejected ballot papers, and public understanding of ballot papers, though does not directly assess the extent to which voters understood the differences between the voting systems in use for the Mayoral and London Assembly elections.

Evidence: CCTV

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases were opened and then not proceeded with in court because of a failure to comply with the Information Commissioner's code of practice for CCTV in each of the last seven years. [225821]

Mr. Wills: Procedural details about court cases in England and Wales are held in each individual court and are not collated centrally. The information requested can only be obtained at a disproportionate cost.

Family Courts

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to respond to the consultation, Confidence and Confidentiality: Openness in family courts. [226770]

Bridget Prentice: This is an important and complex area of policy about which people have strong views, and one that we are examining with care and consideration. That is why we have consulted twice on how we could improve transparency in family courts.

While it is important that the family courts are open to scrutiny and have the confidence of the public; it is equally as important that the welfare of children is protected, and that includes their right to privacy and anonymity.

The response paper to the last consultation will be published soon and details of it will be announced to Parliament.

Prisoners: Mentally Ill

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what facilities are available in prisons to prisoners diagnosed with mental health problems. [225915]

Mr. Hanson: All prisoners are assessed at the point of reception into prison and those at risk of having a mental health problem, or vulnerable to suicide, are referred for a mental health assessment to the mental health in-reach team. Nearly £20 million a year is being invested recurrently in mental health in-reach. There are 102 mental health in-reach teams with all prisons having access to them: a total of 360 extra staff altogether.

There are new systems to monitor and support those at risk of harming themselves, and prison officers are being trained in mental health awareness. £600,000 has been invested over three years to 2009 to train frontline prison staff. Investment (£308 million in 2006-07 and £336 million in 2007-08) is also being made in four close supervision centres (CSC) at Whitemoor, Wakefield, Woodhill and Long Lartin prisons to deliver mental health care to those prisoners whose offending behaviour and history mean that containment in secure isolated accommodation is the only option.

Furthermore, in relation to the small number of people with a severe personality disorder who are dangerous, the Department of Health and Ministry of Justice are investing in special secure services. The programme has a capacity of over 300 places in two high security prisons (Frankland and Whitemoor), a female prison (Low Newton in Durham) and two high security hospitals (Broadmoor and Rampton). They provide essential clinical services for dangerous offenders whose offending is linked to severe personality disorder.

The Government have asked Lord Bradley to consider the diversion of offenders with mental health problems and learning disabilities away from prison and we look forward to considering his report which we expect will be available at the end of the year.

Prisoners: Pay

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what maximum amount a prisoner is able to earn per week, including any payments for education, work, good behaviour or any other duties. [226309]

Mr. Hanson: Prison Service Order 4460 (Prisoners' Pay), a copy of which has been placed in the House Library, sets out minimum rates of prisoner pay for work (enabling them to obtain life skills) and education and other duties or activities. The order requires governors and directors of contracted prisons to devise local pay schemes that reflect regime priorities of their establishment.

The information requested is not centrally available and could be collated only by manual checking with over 140 individual establishments, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Crimes of Violence

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many serving prisoners received additional terms of imprisonment for assaulting prison staff in each of the last three years; [224950]

(2) how many serving prisoners were convicted of assaulting prison staff in each of the last three years; [224951]

(3) how many prison staff members were assaulted by prisoners while on duty in each of the last three years. [224952]

Mr. Straw: Information about action taken by the police, and the outcome of criminal proceedings, is not held by the National Offender Management Service (NOMS).

NOMS and the Prison Officers Association are jointly committed to 'zero tolerance' on assaults on staff. I have written to the Attorney-General and the Home Secretary, both of whom are committed to pursing a robust and consistent approach to the involvement of the police and Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) in prosecuting such assaults. Alongside working with the CPS and the police, enhanced guidance is also currently being developed by police advisers section in NOMS headquarters on a much wider agenda of crime reporting in prisons. This guidance will address the subject of the reporting and investigation of allegations of assault on prison staff and aims to provide national consistency in classifying and responding to crime committed in prisons. The guidance will be an important step in making sure that the most serious incidents are referred to the police.

The following table shows incidents of prisoner on staff assaults in each of the last three years for which figures are available. The number of prisoner on staff assaults has remained stable, despite a rise in the prison population.

The information is subject to important qualifications. The NOMS incident reporting system processes high volumes of data which are constantly being updated. The numbers provide a good indication of overall numbers but should not be interpreted as absolute.

Assault data are complex and the numbers need to be interpreted with caution. Information recorded as assault incidents may involve one or more victim.

The numbers supplied refer to the number of individual assault incidents. The numbers refer to all incidents recorded as assaults; these may also include threatening behaviour, projection of bodily fluids and other non-contact events and allegations.

	2005	2006	2007
Prisoner on staff assaults	3,171	3,148	2,916
Mid Year Prison Population	76,190	77,982	80,205

Prisons: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance his Department has issued in writing to prison governors on (a) misuse of buprenorphine, (b) systems of administering methadone and (c) the risks associated with naltrexone in the last three years. [225480]

Mr. Hanson: Advice on reducing the supply of drugs—including illicit buprenorphine—into prisons has been issued to all prisons in England and Wales.

On 13 March 2008 governors were informed that as of 1 April 2008 buprenorphine would be included in the panel of drugs tested for under the Mandatory Drug Testing (MDT) programme.

In 2008 the Department of Health issued governors (in public prisons) and directors (in contracted prisons) with copies of the following documents:

Department of Health (2006) Clinical management of drug dependence in the adult prison setting

Department of Health (2007) Drug misuse and drug dependence: UK guidelines on clinical management

Both of these documents feature detailed guidance on the safe and effective clinical use of methadone, buprenorphine and naltrexone.

Sentencing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to ensure consistency in the length of sentences handed down by judges for similar offences. [226529]

Maria Eagle: In 2003 the Government created the Sentencing Guidelines Council for England and Wales which must have regard to promoting consistency in sentencing when it frames its guidelines. This complements the responsibility of the Court of Appeal Criminal Division to promote a consistent approach to sentencing with the assistance of the Judicial Studies Board.

To facilitate a more informed approach to consistency, in December 2007 the Government published a report on geographic variations in custodial sentencing in England and Wales for 2003 to 2006, and possible causes.

In December 2008 the Government and the Lord Chief Justice set up a working group chaired by Lord Justice Gage into sentencing guidelines, which looked, amongst other things, into ways to improve consistency, and made recommendations. The Government are currently considering those proposals.

The Northern Ireland Court of Appeal delivers guideline judgments on sentencing in Northern Ireland. These sentencing guideline cases encourage consistency in sentencing throughout the courts of Northern Ireland and support sentencers in their decision making. In addition, the Judicial Studies Board of Northern Ireland provides training to the judiciary on a range of issues, including sentencing.

South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on services, broken down by type in (a) Dartford Borough, (b) Kent Thameside, (c) the Thames Gateway, (d) Kent County Council area and (e) the South East region in each of the last five years. [222446]

Maria Eagle: The information is as follows:

HM Courts Service

An answer could be provided only at disproportionate cost, as OPG does not serve defined administrative areas.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he will reply to Question 220173, on staff, tabled on 15 July. [226922]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice answered this question on 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 872W. I am very sorry for the delay.

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average length of sentence was for young offenders convicted for offences involving (a) violence against a person, (b) burglary, (c) robbery, (d) sexual offences and (e) illegal drugs where a custodial sentence was handed down in the financial year 2005-06. [226833]

Maria Eagle: The requested information is contained in the following table.

Statistics are provided on a calendar year basis for 2006.

Average length of immediate custodial sentence[1] for various offence groups by age group, all courts, England and Wales, 2006

	Average length of sentence (months)
	Age group
Offence description	Juveniles 10-17 year olds	Young adults 18-20 year olds	10 - 20 year olds
Violence against the person	12.8	16.3	15.2
Burglary	8.6	13.9	11.7
Robbery	16.9	31.5	24.4
Sexual offences	29.9	36.5	33.8
Drug offences	14.0	24.7	22.5

[1] Months. Excludes life and indeterminate sentences.

TRANSPORT

A1: Elkesley

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what timetable he has established for the construction of the A1 flyover at Elkesley. [224820]

Paul Clark: Following the Preferred Route Announcement in July 2008 the next stage of the process is the publication of the draft statutory orders in spring 2009.

Further progression is dependent on the outcome of the statutory process and the possible need for a public inquiry. On this basis construction is unlikely to start before late 2010.

A38

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what decisions have been made on (a) the closure of and (b) improvements to road junctions on the A38 between Marsh Mills, Plymouth and South Brent following the recent review. [222417]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency continues to monitor the performance of the A38 between Marsh Mills, Plymouth and South Brent to improve its operation and safety. This includes discussion with key stakeholders including Plymouth city council. The closures and improvements detailed in this answer have evolved from this process.

Between (and including) Marsh Mills junction and South Brent junction, a distance of approximately 20 kilometres, there are seven eastbound and eight westbound locations where access to or egress from the A38 trunk road is possible. The current position at these locations is:

(a) The Highways Agency has recently consulted on the permanent closure of the A38 Voss Farm eastbound access slip road and is in the process of making an order to authorise its permanent closure. This access slip road has been temporarily closed since June 2007. Although the accident data do not support the closure of the Voss Farm westbound slip roads, their possible closure will be considered as part of improvements required to accommodate additional development growth for Deep Lane.

The current accident data for the other locations do not support further slip road closure.

(b) A recent accident study for Marsh Mills recommends improvement to the signing, lining and skid resistance of the road surface at this junction and this work is currently being designed.

At Deep Lane, the junction improvement work has been undertaken. This consists of the installation of traffic signals and realignment works to accommodate the construction of the Langage Power Station. The westbound access slip safety study will be completed this autumn. In addition, the major improvements to this junction to accommodate the Sherford and other additional development growth emerging from the Regional Spatial Strategy, continue to be pursued.

Safety improvements to the Lee Mill westbound egress slip road were implemented during spring 2008. Improvements consisted of narrowing of the westbound egress slip and realignment of the roundabout on the county road.

No improvements have been identified as necessary at any of the other locations on the A38 between Marsh Mills and South Brent.

Airports: Security

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidelines have been issued to airport authorities on the appointment of security personnel. [224645]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport places directed obligations on aerodrome managers, aircraft operators, regulated cargo agents, and in-flight catering companies regarding the vetting and training of aviation security personnel as part of the National Aviation Security Programme (NASP). Best practice guidance on the physical and other attributes of security personnel is also included in the NASP.

Crossrail: Construction

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what disruption to roads he expects to take place during the construction of Crossrail; and if he will make a statement. [225126]

Paul Clark: The likely construction impacts of Crossrail are described in the environmental statement (ES) for the project that accompanied the Crossrail Bill and was considered during the lengthy parliamentary scrutiny of the Bill. Construction of Crossrail will be subject to the environmental minimum requirements for the project (including a construction code and the many undertakings and assurances given by the Secretary of State during the Bill's passage) as well as the safeguards in the Act itself, to ensure that the impacts of the project do not exceed what has been assessed and described in the ES. Many of the detailed arrangements for how construction will affect roads and traffic will be subject to approval of the relevant local highways authority and consultation within traffic liaison groups which will be established along the whole route.

Cycling: Standards

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to ensure that all school children have access to cycling proficiency lessons before they attend secondary school. [224725]

Paul Clark: While the nature and level of cycle training provision is a matter for schools and local authorities, the Government have increased significantly the resources for cycling provision to £140 million over three years. Among other initiatives this funding will give an extra 500,000 children the opportunity to undertake national standard training by 2012, over and above the training already provided by schools and local authorities.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on schools providing cycling proficiency lessons for children; and if he will make a statement. [224732]

Paul Clark: The Government are keen to encourage children to travel to school in a sustainable way and therefore supports the provision of cycle training in schools. The nature and level of such training is a matter of choice for schools and local authorities. However, the Government have made funding available to give an extra 500,000 children the opportunity to undertake national standard training by 2012, over and above the training already provided by local authorities.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many schools in (a) Essex and (b) Castle Point provide cycling proficiency lessons. [224733]

Paul Clark: The Government do not hold data on the provision of cycle training by individual schools. We monitor delivery of training courses by local authorities and school sports partnerships who are awarded Government grants to fund national standard cycle training in schools. Local authorities monitor outputs from their own schemes.

Essex county council has been awarded £10,000 for 2008-09 to provide 250 national standard training places. School Sports Partnerships in Essex have been awarded £64,000 to provide a further 1,600 places, including 75 in Castle Point and Rochford.

These funding allocations represent part of the significant increase in overall allocations of £140 million over the years. Further and within Essex, Colchester and Southend have been awarded 'Cycle Demonstration Town' status.

In addition to this, Essex county council funds and delivers the Essex Cyclist Training scheme (ECTS). It is available to all primary schools for children aged 10 years and above. Last year 3,080 pupils were trained, of which 80 were in the Castle Point district. Although this training is not currently equivalent to the national standard, Essex stated in their 2008-09 Cycling England grant bid their aspiration to transfer training to national standard by 2015.

Departmental Telephone Services

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what agencies or units for which his Department is responsible require the public to make telephone calls to them on numbers which charge more than the national call rate; and how much income each such agency derived from such charges in each of the last three years. [225639]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested is as follows, for the last three financial years and rounded:

	2005-06 (£000)	2006-07 (£000)	2007-08 (£000)	Comments
DfT (Central)	0	0	0	Had a 0845 line for a short period in 2007-08, generating no income
DVLA	2,424	2,894	3,382	DVLA operates as a Trading Fund and income from 0870 lines supports the cost of the call centre and services.
DSA	693.2	623.3	672.0	0870 numbers are being replaced with low rate 0300 ones from 31 October 2008.
VOSA	63.4	72.4	78.6	Replaced with a new low rate 0300 number from 1 September 2008.
VCA	0	0	0	Has one 0844 line, generating no income
HA	0	0	0	Calls to the 0845 HA Information Line are charged at a local rate.
MCA	0	0	0	Has one 0870 line which generates no income
GCDA	0	0	0	Has no premium rate lines

Inland Waterways: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of his Department's budget was spent on British waterways in the last period for which figures are available. [225612]

Jim Fitzpatrick: British Waterways is sponsored by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs in England and Wales and by the Scottish Executive in Scotland.

In February 2007, the Department for Transport (DfT) offered British Waterways a Freight Facilities Grant of £1.37 million towards the capital costs of constructing a lock and associated works at the Prescott Channel in east London. In that year, the Department's budget for Freight Facilities Grants was £7 million of which 19.6 per cent. was allocated to British Waterways.

Level Crossings: Accidents

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many serious injuries have occurred on level crossings in the last five years. [225700]

Paul Clark: The information requested is contained in the following table:

Serious injuries on British level crossings, 2003-07

	Fatal injuries	Major injuries[1]	Over Three day injuries[2]	Hospital treatment[3]	Total
2003	16	1	1	24	42
2004	14	3	4	57	78
2005	16	1	2	18	37
2006	8	2	9	17	36
2007	12	1	3	10	26
Total	66	8	19	126	219

[1] This category only applies to railway employees.
[2] This category only applies to injuries to railway employees that required a three day or over absence from work.
[3] This category only applies to members of the public injured at a level crossing and taken directly to hospital for treatment.

The data are based on incidents reported to the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR), under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 (RIDDOR 95).

Injuries to trespassers, attempted suicides and confirmed suicides have been excluded from the table.

M25

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many cars broke down on the M25 in each of the last five years. [225620]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold data on the total number of cars broken down on the M25 in the last five years. This is because many individuals who break down make their own private recovery or repair arrangements using direct contact by mobile telephone and these are not recorded by the Highways Agency.

The Department for Transport records vehicles broken down on motorways that have been reported to the regional control centres operated by Highways Agency's Traffic Officer Service.

These data have only been collected from the introduction of the Traffic Officer Service which achieved full service on the M25 on 1 October 2006.

The numbers recorded for light vehicles that were broken down on the M25 are listed in the following table.

Incidents recorded by Traffic Officer Service

Time period	Number of hard shoulder and live lane breakdowns of cars and light goods vehicles (under 7.5 tonnes)
1 October 2006 to 31 December 2006	6,310
1 January 2007 to 31 December 2007	27,840
1 January 2008 to 30 September 2008	22,042
Total	56,192

M25: Repairs and Maintenance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average annual cost was of cleaning the M25 motorway in the latest period for which figures are available. [225615]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency has estimated the annual cost of cleaning the M25 motorway in the financial year 2007-08 as £1.272 million. Data are not collated or held in a format which provides a breakdown of costs for the cleaning of individual roads within the Highways Agency's Area 5 network. The figure for cleaning the M25 is therefore only an approximation based on the proportion of network to costs. The M25 forms just under half (49.92 per cent.) of the Area 5 network.

M6

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will take steps to approve a scheme for the re-location of junction 14 of the M6 to a position further north of Stafford; [225297]

(2) if he will take steps to approve a scheme for the early re-construction of junction 15 of the M6 to a modern motorway standard; [225301]

(3) when he expects to introduce the first active traffic management scheme on the M6; and at what location; [225303]

(4) what his policy is on the widening of the M6 between junctions 11 and 19. [225304]

Paul Clark: Following the Advanced Motorway Signalling and Traffic Management Feasibility Study published in March 2008 the Secretary of State announced a programme of work to examine in detail where dynamic use of the hard shoulder should be implemented more widely to ease congestion and improve reliability on the network.

The M6 from junctions 10a (Wolverhampton) to 19 (Knutsford) is one of the areas being examined for potential roll-out of hard shoulder running. This detailed feasibility work is due to be complete by the end of the year and includes examining what improvements to existing junctions may also be necessary, although it does not at this stage consider the relocation of junctions. Decisions on the nature, priority and timing of improvements to the M6 and the need for any further investigation works, such as looking at relocating junctions, will be made following the conclusions of this work.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the timetable is for the construction of a direct link from the M54 to the M6 toll road. [225306]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency is currently assessing options for the provision of a new link from the M54 to the M6 (northbound) and the M6 toll. The way forward for this scheme will be reviewed once the results of the options assessment work are known, which is expected to be in early 2009.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to arrange the early re-surfacing of the M6 between junctions 13 and 14. [225307]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency has indicated that tests are currently under way between junctions 13 and 14 of the M6 to identify when the next major resurfacing scheme will be required, although this is unlikely to be within the next three years.

Following recent spending reviews, the Government decided that resurfacing schemes should not be brought forward ahead of normal maintenance needs. When resurfacing is carried out, general policy is to use materials with low noise properties wherever possible.

Manchester Piccadilly to Manchester Airport Railway Line

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains per week on the Manchester Piccadilly to Manchester Airport line did not make a scheduled stop at (a) intermediate stations and (b) Burnage station due to the service recovery protocol in the latest period for which figures are available. [225128]

Paul Clark: During rail industry period 6 (17 August 2008 to 13 September 2008), a total of five trains were recorded as not having called at intermediate stations between Manchester Airport and Manchester Piccadilly as a result of service recovery incidents. The Department for Transport does not hold centrally the number of trains failing to call at individual stations.

Motorways: Repairs and Maintenance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost of resurfacing motorways has been in the last five years. [225611]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency does not separately record or report the cost of resurfacing motorways. However, the annual accounts for the HA over the past five years has reported the following in terms of expenditure on maintenance.

	£ million
2007-08	879
2006-07	850
2005-06	852
2004-05	732
2003-04	726

Expenditure figures have been adjusted to account for spend relating to roads trunked or detrunked in the financial year.

The expenditure figures provided are for maintenance on the strategic road network managed and maintained by the Highways Agency. This includes renewal of the road surface and repairs to structures, as well as routine maintenance such as gully clearing, white lining, cleaning and winter maintenance, but not those associated with our Private Finance Initiative contracts.

To disaggregate the cost of resurfacing motorways only would be a very lengthy exercise, and as such could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by her Department has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [222123]

Mr. Hoon: A response covering all Government Departments was provided by the Secretary of State for the Home Department on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W.

Railway Network

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans there are to open new train lines in England. [225606]

Paul Clark: The Government's immediate priority is increasing capacity on the existing rail network and £10 billion will be invested from 2009 to 2014 on measures to bring this about.

In March 2008, the Secretary of State for Transport invited Network Rail to examine options for supporting further growth in the longer term, which might include new lines. Network Rail's new lines study is due to be completed in summer 2009.

Railways: Contracts

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which train operators have requested a renegotiation of their franchise agreement in the last 12 months. [227129]

Paul Clark: None. The Department for Transport has consistently stated that it will not renegotiate franchises.

Railways: Fares

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to repeat the 2003 Future Fares Policy Consultation to review the Strategic Rail Authority's fare structures. [225703]

Paul Clark: In our White Paper "Delivering a Sustainable Railway" published in July 2007 we confirmed the policy of capping most regulated fares to RPI plus 1 per cent. until 2014.

But we are never complacent about issues that affect rail passengers. The previous Secretary of State for Transport asked Passenger Focus to address how well the current system of fares and ticketing meets passenger expectations so that we can consider options for further improvements. That process is under way.

Railways: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the upgrade of Milton Keynes Central train station is due to be completed; and at what cost. [226473]

Paul Clark [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The upgrade of Milton Keynes Central station, including the track and associated signalling, is due to be completed over the Christmas and new year period 2008.

The total cost is some £120 million.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many extra (a) Virgin and (b) London Midland trains will stop at Milton Keynes Central as a result of the platform upgrade. [226538]

Paul Clark [holding answer 13 October 2008]: With the introduction of new timetables on the West Coast Main Line, there will be an additional hourly service, provided by Virgin Trains, between London and Chester, which will call at Milton Keynes Central.

London Midland will also provide a new hourly service between London and Crewe, via Northampton, also calling at Milton Keynes Central.

Southern is planning to extend its hourly West London Line service, presently terminating at Watford Junction, to Milton Keynes Central.

Currently these changes are proposed to be phased in between early December 2008 and late January 2009.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) potential and (b) actual capacity for commuters has been created at Milton Keynes Central train station by the recent works. [226539]

Paul Clark [holding answer 13 October 2008]: An opportunity exists to increase commuter services between Milton Keynes Central and London as a result of the work now being completed on the West Coast Main Line. Up to two such trains an hour could operate on the fast lines, if additional 125 mile/hour trains are available and demand increases to justify such an investment.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what capacity for non-stopping trains will be created at Milton Keynes Central by the recent works; and how many trains per hour this represents. [226540]

Paul Clark [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The new layout at Milton Keynes Central station, with an extra line and additional platform capacity, provides for the operation of up to four additional fast trains an hour.

Railways: Public Appointments

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to appoint a chairman for the Office of Rail Regulation. [226630]

Paul Clark [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The process for appointing a new chairman of the Office of Rail Regulation is already under way. It is hoped that the new chairman could be in place by July 2009, with a transition period beginning in April 2009.

Railways: Repairs and Maintenance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how often railway sleepers were replaced in the latest period for which figures are available. [225616]

Paul Clark: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place
90 York Way
London, N1 9AG.

Railways: Students

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much money the Government provided for scholar discounts for train tickets for young people attending schools in Cambridge via First Capital Connect and WAGN in each of the last three years. [223942]

Paul Clark: The Government have not provided any funding to either First Capital Connect or WAGN in any of the last three years in relation to discounted scholar train tickets.

Road Traffic Control: Carbon Emissions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the quantity of carbon dioxide produced each day by the use of traffic lights and electronic signs. [225617]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has not estimated the level of carbon dioxide emissions resulting from the use of traffic lights or electronic signs.

Roads: Construction

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her latest estimate is of the construction cost per mile of a three-lane motorway with (a) a continuous hard shoulder, (b) emergency refuge areas every 500 metres, (c) emergency refuge areas every 800 metres, (d) emergency refuge areas every 1,000 metres and (e) neither hard shoulder nor emergency refuge areas. [222462]

Paul Clark: The estimated range of construction costs for one mile of three-lane motorway with a continuous hard shoulder is from £21.4 million to £35.0 million. This compares with a range of £19.3 million to £31.5 million for a three-lane motorway without hard shoulder. The estimated rates cover the construction costs of a new dual three-lane rural motorway including detail design costs and statutory undertakers' diversions, but excluding land costs, VAT and the Highways Agency's agent and administration costs.

The Highways Agency does not hold estimates for the costs of construction of a new motorway with emergency refuges at any distance, as they have never undertaken or considered a project of this type. The M42 Active Traffic Management Pilot cost £9.0 million per mile but this scheme added hard shoulder running and emergency refuge areas at around 500 metres to an existing three-lane motorway with hard shoulder. However, costs will vary on a scheme by scheme basis and so the M42 pilot might not represent the typical cost of adding hard shoulder running with emergency refuge areas at around 500 m.

Following the Advanced Motorway Signalling and Traffic Management Feasibility Study, further work is under way to examine in detail the scope for a wider roll-out of dynamic hard shoulder running. This will include analysis of the cost of adding hard shoulder running to existing motorways with emergency refuges at around 800 m.

Rolling Stock

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy, when assessing the benefits of new railway rolling stock, to base such an assessment on the operational life of the stock rather than the length of franchise. [226688]

Paul Clark [holding answer 13 October 2008]: When taking a decision to procure or require the procurement of new rolling stock, the Department for Transport's policy is to assess the life-time costs and benefits of that rolling stock. It is also open to the Department to take into account the life-time benefits of bidder proposals when appropriate in franchise competitions, for instance when considering the purchase of options.

Speed Limits

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what speed limit reviews his Department requires from local authorities before 2011; what guidance has been issued on how to conduct these reviews; and if he will make a statement. [226328]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department provides local traffic authorities with guidance to ensure local speed limits are appropriately and consistently set. The latest guidance was published on 8 August 2006 in DfT Circular 01/2006, "Setting Local Speed Limits", and requested traffic authorities review speed limits on all of their A and B roads, and implement any necessary changes by 2011.

The Transport Research Laboratory (TRL) developed a Speed Assessment Framework to assist traffic authorities with their decision making process with specific regard to rural single carriageway roads. The framework is available as a Traffic Advisory leaflet and as a downloadable spreadsheet from the TRL website.

Stansted Airport: Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the additional greenhouse gas emissions that would result from an expansion of air traffic capacity at Stansted airport. [226938]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our current forecasts of UK aviation carbon dioxide emissions were reported in "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts", published in November 2007 and available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/ukairdemandandco2forecasts/

According to these forecasts, using Stansted's existing runway to the new maximum permitted capacity would result in additional carbon dioxide emissions of around one million tonnes per annum by 2015. This would be equivalent to an increase of less than 1 per cent. in total UK transport emissions, or an increase of around 0.2 per cent. in total UK emissions.

These forecasts also show that the opening of a second runway at Stansted, which will be the subject of a separate planning inquiry in 2009, would cause the UK's annual carbon dioxide emissions to increase by an additional 2.3 million tonnes per annum, when averaged over the period 2015 to 2075.

The Government's strategy for tackling the climate change impacts of aviation are set out in the 2003 Air Transport White Paper. Our view is that the most effective way of tackling the climate change impacts of aviation is through including the aviation sector in a well designed, international emissions trading regime. This would ensure that any increase in greenhouse gas emissions from the aviation sector would be matched by a corresponding reduction in another sector, which the aviation industry would pay for.

Tolls

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to (a) increase the number of toll roads in England and (b) remove existing toll roads. [225619]

Paul Clark: There are currently no plans to increase the number of toll roads or remove tolls where currently applied. As set out in the recent document: 'Roads—Delivering Choice and Reliability', the Department for Transport is considering the role that tolled lanes could play in managing new capacity.

Trains

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train carriages have been refurbished in the last five years. [225608]

Paul Clark: Rolling stock goes through major overhaul cycles approximately every six years, which would mean the majority of rolling stock will have had some form of modernisation in the last five years. The specific information requested is not collected by the Department for Transport.

Trains: Crimes of Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many violent assaults there were on passengers on trains in each of the last five years. [225623]

Paul Clark: This information is not held by the Department for Transport, but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN, e-mail:

parliament@btp.pnn.police.uk

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in the processing of partial succession payments for the (a) Farm Woodland Scheme and (b) Farm Woodland Premium Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [225879]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Out of more than 10,500 Farm Woodland Scheme (FWS) and Farm Woodland Premium Scheme (FWPS) agreements existing in 2007, only 25 of them (one FWS and 24 FWPS) have been affected by partial succession. The total value of payments due for 2007 under these 25 agreements was £38,000 and so far, £5,000 has been paid. The Forestry Commission is expecting to pay the remainder within the next four weeks.

Of the 2008 payments due this autumn, 42 agreements (three FWS and 39 FWPS) are affected by partial succession. The Forestry Commission expects to be able to make payments for all of these, provided that they are not affected by other regulatory issues, by the end of 2008.

Batteries: Recycling

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what guidance he has received from the Waste and Resources Action Programme on the implementation of EU Directive 2006/66 on the recycling of batteries; [222738]

(2) what plans his Department has to increase capacity for battery recycling; [222740]

(3) what progress has been made towards establishing collection schemes for batteries. [222963]

Jane Kennedy: We are currently preparing regulations to implement the EU batteries directive. The directive requires greatly increased collection, treatment and recycling of batteries by 2012 with a further target by 2016. In accordance with the directive the UK regulations will require all shops who sell a significant quantity of batteries to collect batteries returned by members of the public. In addition batteries producers will need to set up other collections to meet their targets under the directive.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has worked in partnership with a range of Local Authorities and not-for-profit organisations that already run recycling collection services to pilot portable waste battery collection trials in the UK. Trials include establishing 'drop off' points at supermarkets, as well as other methods of collection such as at the kerbside.

WRAP'S full report on the results from the trials is due shortly and will be available on the WRAP and DEFRA websites. It will be used to help Government and batteries producers to identify the best methods of collecting batteries.

We expect that the additional collection, treatment and recycling required will provide opportunities for UK companies to invest in increased capacity for battery recycling.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects the vaccine for bluetongue to be available; whether there are plans to provide a vaccine for each strain of the disease; and whether cattle that have been vaccinated will be allowed (a) into and (b) out of the bluetongue zone. [225455]

Jane Kennedy: The UK was the first EU member state to order Bluetongue Virus (BTV) vaccine, and on 30 April 2008, the first batches became available, ahead of schedule, for use in the Protection Zone. The protection zone was expanded over the summer and since 1 September has covered the whole of England, enabling farmers to protect their animals from the threat of Bluetongue (searotype 8).

Protection zone restrictions apply to all keepers in the zone. Animals can only be moved out of the protection zone if they are vaccinated, naturally immune or moving for slaughter, subject to meeting certain conditions.

There are currently no vaccines licensed for us in the UK for other Bluetongue serotypes. We are currently in discussion with the veterinary profession and industry stakeholders on our vaccination plans for 2009.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for how many strains of bluetongue the Government has vaccines available. [225538]

Jane Kennedy: The UK was the first country in Europe to place an order for BTV8 vaccine. This vaccine is now available to farmers across England and Wales. The Government do not have available vaccines for any other BTV serotypes.

There are currently no vaccines licensed for use in the UK for other bluetongue serotypes. We are currently in discussion with the veterinary profession and industry stakeholders on our vaccination plans for 2009.

Cereals: Exports

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many tonnes of grain grown in the UK were exported in each of the last three years, broken down by country of destination; and how much in each year was exported for (a) the production of food products and (b) the manufacture of bio-fuels. [226280]

Jane Kennedy: The following table shows the volume of cereals exported from the UK from 2005 to July 2008 broken down by country of destination. It is not possible to identify which of these will be used for food products or biofuels.

UK exports of cereals 2005 to July 2008 by destination

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has commissioned in relation to household waste prevention and restriction in the last five years. [224620]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste and Resources Evidence Programme is completing a number of research projects under the themes of household waste prevention and behaviour change as listed as follows. 12 such projects were funded in 2005-06 and a further four projects were added to this portfolio in 2006-07.

Title

Understanding Household Waste Prevention Behaviour

Building greater understanding of the techniques and processes required to promote sustainable waste management through behaviour change programmes

Achieving household waste prevention and promoting sustainable resource use through product service systems

Project REDUCE Monitoring and Evaluation—Developing tools to measure waste prevention

Developing a programme of practical waste minimisation schemes to take forward recent research on consumer behaviour and behavioural change

Household Waste Prevention Policy Side Research Programme

Household Waste Prevention Activity in Dorset

Lifestyle Scenarios: The Futures for Waste Composition

Modelling the Impact of Lifestyle Changes on Household Waste Arisings

Social enterprises and sustainable waste and resource management: Evaluating impacts, capacities and opportunities

Replicating Success: Social enterprises and the waste sector in London

Establishing the behaviour change evidence base to inform community-based waste prevention and recycling

Benefits of Community Sector involvement in Waste Management

Attitudes to use of Organic Resources on Land

Enhancing participation in kitchen waste collection scheme

Assessing the potential role of community initiatives in biowaste collection and processing.

The Department has just commissioned a review study to help distil the evidence emerging from this and other research focussed on waste prevention. This new project is scheduled to report in the spring of 2009. The project team will work with DEFRA staff to consolidate findings from the Waste and Resources Evidence Programme, the Environmental Behaviours Unit and other parts of DEFRA, together with work undertaken by the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) and the Environment Agency and other relevant published work.

Fisheries: Nature Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will hold discussions at EU level to seek to ensure that action to prevent fishing activity on sites designated as being of European importance is taken under the Habitats Directive. [222737]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My officials are in regular contact with the Commission on this matter. While sites of Community importance are designated under the EC habitats directive (92/43/EEC) any action that may be required to restrict fishing activity in these areas would be taken under the common fisheries policy.

Flood Control: Agriculture

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding his Department has budgeted to spend on projects investigating the contribution of farming to flood attenuation on flood plains in the next three years. [225309]

Jane Kennedy: There is a large body of current research examining the impact of land use and land management on flood risk management. Examples include the Environment Agency funded flood risk management research consortium and the DEFRA-led multi-objective flood management demonstration project, which is spending £500,000 to look at the impact of land use management on flood risk management.

The Environment Agency's science programme spends over £4 million annually investigating flood and coastal risk. The programme contains projects that consider the impact farming can have on flood risk.

Floods: Farms

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will amend regulations to allow farmers easier access to their land during flood conditions. [224810]

Jane Kennedy: As part of the cross-compliance requirements linked to EU direct aid payments, EU member states must define minimum requirements for good agricultural and environmental condition. One such requirement in England is a restriction on farmers carrying out mechanical field operations or using motorised vehicles on waterlogged soil to maintain soil structure and prevent compaction when soils are waterlogged.

Where exceptional weather conditions exist the Secretary of State can grant temporary exemptions from that requirement to enable farmers to, for example, harvest their crops. The Secretary of State granted such an exemption on 10 September this year until 4 October due to the exceptional weather conditions and this has recently been extended until 25 October. A similar exemption was also granted last year. It is important to note that farmers are still required to assess any resulting damage to soil and take remedial action as soon as possible.

Floods: Livestock

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of loss of livestock incurred in the recent floods. [224808]

Jane Kennedy: The floods in the north-east in September caused considerable difficulties to livestock farmers in the area. We have not assessed the number of livestock lost but local estimates indicate the numbers were relatively low, although a small number of individual farmers may have faced significant losses. Local and regional bodies, including local authorities, One North East, and representatives from the National Farmers' Union (NFU) and Animal Health, worked closely together to assist those affected.

Floods: Morpeth

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the operation of flood warnings to parts of Morpeth during the recent floods. [225510]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency is assessing the operation of flood warnings in Morpeth during the recent floods. The Environment Agency is reviewing the number and extent of warning areas and is revising its procedures to ensure that only the correct sequence of warnings can be issued in Morpeth.

Food: Procurement

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress his Department has made on the development of a local food procurement policy. [226228]

Jane Kennedy: The legal framework governing public procurement does not allow public bodies to give greater weight to locally produced food and drink when awarding contracts. This is because public bodies are required to ensure public procurement is fair, transparent and not used to discriminate by setting up barriers to free trade. It would also reduce competition contrary to UK public procurement policy that is designed to achieve value for money for the taxpayer.

The legal and policy framework does provide public bodies with plenty of flexibility to be innovative in their procurement and, for example, we are encouraging them through the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI) to increase tendering opportunities for small and local producers. How they can do this is explained in the advice on the PSFPI website, including the guides "Putting it into practice" and "How to increase opportunities for small and local producers when aggregating food procurement".

Incinerators: Hazardous Substances

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information his Department uses when formulating guidance for the public and local authorities about the assessment of safety of incinerator bottom ash. [225228]

Jane Kennedy: My Department has not produced any guidance on the assessment of the safety of incinerator bottom ash. The Environment Agency, as the principal regulator for the waste controls in England and Wales, has recently produced a position note on the classification of incinerator bottom ash, which is available on their website.

Incinerators: Pollution

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what research the Environment Agency has undertaken in conjunction with the Environmental Services Association to evaluate the toxicity testing of incinerator bottom ash; [225188]

(2) what are the most recent test results on the toxicity of incinerator bottom ash to have been made public; [225225]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the study undertaken by the Environmental Services Association with the support of the Environment Agency on H14 ecotoxicity testing of incinerator bottom ash. [225227]

Jane Kennedy: The Environment Agency has not undertaken any research in conjunction with the Environmental Services Association to evaluate the toxicity testing of incinerator bottom ash. However, we understand a study was undertaken by the Environmental Services Association into this issue, but the Department has not seen and does not possess its results.

More generally, the operators of incinerators are required by their environmental permits to report periodically on the elemental composition of the bottom ashes produced by the incinerators. These reports do not equate to test results on toxicity testing. The reports are placed on the Environment Agency's Public Register and can be inspected at the Environment Agency's Area offices.

Landfill: Hazardous Substances

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what toxicity tests his Department requires to be undertaken of landfill disposal of non-hazardous waste. [225226]

Jane Kennedy: Where waste is destined for landfill, it is the responsibility of the waste producer to characterise the waste and determine whether it is non-hazardous. Non-hazardous waste is not required to be tested for toxicity.

Landfill operators may be required to carry out certain monitoring and testing under the terms of their environmental permit.

Marine Bill: Draft

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration has been given to merging the provisions of the Marine Bill and the Marine Navigation Bill in a single Bill. [225820]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The links between the Marine Bill and Marine Navigation Bill have been considered and the issue was briefly discussed by the Joint Committee on the Draft Marine Bill during its pre-legislative scrutiny. Work on the Marine Navigation Bill is being led by the Department for Transport. The Marine Bill is concerned with creating and delivering a strategic management framework for the UK's marine resources. By contrast, the Marine Navigation Bill is concerned very specifically with improving safety at sea and in our ports, and with updating the powers of the bodies responsible for maritime safety.

Although there is no direct linkage between the Marine Navigation Bill and the Marine Bill, there are possible synergies with the proposals for the setting up of the Marine Management Organisation (MMO) to deliver marine functions around the UK, such as licensing. In this they are complementary, sharing aims of better regulation, but the two Bills are otherwise too different to justify combining them into a single Bill.

Pigeons: Avian Influenza

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans his Department has to undertake a new risk assessment on the impact of avian influenza on racing pigeons. [222613]

Jane Kennedy: The veterinary risk assessment (VRA) relating to pigeon racing and avian influenza has been reviewed and as a result the General Licence for bird gatherings was amended. This took place on 8 September and details can be found on our website.

Racing pigeons are no longer required to undergo a seven day isolation following a race from continental Europe and pigeons from outside the UK will no longer be required to be in the UK for 28 days prior to a race. This means that pigeons from continental Europe can now be gathered with birds from the UK without undergoing a quarantine period.

In the event of an avian influenza outbreak or case, DEFRA will assess if the General Licence in force at that time needs to be revoked or amended.

Plastics: Waste Disposal

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of the outcomes of research on the dissolution of polythene by the application of microbes for his policy to reduce the amount of plastic packaging in the waste stream; and if he will make a statement. [225393]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA are aware of academic research on this issue in the USA and Japan. The technology would need considerable development before it can be applied in industrial use.

In the meantime, we are looking at other ways to reduce the amount of plastic packaging used at source, including through reducing the amount of plastic used per unit of packaging.

DEFRA is commissioning evidence reviews to identify the life cycle impacts of various types of plastic; this will help determine our future policies on plastics packaging.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by his Department and its predecessor has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [221932]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W.

Rabies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of rabies were reported in the UK in each of the last three years; and what steps the Government are taking to reduce the incidence of rabies world-wide. [225432]

Jane Kennedy: There have been no cases of classical rabies in the last three years (September 2005 to October 2008) in the UK outside of UK quarantine facilities. Rabies was confirmed in two puppies in a UK quarantine facility in Chingford in April this year. These puppies were imported into quarantine from Sri Lanka.

A strain of rabies called European Bat Lyssavirus (or bat rabies) has been found in Daubenton's bats in the UK on three occasions since September 2005. Details are available on the DEFRA website.

Action against rabies disease worldwide is the responsibility of the Department for International Development.

DEFRA supports a large programme of research into rabies and related viruses, with some £500,000 committed annually for studies undertaken at the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) and the Central Science Laboratory (CSL).

There are two main thrusts to the work underway, with VLA taking forward studies to characterise rabies viruses isolated from across the globe that will develop our knowledge of potential threats and inform on effectiveness of vaccines. The VLA also serve as the international reference laboratory for rabies and take forward research on the development and validation of diagnostic tests.

The research at CSL seeks to understand the ecology and management of wildlife vectors of rabies in support of contingency planning for wildlife rabies control.

Sewers

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the transfer of all private sewers and lateral drains that drain to the public sewer to the ownership and responsibility of water and sewerage companies; and if he will make a statement. [225316]

Jane Kennedy: The Government announced in February 2007 its decision to transfer private sewers and lateral drains draining to the public sewerage system into water company ownership. We subsequently published a public consultation in July 2007 on implementation options for the proposed transfer. The consultation also posed questions on the scope of assets to be included in the transfer and ways in which the creation of new private sewers can be prevented.

A summary of responses was published in March 2008 and we are currently preparing proposals for implementation with the help of a steering group of key stakeholders. The work of the steering group will inform the decision on the timing of transfer and the drafting of regulations to implement the transfer. We expect to be in a position to make an announcement on implementation later this year. A detailed breakdown of consultation responses is available on DEFRA's web pages.

Tobacco: Agriculture

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which EU countries grow tobacco; and how much EU subsidy tobacco producers in each such country received in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [226231]

Jane Kennedy: Tobacco is grown primarily in Italy and Greece. Smaller quantities are also grown in Spain, France, Portugal, Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, Slovakia, Poland, Romania, Belgium and Austria. Overall, production is in decline.

A CAP production aid is payable to EU tobacco producers until its agreed abolition in 2010. Total expenditure on this aid in 2007 was €335.5 million. We do not have a breakdown of expenditure by member state.

Warm Front Scheme

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the costs of asbestos removal are factored in to grants under the Warm Front Scheme. [222007]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Asbestos removal is only undertaken when its presence directly impedes the installation of heating and/or insulation measures. The removal of asbestos to enable the installation of insulation measures is judged on a case by case basis, where the cost to remove the asbestos and the improvement of energy efficiency are considered. The costs incurred in undertaking asbestos removal are met using Warm Front funding, but are not assigned to any individual householder's grant monies.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what procedures are in place to assess the satisfaction of householders with the completion of works under the Warm Front Scheme. [222009]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Eaga and DEFRA have procedures that both directly and indirectly assess the quality of work and associated customer satisfaction in the Warm Front Scheme.

A works completion certificate must be signed by customers for each measure provided through the Warm Front Scheme. This certificate is a declaration that work is complete and fitted to the satisfaction of the customer. Without a valid signed certificate Eaga will not pay for work invoiced. In addition to this, 100 per cent. of heating works and 5 per cent. of insulation works undertaken through the scheme are independently inspected to ensure they meet the high levels of quality installation expected of the scheme. Installers are required to perform any remedial work identified at inspection within 28 days of notification. Remedial actions resulting in inspection failure have the same timeline imposed and will be re-inspected once action is taken.

Where a customer may not wish to discuss their concerns directly or face to face, Eaga also provides quality assurance through several other media including e-mail, letter, the availability of customer service staff and related installer management back office support.

Twice a year Eaga also commissions independent measurement of Warm Front customer satisfaction at each of the six stages of service delivery, commencing with initial contact through to the provision of aftercare.

Finally, Eaga carries out several focus groups each year both with Warm Front customers and service delivery staff. Information gleaned is acted on appropriately as part of its commitment to continuous improvement.

DEFRA itself gauges customer satisfaction through customer opinion polls undertaken by National Energy Action, and also by means of twice yearly audits of the scheme by White Young Green and periodic audits by the National Audit Office.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps his Department takes to ensure that grant limits for householders under the Warm Front Scheme are set in line with cost of works charged by contractors in their local market; [222021]

(2) what steps his Department takes to ensure that prices quoted for work under the Warm Front Scheme reflect those charged locally by contractors outside the scheme. [222022]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Although the Warm Front Scheme household grant limit is set centrally and is applicable across England, the scheme does provide a higher grant of £4,000 for oil central heating for properties off the gas network in view of the additional cost of these installations, in comparison to £2,700 for all other systems.

The prices charged for Warm Front have been set regionally to reflect the local installer market. Installers in each region provided independent quotations for each installation type, and the most economically advantageous quotes (in most instances the lowest) were selected. The prices of these selected tenders were averaged and set as the installer rate for that region.

These processes were overseen by independent quality assessors, employed by DEFRA, to ensure the prices charged by the scheme are fair and reflect the market rate. These quality assessors have since undertaken reviews of Warm Front pricing to ensure Warm Front charges continue to offer value for money. These reviews are available on the DEFRA website.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Warm Front budget was in each of the last five years. [223898]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 548.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to monitor the end use of boilers identified as in need of replacement through the Warm Front scheme. [223966]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Eaga plc, the Warm Front Scheme Manager, regularly audits every installer on a number of operational fronts. As part of the environmental audit Eaga checks a proportion of the heating jobs to ensure that all of the necessary paperwork is present. Where a boiler is replaced the installer is responsible for the safe disposal of the old boiler. For this a registered waste disposal company removes the boiler, this may be the installer or their registered subcontractor, to a registered waste disposal site and a waste disposal note is obtained from the site operators.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to prevent fraudulent use of fuel-switching grants offered by the Warm Front scheme. [223967]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The Warm Front Scheme does not offer Fuel Switching grants.

Waterwise: Finance

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which sources Waterwise receives public funding. [225909]

Jane Kennedy: Not-for-profit NGO Waterwise receives no core funding from the Government. Its core funding is about £300,000 per annum, which is received from all water undertakers in the UK, both public and private. Its programme funding, which is an additional £350,000, is self-generated through income-raising activities. This includes an annual conference, the Waterwise Marque, partnerships with corporate and other NGOs, as well as research projects. DEFRA, the Communities and Local Government, the Greater London authority and the Environment Agency have all contributed funds for specific projects.

TREASURY

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the dates were of each meeting he and his predecessor held with the Chairman of the Financial Services Authority (FSA) to discuss the adequacy of regulatory oversight of the financing models for British-based banks; and if he will (a) place in the Library and (b) post on his Department's website copies of all correspondence between him and his predecessor and the FSA on banking oversight and reform since January 2006. [226134]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers meet the chairman and chief executive of the Financial Services Authority regularly to discuss a range of issues.

Bradford and Bingley

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from mutual organisations on the financial effect on them as a result of the Bradford and Bingley rescue; and if he will make a statement. [225973]

Ian Pearson: It is right that action to protect Bradford and Bingley depositors should over time be funded by members of the FSCS through the levy mechanism.

It is the FSA that sets out how different classes of member of the FSCS may be levied in different circumstances in its rules.

Civil Servants: Relocation

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Civil Service jobs have been relocated to the North East of England under the Lyons Review. [218620]

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many public service jobs have been re-allocated from the South East to the North East of England in the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [222078]

Yvette Cooper: By December 2007, 750 posts had been relocated to the North East as part of the relocation programme. Overall, 3,580 civil service posts have been created in the North East since 2003.

Debts

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the level of (a) household and (b) business indebtedness in (i) each Parliamentary constituency, (ii) each area covered by a regional development agency, (iii) Northern Ireland, (iv) Scotland and (v) Wales. [225952]

Angela Eagle: Data on household and business balance sheets are published by the Office for National Statistics on a quarterly and annual basis. However, this data is not available by parliamentary constituency or region.

Departmental Air Travel

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 27W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, how much air mileage incurred through departmental travel was used to calculate the departmental payment to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund in each year that his Department has participated in the fund, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short haul and (c) long haul flights. [222033]

Angela Eagle: In 2006-07 the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund were only broken down into long haul and short haul, but for 2007-08 a third category for domestic flights has been added for calculation purposes.

The mileage used for calculations for GCOF payments is as follows:

Miles

	Short haul	Long haul	Domestic
2006-07[1]	1,954,044	1,533,738	—
2007-08[2]	190,127	780,756	1,023,189

[1] These are for HM Treasury, but included some flights taken by Debt Management Office.
[2] These figures are for HM Treasury.

Excise Duties: Fuel Oil

Colin Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he has assessed of the likely effect of the rate of duty to be applied to waste-derived fuel oil from 1 November 2008 on (a) the volume of hazardous waste oil recovered and reprocessed, (b) the level of investment in the collection and reprocessing of hazardous waste oil, (c) the volume of secondary fuel product manufactured, (d) the volume of hazardous waste oil sent to landfill and (e) the volume of hazardous waste oil incinerated; [226128]

(2) if the Government will (a) delay the introduction of hydrocarbon oil duty until the Waste Oils Protocol project is complete and (b) exercise the discretion provided under the Energy Products Directive to observe differentiation in the application of hydrocarbon oil duty to reflect the product quality and environmental impact of different waste-derived fuel oils once the Waste Oils Protocol project is complete; [226130]

(3) what assessment he has made of whether the rate of duty to be applied to waste-derived fuel oil from 1 November 2008 is consistent with Government obligations under the Waste Framework Directive to encourage the recovery and reuse of waste; [226132]

(4) for what reasons the Government has decided not to exercise the discretion to date provided under the Energy Products Directive to observe differentiation in the application of hydrocarbon oil duty to reflect the product quality and environmental impact of different waste-derived fuel oils; [226133]

(5) what factors the Government took into account when deciding to apply a rate of duty of 9.29 pence per litre, rather than the 15 euros per 1,000 kilograms minimum required under the Energy Products Directive. [226818]

Angela Eagle: The UK is required to impose duty on waste oils reused as fuel as a result of the European Commission's refusal to renew our derogation from the EU energy products directive. The imposition of duty should have no adverse affects on the volume of waste oil recovered, as correct disposal of hazardous waste is a legal requirement.

The imposition of duty at the rate to be applied is consistent with the relevant EU directives, which require member states to take measures to give preference to the regeneration of waste oil above combustion.

Ordnance Survey: Databases

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 26 June 2008, Official Report, column 465W, on Ordnance Survey: databases, how much the Ordnance Survey has spent advertising the products listed in the answer. [225631]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

In the year 2007-08, the last complete year for which information is available, Ordnance Survey spent a total of £25,500 on advertising the digital data products 1:10 000 scale raster, 1:50 000 scale colour raster, 1:250 000 scale colour raster, Land-Line Plus, OS MasterMap Topography Layer, OS MasterMap Address Layer, OS MasterMap Address Layer 2, ADDRESS-POINT, Boundary-Line and Code-Point with Polygons.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by his Department has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [222035]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Home Department (Mr. Coaker) on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W. Of the legislation he referred to, my Department has sponsored the following:

(a) Primary legislation.

(1) The Financial Services and Markets Act 2000; and

(2) The Finance Act 2003.

(b) Secondary legislation

(1) The Money Laundering Regulations 2007 (SI 2157/2007);

(2) The Transfer of Funds (Information on the Payer) Regulations 2007 (SI 3298/2007); and

(3) The Biofuels and Other Fuel Substitutes (Payment of Excise Duties etc.) Regulations 2004.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Government's factual paper on the Barnett formula will be published. [226929]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Carmarthen, East and Dinefwr (Adam Price) on 21 July 2008, Official Report, column 729W.

Public Sector: Pensions

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a document containing the underlying assumptions for the Government's latest estimate of total public service pension scheme liabilities. [215382]

Yvette Cooper: The underlying assumptions for the Government's latest estimate of total unfunded public service scheme liabilities are explained in paragraph 4.14 of the March 2008 Long Term Public Finance Report, in particular Box 4.3 on page 38, published on Budget day.

This document can be found here:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/AE/bud08_longterm 586.pdf

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many new public sector pensions were opened in each of the last 10 years. [226164]

Yvette Cooper: Membership data on individual public sector pension schemes is available in their published resource accounts.

Taxation: Aviation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidance his Department has issued to airline companies on the refunding of tax on unused airline tickets. [225819]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the former Financial Secretary to the Treasury gave to the hon. Member for Altrincham and Sale, West (Mr. Brady) on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 591W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

China: Taiwan

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to facilitate the development of relations between Taiwan and mainland China since the election of President Ma in March 2008. [221703]

Bill Rammell: On 22 March my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary publicly encouraged increased dialogue between China and Taiwan to resolve differences, with a view to finding a peaceful solution to the Taiwan question acceptable to the people on both sides of the Strait. We have taken every opportunity since then to convey these views to the Chinese government, and through unofficial channels, to the Taiwanese authorities. We have given strong support to EU statements to the same end.

We have also encouraged both sides to find solutions to allow Taiwan's greater participation in selected multilateral forums where this is important to global interests. In particular, we look forward to a solution before next year's World Health Assembly which will allow Taiwan's more effective participation in the global health safety net.

Diplomatic Service: Tolls

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries' diplomatic missions have indicated to his Department that they will not pay the London congestion charge. [223471]

Gillian Merron: The diplomatic missions of the following countries have indicated that they will not pay the London congestion charge:

Austria;
Belgium;
Belarus;
Bulgaria;
Cameroon;
Cyprus;
Czech Republic;
Denmark;
Finland;
France;
Germany;
Greece;
Hungary;
India;
Japan;
Kenya;
Latvia;
Lithuania;
Malta;
Mexico;
Moldova;
Poland;
Romania;
Russia;
Slovak Republic;
Slovenia;
Spain;
Uganda;
USA.

Pakistan: Detainees

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 13 September 2006, Official Report, column 2317W, what recent steps the High Commission in Karachi has taken to gain consular access to Ahmed Omar Saeed Sheikh; what recent reports he has received on the progress of Mr Sheikh's case; and if he will make a statement. [222505]

Bill Rammell: Our high commission in Islamabad has continued to make representations to the national and provincial authorities in Pakistan with regard to gaining consular access to Mr. Sheikh. Consular staff in Karachi are in contact with Mr. Sheikh's lawyer about progress on his case.

Republic of Ireland: Personal Savings

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to lodge a formal complaint at the European Commission against the government of Ireland's decision to guarantee all Irish savings deposits. [225412]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The Government continue to be engaged in discussion with the Irish authorities, other member states, and the European Commission on issues relating to deposit guarantee schemes in the EU, including the recent meeting of EU Finance Ministers (ECOFIN) which took place in Luxembourg on 7 October. The Irish government has recently announced that certain subsidiaries of foreign banks would be able to join this scheme.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the one day count of antisocial behaviour published in September 2003, whether her Department has conducted a more recent study of the number of daily reported incidents of anti-social behaviour in England and Wales. [221473]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office has not conducted a recent study on the number of daily reported incidents of antisocial behaviour in England and Wales.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government have taken to encourage local authorities to assist in reducing antisocial behaviour. [225338]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 9 October 2008]: We have provided practitioners with a wide range of tools and powers to tackle antisocial behaviour, issued guidance on their use, provide information through a practitioner website and set up a free telephone advice line to provide specific support on individual problems. We also deliver regional workshops to help local practitioners make the best use of the available tools and powers.

Asylum

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many asylum seekers' applications had been outstanding for (a) six months to one year, (b) one to two years, (c) two to three years, (d) three to four years, (e) four to five years, (f) five to six years, (g) six to seven years, (h) seven to eight years, (i) eight to nine years, (j) nine to 10 years and (k) more than 10 years on 31 December in each of the last 11 years; [224550]

(2) how many outstanding asylum seekers' applications there were on 31 December in each of the last 11 years. [224555]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the number of cases awaiting initial decision at the end of the year for 1997 to 2007.

Cases awaiting initial decision at end of year[1, 2]

This information is available from Table 1.1 in the annual Statistical Bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2007 for 1998 to 2007

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1108.pdf

and from table 1.1 in the annual Statistical Bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2006 for 1997

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs07/hosb1407.pdf

Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the house and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

Information about the length of time that asylum applications have been outstanding can only be obtained at disproportionate cost by examination of each of the individual case records.

[1] Data for 1997 and 1998 are not directly comparable with figures for later years.

[2] Figures are rounded to the nearest 100.

	Number of cases awaiting initial decision outcome at end of year
1997	51,800
1998	64,800
1999	125,100
2000	94,500
2001	42,200
2002	41,300
2003	23,900
2004	9,700
2005	5,500
2006	6,400
2007[1]	6,800

[1] Provisional figures.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long it took on average to process an asylum seeker's application in each of the last 11 years. [224554]

Mr. Woolas: Information is available only for average time to initial decision. The following table shows the average time to initial decisions for cases decided between 1997 and 2007. The number of decisions in each year is also shown.

Average time to initial decision and number of decisions, 1997 to 2007[1, 2, 3, 4]

Year of decision	Average time in months	Number of decisions[5]
1997	22	32,500
1998	17	31,570
1999	35	33,720
2000	18	109,205
2001	13	120,950
2002	7	83,540
2003	10	64,940
2004	13	46,020
2005	12	27,395
2006[6]	8	20,930
2007[6]	7	21,775

[1] Excluding dependants.

[2] Figures are estimates based on cases for which information is recorded.

[3] Prior to 2000 based on data from Refugee Index, and the A-CID database for 2000-07.

[4] The average length of time (in months) is calculated from date application is lodged to the date of initial decision, and relates to the year in which the decisions were made.

[5] Figures are rounded to the nearest 5.

[6] Provisional figures.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers entered the UK in each of the last 11 years; and how many such people were aged (a) under 18 years and (b) 18 years and over. [224556]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the number of principal asylum applications received in the UK between 1997 and 2007 at a port of entry or at some stage after having entered the country. Figures for 1997 to 2000 have been estimated by applying published percentages for the age categories to the number of total asylum seekers.

Further information on asylum is published annually and quarterly and is available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Number of principal asylum applications received in the UK by age group, 1997 to 2007[1]

	Number of asylum seekers aged under 18 years	Number of asylum seekers aged 18 years and over
1997	1,600	30,900
1998	4,600	41,400
1999	3,600	67,600
2000	6,400	73,900
2001	8,705	62,660
2002	12,435	71,700
2003	7,865	41,545
2004	6,205	27,755
2005	5,165	20,550
2006	4,580	19,030
2007[2]	3,975	19,420

[1] Figures for 1997 to 2000 have been estimated by applying published percentages of the age categories to the total asylum seekers population. As a result, these data have been rounded to the nearest 100. Data for 2001 to 2007 are rounded to the nearest five.
[2] Provisional figures.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) Afghani, (b) Belarusian, (c) Burmese, (d) Chinese, (e) Colombian, (f) Cuban, (g) Democratic Republic of Congo, (h) Democratic People's Republic of Korea, (i) Iranian, (j) Iraqi, (k) Israeli, (l) Nepalese, (m) Pakistani, (n) Russian, (o) Saudi Arabian, (p) Syrian, (q) Turkmenistani, (r) Uzbekistani and (s) Vietnamese nationals were refused asylum in the UK in each of the last (i) 12 months and (ii) five years; and how many in each category are awaiting a decision on an asylum application. [225298]

Mr. Woolas: The accompanying two tables give the most recently published figures available and show the total number of refusals for (a) Afghani, (b) Belarussian, (c) Burmese, (d) Chinese, (e) Colombian, (f) Cuban, (g) Democratic Republic of Congo, (h) Democratic People's Republic of Korea, (i) Iranian, (j) Iraqi, (k) Israeli, (l) Nepalese, (m) Pakistani, (n) Russian, (o) Saudi Arabian, (p) Syrian, (q) Turkmenistani, (r) Uzbekistani and (s) Vietnamese nationals people, following initial decisions, (i) between July 2007 and June 2008 and (ii) for each of the last five calendar years.

The published figure for asylum applications split by nationality for people awaiting an initial decision is not available as the figures are based on an overall manual count which is not broken down into separate categories.

Information on asylum is published annually and quarterly. Information on many of the nationalities requested are available in these publications. Annual Statistics for 2007 and quarterly statistics for 2008 are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Asylum: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people seeking asylum are registered as living in Bassetlaw constituency. [224825]

Mr. Woolas: The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support are available broken down by Government Office Region, local authority and parliamentary constituency; these regional breakdowns are available from December 2002. There were two or less people in receipt of support in each of the quarters from Q3 2007 to Q2 2008 in the parliamentary constituency of Bassetlaw.

The numbers of asylum seekers in receipt of support are published on a quarterly and annual basis. Copies of these publications are available in the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

Asylum: Deportation

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers were deported from the UK in each of the last 11 years. [224551]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office publishes statistics on the number of asylum seekers removed, including voluntary departures, from the UK on a quarterly and annual basis. The latest published information is provided in the following table and can be found in Table 6.1 of the Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2007 bulletin:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1108.pdf

Asylum: Kuwait

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Kuwaiti Bidoons have claimed asylum in the United Kingdom in the last five years. [225487]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Information on asylum applications is published quarterly. Copies of asylum publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Asylum: Occupied Territories

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people from the Occupied Palestinian Territories were refused asylum in the UK in each of the last (a) 12 months and (b) five years; and how many are awaiting a decision on an asylum application. [225296]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by examination of individual case records.

Information on asylum applications is published quarterly. Copies of asylum publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html

Asylum: Sudan

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Darfuris have been (a) granted and (b) refused asylum in the UK in the last three years. [224826]

Mr. Woolas: Information on the number of nationals of Sudan that have been granted and refused asylum in the United Kingdom in the last three years can be found in tables 3.1, 3.2 and 3.3 of the annual Statistical Bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2007, link attached:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1108.pdf

and is also available in the Library of the House. It is not known how many Darfuris are included and this could be obtained only by examination of individual case records.

Crime Prevention: ICT

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of computer modelling of crime and its causes. [217325]

Jacqui Smith: Officials in the Home Department use a wide range of techniques to analyse crime and its causes, drawn from economics, social research, statistics and operational research. Alongside the qualitative assessment of crime and its effects, models of the causes of crime can help us understand the simultaneous impact of those causes and show which are the most significant.

Crime: Business

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time members of staff her Department employs to deal with business crime. [221381]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Many parts of the Home Office support work to tackle crimes affecting business. This includes developing responses to specific crimes such as fraud, e-crime, retail crime, commercial robbery and criminal damage as well as work to encourage and support business to work closely in partnership with the police and local authorities through the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs). All of this activity is supported by a number of staff who provide performance advice, and statistical and analytical support.

Crime: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prolific and priority offenders there were in each Basic Command Unit in the Cambridgeshire Constabulary area at (a) 31 December 2007, (b) 30 March 2008 and (c) 30 June 2008; and if she will make a statement. [226101]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The most recent data available from the performance management arrangements for the Prolific and other Priority Offender programme covers the period from January to March 2008. This shows that there were 134 Prolific and other Priority Offenders within the area covered by Cambridgeshire Constabulary at the end of March this year. The figure for the end of December 2007 was 135.

A more detailed breakdown is given in the table.

Basic Command Unit	CDRP/PPO scheme	December 2007	March 2008
Southern	Cambridge	35	35
Southern	East Cambridgeshire	9	9
Southern	South Cambridgeshire	6	6
Central	Fenland	13	13
Central	Huntingdonshire	43	42
Northern	Peterborough	29	29

Crime: Economic Situation

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken to address potential increases in levels of crime resulting from a downturn in the economy. [223849]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Since March 2003, overall crime has fallen by 18 per cent., exceeding the 15 per cent. target set out in the Home Office's public service agreement. That reduction is greater than would have been forecast based on socio-economic factors alone, and the Department is confident that the right policies and systems are in place to continue to cut crime and that they provide the flexibility needed to respond to future economic challenges.

Crime: Torbay

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons were (a) charged and (b) convicted of (i) public order offences and (ii) offences against the person in the Torbay area in each of the last seven years. [225373]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to the Offences against the persons Act 1861 s.18, 20, and 47, and the Public Order Act 1986 s.1 to 5, in Devon and Cornwall police force area, 2000 to 2006 can be viewed in the following table.

Court proceedings data are unable to be broken down further than police force area level; hence data has been provided for Devon and Cornwall police force area in lieu of Torbay area.

Charging data are not held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Therefore prosecution data is provided in lieu.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates' courts and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to the Offences against the persons Act 1861 s.18, 20, and 47, and the Public Order Act 1986 s.1 to 5, in Devon and Cornwall police force area, 2000 to 2006[1,2]

2002	1,060	515	1,630	949
2003	1,104	574	1,525	968
2004	992	530	1,343	966
2005	900	517	1,301	844
2006	686	447	1,174	787

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Crimes Against Humanity

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases the War Crimes Unit in the Border Agency investigated for (a) suspected war crimes, (b) crimes against humanity and (c) genocide in each year since 2004. [224629]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows numbers of cases considered by the war crimes team in each year. The figures quoted are not provided under national statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Cases considered by war crimes team

	Number
2004	49
2005	347
2006	326
2007	600
2008 (January to September)	541

The figures cover all cases in the three categories requested. The information could not be further broken down into the individual categories without the detailed examination of individual case records.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many private contractors have been granted access to personal data held by her Department in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [223603]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 11 September 2008]: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) her Department and (b) the agencies for which her Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [226491]

Mr. Woolas: Details of the prompt payment record can be found in the annual report section (page 23) of the Department's 2007-08 Resource Accounts on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/resource-accounts-07-08

It is the Department's policy to pay its suppliers within 30 days of the receipt of a valid invoice, and it subscribes to the CBI code and the British Standard (BS 7890) on the prompt payment of suppliers.

Departmental Security

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many security passes of staff in (a) her Department and (b) its departmental agencies were reported (i) lost and (ii) stolen in each year since 2001. [195037]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 18 March 2008]: The number of Home Office security passes reported lost or stolen (broken down where known) yearly since 2001 are in the table. As soon as passes are reported missing, they can be deactivated to prevent entry to the circle door locks. The passes do not have any logo to indicate that they can provide access to the Home Office or a particular building. This is in accordance with the Cabinet Office Manual of Protective Security, which advises each Department to have its own design.

The number of passes reported lost or stolen increased over 2002-06 due in part to the increase in the numbers of staff and contractors employed but also to improvements in record keeping.

Table 1: Number of Home Office passes lost or stolen since 2001

	Number
2001	64
2002	138
2003	291
2004	321
2005
Lost	292
Stolen	18
2006
Lost	396
Stolen	32
2007
Lost	443
Stolen	44
2008 (to end July)

Stolen	24

Drugs: Smuggling

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) arrested for and (b) convicted of drug trafficking offences as a result of operations by the Serious Organised Crime Agency in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [219437]

Jacqui Smith: In 2006-07, SOCA recorded that there were 601 arrests and 236 convictions in operations where drug trafficking offences was the primary threat. Similarly in 2007-08 there were 774 arrests and 243 convictions in operations where drug trafficking was the primary threat.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to introduce a degree of flexibility on deadlines for visa applications that are held up owing to tribunal hearings. [225516]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 9 October 2008]: A visa application will not be held up by a tribunal hearing. Certain categories of visa decisions may be referred to the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal, but only after an initial decision to refuse the visa has been made.

Genetics: Databases

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many samples from (a) those with no conviction, (b) those with no conviction but whose DNA was found at the scene of a crime and (c) others were stored on the national DNA database in each year since the database was created. [191198]

Jacqui Smith: The National DNA Database (NDNAD) does not contain any information about criminal records, as this is not necessary for its function of matching DNA from crime scenes with DNA from individuals. Criminal record information is held on the Police National Computer (PNC). Also, before the introduction of the ACPO Criminal Record Retention Guidelines in April 2006, police forces deleted PNC records from some of those convicted of lesser offences after five to 10 years. It is not therefore possible to say either how many of those on the NDNAD did not have a conviction when sampled, or do not currently have a conviction. However, information does exist on the current PNC status of those on the NDNAD.

Data obtained from the PNC on 31 March 2008 indicates that 3,832,986 (of the 4,116,713) people had a record retained on the PNC. Of these, 3,259,347 had a conviction, caution, formal warning or reprimand recorded on the PNC.

Information is not collected in respect of the number of those with no conviction whose DNA was found at the scene of a crime. Some research information is, however, available on the number of DNA profiles taken from those arrested but not charged and from those arrested, charged but not convicted of an offence that have resulted in a DNA match, thus providing the police with an intelligence link on the possible identity of the offender and assisting in the detection of crimes. In April 2004, an amendment to the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 came into effect, which enabled the police to take and retain DNA and fingerprints from persons who had been arrested for a recordable offence. In the period April 2004 to December 2005, the retention of DNA profiles of arrested persons who had not been charged or proceeded against had resulted in matches with crime scene profiles from over 3,000 offences.

In May 2001, an amendment to PACE came into effect, which enabled the police to retain DNA samples taken from persons who had been charged but not convicted of an offence. In the period May 2001 to December 2005, an estimated 200,000 DNA samples taken from people charged with offences had been retained on the NDNAD, which would previously have had to be removed because of the absence of a conviction. From these, approximately 8,500 profiles of individuals have been linked with crime scene profiles, involving nearly 14,000 offences.

Regarding the number of profiles added to the NDNAD since it was created, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 733W, to the hon. Member for Haltemprice and Howden (David Davis).

Hezbollah

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of co-operation between the political and military wings of Hezbollah in seeking to commit or support acts of terrorism in the UK. [223602]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 15 September 2008]: The military wing of Hezballah was added to the list of proscribed organisations because it is concerned in terrorism, including by its active support for Shia militants in Iraq and the Occupied Palestinian Territories.

No other part of the organisation is proscribed in the UK. It is our policy not to discuss intelligence matters and I am unable to share further details of our assessments of Hezballah than were outlined during the parliamentary debates on the proscription Order.

Homicide: Prostitution

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prostitutes were murdered in each of the last 10 years. [224557]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Available data are from the Homicide Index and relate to offences currently recorded as homicides in England and Wales as at 12 November 2007.

Offences currently recorded[1] as homicide where victim was a prostitute[2]: England and Wales, 1997-98 to 2006-07[3, 4]

Year recorded[3]	Number of recorded homicides
1997-98	4
1998-99	3
1999-2000	1
2000-01	3
2001-02	4
2002-03	9
2003-04	6
2004-05	4
2005-06	6
2006-07	7

1. As at 12 November 2007; figures are subject to revision as cases are dealt with by the police and by the courts, or as further information becomes available.
2. Victim occupation recorded as prostitute or sex worker, but victim was not necessarily killed while working.
3. Offences are shown according to the year in which police initially recorded the offence as homicide. This is not necessarily the year in which the incident took place or the year in which any court decision was made.
4. Data for 2007-08 are not yet published.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 June 2008, Official Report, column 75W, on human trafficking: females, what steps are being taken by the (a) Serious Organised Crime Agency and (b) United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre to improve the collection of intelligence of human trafficking. [219476]

Jacqui Smith: Operational activity under the organised immigration crime programmes of the UK Serious Organised Crime Control Strategy (developed by SOCA with UK Law Enforcement) includes the collection of information and intelligence on human trafficking, and operations to interdict traffickers and remove those trafficked to safety.

The National Intelligence Requirement sets out the topics on which information and intelligence is sought. It is available on the SOCA website.

The UKHTC continues to develop the understanding of the nature and scale of the problem faced by the United Kingdom and is currently undertaking an analysis of the outcomes of Operation Pentameter 2.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 9 June 2008, Official Report, column 75W, on human trafficking: females, what the evidential basis is which indicates an increase in human trafficking in recent years; and what estimate her Department has made of the level of increase in human trafficking in the last five years. [219493]

Jacqui Smith: There is no estimate of a level of increase in human trafficking in recent years as the nature of the crime makes it difficult to provide an accurate assessment of the extent of the problem faced. The best assessment of the threat caused by human trafficking is set out in the UK Threat Assessment previously produced by the National Criminal Intelligence Service and now produced by the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

Identity and Passport Service: Contracts

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when contractual negotiations between the Identity and Passport Service and (a) International Business Machines Corporation UK, (b) Electronic Data Systems Corporation UK, (c) Computer Sciences Corporation UK and (d) Fujitsu Services Limited to deliver the national identity card scheme are expected to be concluded. [223392]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 10 September 2008]: A number of procurements are being undertaken for capabilities to implement the national identity scheme. Many are being procured using the NIS 'Strategic Supplier Group (SSG)' framework awarded in June 2008 to IBM, EDS, CSC, Fujitsu and Thales. These particular 'SSG' procurements are expected to conclude over the first half of 2009.

Identity and Passport Service: Thales SA

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) duration, (b) value and (c) terms of remuneration are in the contract agreed between Thales SA and the Identity and Passport Service to deliver the National Identity Register. [223390]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 10 September 2008]: The duration of this contract is four years with options to extend by up to four six-month periods. The value of the contract is £18 million.

Remuneration is linked to delivery at contract milestones (Design, Build and Test) plus monthly charges for running of services once implemented.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what terms have been provided for early termination of the contract agreed between Thales SA and the Identity and Passport Service to deliver the National Identity Register. [223391]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 10 September 2008]: Termination provisions include those for ending the contract for poor performance or a decision to terminate early for 'convenience'. In the case of termination for convenience where 12 months notice is given a supplier may recover costs incurred and those associated with terminating the contract. Where less than 12 months notice is given, in addition to costs incurred, anticipated profit lost as a result of the decision to terminate early may be claimed. These provisions are based on Office of Government Commerce best practice guidance for IT contracts.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to implement the Court of Appeal's order to restore the original provisions of the Highly Skilled Migrant (HSMP) visa so that HSMP visa holders are able to apply for indefinite leave to remain visas in the UK after legally being on HSMP visas for four years. [225222]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 9 October 2008]: The judgment of 8 April 2008 regarding the case brought by the HSMP Forum relates only to the December 2006 immigration rules change in respect of applications for FLR under the HSMP. The April 2006 immigration rules change in respect of settlement was not under consideration and the judgment consequently has no bearing on the length of time people have to spend in certain immigration categories before they can apply for settlement.

Immigration Officers: Training

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the minimum period of training immigration officers are expected to receive in the identification of forged travel documents is. [226057]

Mr. Alan Campbell: All operational UK Border Agency staff receive at least nine hours of forgery training on their induction courses and are tested on their knowledge. In addition to these nine hours dedicated specifically to forgery, the induction courses include significant elements on recognising genuine travel and immigration documents and associated endorsements. This is supplemented by local training once the individuals are in post.

Immigration: Deportation

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) complaints and (b) claims were made against her Department and its agencies and contractors, as a result of alleged injuries and assaults sustained during the enforcement of removals under immigration powers in each of the last five years, broken down by (i) (A) sex, (B) age and (C) nationality of complainant and (ii) location of alleged incident. [225278]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not held in this format and could be obtained by the detailed examination of individual records only at disproportionate cost.

Police: Firearms

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers carried firearms as a regular part of their duties in each of the last 10 years in (a) England and Wales and (b) each police force area. [223601]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 15 September 2008]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given to the hon. Member for Bury St. Edmunds (Mr. Ruffley) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1361W.

Police: Manpower

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average number of police officers on (a) duty and (b) patrol in England and Wales in the last period for which figures are available. [224230]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 12 September 2008]: We do not have all the information required to answer the question directly. This would require estimates for contracted hours and the proportion worked, taking into account annual leave, sick leave etc.

Time spent on patrol refers only to time when an officer is patrolling but engaged in no other duty. Activity (such as advice to a member of the public) carried out whilst on patrol is recorded separately. The percentage of time spent on patrol needs to considered alongside other activities. We use the front-line policing measure to provide a fuller picture of police activity. The measure assesses time spent by all police officers on core policing duties, such as patrol, responding to 999 calls, as well as activities of CIS and specialist officers. While these officers are not always visible to the public, they are nonetheless carrying out core policing duties.

In 2006-07 13.6 per cent.[1] of officers' time was spent on patrol and 64.2 per cent.[2] was spent on front-line policing duties. There were 141,892 police officers in 2006-07.

[1] Includes only police officers on foot/car/beat patrol, CID and traffic.

[2] Includes all police officers

Police: Stun Guns

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces use the 50,000 volt taser stun gun; and how many times, in each case, the gun has been fired in the last two years for which figures are available. [226010]

Mr. Coaker: In 2004, following a trial in five forces, the then Home Secretary agreed that chief officers of all police forces in England and Wales could make Taser available to authorised firearms officers as a less lethal option for use in situations where a firearms authority had been granted in accordance with criteria laid down in the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) Manual of Guidance on Police Use of Firearms.

The Home Office and the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) announced on 19 July 2007 that authorised police firearms officers in England and Wales would be able to use Taser in a wider set of circumstances. These officers are now able to deploy Taser in operations or incidents where the use of firearms is not authorised, but where they are facing violence or threats of violence of such severity that they would need to use force to protect the public, themselves or the subject.

It was also announced that the deployment of Taser to specially trained police units not composed of firearms officers, for use when facing similar threats of violence, would be trialled in 10 police forces. The 12-month trial commenced on 1 September 2007. The 10 forces are: Avon and Somerset, Devon and Cornwall, Gwent, Lincolnshire, Merseyside, Metropolitan Police, Northamptonshire, Northumbria, North Wales and West Yorkshire. The trial is currently being evaluated. The 10 forces have been informed that the Government are content for them to continue to use Taser on the same basis as in the trial pending a conclusion on future use.

The number of incidents of Taser use in England and Wales since its introduction in April 2004, including the number of firings, can be found on the Home Office website at:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/operational-policing/firearms/taser/

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals serving a sentence in a UK prison refused to provide their personal details, including their country of origin, resulting in their remaining in prison at the end of their sentence in the latest period for which figures are available. [225386]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested can be obtained through the detailed examination of individual case files only at disproportionate cost. The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly updated the Home Affairs Committee with the most accurate and robust information available. In her most recent letter of 23 July, she advised the Committee that there are a number of reasons for delay in the deportation process such as last minute legal barriers, obstacles obtaining travel documents and non-compliance.

Proceeds of Crime

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what conditions are attached to the use of funds allocated to police forces under the assets recovery incentive scheme. [225221]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 8 October 2008]: There are no formal conditions attached to the use of funds allocated under the asset recovery incentive scheme. Police forces are encouraged to use the funds for further investment in asset recovery and financial investigation, tackling crime and ,where appropriate, on local community initiatives. The Home Office monitors use of incentive monies by police forces and other agencies to ensure propriety. Returns from forces on the use of these funds indicate full compliance with Home Office recommendations.

Security Guards: Licensing

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the statement of 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 531, on the Security Industry Authority, whether any members of her Department were prosecuted in relation to the employment of foreign persons without leave to work while residing in the United Kingdom. [221667]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 22 July 2008]: No member of the Home Office has been prosecuted in connection with the employment of illegal migrant workers in the security industry.

Serious and Organised Crime Agency: Finance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the running costs of (a) the Assets Recovery Agency and (b) the Serious and Organised Crime Agency were in each year since their inceptions. [219435]

Jacqui Smith: Net expenditure by the Assets Recovery Agency in each year since its inception is as follows:

	£ million
2003-04	11.0
2004-05	14.0
2005-06	16.5
2006-07	13.5
2007-08	17.5

Resource funding for the Serious Organised Crime Agency is as follows:

	£ million
2006-07	391.6
2007-08	406.7

Serious and Organised Crime Agency: Secondment

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officers from the Serious and Organised Crime Agency have been seconded to partner agencies overseas in each year since its inception. [219425]

Jacqui Smith: The number of SOCA officers working in partner agencies overseas since 2006 is as follows:

	Number
2006	38
2007	43
2008	37

Sexual Offences

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sexual offences were recorded in each crime and disorder reduction partnership in England and Wales in 2007-08. [221495]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 22 July 2008]: The information requested is available on the Home Office website at the following address:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrptabs1a.xls

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons figures for recorded sexual offences in each Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership have not been published in the supplementary tables to the Crime in England and Wales 2007-08 publication. [221517]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 22 July 2008]: Home Office statisticians are in the process of applying new methods of statistical disclosure control. The data will be released on the Home Office website as soon as this process is completed.

Surveillance

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints of abuse of intrusive surveillance powers have been made against (a) local authorities and (b) central Government-controlled bodies in each of the last three years. [225229]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given by the then Minister of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Harrow, East (Mr. McNulty), to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1374W.

Terrorism: Stop and Search

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department has given to the police on the exercise of their power under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 to stop and search those taking photographs in public places. [219421]

Jacqui Smith: Guidance on stop and search powers under section 44 Terrorism Act 2000 was issued by the Home Office in Home Office Circular 038/2004 on 1 July 2004 covering the authorisations for the use of the power.

Operational guidance on the use of section 44 stop and search powers was issued by the National Policing Improvement Agency and the Association of Chief Police Officers in 2006.

Following a commitment given by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in October 2007, the operational guidance issued to the police on section 44 is currently being reviewed by the Home Office, the police, community groups and other stakeholders. The National Police Improvement Agency will issue revised guidance to all police forces in November. This will cover the taking of photographs in public places, although the general position is that there is no legal restriction on photography in such places.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street: Food

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps the Prime Minister's Office is taking to reduce levels of food waste produced in 10 Downing Street. [225648]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Minister for the Third Sector to the hon. Member for East Surrey (Mr. Ainsworth) on 5 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1144-45W.

Departmental Computers

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the Cabinet Office's policy is on the disposal of hard disks from redundant personal computers. [223963]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the Data Handling Report, the publication of which was announced in the statement made by the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, the right hon. Member for Doncaster, North (Edward Miliband) on 25 June 2008, Official Report, columns 25-6WS. The report and the cross government mandatory minimum measures state the core requirements that Departments must adhere to in relation to the secure disposal of both paper and electronic records. A copy of the cross government mandatory minimum measures has been deposited in the Libraries of the House and is available on the following website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/~/media/assets/www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/csia/dhr/cross_gov080625%20pdf.ashx

Paragraph 16 of the mandatory minimum measures for Government Departments states that "All material that has been used for protected data should be subject to controlled disposal".

Guidance to Departments on the secure erasure and disposal of different types of magnetic, semi-conductor and optical media is published by CESG, the National Technical Authority for Information Assurance and is available on their website accessible from the Government Secure Intranet.

Government Communications: Higher Civil Servants

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to appoint a new Permanent Secretary for Government Communications. [222606]

Mr. Watson: The post of Permanent Secretary, Government Communications, was advertised in September 2008 under open competition rules.

Infant Mortality

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many notices of death were received by the Registrar General relating to (a) babies born after 24 weeks gestation and (b) neonatal deaths for each of the last three years, broken down by (i) registration district and (ii) notifying hospital. [224451]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question asking how many notices of death were received by the Registrar General relating to (a) babies born after 24 weeks gestation and (b) neonatal deaths for each of the last three years, broken down by (i) registration district and (ii) notifying hospital. (224451)

The Registrar General is notified of all babies born after 24 weeks of gestation with no signs of life at birth (known as stillbirths). It is not possible to provide information on all babies born after 24 weeks gestation as gestational age for live births is not collected by the Registrar General. ONS routinely uses local authority of residence rather than registration district to produce birth and death statistics.

(a)(i) Table 1 shows numbers of stillbirths by local authority of residence of the mother in England and Wales for the aggregated years 2005 to 2007 (the latest year for which data are available). It is not possible to provide numbers of stillbirths for each of these years separately in order to protect the confidentiality of individuals.

(a)(ii) Numbers of stillbirths by hospital (where the still birth occurred) in England and Wales for each of the years from 2005 to 2007 are shown in table 2.

(b)(i) Numbers of neonatal deaths by local authority of residence in England and Wales for each of the years from 2005 to 2007 are shown in table 3.

(b)(ii) Numbers of neonatal deaths by hospital (where the death occurred) in England and Wales for each of the years from 2005 to 2007 are shown in table 4. Copies of these tables have been placed in the library.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Prosecutions

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions were brought in all courts in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion were cases with outcomes of (a) guilty pleas, (b) discontinuances, (c) convictions after trial, (d) acquittals and (e) other. [226406]

The Solicitor-General: The following tables show the number of defendants prosecuted by the CPS whose case was completed in either the magistrates courts or in the crown court in each of the last ten years, together with the outcome of those proceedings. The table also shows the number and proportion of defendants whose case resulted either in conviction (which includes both guilty pleas and convictions after trial) or an unsuccessful outcome (which comprises all outcomes other than a conviction).

These figures represent all cases prosecuted by the 42 Areas of the CPS, but do not include the small volume of more specialised casework handled at CPS headquarters by the casework directorate, figures for which are compiled on a different basis.

Prosecutions: Driving Offences

Tom Brake: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions have been brought for offences related to the use of a mobile telephone whilst driving in each London borough in the latest year for which figures are available. [225968]

The Solicitor-General: These cases are investigated by the Metropolitan Police in London and the police apply for the issue of summonses in cases they decide to prosecute through the courts. These are offences that are specified under the Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 and as such they are reviewed and presented at court by the police court presentation officers. In the event of a plea of not guilty, or if the defendant fails to attend and evidence is to be called, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) takes over the conduct of proceedings.

The CPS is guided by the Code for Crown Prosecutors, which is issued under the Prosecution of Offences Act 1985. The CPS applies the code so that it can make fair and consistent decisions about prosecutions. The reviewing crown prosecutor must be satisfied that there is enough evidence to provide a realistic prospect of a conviction. If the case does not pass that test it will not go ahead. If the case does pass the evidential test the crown prosecutor goes on to consider the second stage test to decide if a prosecution is needed the public interest. The dominant public interest factor that applies in these cases is that of road safety. The crown prosecutor will continue a prosecution when the case has passed both the evidential and the public interest tests.

Public consultation shows how seriously society views the potential dangers of the use of mobile telephones and other hand-held devices, while driving. The CPS has issued a policy for prosecuting cases of bad driving. In cases where the driver was avoidably dangerously distracted by that use, a charge of dangerous driving is the starting point for charging decisions.

The CPS prosecuted a total of 502 offences of using a mobile telephone while driving in the year 2007-08. The data for 2008 show that in the year 2008-09 538 offences were prosecuted up until and including September 2008. The borough breakdown for 2007-08 is as follows:

	Number
Barnet	8
Bexley	4
Brent	17
Bromley and Orpington	28
BTP	3
Camden	9
City of London	46
City of Westminster	26
Croydon	5

Richmond	4
Southwark	9
Sutton	1
Tower Hamlets	8
Waltham Forest	1
Wandsworth	7

	Number
Originating borough not recorded	169

These figures only represent the cases that the CPS took over from the police because the defendant either pleaded not guilty or failed to attend court and evidence was to be called. A greater number will have pleaded guilty either in person or by post. Those cases will have been prosecuted by the police. The CPS figures show that prosecutions for this type of offending is increasing.

CPS London has set up a unit specialising in traffic prosecutions. serves a number of courts across London and one court centre will take cases from a number of boroughs. The unit makes best use of its resources by serving a restricted number of court centres only. It has been a great success in many ways but not least because it manages to bring successful prosecutions in an overwhelming number of cases.

Prosecutions: Shoplifting

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General how many prosecutions were brought for shoplifting by the Crown Prosecution Service in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement. [225877]

The Solicitor-General: While Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) records include details of proceedings for theft, they provide no discrete count of offences of shoplifting. The Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) has provided the following table of figures derived from the court proceedings database. The figures show the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates' courts, and found guilty at all courts, for offences of stealing from shops and stalls (shoplifting) in England and Wales during the years 2004 to 2006, the latest period for which figures are available.

A range of responses, proportionate to the circumstances of the case, is available for dealing with offences of shoplifting. An offender may be prosecuted, cautioned, or dealt with by way of a fixed penalty notice. The decision to prosecute is taken in accordance with the code for crown prosecutors. Where a case passes the evidential test set out in the code, a number of public interest factors then weigh in favor of a prosecution. these include: evidence that the offence was premeditated; evidence that the offence was carried out by a group; the defendant's previous convictions or cautions; and any grounds for believing that the offence is likely to be repeated.

Under the Penalty Notice for Disorder scheme a fixed penalty of £80 can be issued for the shoplifting of goods, normally up to the value of £100. The introduction of fixed penalty notices was welcomed by the police as it enabled them to do their job quickly and to return to patrolling the streets, which is what the public wants them to do.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Firefighters

7. Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in increasing diversity through the recruitment of firefighters; and if she will make a statement. [226343]

Mr. Khan: The numbers of women and minority ethnic applicants succeeding in the firefighter selection process has shown steady improvement in recent years. Communities and Local Government is working closely with its service partners to further improve performance through the national Equality and Diversity Strategy, which includes recruitment targets.

21. Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in increasing diversity through recruitment of firefighters. [226358]

Mr. Khan: The number of women and minority ethnic applicants succeeding in the firefighter selection process has shown steady improvement in recent years. Communities and Local Government is working closely with its service partners to further improve performance through the national Equality and Diversity Strategy, which includes recruitment targets.

Green Belt

8. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on building on green belt land when brownfield land is available. [226344]

Margaret Beckett: The Government's policy on building on green belt land is set out in Planning Policy Guidance Note 2 (PPG2). PPG2 makes clear that there is a presumption against inappropriate development in the green belt. Such development should not be approved except in very special circumstances.

Infrastructure Planning Commission

9. Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date the Infrastructure Planning Commission will begin to assess planning applications. [226345]

John Healey: Subject to parliamentary approval for the Planning Bill, we expect the Infrastructure Planning Commission to begin determining applications in 2010.

New Towns

10. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on the future of new towns. [226346]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our policy on new towns is set out in Eco-towns—living a greener future: progress report, published on 24 July. Eco-towns will help us deal with the issues of housing shortage, sustainable living and climate change. We have set tough standards, and more details about these will be published shortly in the draft PPS.

Violent Extremism

11. Mark Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in engaging young people to make communities more resilient against violent extremism. [226348]

Mr. Khan: We are engaging with young Muslims in many ways. As well as funding a range of projects nationally and locally to help young people become more resilient to violent extremism, last week, we launched the Young Muslims Advisory Group. This group of 22 young Muslims, aged 16 to 25, will advise Government on a variety of issues.

Community Groups

12. Nia Griffith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on her proposals for the transfer of assets to community groups; and what effect the proposals in the "Communities in control" White Paper will have on this process. [226349]

Hazel Blears: Since May 2007 with CLG support at least 20 assets have already been transferred or are due for transfer in the next 12 months; and £30 million from the Cabinet Office in refurbishment grants will facilitate an additional 35 transfers. Following the White Paper an independent England-wide Asset Transfer Unit will launch in January 2009, and the £70 million Communitybuilders Fund will also invest in further asset transfers.

Fire Service (Havering)

13. Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average response time for the fire service in the London borough of Havering was in the most recent period for which figures are available. [226350]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally. However, the London Fire Brigade have provided the following information:

"The average arrival times for fire engines in the London Borough of Havering for 2007-08 (ending March 2008) is 6 minutes and 35 seconds for the first fire engine and 7 minutes and 5 seconds for the second fire engine"

Home Information Packs

14. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the effect of home information packs on the housing market since their introduction. [226351]

Mr. Iain Wright: Independent research into the impact of home information packs (HIPs) was undertaken by Europe Economics and published on 22 November 2007. The report concluded there was no evidence of any impact on property transactions and prices following the introduction of HIPs. The report also noted a predicted short-term impact of HIPs on new listings, but concluded this would be short lived and the impact on the market would be marginal compared to wider factors. A copy of the report can be found on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/housingmarketanalysis

The Department continues to assess factors affecting the housing market, including the part played by HIPs.

Decent Homes Standard

15. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department plans to take to assist local authorities to ensure that housing meets the decent homes standard. [226352]

Margaret Beckett: Housing policy in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are the responsibilities of the respective Secretaries of State. In England the Government required local authorities owning housing stock to undertake an options appraisal to determine how they would deliver decent homes. Authorities can retain the management and ownership of their housing stock or for authorities who needed extra resources, we provided three delivery options:

setting up an arm's length management organisation; transferring the ownership of the homes to a registered social landlord; and entering into a private finance initiative contract.

Local Government Constitution

16. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will seek discussions with relevant Cabinet colleagues on the establishment of a constitution providing for independent local government; and if she will make a statement. [226353]

John Healey: In the context of the United Kingdom's constitutional arrangements there is recognition of local government, as demonstrated by our ratifying on 24 April 1998, the European Charter of Local Self Government whereby the United Kingdom is committed to the principle of local self government.

Port of Liverpool

17. Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has conducted an economic impact assessment on the decision to levy retrospective business rates on businesses in the port of Liverpool. [226354]

John Healey: The regulatory changes that changed the rating of statutory ports from a prescribed formula to a conventional basis did not change the law regarding what properties should or should not be separately assessed, under which the present action is being taken.

We are looking at the position of ports and the businesses that operate within them, following the end of the use of the prescribed formula.

Eco-towns

18. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in identifying suitable sites for proposed eco-towns. [226355]

Margaret Beckett: In April we announced the shortlist of locations for consultation in "Eco-towns - living a greener future". We received a good response to the first stage consultation and we will shortly publish the draft planning policy statement and sustainability appraisal for consultation. These will set out more details about the locations.

Affordable Housing

19. Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to improve the provision of affordable housing in the north-west. [226356]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government have recently approved a new regional spatial strategy for the North West. This requires local authorities to undertake strategic housing market assessments in order to assess the need for affordable housing within their area and carry this forward in their local development frameworks.

The Government have also announced six new growth points within the North West. Local authorities are currently working up programmes of development for these growth points in which we expect the issue of affordability to be addressed.

22. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made against the Government's targets for the provision of affordable housing in the last two years; and if she will make a statement. [226359]

Margaret Beckett: For the Spending Review 2004, covering 2005-06 to 2007-08, we were set a target to deliver 75,000 social rented homes over the three-year time span. Provisional figures indicate that we have met this target.

Regeneration

20. Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department plans to take to unlock the talent of communities through regeneration. [226357]

Hazel Blears: We are enabling people to make the most of their potential and tackle the barriers that communities face through regeneration. Our new regeneration framework reinforces the importance of connecting deprived areas to opportunity and involving residents in decisions about regeneration priorities.

We are investing over £1.5 billion in the Working Neighbourhoods Fund and over £100 million via the Local Enterprise Growth Initiative. Both are focused on the most deprived areas—supporting local innovative approaches to help residents to get into and get on in the labour market; and helping potential entrepreneurs to start up new businesses. Our White Paper "Communities in control: real people, real power" marks an important step in the transfer of power, changing the culture in public services and the terms of the debate. In particular, it sets out:

A requirement for councils to respond to all local petitions;

A new duty to promote democracy to put local authorities at the heart of connecting people with public decisions; and

A new £70 million community builders fund to support community organisations across England to acquire and run community buildings, provide local services and become more financially self sustainable.

2012 Olympic Games

23. Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Mayor of London on the potential contribution of the legacy of the 2012 Olympic Games to regeneration in London. [226360]

Hazel Blears: I have met the London Mayor on two occasions to discuss the potential contribution of legacy from the 2012 Olympic Games to regeneration in London. Firstly, at a bi-lateral meeting on 3 September at my offices. Secondly, at the Olympic Park Regeneration Steering Group (OPRSG) at City Hall on 8 October. The Mayor chairs OPRSG, a group which includes the Leaders and Mayors of the five host boroughs, the Minister for London and the Olympics and the Minister for Housing, and reports to the Olympic Board on legacy issues.

Architects Registration Board

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many people were employed by the Architects Registration Board in each year since its establishment; [226649]

(2) what the percentage change in fees for examination by the Architects Registration Board or its committee under section 4(2) for equivalence to a prescribed qualification is between those established for 2008 and those to be charged in 2009; [226329]

(3) what the annual running costs of the Architects Registration Board were in each year since its establishment in 2007-08 prices; [226650]

(4) what the expected cost is of the ongoing refurbishment of the headquarters of the Architects Registration Board. [226651]

Mr. Iain Wright: These are operational matters for the Architects Registration Board. I have asked the registrar and chief executive of the Architects Registration Board to write to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Karen Holmes dated 13 October 2008:

I am writing in response to your recent questions to the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport. I have listed the answers to each question in turn.

1. What is the percentage increase in fees for examination by the Architects Registration Board or its Committee under Section 4(2) for equivalence to a prescribed qualifications between those established for 2008 and those to be charged in 2009?

The percentage increase on the 2008 fee is 14.88%. The Board's policy regarding the examination fee is that it should be self-financing, that is, it should not be subsidised by architects. The fee has been held at the same level since 2007 and is being increased for 2009 solely as a result of increased costs in its operation.

2. What were the annual running costs of the Architects Registration Board in each year since its establishment in 2007/2008?

We have calculated the figures you requested using the appropriate year's Retail Price Index, excluding mortgage payments. Please note that the figures for 2008 are not yet available, but will be published in due course. Information about the Board and its work is in its 2007 annual report, and I am pleased to enclose a copy for you. It is also published on our website, www.arb.org.uk.

	Actual total expenditure	Total expenditure at 2008 prices
1997	1,063,631	1,413,644
1998	1,275,754	1,652,284
1999	1,381,077	1,748,412
2000	1,919,389	2,380,638
2001	1,846,946	2,242,643
2002	2,091,080	2,483,979
2003	2,101,532	2,428,437
2004	2,402,757	2,716,160
2005	2,421,404	2,676,153
2006	2,448,498	2,629,260
2007	2,582,066	2,686,630

3. What is the expected cost of the ongoing refurbishment of the headquarters of the Architects Registration Board?

The Board recently agreed a budget allocation for 2009 of £350,000, excluding professional fees, to refurbish its offices. The Board's landlords commenced negotiations with the Board in 2004 as they wished to extend their Weymouth Street premises. The Board used this opportunity to negotiate a more flexible and modern lease, as the previous lease was particularly onerous in terms of length.

A significant advantage of the additional space secured as part of the negotiations will be for the Board to hold its public Board meetings in-house rather than having to use external premises. The Board has also welcomed the opportunity to deliver compliance with regard to its responsibilities under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. Part of the refurbishment plan will be both to install a disabled lift access to the main reception area and compliant toilet facilities, along with additional assistance for people with hearing impairments. Although an overall budget allocation of £350,000 has been made, the project is at an early stage with the final specification and tender document yet to be agreed. The Board is very conscious of its obligations to be prudent and economical and will ensure that the project not only delivers the Board's objectives, but also offers value for money.

4. How many people have been employed by the Architects Registration Board in each year since its establishment?

The details are as follows.

	Staff employed
1997	16
1998	16
1999	17
2000	17
2001	17
2002	17
2003	18
2004	18
2005	18
2006	18
2007	19
2008	19

The increase to the Board's staff resources has been necessary for the Board to continue to deliver its statutory functions. More information about the Board's increased workload is in the 2007 annual report.

I hope the information I have set out in this letter has been of assistance, and has helped to address any concerns you may have had. I do know that both the Board's Chairman, Michael Starling, and Registrar, Alison Carr, would be very pleased to meet you to discuss the Board and its work in more detail. Please let me know if you would like to accept this offer to meet, so that we can arrange a date that is convenient for you.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Community Infrastructure Levy

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what types of development she has considered exempting from the requirement to pay the proposed community infrastructure levy; [226617]

(2) when she plans to publish the categories of development to be exempt from paying the community infrastructure levy; [226618]

(3) whether she will make it her policy that developments that promote sport or physical activity be exempt from paying the community infrastructure levy. [226619]

Mr. Iain Wright: As my right hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government stated when the Planning Bill was in Commons Committee, our principal starting point is that almost all developments will have some imposition and impact on the need for infrastructure, and some call on local services or amenities. In addition, exemptions to, or reductions from, CIL may cause complexity and distortion and reduce fairness. Therefore, the Government envisage that most types of development will be liable to pay CIL.

The Government will however consider the case for exemptions when consulting on the regulations to implement CIL, and will set out the exemptions available in the final regulations. Any exemptions we create must be legally robust and based on coherent criteria, such as those set out at page 60 of the CIL policy document published in August.

Our document is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/pdf/communityinfrastructurelevy.pdf

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether developments in receipt of funding from the community infrastructure levy will be exempt from paying the levy charge. [226620]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Community Infrastructure Levy (CIL) clauses in the Planning Bill, now in the other place, stipulate that CIL funding may be applied only to infrastructure that supports the development of an area. Infrastructure in itself has other impacts on infrastructure. For instance, a power station might place new burdens on the local road network. Therefore, the Government do not consider it right to provide an automatic exemption from paying CIL for developments that have been in receipt of CIL funding.

This is not to say that there will be no exemptions from CIL. The Government will consider the case for exemptions when consulting on regulations, and as we made clear in the CIL policy document published on 5 August, any exemptions from CIL will be decided on the basis of the criteria set out at page 60 of our publication, available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/pdf/communityinfrastructurelevy.pdf

Council Housing: Immigrants

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the number of (a) non-UK EU national-headed households and (b) A8 national-headed households in social housing in (i) the most recent period for which figures are available and (ii) each year since such figures became available; and what proportion this represented of housing stock in each year; [226933]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of foreign national-headed households in social housing in (a) the most recent period for which figures are available and (b) each year since such figures became available; and what proportion this represented of housing stock in each year; [226934]

(3) how many foreign nationals obtained a tenancy without holding an existing social housing tenancy in the most recent year for which figures are available; [226935]

(4) how many new (a) local authority social lettings and (b) registered social landlord lettings were made to foreign nationals from (i) EU member states and (ii) non-EU states in the most recent year for which figures are available. [226936]

Mr. Iain Wright: The latest results from the Survey of English Housing, based on the period 2005-06 to 2006-07, are that there were an estimated 310,000 social tenants in England who were foreign nationals—8 per cent. of all social tenants. This question on nationality was introduced for the first time in 2005-06.

The Survey of English Housing doesn't identify the nationalities of householders to a level that can identify non-UK EU nationals or A8 nationals. However, results from the new English Housing Survey that started in April 2008 (replacing the Survey of English Housing) will capture more detailed information about the nationality of householders.

Information on the number of foreign national households allocated social housing is collected in the Continuous Recording of Letting form (CORE). For this information, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 16 May 2008, Official Report, column 1798W.

Council Housing: Sales

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority-owned homes were sold on the private market in each of the last 10 years, broken down by size of dwelling. [226567]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not collected centrally.

Council Tax

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to make a decision on whether to introduce legislation to allow council tax payments to be taken from bank accounts. [225565]

John Healey: It is already legal for billing authorities to deduct council tax payments from bank accounts by direct debit with the consent of the account holder.

County Councils: Marketing

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to collect statistics on how much each (a) county council and (b) borough council spends on communication and marketing. [224624]

John Healey: This information is not collected centrally and we have no plans to do so.

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the cost effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of her Department. [226518]

Mr. Khan: My Department's advertising campaigns are routinely assessed for cost effectiveness and the results for the financial year 2007-08 were published in the Department's annual report. The Department's recruitment advertising is assessed by the quality, appropriateness and number of applicants applying for publicly advertised posts.

Derelict Land

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans English Partnerships has to develop former coalfield sites in the next two years. [224582]

Mr. Iain Wright: English Partnerships is responsible for the management of the national coalfields programme (NCP) working with the regional development agencies and local authority partners. The NCP aims to remediate and bring back into use 107 former coalfield sites.

The NCP is a key contributor to English Partnerships' overall output targets and its ambition to deliver lasting outcomes and improvements in the former coalfield communities. The programme therefore remains a priority for English Partnerships with the momentum and integrity of the programme continuing as English Partnerships moves into the new Homes and Communities Agency from 1 December.

The National Coalfields Programme is ringfenced, with capital receipts being recycled into future projects. The level of activity over the next two years will therefore be influenced to some extent by the level of receipts returning to the programme and market conditions are currently challenging. Even so, the programme remains on track to substantially complete all significant investments in strategically important sites delivering housing, employment and clear community benefits by 2012, with a longer timescale for sites with potential for public open space. Up to £432 million of investment is forecast to be delivered during the remaining lifetime of the programme.

Empty Property

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of empty homes in each region, broken down by (a) size and (b) type of dwelling. [226462]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on empty dwellings by size and type of dwelling is not held centrally. The following table shows the number of long term empty dwellings and total empty dwellings in each region as at October 2007.

Region	Number of long term empty dwellings (empty for more than six months)	Total number of empty dwellings
North East	21,583	48,066
North West	73,047	141,060
Yorkshire and the Humber	40,084	101,035
East Midlands	27,306	69,805
West Midlands	34,833	80,359
East	24,704	69,072
London	36,534	84,596
South East	34,226	101,761
South West	21,732	66,881
England	314,049	762,635

Source:
Council Taxbase and Council Taxbase Supplementary (CTBI and CTBIS) returns from local authorities

Those dwellings vacant for less than six months are more likely to be empty for a short period following a sale and are seen as 'transactional' vacant dwellings and are thus a characteristic of the housing market.

Empty Property: Non-domestic Rates

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the effects of changes in empty property business rates on the property market. [226340]

John Healey: We published an impact assessment of the empty property reforms in May 2007 alongside the primary legislation. On 26 February this year, I laid a further assessment before the House, alongside the regulations.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made against the Government's target to build three million homes by 2020; and what proportion of those three million homes she expects to be built in the next two years. [225450]

Mr. Iain Wright: In 2006-07 199,200 additional homes were delivered.

The Government do not publish forecasts for private house building. Housing starts in 2007-08 were 10 per cent. lower than in 2006-07 and this is likely to be reflected in lower levels of housing completions during 2008-09.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effects of current trends in the housing market on the delivery of Government targets on affordable housing. [226271]

Mr. Iain Wright: We remain committed to the long-term delivery of affordable housing. It remains too early, given current market conditions to predict outputs in the short terms.

We recently announced on 2 September 2008, our market rescue package to increase confidence, stability and fairness in the housing market, building on previous announcements in May and July. As part of this package we will be supporting up to 6,000 of the most vulnerable homeowners facing repossession to remain in their home; offering up to 10,000 first-time buyers currently frozen out of the mortgage market a chance to get onto the property ladder through new shared equity schemes; and bringing forward £400 million to deliver up to 5,500 new social homes over the next 18 months.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the provision of affordable housing in rural areas. [226272]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation has been set a national target to provide 10,300 affordable homes in smaller rural communities from 2008-09 to 2010-11. Grant will be allocated to those schemes which meet the needs of local people, the regional strategy and demonstrate strong value for money from the £8.4 billion National Affordable Housing Programme.

The Prime Minister commissioned a report from the hon. Member for Truro and St. Austell (Matthew Taylor) who has been looking at how land use and planning can better support rural business and deliver affordable housing in rural communities. His report, published in July, provides a comprehensive review of the issues that our rural communities face, and provides a number of practical recommendations. We are looking at the report in detail and will publish a full response later this year.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her most recent estimate is of (a) the cost of providing a social rented unit and (b) the average public subsidy in the form of grant for such a unit in the most recent period for which figures are available. [226932]

Mr. Iain Wright: Through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme for 2007-08 the average total scheme cost was £150,200 for a social rented unit which includes the cost of purchasing land, building materials etc. The average public subsidy was £65,500 for social rented units of which £59,700 was social housing grant.

Housing: Overcrowding

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of households living in overcrowded conditions in each region in each of the last 10 years. [226461]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table contains estimates of the numbers of overcrowded households in each region from 1997-98 to 2006-07. Levels of overcrowding are measured through the Survey of English Housing and assessed against the "bedroom standard". Due to small sample sizes, a three year moving average is used.

Housing: Owner Occupation

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average rate of home ownership is in England; what the rate is among those from ethnic minority groups; and if she will make a statement. [225907]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is estimated that 70 per cent. of households in England in 2007 were owner occupiers. Among ethnic minority groups, 50 per cent. of households were owner occupiers. These estimates are based on ONS Labour Force Survey data.

Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding is to be provided to home improvement agencies under the Supporting People budget in the next 12 months. [226663]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are not able to say how much Supporting People funding will be provided to Home Improvement Agencies under the Supporting People budget in the next 12 months. The Supporting People programme is delivered at a local level and decisions on how much money is spent on services, including Home Improvement Agencies, are made by the top tier local authorities, based on local priorities and need. The 2008-09 allocations for Supporting People amount to £1.686 billion. We do know that, together, the top tier authorities spent £12,768,942 on Home Improvement Agencies in 2005-06, increasing to £15,413,865 in 2006-07 (2007-08 data is not yet available).

Housing: Standards

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if her Department will consider the merits of re-introducing Parker-Morris standards for new housing. [224722]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's delivery bodies, the Housing Corporation (HC) and English Partnerships (EP) are already engaged in this issue. They have taken a lead in setting benchmarks for high quality urban design, construction and environmental sustainability. It is important that they understand the issues around residential living space, to help build on existing good practice and explore innovative ideas. The Homes and Communities Agency will consider how to take this forward.

'Parker Morris' standards were appropriate for the housing needs of the time. A partnership of industry bodies have been working together to examine the issue. Currently these partners, including the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE), EP, HC and the Royal Institute of British Architects (RIB A) are sharing information and undertaking research to understand if there is a legitimate issue concerning size of new build open market units. It is important that an evidence base is established before conclusions can be drawn on whether there is a problem and whether this is a matter for public policy intervention.

Local Authorities: Housing

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have been permitted to introduce selective licensing schemes under the Housing Act 2004; how many applications have yet to be approved; how many have been refused; and if she will make a statement. [225300]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following local authorities have been granted approval to operate selective licensing schemes under the Housing Act 2004.

Salford city council;

Middlesbrough borough council;

Manchester city council;

Gateshead borough council;
Sedgefield borough council;
Burnley borough council; and
Bolton borough council.

The Department is currently considering applications from Blackburn with Darwen borough council, Leeds city council,. Easington district council and Hartlepool borough council. We invite local authorities to work with CLG officials in the development of their proposals so that the applications when submitted are consistent with published criteria. This has meant that the Secretary of State has not refused any applications.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to assist local authorities with deposits in Landsbanki. [226999]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement 'Impact on local authority finances of Icelandic bank failures' made by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government today.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assistance her Department is giving to those local authorities that have deposited funds with Icelandic banks; [227060]

(2) what role her Department is playing in providing help and support to those local authorities that have invested in Icelandic banks. [227062]

John Healey: I refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement 'Impact on local authority finances of Icelandic bank failures' made by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government today.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have invested in Icelandic banks. [227061]

John Healey: The LGA is now completing its urgent analysis of the situation for individual local authorities that may have had investments in Icelandic banks. I will be meeting with the LGA again this week to discuss the issues arising on a case by case basis.

I also refer the hon. Member to the written statement, 'Impact on local authority finances of Icelandic bank failures', made by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government today.

Local Government Finance: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the Bassetlaw Council's expenditure of local government business growth initiative money on job evaluation. [226773]

John Healey: The grant that has been paid to authorities under the Local Authority Business Growth Incentives scheme is non-ringfenced—which means it is for local authorities themselves to decide how that money is spent.

Local Government: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what options are available to Bassetlaw residents seeking the introduction of a unitary local government authority in their area; and if she will make a statement. [224926]

John Healey: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 583W.

Mortgages: North Lanarkshire

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many mortgage applications relating to the purchase of property in Coatbridge, Chryston and Bellshill constituency were approved in each of the last 24 months. [225960]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The Government do not hold these figures. The Bank of England publishes national data on mortgage approvals, which are available at:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/statistics/statistics.htm.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether responses to the South East Plan consultation sent to her Department, rather than the Government Office for the South East, will be considered as part of the South East Plan consultation process. [227125]

Mr. Khan: All consultation responses should be sent to the Government office for the south-east (GOSE) by 24 October. Any responses received by the Department for Communities and Local Government will be passed on to GOSE.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many responses to the South East Plan consultation have been received by (a) the Government Office for the South East and (b) her Department. [227126]

Mr. Khan: All consultation responses should be sent to the Government office for the south-east (GOSE) by 24 October. Any responses received by the Department for Communities and Local Government will be passed on to GOSE.

As the consultation period is still running it is not possible to give a precise answer to this question, as comments are still being logged. However, GOSE estimate that around 2,000 responses had been received by 13 October.

Social Rented Housing: Sales

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many right to buy sales of council and social housing there were in each month of the last two years; and what revenue was generated in each month. [225552]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table sets out sales of local authority and registered social landlord (RSL) properties under the right to buy and preserved right to buy schemes between April 2006 and March 2008, and the receipts arising from those sales in the same period. These figures are presented by quarter for local authorities, and annually for RSLs, rather than monthly, as this is the basis on which Communities and Local Government collects this information. Figures are based on returns made to the Department by local authorities and to the Housing Corporation from RSLs.

Quarter	Number of RTB sales of dwellings by local authorities	Total receipts arising from LA RTB sales (£m)	Number of RTB and preserved RTB sales of dwellings by registered social landlords	Total receipts arising from RSL RTB and preserved RTB sales (£m)
April to June 2006	4,480	287.1	[1]4,840	[2]259.6
July to September 2006	4,280	277.9	[1]—	[2]—
October to December 2006	4,810	314.2	[1]—	[2]—
January to March 2007	3,330	266.2	[1]—	[2]—
April to June 2007	3,520	265.9	[3]3,150	[4]197.3
July to September 2007	3,360	267.6	[3]—	[4]—
October to December 2007	3,050	237.8	[3]—	[4]—
January to March 2008	2,030	162.7	[3]—	[4]—

Figures for local authority (LA) sales and sales receipts are from PIB quarterly returns from local authorities to CLG.

Figures for registered social landlord (RSL) sales are from RSR (regulatory and statistical return) annual returns from RSLs to the Housing Corporation. Figures for sales receipts are from CORE (continuous recording) returns from RSLs to the Housing Corporation.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to reply to Question 167261, on insurance of flood-damaged property, tabled on 19 November 2007. [227131]

Mr. Khan: The hon. Member's question was transferred to the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and answered by my hon. Friend the then Environment Minister, the hon. Member for Oldham, East and Saddleworth (Mr. Woolas) on 27 November 2007, Official Report, column 316W.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academies use their powers to select up to 10 per cent. of their intake by aptitude; and if he will make a statement. [225068]

Jim Knight: Of the 130 open academies there are 21 who can select up to 10 per cent. of their intake by aptitude. They are as follows:

The Business Academy, Bexley
The City Academy, Bristol
Capital City Academy, Brent
The Academy at Peckham, Southwark
City of London Academy, Southwark
Djanogly City Academy, Nottingham
Dixons City Academy, Bradford
Macmillan Academy, Middlesbrough
Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham Academy, Lewisham
Haberdashers' Knights Academy, Lewisham
Harefield Academy, Hillingdon
The John Madejski Academy, Reading
Ashcroft Technology Academy, Wandsworth
William Hulme's Grammar School, Manchester
The Belvedere Academy, Liverpool
Harris City Academy, Crystal Palace, Croydon
John Cabot Academy, South Gloucestershire
Wren Academy, Barnet
The Priory LSST Academy, Lincoln
Colston's Girls' School, Bristol
Bristol Choir Academy, Bristol

Alderman Blaxill School Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the names are of (a) representatives of his Department, (b) representatives of Essex county council and (c) others who accompanied the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Schools and Learners) on his recent visit to the Alderman Blaxill School in Colchester. [226216]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: When my predecessor, Lord Adonis, visited Alderman Blaxill School in Colchester in September 2008 he was accompanied by Peter Clough, a departmental official.

The Essex county council representatives who were present were Lord Hanningfield, Leader of the Council and Portfolio Holder for Schools; Brandon Hallam, Chief Executive of the Policy and International Unit; Terry Reynolds: Director for Learning; and Rosemary Prince, Secondary Area Improvement Manager.

A member of Lord Adonis' private office was also present during the visit.

Antisocial Behaviour

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how the taper for the funding of family intervention projects between 2008 and 2011 will operate; and if he will place a copy of the evaluations of the projects in the Library; [194268]

(2) when he plans to answer Question 194268, on family intervention projects, tabled on 11th March 2008. [222804]

Beverley Hughes: According to our records a response was sent to the hon. Member on 27 March.

The Secretary of State announced on 5 October 2007 that the Department for Children, Schools and Families would provide up to £18 million ongoing funding for the Family Intervention Projects. The projects will receive tapered funding over 2008 to 2011 to help them move towards securing mainstream funding. In each of these three years projects will receive 70 per cent. of their previous years funding allocation. The final report from the Family Intervention Project evaluation was published in July 2008 and has been placed in the Libraries.

Building Schools for the Future

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools among the 500 lowest performing primary schools have received funding under the Building Schools for the Future programme in the last five years. [225512]

Jim Knight: Building Schools for the Future is aimed at secondary schools. It follows that no primary schools have received funding from this programme in the last five years. However we are taking a similarly transformational approach to capital investment for the primary sector through the Primary Capital Programme. Funding for the pathfinder phase commenced in April this year and will be rolled out to all local authorities from 2009-10. Subject to future Government spending decisions, the programme commits to renewing at least half of all primary school building by 2022-23, creating "primary schools that are equipped for 21st century learning, at the heart of their communities, with children's services in reach of every family". The programme is supported by £1.9 billion of new capital investment over the three-year period 2008-09 to 2010-11. To access that funding local authorities must develop and agree with the Department a Primary Strategy for Change.

Canvey Island Secondary School: Playing Fields

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will hold discussions with Essex county council on the proposed selling of playing fields at Canvey Island secondary school; and if he will make a statement. [225268]

Jim Knight: There are three secondary schools on Canvey Island—The Cornelius Vermuyden school and Arts college, Furtherwick Park school, and Castle View school. Essex county council has advised the Department that they are unaware of any proposals to dispose of school playing fields.

Children: Assessments

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children in care were working towards (a) level 1, (b) level 2, (c) level 3 and (d) level 4 in key stage 1 tests in (i) writing, (ii) reading, (iii) literacy, (iv) speaking and listening and (v) science in each of the last five years. [225843]

Beverley Hughes: The number and percentage of looked after children achieving at least level 2 in reading, writing and mathematics in the Key Stage 1 tests for 2005, 2006 and 2007 can be found in table B of the "Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, Twelve months to 30 September 2007—England" Statistical First Release accessible via the link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000785/index.shtml.

The number and percentage of looked after children achieving at least level 2 in reading, writing and mathematics in the Key Stage 1 tests for 2003 and 2004 can be found in table B of the "Outcome Indicators for Looked-after Children, Twelve months to 30 September 2005—England" Statistical First Release accessible via the link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000651/index.shtml.

Due to a revised assessment-procedure figures prior to 2005 are not directly comparable with later years.

Through Care Matters and measures contained in the Children and Young Persons Bill, the Government are taking steps to improve the educational achievement of looked after children. These include putting the Designated Teacher role on a statutory footing and piloting the role of the Virtual School Head in championing the educational outcomes of looked after children.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons a pupil may be working at the level of assessment for but unable to take key stage 2 tests. [225844]

Jim Knight: The national curriculum tests have been designed to ensure that the vast majority of pupils working at the level of the tests can access them. However there may be a small number of pupils who require additional arrangements to access the tests. Arrangements can be made to adjust test conditions to enable fair and equal access to the tests for these pupils.

There are many reasons why a pupil may require access arrangements. Access arrangements would be appropriate for pupils whose learning difficulty or disability significantly affects their ability to access the tests; pupils who are unable to sit and work at a test for a sustained period because of a disability or because of behavioural, emotional or social difficulties; and pupils for whom English is an additional language and who have limited fluency in English.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what average number of GCSEs was taken by pupils in maintained schools in each of the last five years, broken down by local authority area; [226029]

(2) how many GCSEs were taken on average by children eligible for free school meals in maintained schools in each of the last five years, broken down by local authority. [226030]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table for 2006-07, the other years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Children: Databases

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families members of which professions will have access to the ContactPoint database. [225830]

Beverley Hughes: The purpose of ContactPoint is to support practitioners in fulfilling their duties under section 10 (duty to co-operate to improve well-being), and section 11 (safeguarding and promoting welfare of children) of the Children Act 2004, section 175 of the Education Act 2002 (duty to safeguard and promote the welfare of children), and the local authority duties established by section 436A of the Education Act 1996 (to identify children not receiving education).

Regulation 9(2) of the Children Act 2004 Information Database (England) Regulations 2007 provides that such access to ContactPoint may only be granted, in line with this purpose, by a local authority to the persons specified in schedule 3 (listed at annex A). Regulation 9(3) provides that such access to ContactPoint may only be granted, in line with the same purpose, by a 'national partner' (listed at annex B), to an employee of that 'national partner'.

Children: Human Trafficking

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will bring forward plans for secure children's homes for children trafficked into the UK for the purpose of sexual exploitation. [225959]

Beverley Hughes: It is extremely important that all children in care are protected properly. Decisions on whether a child should be placed in a secure children's home are made according to the child's best interests. It would be inappropriate for the Government to second guess individual placement decisions by promoting secure children's homes as a preferred option. Where a local authority looks after a child, including those that have been trafficked, then they are responsible for identifying a placement that will be appropriate to meeting their needs, including their need to be kept safe from any likely harm.

Children: Literacy

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to improve literacy levels among key stage 2 children. [224988]

Jim Knight: The Primary Framework for literacy offers access to a broad range of guidance and resources to support teachers in planning and ensuring their teaching is personalised to the needs of every child. This includes, from this September, new Support for Writing materials to improve the teaching of writing and raise standards in children's learning in this area. Through the Assessing Pupil Progress materials which underpin the Framework teachers can make secure judgments on where children are in their learning and what the next steps in their teaching should be.

In addition, we have started pilots this term of the new Every Child a Writer programme—a Children's Plan commitment. This programme focuses on pupils in years 3 and 4 and includes some one to one tuition. The Making Good Progress Pilot is trialling tuition to pupils who entered the Key Stages behind the expected level and who are not on track to make two levels of progress. Lessons learned from the pilot will inform a wide scale rollout of one to one tuition to reach 300,000 children a year in English by 2010-11 across Key Stages 2 and 3.

Children: Numeracy

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to improve numeracy skills among key stage 2 children. [224989]

Jim Knight: The primary framework for literacy and mathematics offers access to a broad range of guidance and resources to support teachers in planning and ensuring their teaching is personalised to the needs of every child. Through the Assessing Pupil Progress materials which underpin the framework, teachers can make secure judgments on where children are in their learning and what the next steps in their teaching should be.

The Independent Review of Mathematics Teaching in Early Years Settings and Primary Schools carried out by Sir Peter Williams reported on 17 June 2008. The Government accepted all 10 recommendations which focused on improving mathematics teaching and learning. The review's main recommendation was that every primary school should have access to a mathematics specialist by 2019. We are developing the training programme for mathematics specialists through a pathfinder project.

In addition, our Every Child Counts programme is in its development phase and will aim to help approximately 30,000 children by 2011. Pilots have started this term. By improving attainment and progression in the bottom 5 per cent. of achievers in key stage 1, this should have a knock-on effect on attainment and progression in key stage 2.

We have set up the National Centre for Excellence in the Teaching of Mathematics to provide better access to good quality continuing professional development opportunities for all teachers of mathematics.

We have published a directory of mathematics enhancement and enrichment activities for schools that aim to improve pupils' attitude, motivation and enthusiasm for mathematics.

The Making Good Progress Pilot is trialling tuition to pupils who entered key stages 2 and 3 behind the expected level in mathematics and who are not on track to make two levels of progress. Lessons learned from the pilot will inform a wide scale roll-out of tuition to reach 300,000 children a year in each of mathematics and English by 2010-11. 2010-11 will also see the introduction of an entitlement to individual tuition in mathematics for any pupil in key stage 2 who meets this criterion.

Children: Vetting

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what measures are in place to vet people coming into contact with children as part of their work experience for foundation and higher diplomas. [226026]

Beverley Hughes: All people having regular contact with and direct, unsupervised access to young people engaged in work experience as part of a foundation or higher diploma should be considered for a Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) disclosure. The decision to seek a CRB disclosure will depend on an assessment of the overall potential risks posed to a young person and should take into account the placement provider's systems for minimising such risks.

The Department has published a range of guidance—both statutory and non-statutory—setting out the roles and responsibilities of both work experience providers and those arranging such placements to ensure that students are learning in a safe environment and are protected from harm.

Children's Centres

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what the adult to child ratio in Sure Start children's centres in England was in 2007-08; [225275]

(2) what percentage of children attending Sure Start children's centres in 2007-08 were from each socio-economic group; and what percentage of eligible children from each socio-economic group attended in that period. [225276]

Beverley Hughes: There are no adult/child ratios that are specifically for Sure Start children's centres. Where a centre's services include registered early years provision (integrated early learning and full day care places) this provision is subject to the same ratios and standards as all registered early years provision.

The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on the number of Ofsted registered places per paid member of staff in full day care settings in Sure Start children's centres. In 2007, there were 3.9 registered places per paid member of staff.

The Department does not collect information centrally about the percentage of children attending Sure Start children's centres or their socio-economic group. Sure Start children's centres provide universal services for families with children under five. All children, no matter what their socio-economic group, are eligible to access services as are their fathers, mothers and carers. There are currently over 2,900 centres up and running providing early childhood services for almost 2.3 million children. By 2010, there will be at least 3,500 Sure Start children's centres—one for every community.

Children's Centres: Disadvantaged

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children starting primary school in 2008 and eligible for free school meals attended a Sure Start children's centre in the 2007-08 academic year. [225274]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not held centrally.

Custody

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families under what circumstances and for what reasons legal custody of a child may be removed from the parents of that child in cases where custody is not contested between the parents themselves. [225217]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 8 October 2008]: A local authority can only intervene in the care and upbringing of a child without the parents' agreement if the local authority obtains a court order. The Children Act 1989 set out the circumstances under which a child may become subject to a care or supervision order. The threshold criteria for such intervention are:

> that the child concerned is suffering, or is likely to suffer, significant harm; and > that the harm, or likelihood of harm, is attributable to the care given to the child (or which would be given if a care or supervision order were not made) and is not what could be reasonably expected of a parent, or that the child is beyond the control of the parents.

Before any application is made in proceedings, the local authority will undertake a core assessment to assess the parents' capacity to meet the child's developmental needs in the context of the wider family and environmental factors. Other specialist assessments may also be commissioned. This assessment will identify whether there is evidence to support concerns about significant harm but will also focus on family strengths. The information will be analysed and lead to the development of a plan for the child which may result in care proceedings if the local authority consider that the criteria set out above have been met.

It is for the court to determine whether the threshold criteria are met and whether a care order is in the best interests of the child. All the other parties involved have the right to respond to any allegations made in the analysis.

Departmental Consultants

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on consultations in each year since 1997. [226092]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This information could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many civil servants employed by his Department stopped working for the Department in each of the last (a) 12 months and (b) five years. [224802]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was formed as part of the machinery of government changes announced on 28 June 2007. Figures are only available up to the end of August 2008.

During the period 28 June to 31 August, 389 people ceased working for the Department.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many public consultations were launched by his Department in each year since 1997. [225884]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The figures for DCSF and its predecessors, the Department for Education and Employment and Department for Education and Skills are as follows:

	Consultations launched
1997 (from 1 August)	2
1998	3
1999	3

Departmental Publications

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of all staff in his Department who were involved with the preparation and publication of (a) reports and (b) consultations in each year since 1997. [225904]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The Department has a central publications team which, since DCSF was established in 2007, has comprised of 2.5 full-time equivalent staff. However, central records are not held of the many different officials who contribute to the undertakings and publication of the Department's reports. It is therefore not possible to give an accurate estimate of their number or proportion without incurring disproportionate cost.

(b) The Department currently has a central consultation unit which comprises 7.4 full-time staff. This unit manages around 60 per cent. of the Department's consultations and provides support to policy teams running the remainder. Information on the number and proportion of policy team staff involved in consultations is not held centrally and could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many reports were published by his Department and its predecessor in each year since 1997. [225905]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This Department and its predecessors published the following number of corporate reports since 1997:

	Number
1997	1
1998	1
1999	1
2000	1
2001	1
2002	1
2003	2
2004	2
2005	2
2006	2
2007	2
2008 (to date)	1

Our central records do not show items which may have been produced under devolved budgets by individual policy teams.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average number of days spent on the preparation and publication of (a) reports and (b) consultations by his staff in each year since 1997. [225906]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information is as follows:

(a) Because budgets for the Department's publications are devolved to individual policy teams, we do not keep central records to show how long staff spend on the undertaking and publication of reports each year. It is therefore not possible to give an accurate estimate without incurring disproportionate cost.

(b) The number of days spent undertaking consultations is not recorded centrally and could not be collated without incurring disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on the (a) production and (b) publication of reports in each year since 1997. [226093]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since its formation, this Department spent £37,720 on production of its corporate reports in 2007 and £21,112 (to date) in 2008.

Our records do not distinguish between the costs of production and publication, and central records do not show items which may have been produced under devolved budgets by individual policy teams.

Departmental Redundancy Pay

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much was spent by his Department on voluntary early release schemes and redundancies in each of the last 10 years. [224801]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was formed as part of the machinery of government changes announced on 28 June 2007.

During the period 28 June to date, the cost of voluntary early releases to the Department is £13.2 million. This covers releases planned until September 2009.

Departmental Telephone Services

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what agencies or units for which his Department is responsible require the public to make telephone calls to them on numbers which charge more than the national call rate; and how much income each such agency has derived from such charges in each of the last three years. [225718]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information is as follows:

(a) The DCSF general inquiry line uses an 0870 number to provide a standard call rate for members of the public irrespective of where they live in the country. The Department does not receive any income from the use of an 0870 number.

(b) The Department also contracts with suppliers to provide helpline services to the public, usually in support of information campaigns.

The Sexwise inquiry number is an 0800 number and is therefore free from landlines. The Affordable Childcare Campaign Helpline is also a free 0800 number. Calls to this number are diverted to local family information services in each local authority. The transfers are also cost free to callers.

As with all 0800 numbers, some mobile network charges may apply.

(c) The Department does not have any agencies.

(d) We do not hold costs for our non-departmental public bodies.

Diplomas: Mathematics

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which diplomas will include (a) compulsory and (b) optional mathematics A-level. [226028]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Mathematics A-Level isn't compulsory for any Diploma, but will be available to learners as part of additional/specialist learning. This offers young people the opportunity to study mathematics where it supports their progression to employment or further study.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people claimed the education maintenance allowance in each year since its introduction. [226031]

Jim Knight: The numbers of successful EMA claims in each academic year since inception is shown in the following table:

	Numbers accessing EMA
1999-2000	14,135
2000-01	73,230
2001-02	114,254
2002-03	124,351
2003-04	126,871
2004-05	297,567
2005-06	430,327
2006-07	528,403
2007-08	556,702

Notes:
1. Young people who have claimed EMA while on an E2E programme and then progressed in the same year to a school sixth form or a college course will be counted twice in the yearly figures;
2. These figures are for England only.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of those aged 16 years and older in education who are eligible to claim education maintenance allowance but do not do so. [226032]

Jim Knight: Eligibility for the education maintenance allowance (EMA) is based on household income. The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the household income of all households with a 16 to 19-year-old who participate in a course that meets the EMA valid provision criteria. Therefore it is not possible to calculate the precise number of students who are eligible for EMA on household income grounds but do not do so.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of those in (a) full-time and (b) part-time education aged (i) 16, (ii) 17 year and (iii) 18 years claimed education maintenance allowance in each year since its introduction. [226033]

Jim Knight: The percentages of people studying in full-time education and who received EMA since the scheme was nationally rolled out in 2004 are shown in the following table. The information on the percentage of those in part-time education aged (i) 16 (ii) 17 and (iii) 18-years-old claimed educational maintenance allowance in each year since its introduction is not available as the information held is not broken down in this way.

Table 1: Percentage of people studying in full-time[1] education who received EMA

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
16-year-olds	45.0	45.4	46.4
17-year-olds	15.7	42.3	44.3
18-year-olds	18.2	21.6	51.9

[1] Estimated percentage is likely to include EMA recipients who are studying on courses of less than 450 guided learning hours per year, which is the definition used for full-time full year courses.

Notes:
1. EMA is only available for people studying on courses of at least 12 guided learning hours a week. This is the only management information known about course length of EMA recipients, therefore it not possible to split figures into full and part-time.
2. Information is only available since national rollout in 2004-05.
3. Breakdown for 2007-08 is not available at present.
4. Figures are for England only.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department expects to spend annually on the education maintenance allowance from 2013 onwards. [226039]

Jim Knight: Forecasts of expenditure beyond the current comprehensive spending review period are not available.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people eligible to receive the education maintenance allowance achieved three As at A-level in each year since the allowance was introduced. [226042]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the percentage of those claiming education maintenance allowance studying for AS or A-level exams.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of those claiming education maintenance allowance studied for AS or A-level exams in each year since the allowance was introduced. [226044]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the percentage of those claiming education maintenance allowance studying for AS or A-level exams. The evaluation of the EMA pilots did examine the impact of EMA on participation and attainment but did not focus on those studying for specific examinations.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of students eligible to receive the education maintenance allowance have not received a payment under the scheme. [226045]

Jim Knight: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is responsible for the delivery of education maintenance allowance (EMA). The LSC has reported technical and processing issues which have resulted in delays to the delivery of EMA to learners.

The LSC have been working with their contractor to improve the position. I wrote to the Chairman of the Select Committee on 8 October to provide an update on progress. A copy of that letter has been copied to the hon. Gentleman and placed in both Libraries of the House.

It should be noted, however, that eligibility for EMA is based on household income. The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the household income of all households containing a 16 to 19-year-old who are participating in a course that meets the EMA valid provision criteria. Therefore it is not possible to calculate the precise number of students who are eligible for EMA on household income grounds but have not received a payment.

Education: Children in Care

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of children in care (a) gained five or more GCSEs at C grade or above and (b) entered university in the latest period for which figures are available. [226584]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The percentage of children looked after continuously for at least 12 months who gained five or more GCSEs or GNVQ equivalents at grades A*-C is given within table C of the Statistical First Release "Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, Twelve months to 30 September 2007—England" which can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000785/index.shtml

Information on entries to university of children in care is not held centrally.

Education: Private Finance Initiative

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the economic situation on the delivery of private finance initiative educational projects; and if he will make a statement. [226568]

Jim Knight: The only educational projects where private finance initiative (PFI) is involved are for school buildings and facilities management.

Market interest in BSF continues to be healthy, and to date, no BSF PFI schemes have been delayed or halted as a result of the current economic conditions. Working with Partnerships for Schools, we are closely monitoring the impact of the current financial climate on the marketability of new PFI projects.

An operational PFI contract could be affected where the private sector partner's ability to deliver becomes affected. Where this has happened in the past, we have worked with HM Treasury to ensure that the authority and its schools continue to benefit from the services promised by the PFI contract.

Education: Young People

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities are involved in the 14 to 19 engagement programme; and if he will make a statement. [225852]

Jim Knight: In the 2008/09 academic year there are 112 local authorities involved in the Key Stage 4 engagement programme, listed as follows. These schemes will provide for 21,500 young people who are demotivated by the normal curriculum and are at serious risk of dropping-out. Partnerships of schools, colleges, employers, voluntary sector organisations and training providers have developed a range of work-focused learning, often taught outside typical classrooms, demonstrating the usefulness of learning, developing skills and remotivating young people to continue their education. These local authorities are leading the way in developing this important provision. Of a sample of the Year 11 pupils involved in 2006/07, the first year of the programme, 77 per cent. progressed to full-time learning and 6 per cent. to full-time employment after age 16.

Barking and Dagenham, Barnet, Barnsley, Bedfordshire, Bexley, Birmingham, Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool, Bolton, Bournemouth, Bradford, Brighton and Hove, Bristol, Bromley, Bury, Calderdale, Cambridgeshire, Cheshire, Coventry, Croydon, Cumbria, Derby, Derbyshire, Devon, Doncaster, Dudley, Durham, East Riding of Yorkshire, East Sussex, Essex, Gloucestershire, Greenwich, Hackney, Halton, Hampshire, Haringey, Havering, Herefordshire, Hertfordshire, Hillingdon, Hounslow, Hull, Isle of Wight, Islington, Kent, Kirklees, Knowsley, Lambeth, Lancashire, Leeds, Leicester, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, Liverpool, Luton, Manchester, Medway, Middlesbrough, Milton Keynes, Newcastle, Newham, Norfolk, Northamptonshire, North East Lincolnshire, North Lincolnshire, Northumberland, North Yorkshire, Nottingham, Nottinghamshire, Oldham, Peterborough, Plymouth, Portsmouth, Reading, Redbridge, Rochdale, Rotherham, Rutland, Salford, Sandwell, Sefton, Sheffield, Shropshire, Solihull, Somerset, Southampton, Southend on Sea, South Gloucestershire, South Tyneside, Southwark, Staffordshire, St. Helens, Stockport, Stoke on Trent, Suffolk, Swindon, Tameside, Telford and Wrekin, Thurrock, Torbay, Tower Hamlets, Trafford, Wakefield, Walsall, Waltham Forest, Warrington, Warwickshire, Wigan, Wirral, Wolverhampton, Worcestershire, York.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what his most recent estimate is of the number of 16 to 18-year-olds who are not in education or training, broken down by parental income decile; [226048]

(2) what his Department's most recent estimate is of the number and percentage of 16 to 18-year-olds not in education or training; and how many of these belong to households with annual incomes (a) below £30,810, (b) below £25,522 and (c) below £20,817 a year. [226049]

Jim Knight: A combined response to PQs 226048 and 226049 is provided here due to the similarity of the questions and data availability.

The Department publishes estimates of 16 to 18-year-olds who were not in education or training (NET) in a Statistical First Release, which can be found at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000792/index.shtml

The latest estimate for 16 to 18-year-olds who were NET in England at the end of 2007 was 21.3 per cent. or 430,000 young people.

These figures cannot be broken down by income decile or household income.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many 16 to 24 year olds were not in full-time education, employment or training in each (a) local authority area and (b) parliamentary constituency in the latest period for which figures are available; and what proportion of the population of 16 to 24 year olds this represented in each such area. [226204]

Beverley Hughes: The Department publishes estimates of 16 to 24-year-olds who were not in education, employment or training (NEET) in a quarterly brief on NEET, which can be found here:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STA/t000751/index.shtml

The data are not split by full/part time education. These figures come from the Labour Force Survey and the latest, quarter two 2008, figure for 16 to 24-year-olds not in education, employment or training in England was 840,000 or 14.0 per cent. of the population. These figures cannot be disaggregated to local authority or parliamentary constituency level.

However, we can give an indication of the number of 16, 17 and 18-year-olds[1] NEET at the end of 2007 in local authorities in England from data provided by Connexions services. This can be found on the Department's website at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/1419/index.cfm?go=site.home&sid=42&pid=343&lid=337&ctype=Text&ptype=Single

Data provided by Connexions services are used to set and monitor local authority NEET targets. However, it should be noted that figures are calculated on a different basis from that used in the Department's estimates, and therefore do not give the same totals.

[1] Connexions service figures relate to calendar age (rather than academic age as is used in the Department's participation estimates)

Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect that the Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant has had on improving educational performance; and if he will make a statement. [227014]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant (EMAG) has risen from £162 million in 2004-05 to £187 million in 2008-09 and will rise to £206 million by 2010-11. This ring-fenced grant provides specific funding to contribute to the work of local authorities and schools in narrowing achievement gaps for black and minority ethnic pupils, and covers some of the additional costs in meeting the needs of bilingual learners and underachieving pupils. In the five years 2002 to 2007 the proportion of children from most ethnic minority groups achieving national expectations at key stages 2 and 4 has increased faster than that of the whole cohort. The targeted use of EMAG has contributed towards this desirable outcome.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils obtaining five good GCSEs including English and mathematics also received an equivalent qualification worth four GCSEs in the latest period for which figures are available. [226446]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is not readily available; however the following information shows the percentage of pupils who achieved 5 or more A*-C grades at GCSE only and the additional contribution provided when each equivalency is included.

Qualification	Percentage
5+ A*-C at GCSE and equivalents	60.8
Of which:
GCSEs	52.1
GCSE (short)	0.3
GCSEs
Vocational	1.7
AS Levels	0.1
Full GNVQs	3.3
Other	3.3

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils gaining five good GCSEs did so by gaining five separate GCSE qualifications excluding equivalents in each of the last five years for which data are available. [226480]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is as follows:

Percentage of pupils achieving 5 good GCSEs excluding equivalents

	Percentage
2003	49.9
2004	50.2
2005	51.2
2006	51.6
2007	52.1

Note:
Figures relate to pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 in all schools.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils did not obtain a single D grade or above at GCSE in the latest period for which figures are available. [226485]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: 84,906 pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 did not obtain a single D grade or above at GCSE in 2006/07. This was 13.1 per cent. of all pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 in all schools.

Figures relate to GCSE only.

Headteachers: Vacancies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools are without a permanent head teacher in each local authority area. [225429]

Jim Knight: The information is not available in the format requested.

January 2008 figures for head teacher posts that were either vacant or temporarily filled are provided in the following table.

Post are counted where a permanent head teacher is expected to return to the post. It will include posts filled on a temporary basis, those that have not yet been advertised as vacant and where an appointment has been made and not yet taken up.

Health Education: Donors

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Give and Let Live organ donation education programme for secondary school pupils. [226009]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We consider the Give and Let Live programme, produced by NHS Blood and Transplant, to be extremely useful in helping pupils to improve their knowledge and understanding of key issues relating to donation. This view is backed up by the recent evaluation of the programme conducted by the Jeanette Crizzle Trust.

A joint letter from the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and the Secretary of State for Health was sent to all schools on 30 September to raise the profile of the programme, and to ensure that schools are aware of the importance of teaching about donation. Every further education institution will also receive this letter in the week commencing 13 October.

Health Education: Sex

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the group reviewing sex and relationship education to report its recommendations. [225818]

Jim Knight: The sex and relationships education (SRE) review steering group has had its final meeting and is in the process of finalising its report, which it intends to publish shortly.

Higher Education: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of those in receipt of education maintenance allowance entered (a) higher education, (b) a Russell Group university and (c) Oxford or Cambridge University in each year since the allowance was introduced. [226041]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold information on the destinations of young people after they have been in receipt of education maintenance allowance (EMA). The LSC are planning a future piece of work to conduct further analysis of UCAS data on young people progressing into higher education, and to match that with those who have previously been in receipt of EMA. A copy of that study, when available, will be placed in the House Library.

Independent Schools: Assessments

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many independent schools had pupils taking key stage 3 tests in the last five years for which figures are available. [225827]

Jim Knight: Independent schools offer national curriculum based assessment at key stage 3 on a voluntary basis. Their results are not published at school level in the secondary (key stage 3) achievement and attainment tables.

The figures in the following table include independent schools and independent schools approved to take pupils with special educational needs in which there were pupils with eligible results:

Examination year	Independent schools with eligible pupils	Total number of schools with eligible pupils
2007	311	4,472
2006	319	4,491
2005	350	4,510
2004	307	4,502
2003	293	4,469

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many independent schools have pupils studying for an A-level in communication and culture. [226038]

Jim Knight: There is not an A level in communication and culture. Figures for related subjects in 2006/07 are given as follows:

	Independent		All schools
	Number of independent schools and colleges that entered pupils into subject	Percentage of independent schools and colleges that entered pupils into subject	Number of schools and colleges that entered pupils into subject	Percentage of schools and colleges that entered pupils into subject

Languages: Schools

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which languages are taught in a primary school, broken down by the number of schools teaching each language; [225831]

(2) which primary schools teach a foreign language other than French, Spanish or German. [225832]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The following table details the proportions of those primary schools who reported in autumn 2007 that they were teaching languages in class time teaching each particular language. The data were obtained from ongoing research commissioned by the Department, which estimated that 84 per cent. of primary schools were teaching languages in class time. The figures are based on a representative sample of maintained primary schools and the survey achieved a 69 per cent. response rate nationally. Percentages do not add up to 100 per cent. as some schools offer two or more languages.

Other languages taught in small numbers of primary schools included: Latin, Russian, Polish, British Sign Language, Punjabi, Arabic, Portuguese, Turkish, Swedish, Dutch, Esperanto, Welsh, Cornish, Danish, Estonian, Taiwanese, Modern Hebrew, Afrikaans, Somali, Maori and Finnish.

	Percentage of schools offering languages at KS2
French	89
Spanish	23
German	9
Italian	3
Other languages	3
Chinese	1
Japanese	1
Urdu	<1
Bengali	<1

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which secondary schools teach (a) Chinese, (b) Urdu, (c) Japanese and (d) Italian and are located in a local authority area which also includes at least one primary school which teaches that subject. [225833]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not hold this information.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which secondary schools offer (a) Italian, (b) Chinese, (c) Urdu and (d) Japanese at (i) GCSE and (ii) A-level. [225834]

Jim Knight: DCSF does not hold information on schools that offer particular subjects.

Information on the number of schools that entered pupils into these subjects can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Learning and Skills Council

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many full-time equivalent staff work for the Learning and Skills Council. [224568]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply

The Learning and Skills Council's Annual Report and Accounts for 2007-08 set out details of the number of staff employed by the organisation. For the year ended March 2008, the average number of staff employed by the LSC was 3,451. This includes 269 agency and temporary staff and five inward secondees. These figures are based on full time equivalent numbers.

Members: Correspondence

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families to reply to the letter dated 29 July from the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham on the Haut de la Garenne children's home. [225987]

Beverley Hughes: A response was sent by the Minister for Children, Young People and Families via e-mail on 9 October.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what payments are due to ETS for the administration of the national tests in each year from 2008-09 to 2012-13; how much has been paid to ETS to date; and if he will make a statement. [221786]

Jim Knight: The total paid to ETS for the administration of the national curriculum tests during the first contract cycle was £35,023,576.65 (including the final payment under the exit plan of £52,516), of which £19,500,000.00 has now been returned.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils requested a re-mark of key stage (a) 2 and (b) 3 tests in each of the last five years; and in what percentage of such cases the mark was revised. [225829]

Jim Knight: The National Assessment Agency has in place arrangements for marking to be reviewed where a school believes that it is inaccurate to the extent that a pupil has received an incorrect national curriculum level. The NAA's review service is not available to pupils. However, schools may request reviews of marking on behalf of their pupils.

Tables 1 and 2 show the number of review requests received by the NAA, since 2004, for a marking review of key stage 2 and key stage 3 national curriculum tests and what proportion of the requests resulted in a level change. Data for 2008 are not yet available.

The figures in the tables were provided by the NAA.

[1] Individual reviews are for schools that believe the mark scheme was incorrectly applied for one or more pupils but not across the cohort.
[2] Group reviews are for schools that believe the mark scheme was incorrectly applied across the cohort (which must be more than 30 pupils). Group reviews in mathematics and science were not conducted until 2005.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what reports have been prepared by the National Assessment Agency into the reliability of Key Stage tests since 1 January 2002; which of those reports have been published; if he will publish the unpublished reports; and if he will make a statement. [227035]

Jim Knight: While the National Assessment Agency (NAA) does not routinely produce or publish reports on reliability of Key Stage tests in general, it has produced some reports on the reliability of marking. These are available on the NAA website.

Parents: Employment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps the Government has taken to increase the attainment of employment-based skills by parents. [224987]

Mr. Simon: I have been asked to reply.

We are making skills and learning provision as flexible and accessible as possible both to create a more highly skilled, productive work force and to achieve our goals for improved social justice and inclusion.

Recognising that the family can be a good place to learn, the Learning and Skills Council funds family literacy, language and numeracy programmes, where parents can work towards basic skills qualifications. At the same time, they receive help with supporting their children's learning. A further outcome is that many, having gained confidence and skills, want to gain employment. LSC further funds the Family Learning Network which runs a variety of learning events such as the Family Learning Festival taking place over the course of October 2008.

The Government have made a clear commitment to integrate the employment and skills systems. The aim is that all of those out of work—including parents—will get the help they need to address their skills needs, find employment and progress in work through continued skills development. To help more people find more learning, we are creating a new adult advancement and careers service, drawing together a full range of advice and support on issues such as jobs, skills, child care, housing, financial and personal issues to address the broader needs of customers.

Pre-school Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of the projected annual costs arising from the extension of free entitlement to nursery places to all two year olds; [226102]

(2) when he expects the extension of the free entitlement to nursery places to all two year olds to be implemented. [226103]

Beverley Hughes: We are currently working with our delivery partners to develop plans to extend the free early education entitlement for two-year-olds. Pilots are already operating in 63 local authorities. More information about the extension will be included in the child care strategy document, announced in June and to be published within the next three months.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) when he expects all two to five year olds in England to be entitled to 15 hours per week of pre-school education; and if he will make a statement; [226322]

(2) how many three to five year olds he expects to be entitled to 15 hours per week of pre-school education in each of the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [226320]

(3) how much additional funding will be made available to increase the pre-school education entitlement to 15 hours per week for two to five year olds in each of the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [226323]

(4) how many two year olds he expects to be entitled to 15 hours per week of pre-school education in each of the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [226321]

Beverley Hughes: From 2010 all three and four-year-olds will be entitled to 15 hours of free early education. We are already implementing a staged roll out of the extended entitlement, with three and four-year-olds in 34 local authority pathfinders entitled to 15 hours free early education from this year and an additional 25 per cent. of children in all other local authorities entitled to 15 hours of free early education from 2009. An additional £590 million is available between now and 2011 for this extension. Subsequent funding will, of course, depend on the outcome of the next comprehensive spending review.

We are currently working with our delivery partners to develop plans to extend the free early education entitlement for two-year-olds. Pilots are already operating in 63 local authorities. More information about the extension will be included in the child care strategy document, announced in June and to be published by the end of this year.

Primary Capital Programmes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will publish the primary capital programmes submitted to his Department by each local authority in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [225031]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: There are no immediate plans to do so. We are currently finalising our assessment of the strategic plans for local delivery of the primary capital programme and expect to be in a position to notify local authorities of the outcome shortly.

Primary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many primary schools were closed or merged in each year since 1997. [226436]

Jim Knight: The following table sets out the number of primary maintained mainstream schools which have closed or merged each year under local decision-making arrangements, which were introduced in September 1999. Information held on proposals that were decided under the arrangements that operated prior to September 1999 is not reliable and has therefore been excluded.

Note:
The table includes the reasons for closure. The numbers shown in the row headed 'Cease to Maintain' indicate closures where the schools have not been replaced by new schools. In all other cases, a replacement school will have been established (sometimes on the site of a closing school), or an amalgamating school altered, to accommodate displaced pupils.

Primary Education: Class Sizes

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of primary school pupils were being educated in schools with more than 500 pupils in each year since 1997. [226438]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is given in the table.

Primary National Strategy

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how much has been spent on the Primary National Strategy in each year from 2006 to 2008; [224570]

(2) how much was spent on the National Literacy Strategy in each year from 1997 to 2006; [224573]

(3) how much was spent on the National Numeracy Strategy in each year from 1998 to 2006. [224574]

Jim Knight: The National Literacy and Numeracy Strategies were introduced in 1998 and 1999 respectively and developed formally into the Primary National Strategy in 2003. From 1998-99 to 2003-04 the Department has allocated £531.2 million to primary schools and local authorities through the Standards Fund to support the National Literacy Strategy and £480.6 million between 1999-2000 to 2003-04 to support the National Numeracy Strategy.

From 2004-05 to 2008-09 the Department has allocated a further £915.9 million to support the Primary National Strategy.

[1] Reduced to reflect transfer of £96 million from the NS school targeted Standards Fund grants to the School Development Grant. Schools have freedom to spend the SDG on any purpose to support improvement in teaching and learning, leading to higher standards of attainment for every learner. Schools can draw on the support available from the NS when considering the most effective way of using this grant to meet their targets.
[2] Provisional figure.

In addition to these grants the Department also holds a contract for the central delivery of the National Strategies. The contract spend is approximately £80 million annually, of which approximately £7 million specifically is for primary mathematics and £11 million for primary English. There are also a number of other cross-phase programmes which impact on the Primary phase. The contract includes the provision of an education field force to support local authorities and schools, Continuing Professional Development (CPD) materials and training events provided free to schools.

Primary School: Admissions

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in Leeds West constituency due to enter their first year of primary school did not have a place by 1 September in each year since 1997. [226246]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect data on primary school offers or on the number of unplaced children. Local authorities are under a duty to make sure that every child of compulsory school age has a suitable school place.

Primary Schools: Local Authorities

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidelines he has issued to education authorities relating to over-subscribed primary schools. [224647]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Admission authorities for schools that have more applications than places available, including primary schools, must apply published oversubscription criteria to determine who has priority for places. When setting and applying their admission arrangements, local authorities, admission authorities and schools must act in accordance with the School Admissions Code, which we issued in 2007. Primary schools must also comply with admissions legislation, including infant class size regulations which, with some exceptions, limit infant classes to 30 pupils to one teacher.

We have just consulted on further improvements to the admissions framework.

Pupil Exclusions

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanisms he plans to put in place requiring schools to take part in the education of excluded schoolchildren; whether his plans will cover every excluded schoolchild; whether schools will be able to opt out; how many school age children he estimates will still be excluded and not allocated to a school after the programme has been implemented; how the programme will be monitored; who will monitor it; and if he will make a statement. [226557]

Jim Knight: Since September 2007, all schools have had a statutory duty to provide suitable, full-time education for pupils who have been given a fixed period exclusion of six days or more. Local authorities have a similar duty in respect of permanently excluded pupils. This requirement applies to all pupils of compulsory school age. In 2006/07, before this requirement came into force, 425,500 pupils were given a fixed period exclusion of which 43,340 were for six days or more. The average length of a fixed period exclusion is 3.2 days.

We do not collect information on how schools are discharging their duty but we have asked local authorities to appoint a lead officer to monitor education provision for excluded pupils. Also, Ofsted is currently conducting a thematic review of how schools and local authorities are meeting their requirement to provide excluded pupils with suitable, full-time education.

Pupils: Diplomas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the minimum number of recommended hours a week is that a student taking a (a) foundation, (b) higher and (c) advanced diploma should spend studying (i) mathematics, (ii) English and (iii) science (A) excluding and (B) including applied learning. [226027]

Jim Knight: Schools have flexibility in how they deliver their weekly timetable and the hours they allocate to individual subjects. Diploma students studying a foundation or higher diploma at key stage 4 will study mathematics, English and science as part of the core curriculum.

For an advanced diploma, the level of English, mathematics or science that would be covered would depend upon the line of learning and associated additional and specialist learning (ASL) topics being studied.

The level of applied learning in each of these areas will be in addition to this and will vary according to the diploma line of learning and the ASL options taken. At least 50 per cent. of the principal learning element of the diploma will be applied learning.

Pupils: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many boys on free school meals achieved (a) five A* to C passes at GCSE, (b) five A* to C passes at GCSE including mathematics and English, (c) five A* to C passes at GCSE including mathematics, English and a science and (d) five A* to C passes at GCSE including mathematics, English, science and a foreign language in each year since 1997. [224877]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The proportion of boys eligible for free school meals who achieved, (a) five A* to C GCSEs (2006 and 2007 only), and (b) five A* to C GCSEs including mathematics and English (2002 to 2007), can be found in the following statistical first releases. Prior to 2002 pupil level characteristics information was not collected.

Pupils: Exclusions

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children in care received (a) fixed-term and (b) permanent exclusions in each of the last five years. [225842]

Beverley Hughes: The number and percentage of looked after children who were permanently excluded in 2005, 2006 and 2007 can be found in table A of the "Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, Twelve months to 30 September 2007—England" Statistical First Release accessible via the link:

Information on fixed term exclusions is not collected centrally.

Pupils: Greater London

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children transferred to high schools in each London borough in each of the last 10 years; and how many children resident in each borough transferred to a school in another borough in each year. [225754]

Jim Knight: The information requested for 10 years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

(1) For the first part of the question, the number of children aged 11 at secondary schools in each London local authority can be used as a proxy and the latest information is available as an Excel table (Table 15) of the following Statistical First Release:

School Meals: Stroud

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which primary schools have full kitchen facilities in Stroud constituency; and which other schools in Stroud have facilities for hot meals. [225428]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect this information.

Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools are both (a) national challenge schools and (b) extra mile schools, or mentor schools; and if he will make a statement. [225851]

Jim Knight: The "Extra Mile" is a small project, launched in July 2008, designed to help schools serving disadvantaged areas raise the attainment and aspirations of their pupils. All schools will trial one or two activities which have been shown to be effective elsewhere, and will be put in touch with a partner school which has experience of those activities. Four Extra Mile schools were below the threshold of 30 per cent. of pupils gaining five plus good GCSEs inc. English and Maths in 2007: Oakmead School, Bournemouth; Portchester School, Bournemouth; St. Hugh's Church of England College, Grantham, Lincolnshire; Witton Park High School, Blackburn with Darwen. Six of the partner schools were in the same situation: Banbury School, Oxfordshire; Newall Green High School, Manchester; Ridgeway School, Wirrall; Park High School, Wirrall; The Wordsley School, Dudley; Sir Henry Cooper School, Kingston upon Hull.

There is no contradiction between a school being an Extra Mile school or partner school and being below the 30 per cent. threshold. The Government want all schools to achieve a good standard of education for their pupils, which is why we launched the National Challenge to give extra support to schools currently below this threshold. Many of these are improving schools serving very disadvantaged communities, so they are well-placed to share their experiences with schools facing similar challenges. It would be unrealistic to partner an Extra Mile school with a school serving a very different type of community.

£400 million is available to support National Challenge schools over the next three years. This includes £200 million announced in the 2008 budget for National Challenge plus an additional £200 million identified from existing resources. The Government hope that many of these schools will rise above the 30 per cent. floor target when the 2008 results are known.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools offering the core set of extended services; and if he will make a statement. [225854]

Beverley Hughes: As of 30 September 2008, there were over 10,900 (64 per cent.) primary schools and over 2,400 (72 per cent.) secondary schools providing access to the core offer of extended services.

This shows we are making good progress towards our 2010 target and behind this there are many other schools which are already providing individual parts of the core offer that are not yet included in these figures. Monthly variations can occur, resulting in figures going down as well as up, for example as a result of local school reorganisations.

Schools: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps he is taking to ensure that all those who were approved to mark standard assessment test papers in 2008 but who received no scripts to mark will receive the compensation payment of £250 from ETS; and if he will make a statement; [225036]

(2) how many markers of national key stage tests in 2008 (a) have received and (b) are yet to receive compensation payments because they did not receive any scripts; by what date he expects all such markers to have received compensation payments; what the reason is for the time taken to pay compensation; and if he will make a statement. [225091]

Jim Knight: The National Assessment Agency manages the contract for ETS Europe, which is responsible for all marker contracting and payments for the 2008 test cycle. NAA has confirmed that they have received written assurance from ETS that they will resolve all marker queries or complaints regarding pay as part of the plan for contract closure.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families by what date he expects the contracts for administration of the 2009 key stage tests to be agreed; and if he will make a statement. [225169]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority advise that they expect the procurement process for suppliers to administer the 2009 key stage tests to be complete by December 2008.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment his Department has made of the reliability of the marking of key stage 2 and 3 tests in 2008; on the basis of what information that assessment was made; and if he will make a statement. [225170]

Jim Knight: It is the responsibility of the Office of the Qualifications and Examinations Regulator (Ofqual) to advise on the quality of marking in this year's key stage 2 and 3 national curriculum tests. Ofqual have said that on the basis of the evidence they saw, they conclude that the quality of marking is at least as good as in previous years. However, it will not be possible to draw robust conclusions about the quality and reliability of marking until we have received full information from this year's reviews process, which Ofqual is continuing to monitor.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many requests for marking reviews of (a) key stage 2 and (b) key stage 3 tests were received in each year from 2002 to 2007; what proportion of these requests resulted in a change of mark; and if he will make a statement. [225171]

Jim Knight: Tables 1 and 2 as follows show how many requests were received, since 2004, for a marking review of Key Stage 2 and Key Stage 3 national curriculum tests, and what proportion of the requests resulted in a level change.

Data for the period 2001-03 are not available in the format requested.

The figures in the tables were provided by the National Assessment Agency (NAA), which is responsible for the administration of national curriculum tests including the external marking and group reviews service to schools.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the costs and benefits of teacher assessment of key stage 2 and key stage 3 tests, with external moderation; and if he will make a statement. [225173]

Jim Knight: No specific assessment has been made of the costs and benefits of externally moderated teacher assessment at key stages 2 and 3. Experience at key stage 1 does however provide information about the costs of external moderation of teacher assessment. The National Assessment Agency has a budget of £92,000 in the financial year 2008-09 to spend on the external moderation of local authorities' own moderation processes for KS1 assessments.

Schools: Compensation

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much in compensation was paid by schools to (a) pupils and (b) teachers in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [226442]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect this information.

Schools: Ethnic Minorities

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of (a) boys and (b) girls from each ethnic minority group did not achieve any A* to C grades at GCSE in each of the last 10 years. [224805]

Jim Knight: Figures for 2006-07 are given in the following table. Information for earlier years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what financial support is available from (a) central and (b) local education authority funds for the running of small schools. [225310]

Jim Knight: The allocation formula for the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) does not separately allocate money to support small rural schools; it is based on local authorities' spending on schools for 2005-06, which is closely related to the formula for Schools Formula Spending Shares in use that year. That funding formula, which now underlies the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG), included an indicator of sparsity which reflects the Government's recognition of the needs of rural authorities to maintain smaller primary schools on average than other authorities. We calculate that DSG in 2008-09 contains £191 million funding for the extra costs of primary schools which arise due to sparsity of population. It is for local discretion how much of that authorities spend on the increased costs associated with small rural schools and we are aware that some authorities have specific protection for small schools within their local formulae.

The following table sets out estimated amounts within 2008-09 allocations of DSG, derived from the amounts allocated through the schools FSS formula in 2005-06 on the basis of sparsity, updated appropriately, totalling £191 million for the year.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made in trends of school balances. [225313]

Jim Knight: Surplus balances totalled £1.7 billion as of 31 March 2007 and early indications from 2008 returns suggest a further increase.

Local authorities have powers to claw back excessive uncommitted surpluses defined as 5 per cent. of budget for a secondary school and 8 per cent. of budget for a primary or special school. DCSF will continue to monitor balances and unless there is a substantial reduction in total balances, the Government will consider further action to bring the total down.

It remains important, therefore, that schools and local authorities work to manage the level of revenue balances over the next two years. In formulating any new measure to tackle high balances, the Department will continue to work with its partners including the representatives of head teachers and governors, on the technical issues which concern schools. And we will consult widely with schools and others on a detailed proposition before the measure is implemented.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much and what proportion of the schools budget was not passed from local authorities to schools in the most recent year for which figures are available. [225828]

Jim Knight: Local authorities are required to manage their schools budget in line with the School Finance (England) Regulations 2008. All of the schools budget is spent on pupil provision, but some is retained centrally where this is the best way to manage it: the principal areas are funding for provision of the three and four year old free entitlement in private, voluntary and independent nursery providers; funding for statemented pupils with special education needs; funding for Pupil Referral Units and other education outside school; and a contingency distributed to schools during the year against unforeseen circumstances. Nationally 88.6 per cent. of the total schools budget is to be delegated to schools in 08-09. All centrally retained expenditure is discussed with the local schools forum, and the amount retained centrally may not increase year on year faster than the individual schools budget (that delegated directly to schools) without the schools forum's agreement. Section 151 Officers of each local authority are required to sign a certificate stating that they have used the dedicated schools grant for the purposes for which it is assigned.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department plans to spend on e-learning credits in each of the next five years; how much his Department spent on e-learning credits in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [225853]

Jim Knight: In line with our overarching commitment to devolve responsibility to head teachers and governors, ring-fenced funding for e-Learning Credits (eLCs) came to an end in 2007-08. As the amount of ring-fenced funding was reduced over the last two years, the balance of the annual £100 million for eLCs was absorbed into the Devolved Formula Capital funding that schools receive.

Schools: Genetics

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department has issued guidance on the use of biometric technology relating to school children to (a) schools and (b) parents. [226099]

Jim Knight: Guidance on the use of biometric technology in schools was published on the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (BECTA) website in July 2007. Responsibility for all matters relating to biometric technology in schools now resides with BECTA.

Schools: Governing Bodies

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many vacancies there are for school governors in (a) Essex and (b) Colchester constituency for (i) primary, (ii) junior and (iii) secondary schools, broken down by category of governor. [226740]

Jim Knight: The following table, provided by Essex county council, shows the number of governor vacancies in:

(a) Essex

Category of Governor	Primary	Junior	Secondary
Parent	134	54	40
Staff	59	14	20
LEA	50	17	7

Schools: Planning

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many proposals for new schools have been through the planning process since the introduction of the new Building Bulletin 100: Design for Fire Safety in Schools; and in how many cases the fitting of sprinkler systems has been required following the application of the cost and benefit analysis contained in the bulletin. [225972]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not hold information on how many new schools have been through the planning process or on how many new school buildings have sprinkler systems. Planning applications and decisions on whether or not to install sprinkler systems are dealt with at a local level. It is our presumption that all new schools will have fire sprinklers installed but we do not intend to require this. There may be a few cases where local authorities or other promoters of schools consider that sprinklers are not needed. If so, they will need to be able to demonstrate that such schools are low risk and that sprinklers would not represent good value for money.

Schools: Property

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether academy or foundation trusts may (a) develop, (b) sublet and (c) grant licences over their land and buildings. [225379]

Jim Knight: The majority of academy buildings are now procured by the local authority (LA) on land owned by the LA. Following completion of the academy buildings and defects liability period, the LA leases the buildings to the Academy Trust for a period of 125 years for a peppercorn rent. The academy has powers, under this standard lease arrangement, to make alterations to the buildings, sublet the property and grant licences over the land. There is a small number of academy buildings which are procured by the LA but built on land owned by a third party (other than the LA). The terms of such lease arrangements are largely as described above but they can vary.

Those academies that were built early in the programme by the Academy Trust were, in some cases, given the freehold of their land, in which case they can develop, sublet or grant licenses over their land and buildings.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether (a) pupils, (b) parents and (c) local residents have powers to object to the use or management of land or buildings by an academy or foundation trust. [225380]

Jim Knight: Academies generally occupy their land and buildings through a lease from the local authority (LA). Academy trusts are bound by the terms and conditions of that lease to keep the land and buildings in good repair. Any member of the local community who has concerns about the management of land or buildings occupied by an academy can notify the LA. In addition, an academy trust must gain planning permission for any change in use of land, and the local community, including parents and local residents, can make objections through the usual planning consultation process if they disagree with the proposed use.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the value is of (a) land and (b) buildings owned by academy trusts and foundations; and how much funding has been contributed by academy and foundation school sponsors to the capital costs of these schools. [225381]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect information on the value of academies' land holdings and buildings. Information on the net book value of freehold land and buildings for individual academies open by 2006 is currently available in their statutory accounts.

There is no central record of the value of land and buildings held by foundation schools, or the foundations of voluntary schools.

The total of capital sponsorship of academies for which the Department has evidence of payment as at July 2008 is £75.4 million.

Foundation schools as a category do not have sponsors. If they are also trust schools there is not a sponsorship requirement, and any financial contributions from trust members are on a voluntary basis and neither payment nor use is centrally recorded.

Schools: Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils obtained five good GCSEs including English and mathematics but excluding equivalents in each year since 1997. [224875]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given as follows:

	Number of pupils[1]	Five plus A-C grades inc. English and mathematics GCSEs
15-year- olds
1996/97[2]	586,766	35.6

[2] Percentages from 1996/97 include GCSEs and GNVQs.
Notes:
1. Including attempts and achievement in previous academic years.
2. Figures for 2006/07 are revised, all other figures are final.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which National Challenge schools (a) have and (b) have not appointed a National Challenge Adviser; and if he will make a statement. [224902]

Jim Knight: National challenge advisers (NCAs) will be appointed by local authorities on 1 November 2008.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools have been put into special measures (a) once, (b) twice, (c) three times and (d) more than three times in the last 10 years. [224930]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, will be writing to the MP and a copy will be placed in both Libraries of the House.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 13 October 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Between 1 April 1998 and 1 April 2008,1,694 maintained schools were placed in special measures once and 42 schools were placed in special measures twice.

In addition, prior to September 2005, there was no statutory limit on the length of time a school could stay in special measures. With the introduction of the current inspection framework in September 2005, there is now a statutory limit of two years. Upon reaching this limit and undergoing a re-inspection, five schools had not been removed from special measures. Although these schools are not included in the 42 schools referred to above, they were judged as requiring special measures for a second time.

No school was placed in special measures three times, or more than three times, during this period.

Data for the summer term 2008 have not yet been published and are not included in these figures. These will be included in my Annual Report 2007/08, due to be published in November 2008.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of white British boys eligible for free school meals did not achieve (a) any GCSE passes, (b) at least one GCSE pass at grade C or above, (c) at least five GCSEs at A*-C and (d) at least five A*-C GCSEs, including English and mathematics in each year between 2001 and 2008; and if he will make a statement. [225065]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The proportion of white British boys eligible for free school meals who failed to achieve (a) any GCSE passes, (c) at least five GCSEs at A*-C and (d) at least five A*-C GCSEs, including English and Mathematics (2006 and 2007 only), in each year between 2002 and 2007 can be found in the following Statistical First Releases. Prior to 2002, pupil level characteristics information was not collected.

Schools: Sustainable Development

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will take steps to (a) require schools to follow more environmentally sustainable practices and (b) monitor levels of environmental sustainability in schools. [226739]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In May 2006, we published the National Framework for Sustainable schools and set out the ambition that every school becomes a sustainable school by 2020. This is a voluntary framework, rather than a requirement, and covers the broad range of sustainable development matters arising within the curriculum, the campus and the community.

In addition, the majority of schools will be required to display display energy certificates (DECs) providing information about energy use. Schools will also be included in the carbon reduction commitment, a mandatory emissions trading scheme, and be required to supply information on annual energy use to their local authority as part of the local authority count.

Science: Schools

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what materials his Department prohibits the use of during science lessons in schools. [226034]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The DCSF does not specify teaching resources. There is a wide variety of resources available for use in schools and teachers are free to use their professional judgment to select appropriate materials for their science lessons. Any resource should be checked carefully before it is used in the classroom. The Government have issued guidance on materials that are inappropriate for use within science, specifically materials relating to creationism or intelligent design. This guidance is available to schools through teachernet at:

www.teachernet.gov.uk

With regard to physical materials, the Consortium of Local Education Authorities for the Provision of Science Services (CLEAPSS) publishes tables of materials which schools can and cannot use in science and suggests appropriate alternatives. Further information can be accessed at the CLEAPSS website at:

www.cleapss.org.uk

Secondary Education: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which 10 local authorities had the highest proportion of secondary schools below the National Challenge target of 30 per cent. of children achieving five or more A* to C GCSEs, including English and mathematics, in (a) 1996, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement; [224667]

(2) what assessment he has made of the reasons for some local authorities to have a large proportion of schools in the National Challenge, and if he will make a statement. [224665]

Jim Knight: The data requested for 1996 and 2007 are provided in the following table. Validated data for 2008 are not yet available.

	Percentage schools
Local authorities with highest proportion of low-attaining schools in 1996
Islington	100
Tower Hamlets	100
Sandwell	95
Newham	93
Barnsley	93
Knowsley	91
Lambeth	90
Hackney	89
Haringey	89
Salford	89

Bristol	63
Sandwell	60
Barnsley	57
Manchester	57
NE Lincolnshire	56

	Percentage schools
Nottingham	56
Kingston-on-Hull	50
Walsall	50
Knowsley	50
Telford and Wrekin	43

Local authority areas with the highest proportion of secondary schools where fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils attained 5 higher grade GCSEs, including English and mathematics in (a) 1996 (b) 2007.

The comparisons between 1996 and 2007 indicate the substantial success of this Government's policies on school improvement. In 1996, over half of all secondary schools failed to reach the Government's benchmark for the National Challenge, while in 2007 that proportion had fallen to one fifth. This is also reflected in the substantially reduced percentages of low-attaining schools in those authorities with the highest proportions of such schools in 2007 compared with 1996.

The table also illustrates the effectiveness of targeted policies and programmes to improve school standards. In particular, the success of London Challenge is evident, since six of the ten authorities with the highest proportion of low attaining schools in 1996 were in London. In 2007 no London authority features in the list. One of the key principles of the National Challenge is to build more widely on the proven elements of London Challenge.

The 2007 list of authorities is dominated by those with relatively high levels of social deprivation where the potential barriers to learning outside schools are considerable.

The Government's policies, set out in the Children's Plan, are designed to remove such barriers, especially in relation to children's well-being and securing personalised support for all pupils. The National Challenge is a crucial element of the Children's Plan, since it will provide bespoke support to individual schools with relatively low attainment.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent changes he has made to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal Regulations; what further changes he plans; what the reasons are for making these changes; and if he will make a statement. [225986]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) transferred from the Department for Children, Schools and families (the then Department for Education and Skills) to the Ministry of Justice (the then Department for Constitutional Affairs) to form part of the Tribunals Service, an executive agency of that Department, with effect from 3 April 2006. Responsibility for the regulations governing SENDIST transferred at that time.

The Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 contains provisions for existing tribunals, including SENDIST, to be transferred into a new two-tier structure of a First Tier Tribunal and an Upper Tribunal. It is proposed that SENDIST will move into a Health, Education and Social Care Chamber of the First Tier Tribunal. The Tribunals Service has consulted on the rules for the new Chamber. The Tribunals Procedures Committee is responsible for drafting and amending the rules in the light of this consultation. The overriding principle informing the drafting of the rules is that they must be able to deal with all cases justly and fairly.

Teachers: Foreigners

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reason foreign teachers able to teach in academy schools are not permitted to teach in other maintained schools. [225999]

Jim Knight: The requirements relating to foreign teacher qualifications are the same for academies and maintained schools.

Academies' funding agreements require all teachers to be qualified teachers within the meaning of the Education (School Teachers' Qualifications) (England) Regulations 2003.

The Education (Specified Work and Registration) (England) Regulations 2003 allow overseas trained teachers (OTTs) to teach for four years at maintained schools or academies providing they have successfully completed a teacher training programme in a country outside the EEA and Switzerland which is recognised by the competent authority in that country. They must work towards qualified teacher status (QTS) during this period and OTTs are not allowed to teach beyond four years unless they have been awarded QTS.

Suitably qualified teachers from within the EEA and Switzerland are considered to have Qualified Teacher Status and so may teach in maintained schools and academies.

Teachers: Gender

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of teachers in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools were male in each year since 1997. [225848]

Jim Knight: The proportion of male teachers in each year from 1997 to 2006 can be found in the following table:

Teachers: Qualifications

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many teachers took a primary (a) B.Ed or BA and (b) PGCE with a language specialism in each of the last three years for which figures are available; [225835]

(2) how many teachers took (a) a PGCE, (b) a BEd or BA, (c) a SCITT and (d) another teacher training route at primary level with a specialism in (i) Mandarin, (ii) Japanese, (iii) Urdu, (iv) Italian, (v) French, (vi) Spanish and (vii) German in each of the last five years. [225837]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the table and shows recruitment to undergraduate and postgraduate initial teacher training (ITT) courses in primary modern languages for the last five years for which data are available. There are currently no primary ITT courses which specialise in Mandarin; Japanese or Urdu.

Over the last five years nearly 4,000 trainees in total graduated through ITT courses in primary modern languages. More trainees will be funded for these courses, including a projected 900 in 2008/09.

The Training and Development Agency for Schools is also piloting this year, in partnership with 10 ITT providers, additional routes to boost the primary work force teaching languages. A projected 3,000 trainees will go through these courses in 2008/09. Of these trainees, about one third are postgraduate trainees and two thirds are undergraduate trainees.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of teachers teaching (a) mathematics, (b) physics, (c) chemistry and (d) biology who were awarded a golden hello in each year since 2000 were still in the teaching profession (i) one, (ii) two, (iii) three, (iv) four and (v) five years after receiving the award. Jim Knight: The requested information could be produced only at a disproportionate cost.

Teachers: Vetting

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advice the Department gives to local authorities on whether (a) head teachers, (b) teaching staff, (c) non-teaching school staff and (d) governors should be checked by the Criminal Records Bureau prior to commencing their duties or subsequent to so doing. [225427]

Beverley Hughes: Advice on this issue can be found in paragraphs 4.24, 4.25, and 4.58 of Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education which came into effect in January 2007. CRB disclosures for new appointments to head teacher, teaching and non teaching posts should be obtained before staff begin work. If this is not possible they should be obtained as soon as possible after appointment. Such appointments will be conditional upon receipt of a satisfactory CRB disclosure. We do recognise that occasionally there can be problems obtaining disclosures prior to starting work. Head teachers, principals and local authorities therefore have the option to allow people to start work while waiting for a disclosure to be processed. In such cases they need to ensure that the individual is appropriately supervised and that all other checks including a List 99 check have been completed. Disclosures are not required if the person is moving from a similar post in a school, local authority or FE college and there has not been a break in employment of more than three months. Governors are not required to have an enhanced disclosure unless their duties include regular work in the presence of children, or who care for, train, supervise or are in sole charge of children. Governors who do not require a disclosure are asked to sign a declaration confirming their suitability to fulfil their role. Governors will be required to register with the new mandatory work force vetting scheme administered by the Independent Safeguarding Authority.

Teachers: Working Hours

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of hours per week (a) teachers and (b) headteachers spent on administrative functions required by (i) the local education authority, (ii) his Department and (iii) other organisations in the most recent period for which figures are available. [226051]

Jim Knight: Estimates of the average number of hours per week spent by teachers and head teachers on individual activities are published by the Office of Manpower Economics (OME). The available information on average time spent on general administrative tasks is shown in the following table:

UN Committee on the Rights of the Child

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department plans to take in response to the report by the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child published on 3 October 2008. [225817]

Beverley Hughes: The UK Government welcome the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child's Concluding Observations. While areas of difference with the Committee remain, we will give the UN Committee's recommendations the careful consideration they deserve.

Later this year we will report on progress against the commitments in the Children's Plan, published in December 2007, including our ambitions and strategies to tackle many of the issues the UN Committee has highlighted.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families is keen to work with key stakeholders, including children and young people, in taking forward the UN Committee's recommendations and has initiated a series of discussions on this.

Vocational Training

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people in each local authority area are enrolled on an entry to employment programme. [225086]

Jim Knight: This information is not compiled for individual local authorities. Numbers of people that enrolled on an entry to employment programme in each Learning and Skills Council local office areas, which typically cover a number of local authorities, are given in the following table. This covers the 2007/08 academic year which are the latest data available.

[1] 2007/08 data are suspected to be flawed: figures given here are for 2006/07.

Young Offenders

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of people detained in young offenders' institutions (a) are from care home backgrounds, (b) are eligible for free school meals and (c) have been assessed as having special educational needs, broken down by type of special educational need. [225849]

Beverley Hughes: The information is as follows:

(a) Of the 59,500 young people looked after by local authorities at 31 March 2008, 130 were placed in a young offender institution (YOI) or prison. Data on the number of young people in YOIs who may have been looked after by local authorities earlier in their childhoods are not collected centrally.

(b) Data on the number of young people receiving free school meals prior to their entry to a YOI are not collected centrally.

(c) Data on the number of young people in YOIs assessed as having special educational needs are not collected centrally. The Learning and Skills Council collects information on the number of referrals of young people in YOIs to Special Educational Needs Coordinators (SENCOs). Returns from August 2007 to July 2008 indicate that 3,320 such referrals were made over the period.

Young People: Unemployment

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Yeovil of 6 October 2008,

Official Report, column 524W, on young people: unemployment, how many and what proportion of individuals in each category have not been in education, employment or training for (a) up to six months, (b) between six and 12 months, (c) between 12 and 24 months and (d) over 24 months. [227159]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold data to enable it to break down the figures supplied in the response to the hon. Member for Yeovil by length of time spent not in education, employment or training (NEET).

Young People's Learning Agency

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the (a) set-up and (b) running costs of the Young People's Learning Agency will be, broken down by function of the Agency. [224567]

Jim Knight: This information is not yet available. My officials continue to work with LSC, local government and other stakeholders on the blueprint for the new agency, which we intend to publish further detail on later in the autumn. I am committed to a more learner focused commissioning process that enables local authorities to make informed integrated commissioning decisions to ensure that every young person's needs can be met in the most effective way.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many officials in his Department have responsibility for the checking and monitoring of the notification form required by the Abortion Act 1967 as amended, broken down by pay band; and if he will make a statement. [225672]

Dawn Primarolo: There are 13 authorised officials in the Department who, as part of their duties, have direct responsibility for the checking and monitoring of the abortion notification form HSA4; some of whom work full-time on this activity, with the more senior grades undertaking this as part of their overall range of responsibilities.

I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave him on 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 839W.

Academic Health Science Centres

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what criteria will be applied by academic health science centres to applications for Academic Foundation Trust status; [226011]

(2) what progress has been made in the establishment of academic health science centres; and if he will make a statement. [226013]

Mr. Bradshaw: "High Quality Care for All", the Government's 10-year vision for the national health service, set out the approach we intend to take to foster Academic Health Science Centres (AHSC) with the concentration of expertise and excellence that enables them to compete internationally.

We are working to define the criteria for AHSC, and these will cover excellence in patient care and education, and international excellence in biomedical and clinical research across a broad range of subjects, as well as the vision, partnership, strategy and approach to governance of the applicants for AHSC status.

An international panel of experts is currently being established, and it will assess applicants against the criteria. An open morning for potential applicants is being held on 15 October and further information will be posted on the Department's website as it becomes available at:

www.ournhs.nhs.uk/ahsc.

AHSC will bring together partners from the NHS and higher education, and the designation process will be open to both foundation trusts and non-foundation trusts alike. There are no plans to designate Academic Foundation Trusts as part of this process: the status conferred onto successful applicants will be that of AHSC.

The Government are committed to working with interested parties to assess what could be done to support the development of governance arrangements for AHSCs, including, if necessary, changes to legislation.

Autism: Wirral

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the (a) number of adults with autism in Wirral West constituency and (b) proportion of those people who are in paid employment. [226070]

Phil Hope: Information on the number of adults with autism in Wirral, West and the proportion of those who are in paid employment is not held centrally.

Berkeley Hospital

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on the re-location of Berkeley hospital to the Cam/Dursley area. [225424]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information is not held centrally. It is for the local national health service to determine how best to provide services for their local communities. My hon. Friend may wish to contact Jan Stubbings, chief executive of Gloucestershire primary care trust directly, in order for her to deal with the issues raised.

Blood: Finance

Mr. Laxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the effect on NHS costs of use of pathogen inactivation for blood products. [225935]

Dawn Primarolo: Pathogen inactivation is currently carried out for a limited number of blood products, not all of which are centrally procured, and it is not therefore possible to estimate the costs to the NHS. However, the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs will be undertaking a comprehensive review of pathogen inactivation for blood products in 2009. This will include a full assessment of the costs of interventions and cost-benefit analysis.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to his Department's Cancer Reform Strategy published in December 2007, if he will place in the Library the data from which the graphs on pages (a) 88, (b) 120 and (c) 121 were drawn. [224303]

Ann Keen: The data represented in the graph on page 88 of the Cancer Reform Strategy (Proportion of patients in England and Wales in the various age bands who received any active anti-cancer treatment) are set out in the following table. This table has been taken from page 34 (figure 8.4.10) of the National Lung Cancer Audit Report 2006. The table shows any active anti-cancer treatments received by lung cancer patients first seen in 2006 by age groups for all lung cancers, excluding small cell carcinoma.

The report is available on the NHS Information Centre's website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/our-services/improving-patient-care/national-clinical-audit-support-programme-ncasp/audit-reports/lung-cancer.

A table setting out the data represented in the graph on page 120 of the Cancer Reform Strategy (Spending on cancer in 2006-07 as percentage total of primary care trust (PCT) programme spend) has been placed in the Library. The graph is based on programme budgeting data, collected as part of the annual accounts process. PCT level programme budgeting data are published annually in the form of an interactive Excel spreadsheet on the Department of Health's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Managingyourorganisation/Financeandplanning/Programmebudgeting/DH_075743.

A table setting out the data represented in the bar chart on page 121 of the Cancer Reform Strategy (Estimated cost per head of NICE-approved cancer drugs used in hospitals in January to June 2005, by cancer network) has been placed in the Library. This analysis was carried out by the Department and the calculations are based on information on volumes of NICE-approved cancer drugs dispensed (from IMS Health (an international consulting and data services company) and cancer network data) and the lowest list prices of those drugs.

Care Homes

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what data his Department holds on the latest standard rate for local authority-provided residential care in each local authority area. [226303]

Phil Hope: None. Information on the fees negotiated by local authorities with providers of care is not collected centrally.

CJD: Death

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have died from (a) sporadic Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease (CJD) and (b) variant CJD in the last 20 years. [226279]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on all Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD) deaths in the United Kingdom collected since the establishment of the National Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease Surveillance Unit in 1990 is in the following table:

Community Care: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 7 July, Official Report, column 1137, on disabled people (budgets), what the publication date will be for the evaluation report of the Individual Budgets pilots. [227064]

Mr. Bradshaw: The evaluation report of the Individual Budgets pilots will be published shortly.

Departmental Telephone Services

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what agencies or units for which his Department is responsible require the public to make telephone calls to them on numbers which charge more than the national call rate; and how much income each such agency has derived from such charges in each of the last three years. [225746]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 9 October 2008]: The Department's Executive agencies, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency and the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency have no 0845 or 0870 numbers for use by the public.

The Department has 24 arms length bodies, including the Executive agencies, and a number of national programmes e.g. NHS Employers. Local national health service organisations and general practitioner practices may have their own telephone numbers for the public. Information about telephone services for the public provided by these bodies is not held centrally and cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226896]

Mr. Bradshaw: As of 9 October 2008, the Department had answered 830 of 1,205 named day written parliamentary questions on the due date, in the current parliamentary session. This represents 68.9 per cent. answered on time.

Foetal Alcohol Syndrome

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent research he has undertaken into foetal alcohol syndrome; and if he will make a statement; [225636]

(2) how many babies were born with foetal alcohol syndrome in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [225637]

Dawn Primarolo: In May 2005 the Department's Policy Research programme commissioned a systematic review, by the National Perinatal Epidemiology Unit (NPEU), of national and international evidence on the effects of alcohol on the developing fetus and child. The review was published on the NPEU website in May 2006 and copies have been placed in the Library.

Due to difficulties in ascertaining the mother's alcohol intake during pregnancy, babies born with foetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) can often be misdiagnosed with a more general learning disability. It is therefore not possible to provide accurate figures on the number of babies born with FAS.

Health Education: Greater London

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) health promotion centres and (b) health promotion resource centres (i) opened and (ii) closed in each London borough in each of the last five years; and how many (A) health promotion centres and (B) health promotion resource centres there were in each borough at the latest date for which figures are available. [224970]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held centrally.

Health: Private Finance Initiative

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the likely effect of the economic situation on the delivery of private finance initiative health projects; and if he will make a statement. [226566]

Mr. Bradshaw: Once a NHS body has signed a private finance initiative (PFI) contract, the financial terms of the loan raised by the private sector consortium counterparty are set and fixed. The overall cost of the project to the NHS will not change (unless the NHS wants to make a change to its own requirements). PFI contracts deal comprehensively with the possibility of early termination due to contractor default, including through insolvency, in order to protect the public interest.

Hospital Wards: Gender

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in phasing out mixed sex wards in NHS hospitals in (a) Bolton and (b) England. [222622]

Ann Keen: The Department continues to engage strategic health authorities about their plans to deliver a reduction in mixed sex accommodation, thus keeping levels to an absolute minimum, and where possible eliminating it.

Our guidance to the NHS has always required single sex accommodation rather than single sex wards, (the latter being where a group of patients are treated by the same team, who have the necessary specialist skills). Even within a mixed ward, good single sex accommodation can be achieved by using single rooms or single sex bays and toilet facilities.

Local plans have been made in the context of the 2008-09 Operating Framework for the NHS in England, which requires primary care trusts (PCTs) to review the current situation in all trusts and agree, publish and implement stretching local plans for improvement in delivering single sex accommodation, with identified timescales and monitoring mechanisms. The framework specifically requires that patient survey results, where available, be used as the monitoring mechanism. Plans in Bolton reflect the national approach to reducing levels of mixed sex accommodation as set out above, and more detail of such action is available from North West Strategic Health Authority.

Hospitals: Finance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government have taken to assist hospitals with financial management. [224982]

Mr. Bradshaw: The continued development of an effective financial performance framework remains a key priority for the Department. In recent years there have been several initiatives aimed at delivering improvements in financial management in the national health service.

As part of this new financial performance framework the Department introduced a new working capital loans system in 2006-07. Instead of relying on brokerage as a source of funding or planned support, national health service trusts' working capital requirements must now be financed by loans agreed with the Department and recorded in individual accounts. National health service trusts now have to address financial problems head-on and take steps to ensure that they live within their means. Deficits remain where they occur, and are transparent in the trust's annual accounts.

The Department has also committed to publishing the financial position of every national health service organisation on a quarterly basis, which has increased the local accountability of national health service organisations due to a greater level scrutiny over their financial performance. As a result this has ensured that all organisations put sufficient focus on their financial performance and that there is greater involvement in meeting the financial objectives from non-finance professionals including clinicians and operational staff.

In order to assist national health service organisations, since 2007-08 the Department has issued Payment by Results tariffs and the Operating Framework earlier than was the case in previous years. This has given the national health service more time to prepare their financial plans, and as a result these financial plans have proven to be more robust with less variation between the plan, the in year forecasting and the final outturn.

In addition, the Department collects both year-to-date, and forecast information, on balance sheet, income and expenditure, and cash flow. Key indicators of financial performance are collected on a monthly basis and with strategic health authorities required to work with national health service organisations to provide explanations of any significant variations. In addition the Department also recognises the value of the Audit Commission's independent Auditor's Local Evaluations scores and is heavily involved in the performance management of organisations that do not meet minimum standards.

This increased local ownership, scrutiny, and clinical engagement within the finance function in the NHS has resulted in fewer national health service organisations recording deficits in their annual accounts. In 2005-06, prior to the introduction of this more transparent financial regime, 33 per cent. national health service organisations recorded a deficit in their annual accounts compared to only 3 per cent. of organisations recording a deficit in their 2007-08 annual accounts.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government has taken to assist hospitals to reduce debt. [224983]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department introduced a new working capital loans system in 2006-07. Instead of relying on brokerage as a source of funding or planned support, trust working capital requirements must now be financed by loans agreed with the Department and recorded in individual accounts. Organisations now have to address financial problems head-on and take steps to ensure that they live within their means. Deficits remain where they occur, and are transparent in final accounts at the year-end.

National health service trusts who traditionally relied on planned support are now able to focus on the areas that were causing them to overspend and look for ways to address them. Working with the strategic health authorities (SHAs), NHS trusts agree a financial plan at the beginning of the financial year that delivers a surplus, which is at least sufficient to meet any loan repayments the trust has, and thus reducing their overall debt.

As a result of introducing the new loans system, there were 17 NHS trusts where the financial challenges are such that the Department either could not give a loan because the trust could not afford to meet the repayments, or where a loan was agreed, but the amount could only be repaid over a very extended time scale. Instead these trusts were advanced money as a short-term measure to cover their running costs while a rigorous review was conducted on their finances.

In the 2007-08 quarter 4 edition of "The Quarter", the Department announced that 10 of the original 17 trusts were no longer classified as financially challenged. This was a result of the trusts working extremely hard in conjunction with their SHAs and primary care trusts to improve their underlying financial position. As a result, they are now trading in balance and are able to produce sufficient surpluses going forward to operate as a sustainable organisation, both financially and in the provision of health care. All 10 of these organisations will have repaid their debt within five years.

This increased local ownership, scrutiny, and clinical engagement within the finance function in the NHS has resulted in fewer national health service organisations recording deficits in their annual accounts. In 2005-06, prior to the introduction of this more transparent financial regime, 33 per cent. national health service organisations recorded a deficit in their annual accounts compared to only 3 per cent. of organisations recording a deficit in their 2007-08 annual accounts.

Industrial Diseases

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost was of treating chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in each primary care trust in England in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [226107]

Ann Keen: The total expenditure for all obstructive airways disease is just over £537 million for 2006-07 (excluding drug costs). The figure for solely chronic obstructive pulmonary disease is not available centrally.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is of the estimate that 15 per cent. of patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease will also have asthma, as stated in the Quality and Outcomes Framework guidance for the GMS contract for 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [226108]

Ann Keen: Information is not held centrally on the number of people diagnosed with both chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) and asthma in each primary care trust in England.

The Quality and Outcomes Framework Expert Panel estimate that 15 per cent. of patients with COPD also have asthma on the basis of the following evidence:

asthma exists in up to 10 per cent. of the population and so at least that proportion of COPD patients will have asthma[1];

asthma is a risk factor for developing COPD so the rate is likely to be higher; and unpublished data gathered by the panel based on complete practice review suggests that about 15 per cent. of patients with COPD also have asthma.

[1] Epidemiology work suffers from variable definition but Pearson M, Ayres JG, Sarno M, Massey D, Price D. Diagnosis of airway obstruction in primary care in the UK: the CADRE (COPD and Asthma Diagnostic/management Reassessment) programme International Journal of COPD 2006; 1: 435-443 found that 21 per cent. of patients with COPD were classified as having asthma as well after nurse completed spirometry and GP review and Bednarek M, Maciejewski J, Wozniak M, Kuca P, Zielinski J. Prevalence, severity and underdiagnosis of COPD in the primary care setting. Thorax. 2008 May;63(5):402-7 found 28 patients out of 155 meeting UK definition of COPD i.e. 18 per cent. and finally a review of COPD by Barnes P. Mechanisms in COPD Chest 2000; 117:10s-14s states a overlap of 10 per cent.

Industrial Diseases: Health Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the waiting time for pulmonary rehabilitation was in each primary care trust in England in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [226109]

Ann Keen: This information is not available centrally.

Maternity Services

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the 100 largest settled claims awarded under the Clinical Negligence Scheme for Trusts have been; how much was paid in each case; and which claims arose from maternity care. [225891]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is in the following table:

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) consultant-led and (b) midwife-led maternity units there were in each region of England at the latest date for which figures are available. [225893]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected centrally. However, the Healthcare Commission published this information on their website in January 2008, following their review of national health service maternity services. The following table gives details of the number of consultant led and midwife led maternity units by strategic health authority (SHA).

Medical Equipment

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will publish the results of the market surveys associated with his Department's review of the Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services programme model; [226533]

(2) what data his Department used to calculate the contamination costs associated with the Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services programme model. [226535]

Phil Hope [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The Transforming Community Equipment and Wheelchair Services (TCEWS) Programme has developed a toolkit to enable local authorities (LAs) and their health partners to calculate the true cost of their decontamination and recycling. The data set covers volumes and values for items handled, staff involved, activities undertaken, transport and other overhead costs. This enables each LA and health partnership to understand what products, in their locality, are economically viable to decontaminate and refurbish.

With regard to the results of the market survey we have made details available on price benchmarking on the initial tariff on the following website www.csed.csip.org.uk

A separate commercial price benchmarking exercise is being undertaken on behalf of the TCEWS. The results of this exercise will be compared to the initial tariff and a final national tariff will be published later this autumn. In addition, we will be publishing a report on a shadow running evaluation in December or early next year.

Medical Treatments: Radioactive Materials

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect on nuclear medicine departments of the shortage of supply of isotopes due to producer unit shut-downs in Europe; and what steps are being taken to encourage the resumption of supply. [225885]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is currently a global shortage of medical isotopes, including molybdenum (Mo-99)/technetium (Tc-99m), which are used in many routine diagnostic nuclear imaging procedures such as heart imaging, bone scans and some cancer detection procedures. At a national level, the Department maintains a close oversight of the effect the shortage of supply of radio-isotopes is having on clinical procedures. For the duration of the shortage, we have put in place weekly situation reports from all national health service providers. For the most part, supplies are running at about 70 to 90 per cent. of normal and the NHS has made adaptations to optimise patient care. We are in close contact with all suppliers to the United Kingdom market and are monitoring their supply position. Through the European Commission we are working with member states to ensure production and supply issues are being coordinated and that reactors are brought back in to production as soon as practicably possible.

Mentally Ill: Children

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Richmond Park of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1993W, on the mentally ill: children, if he will make it his policy to collect data on the number of children diagnosed with a mental health disorder. [227063]

Phil Hope: A survey carried out by Office for National Statistics (ONS) in 2004 on behalf of the Department collected data on the prevalence of mental disorders in children. A further study is under consideration.

NHS Direct: Contracts

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) the monetary value and (b) the projected duration is of all contracts most recently awarded to provide services linked to NHS Direct. [225322]

Mr. Bradshaw: NHS Direct has contracts with:

The Department to provide core services for the NHS Direct telephone line (0845 4647), NHS Direct Online and NHS Direct Interactive for' digital television[1]. The monetary value of this contract is £139,000,000 for 2008-09. The projected duration of this contract is one year from 1 April 2008;

East of England strategic health authority to provide services for The Appointments Line (choose and book) the monetary value of this contract is 7,300,000 for 2008-09[2]. The projected duration of this contract is three years from 1 April 2007; and

Other parts of the national health service to deliver specific and tailored services locally. We do not hold information on the value or duration of NHS Direct's contracts with other parts of the NHS. This information can be obtained from NHS Direct itself.

[1] Whilst NHS Direct is delivering the content of the 2008-09 contract for core services, the contract itself is currently being finalised by the Department.

[2] The value of The Appointments Line contract for 2008-09 is based on projected call volumes.

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what cash savings he expects to be generated in the NHS drugs budget in each of the next three financial years. [226289]

Dawn Primarolo: The new Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme will save an estimated £300 million in both primary and secondary care in England each year over the next few years. In addition, we will continue to prompt greater use of generic medicines and the reduction of medicines wastage.

NHS: Fees and Charges

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date he expects to publish the conclusions of his Department's consultation on top-up payments in the NHS. [226305]

Mr. Bradshaw: Professor Mike Richards will report to the Secretary of State at the end of October 2008, and findings will be published shortly afterwards.

NHS: Finance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the financial position of (a) NHS Brent and (b) the North West London Hospitals NHS Trust; and if he will make a statement. [225492]

Mr. Bradshaw: The latest position, as published in the departmental publication 'The Quarter' (August 2008), shows that Brent PCT is forecasting a £12.3 million surplus in the 2008-09 financial year compared to a £1.7 million surplus in 2007-08 and a £25 million deficit in 2006-07. North West London Hospitals NHS Trust is forecasting a break even position for 2008-09, compared to a £1 million surplus in 2007-08 and a break even position in 2006-07. 'The Quarter' has been placed in the Library.

In addition both of these organisations failed to meet minimum standards in their 'Use of Resources' scores, as published by the Audit Commission in their "Auditor's Local Evaluation Scores 2007-08: Summary results for NHS Trusts and Primary Care Trusts," (October 2008). This document has been placed in the Library.

The Department will be focusing on all organisations who failed to meet these minimum standards to ensure an action plan is in place to address the issues very quickly.

Non-profit Making Associations: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what areas have received financial help for social enterprise initiatives; and how much has been granted in each case. [225866]

Non-profit Making Associations: Forest of Dean

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what applications for financial support he has received from (a) Forest of Dean and (b) Stroud district councils for the pursuit of social enterprise schemes. [225865]

Phil Hope [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The Forest of Dean Health Care Enterprise applied for funding of £196,000 in round two of the Social Enterprise Investment Fund for 2008-09. Social Enterprise Stroud also made an application of £920,000 for the provision of services within the Stroud district council area.

Primary Care Trusts: Finance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much funding South East Essex Primary Care Trust is due to receive in the 2008-09 financial year under his Department's funding formula; [224654]

(2) how much funding South East Essex Primary Care Trust was supposed to have received under his Department's funding formula in the 2007-08 financial year; [224655]

(3) how much funding South East Essex Primary Care Trust received in the 2007-08 financial year; [224656]

(4) how much primary care trusts should have received under the Department's funding formulae for (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07; [224657]

(5) how much was paid to primary care trusts under the distribution mechanisms in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [224658]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Falmouth and Camborne (Julia Goldsworthy) on 28 February 2008, Official Report, column 1911W.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was allocated to primary care trusts at the start of the financial year (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and how much was returned from primary care trusts to strategic health authorities at the end of each of those financial years. [226941]

Mr. Bradshaw: Details of the revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are shown in the table.

Under the financial regime applied to the national health service surpluses are reported in the accounts of the individual organisations that generate them. Consequently, PCTs do not return surpluses to their strategic health authority. Surpluses are not lost to the NHS, but are available to be carried forward for use in future years.

Social Services: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on the circumstances in which properties may have to be sold to pay for the residential care costs of people who require such care in cases where relatives are resident in such properties. [226725]

Phil Hope: The Government have taken steps to help people avoid having to sell their homes during their lifetime to pay for residential care. Since October 2001, local councils have been able to enter into a deferred payments agreement with people about to enter residential care. This allows people with property, but without income and other assets sufficient to meet their assessed financial contribution to the cost of residential care, to have a legal charge placed on their property to meet any shortfall. The local council then meets the cost of the person's residential care and reclaims the debt from the person's estate when their affairs are wound up. This gives people more options for meeting care home fees and avoids the need for their property to be sold during their lifetime.

Local authorities (LAs) assess a person's ability to pay charges for residential care using the National Assistance (Assessment of Resources) Regulations 1992 and statutory guidance, entitled the Charges for Residential Accommodation Guide (CRAG). The guidance helps LAs to understand the charging regulations and ensures a consistent approach to charging. Copies of the Regulations and CRAG are available in the Library.

In assessing a person's contribution towards the cost of their residential care, the value of their property is not always taken into account. It is disregarded where it continues to be occupied by the resident's spouse, partner or another relative who is over 60 or who is incapacitated, a lone parent with a dependent child who is the resident's estranged or divorced partner or a child under 16 whom the resident is liable to maintain.

Surgery: Private Sector

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were referred from private hospitals to NHS hospitals following complications after operations in each of the last four years; and what the estimated cost was to the NHS of caring for patients who required further treatment following operations at private hospitals in each of the last four years. [225542]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held centrally.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Adam Smith Institute

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many projects the Adam Smith Institute is undertaking for his Department; and how many contracts his Department has awarded to the Institute in the last five years. [224817]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has not awarded any contracts to the Adam Smith Institute in the last five years.

However, we have issued a number of contracts to Adam Smith International Ltd., which is a separate, self-financing commercial organisation. Details of all centrally-let contracts since January 2005 are published on DFID's website www.dfid.gov.uk/procurement.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the (a) recent redesign and (b) subsequent maintenance of his Department's website cost. [226110]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We are currently reviewing and transforming our web presence. The first phase of the project was to 'refresh' the design of the site in September which included a new home page. It cost £13,600 for the design and build of the new pages. The next phase of the project, to be incorporated next year, will be to develop a fully featured website, new publishing system and robust hosting.

We do not have a contract to maintain our site. This work is done in house.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what records his Department keeps on the (a) number and (b) demographics of people using its website. [226111]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: We currently generate monthly reports on the number of visitors to our site. We do not monitor their demographics.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what forecasts his Department has made regarding the number of people using the Discovery Zone section of its website; and how it plans to monitor the usage of this section. [226112]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: As part of the overall web development project we are testing the site with user groups. We identified a need for more engaging content to serve families and young children. This zone is a first step to meeting their needs. We will continue our user testing with this group to monitor reactions to this part of the site.

From 16 September 2008 (the date Discovery Zone was launched) to 8 October 2008 there have been 1,348 page views from 993 unique users.

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to address the effects of climate change on developing countries. [224984]

Mr. Michael Foster: Lifting people out of poverty decreases vulnerability to climate change, so all of the UK's poverty reduction work has a role in addressing the effect of climate change. The UK is also working to prevent the most serious potential impacts by pushing for an ambitious new global agreement to tackle climate change and helping developing countries prepare for international negotiations.

Around one third of the UK's £800 million contribution to the World Bank's Climate Investment Funds will support the Pilot Programme for Climate Resilience. This will support a number of countries to address the impacts of climate change through their development plans and budgets. The UK is also one of the largest donors, contributing £20 million, to the UN Special Funds which are focused on helping developing countries adapt to climate change.

We are also addressing climate impacts through DFID's country programmes. For example, a new £75 million programme will support Bangladesh's efforts to protect its people further from impacts such as rising sea-levels, water-logged land and increased salinity. DFID is already spending £50 million to help improve the livelihoods of 32,000 families in Bangladesh by raising homes above 1 in 100 year flood level.

Developing Countries: Poverty

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to make the UK public aware of the incidence and consequences of poverty globally. [224985]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department and its Ministers take every opportunity to raise awareness of issues around global poverty. The Department for International Development (DFID) has had an active programme of building awareness about global poverty issues and their consequences for over 10 years. This programme includes work with schools and the statutory education sector, youth and community groups, the private sector, trade unions and NGOs—non-governmental organisations—as well as communicating with the wider UK public.

The activities are diverse and far reaching, broadly including information dissemination, the development of programmes to build deeper levels of understanding of the issues, as well as creating opportunities for individuals to become actively engaged in development.

Further information is available on the DFID website: http://www.dfid.gov.uk/

Developing Countries: Private Sector

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what criteria are used to select consultants engaged by his Department to advise on projects to take overseas public utilities into private ownership. [224818]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides specialist technical assistance to partner Governments using organisations selected for their particular expertise. Technical assistance contracts have been awarded to many different types of organisation active in development, from NGOs to academic institutions to consultancy firms, and the decision on who to contract is made on a case-by-case basis based on technical and commercial evaluation criteria to ensure development impact and value for money.

Developing Countries: Water Supply

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on the private ownership of water services in other countries. [224815]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) policy is that we respond—where we can—to requests from developing countries for assistance to help improve the efficiency of their water utilities. Usually this involves DFID providing support to public bodies. In some cases, where the developing country government has a policy for participation of the private sector in service delivery, DFID may be asked for support in working out how best this may be done. Often this will take the form of support to improving regulatory frameworks to ensure quality of service and increase access for poor people.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many consultancy contracts his Department has awarded in respect of projects to take overseas water utilities into private ownership; and for which countries. [224824]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Department for International Development (DFID) support to international private sector participation in the water and sanitation sector has been limited. The last independent review indicated that this amounted to no more than 5 per cent. of the total spend in the water and sanitation sector. Countries where DFID has supported private sector engagement include Ghana, Tanzania, Guyana, Sierra Leone, Uganda and South Africa.

Details of all centrally-let DFID contracts since January 2005 are available on the DFID website:

www.dfid.gov.uk/procurement

Development Banks

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress his Department has made on developing guidance with the multilateral development banks to screen all development investments for climate risks; and if he will make a statement. [225361]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) is supporting the Asian Development Bank and the Inter American Development Bank to develop a mechanism for assessing the implications of climate change for their new investments in the Asia and Pacific and Latin America regions. We are also working with the World Bank Group which has developed ADAPT (Assessment and Design for Adaptation to Climate Change: A Planning Tool), for screening its programmes and assessing the threats and opportunities arising from climate variability and change. Its scope is being widened to cover the range of relevant sectors and regions. DFID has also been developing climate risk assessment tools for screening its own programmes and sharing lessons from this process with other donors, including the multilateral development banks (MDBs).

Around one third of the UK's £800 million contribution to the Climate Investment Funds will support the Pilot Programme for Climate Resilience (PPCR). To be implemented by the MDBs, the PPCR will support a number of countries to fully integrate climate resilience into their development plans and budgets. The programme seeks to demonstrate how the MDBs can provide scaled-up support to countries to achieve this integrated approach.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress his Department has made in assisting multilateral development banks to adopt and implement clean energy investment frameworks; and if he will make a statement. [225362]

Mr. Michael Foster: In each of the relevant multilateral development banks, the executive boards have approved clean energy investment frameworks and associated work plans covering implementation. The UK has committed over £15 million to help the banks undertake analytical work on climate change mitigation and adaptation issues, to study the economics of climate change, and to take forward a number of low carbon growth strategies.

In July 2008 at the G8 summit in Hokkaido, the development banks submitted a report outlining what they have done, individually and collectively, to make progress on the climate change agenda. The report describes each of the banks' overall strategies and gives examples of specific programmes approved. In it, the banks set out an investment programme of public and private resources of over $100 billion between their financial years 2008-10 under the clean energy investment framework. This includes scaled-up investment in energy access and low carbon projects. They also committed to scaling up adaptation investments.

DFID Alumni Association

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on the DFID Alumni Association in each of the last three years, broken down by (a) staff costs, (b) website maintenance costs, (c) the cost of organised events and (d) other costs. [226113]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Staff costs to develop, launch and administer the association (in terms of staff salaries) were approximately £5,000 in 2006-07 and £8,000 in 2007-08. The website maintenance costs are the costs of staff time to administer the website, which are included in the aforementioned salary figures. Other costs have been the cost of the launch of the association, which totalled £733.

Guyana: Overseas Aid

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of Guyana's offer to the UK to conserve rainforest in exchange for sustainable development funds; and if he will make a statement. [224622]

Mr. Thomas: The UK Government think Guyana's proposal is very interesting and is working with the Guyanese to develop it further. DFID has committed £100,000 towards work to develop a low carbon investment prospectus and implementation plan for Guyana, this will include an assessment of the cost of conserving Guyana's rainforests. In parallel, Guyana has secured funding under the World Bank's Forest Carbon Partnership Fund, to which the UK has contributed £15 million, to prepare a detailed strategy for how they could participate in an international mechanism to reduce emissions from deforestation and degradation. Guyana is also included in the Caribbean Regional Stern Review on the Economics of Climate Change. We will build on the above, as well as on the findings of the Eliasch Review into climate change and the financing of forests, in further discussion.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to improve the transparency of its international aid. [225114]

Mr. Michael Foster: The 2006 International Development (Reporting and Transparency) Act commits the Department for International Development (DFID) to report annually to Parliament on the effectiveness of both multilateral and bilateral aid in meeting the Millennium Development Goals. The OECD's Development Assistance Committee (DAC) monitors and publishes DFID's performance against the international targets agreed in the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness. The 2008 monitoring survey shows that, three years ahead of the 2010 deadline, we have met or exceeded seven of the 10 targets, and are very close to meeting another. We are on track to meet the remaining two targets by 2010. A recent independent evaluation of the results has been published by the DAC at http://www.oecd.org/dataoecd/19/9/40888983.pdf.

Additionally, in September 2008, DFID published the UK Progress Report on Aid Effectiveness, showing that the UK is delivering on its promises to make aid work harder for poor people. This is available on the DFID website http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/aid-effectiveness.pdf.

The UK is also working closely with the EU to improve the transparency of aid. At the Third High Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness (HLF) in September 2008, donors and partner countries committed to make aid more transparent and the UK launched the International Aid Transparency Initiative. This was endorsed by 13 other donors, including the World Bank, UNDP, EC and Germany. It will enable partner Governments and their citizens—those who ultimately benefit from aid—to plan for and make the best use of aid. It will also help citizens hold donors and Governments to account for their promises.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to improve the monitoring of aid given to ensure it is spent as intended. [225115]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides assurance that:

The funds were paid to the intended recipient;

The funds have been used for the purposes agreed;

The use of the funds has been audited.

This is a key part of DFID's broader responsibility for ensuring that spending represents value for money.

Recent steps taken to improve monitoring on aid expenditure include:

The introduction of ARIES (Activities Reporting Information E-System) has a major impact on DFID's financial accounting activities. ARIES will strengthen reporting controls to ensure that aid spend is properly monitored.

DFID's internal guidance for staff about the evidence required to ensure that funds have been used for the purposes agreed has been strengthened. Also, a new health check list is available for staff administering existing budget support programmes. This includes points to consider for demonstrating that funds have been spent as intended.

An updated review plan supported by regular audits by DFID's Internal Audit Department and the National Audit Office, focussing on key areas of aid delivery, has been agreed.

Piracy: Gulf of Aden

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effects of piracy in the Gulf of Aden on the delivery of humanitarian aid in the region over the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [225601]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: 2008 has witnessed an increase of pirate attacks in the Gulf of Aden with 44 incidents reported between January and July alone. Attacks are becoming more regular and pirates are venturing further off shore which is interfering with major shipping channels. Humanitarian aid to Somalia was directly affected earlier this year as the United Nations World Food Programme (UN WFP) were unable to find contractors willing to deliver humanitarian relief to Mogadishu. The International Community has since recognised the need to provide naval escorts for WFP ships and no WFP contracted ship has been targeted. Since 18 August, Canadian Navy escorts have assisted in the delivery of 36,360 metric tons of food aid to Mogadishu.

Sudan: Elections

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support the Government plan to provide to voter education in preparation for the elections and referendum in Sudan. [225883]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Voter education will be critical to the success of elections in Sudan. Over £11 million has been put aside to support the elections and referendum, and we expect a significant portion of this to support voter education.

As the National Elections Commission that will oversee voter education in Sudan is yet to be established, the bulk of proposed UK Government support have not yet been programmed. However, since December 2007, the UK Government have supported an initial programme of broad civic education through the Friedrich Ebert Foundation, an international non-governmental organisation with extensive networks of local partners. We will also provide funding to the UN to launch a programme of preparatory support to the elections process. The UK Government intend to contribute an initial £1.5 million to this programme, which will fund a range of activities related to voter education: supporting information campaigns, training of key actors such as civil society organisations and electoral assistance staff, development of materials and the provision of small grants for local initiatives.

Sudan: Security

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effect of the security situation in north Darfur on the delivery of humanitarian assistance to refugees in the region. [225874]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: North Darfur has experienced an upturn in violence between Government and rebel forces since September which has hindered the delivery of humanitarian assistance. The UN World Food Programme report that 134,000 people throughout Darfur did not receive food aid in August due to insecurity. When data becomes available, this number is expected to rise to 450,000 for September, partly as a result of two NGOs temporarily suspending operations in rural areas of North Darfur. Tens of thousands of people are reported to have been displaced by recent military campaigns. Although the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) has assessed some new displacements, access is still restricted.

The UN humanitarian co-ordinator, Ameerah Haq, urged both parties to cease hostilities immediately and requested humanitarian access to the affected areas in North Darfur.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many British humanitarian workers in Darfur have been subject to attacks in the last 12 months; and what proposals are under consideration to improve security for humanitarian workers in the region. [226073]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) reports that during 2008, 17 humanitarian workers have been threatened, 24 injured, 14 physically or sexually assaulted, 170 abducted and 11 killed. OCHA does not disaggregate these incidents according to nationality.

Several actions are under way to improve the security of humanitarian workers. In response to the deteriorating security and as a precautionary measure before the announcement of the International Criminal Court's indictment of President Bashir, the UN increased its security posture to phase IV in July. This triggered tighter security procedures and restricts activities to essential humanitarian work. Linked to this, an evacuation plan has been drawn up for all relocatable humanitarian workers in Darfur. The World Food Programme has also negotiated a commitment from the Government for military escorts every 48 hours on major supply routes into Darfur, and we are pressing the Government to honour this.

Tanzania: Water Supply

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which consultants were involved in the Biwater project to take water services in Tanzania into private ownership; how many of them have received (a) funding and (b) contracts from his Department; and what the value of the funding or contracts was in each case. [224813]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The privatisation of water services for the city of Dar es Salaam was undertaken by the Government of Tanzania with support from the World Bank and was not therefore directly supported or funded by DFID.

DFID supported the Government of Tanzania's Parastatal Sector Reform Commission (PSRC) in the divestiture of publicly-owned companies in Tanzania. As part of this support, DFID awarded contracts on behalf of PSRC to the following companies to undertake various pieces of work in the area of water and sanitations:

Date	Contractor	Purpose of work	Total value (£000)
2001 -	Adam Smith International	Conducting a water privatisation and regulatory study tour	55
2001 -	Clifford-Chance	Provision of legal advice to Dar es Salaam Water and Sewerage Authority (DAWASA)	[1]50
1997	John D. Davies	Provision of short-term advice on achieving an appropriate private sector participation arrangement for DAWASA	31
November 1997	GIBB East Africa Ltd.	Facilitation of a DAWASA workshop on privatisation	16
	Total	—	252

[1] Part of the contract was denominated in US$

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was paid from the public purse in respect of the Biwater project to take Tanzanian water services into private ownership. [224814]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The privatisation of water services for the city of Dar es Salaam was undertaken by the Government of Tanzania with support from the World Bank. The World Bank (along with the European Investment Bank and African Development Bank) provided $160 million for the project. The Department for International Development (DFID) provided £252,000 in technical assistance to the water and sanitation sector as part of an overall programme of support for the divestiture of publicly owned companies in Tanzania. DFID did not fund the transfer of water services into the private sector.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the outcome against objectives of the Biwater project to take water services in Tanzania into private ownership. [224816]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Government of Tanzania terminated Biwater's contract for failure to deliver. It is clear from this that private sector organisations selected to provide water and sanitation services must have the capacity and skills to deliver these services in a way that meets the expectations of governments and more importantly the people who receive or would like to receive the service. This stresses the need for rigorous assessment by partner governments and donors of potential private sector organisations bidding to deliver water and sanitation services. The Department for International Development (DFID) has ensured that these lessons are taken on and applied by those working on these issues.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Licensing

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to review provisions of the Licensing Act 2003 relating to temporary event notices; and if he will make a statement. [225729]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We currently have no plans to review the temporary event notice (TEN) regime. Over 100,000 TENs were given in 2006-s07 and we are not aware of any evidence to suggest widespread problems or issues that cannot be dealt with through the restrictions in the regime or other legislation relating to issues such as crime and noise nuisance. We are, however, looking at how we can improve application processes, including those relating to TENs—for example, by allowing licensing authorities to exercise flexibility over the ten day notice period and ensuring that the notice period for the police occurs on working days.

Architecture: Education

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects the Engaging Places online resource to be operational. [225468]

Barbara Follett: I expect the Engaging Places online resource:

www.engagingplaces.org.uk to be operational in January 2009.

Art Works: Exports

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 21-23W, on art works: exports, what the estimated value of each object referred to in the answer was prior to its sale. [226312]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 13 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the published annual reports of the Reviewing Committee on the Export of Works of Art and Objects of Cultural Interest, copies of which are available in the House Library. The case histories for each item considered by the Reviewing Committee detail the fair matching price as agreed by the Committee at each respective hearing.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 21-23W, on art works: exports, how much each of the objects referred to in the answer was sold for. [226313]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 13 October 2008]: It is not possible to supply the requested information. It is not the role of DCMS or the Reviewing Committee to attempt to monitor sales of cultural objects throughout the world. Nor is it necessarily the case that export abroad of a cultural object always involves a sale.

Buildings At Risk Register

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many buildings were (a) added to and (b) removed from the Buildings At Risk Register in each year since 2000. [224962]

Andy Burnham: The information requested, as provided by English Heritage, is set out in the table.

	Number of buildings removed from Buildings at Risk Register	Number of buildings added to Buildings at Risk Register
2007-08	57	69
2006-07	88	52
2005-06	94	68
2004-05	91	58
2003-04	94	66
2002-03	114	98
2001-02	114	94
2000-01	109	102
1999-2000	108	141

Cultural Heritage

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate (a) his Department and (b) English Heritage has made of the cost to heritage attractions of new (i) regulations and (ii) legislation in each of the last three years. [225159]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 8 October 2008]: New Government regulation and legislation usually goes through the impact assessment process. Impact assessments are listed in command papers regularly published by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) each year, which are available in the House Library or from BERR's website:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/bre/policy/scrutinisingnewregulations/Regulatory%20Reporting/page44948.html

Impact assessments consider the costs and benefits of proposed new regulation especially for those directly affected. It is usual that key stakeholders across the relevant sectors, which include non-departmental public bodies, are consulted on the identified costs and expected impact in advance of the regulation or legislation being made.

Cultural Heritage: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) when he expects his Department to complete the evidence base for its sectors in relation to the objective of increasing private giving to cultural and sporting organisations as set out in the Department's Corporate Plan; [224774]

(2) when he expects his Department to complete the evidence base for its sectors in relation to the objective of increasing private giving to cultural and sporting organisations as set out in his Department's Corporate Plan. [225696]

Andy Burnham: Our preliminary assessment of the evidence base in relation to philanthropy was completed in July. It is clear that there are gaps in the data and evidence that we will seek to fill as we continue to develop our policy and promote higher levels of private giving across our sectors.

Cultural Relations

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many enlarged partial agreements his Department made in the financial year 2007-08; and what the (a) subject and (b) cost to his Department of each such agreement was. [224838]

Andy Burnham: The Department represents UK interests in two enlarged partial agreements of the Council of Europe. These are:

The European Audiovisual Observatory. Our contribution for financial year 2007-08 was £146,721.20.

The Enlarged Partial Agreement on Sport (EPAS). Our contribution for financial year 2007-08 was £55,533 .

Both figures include the costs of currency conversion into Euros.

Culture Online: Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent on Culture Online in each year since 2000-01. [225757]

Barbara Follett: Expenditure on Culture Online in each year since it was established is set out in the table. Culture Online closed at the end of March 2007.

2000-01	640,382
2001-02	1,019236
2002-03	265,379
2003-04	1,439,034
2004-05	3,893,000
2005-06	2,657,000
2006-07	4,205,000
2007-08	72,312

Culture Online: Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff were employed to work on Culture Online in each year since 2002-03; and how many will be employed during 2008-09. [225689]

Barbara Follett: The information requested is set out in the table. Figures are not available for 2002-03.

Culture Online staff numbers

	Staff
2003-04	11
2004-05	11
2005-06	7

Culture Online ceased to be part of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in March 2007 and therefore does not figure in any future plans for the Department.

Departmental Ceremonies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on (a) ceremonial overheads and (b) ceremonial services in each of the last five years; and if he will break down these costs by subheading. [225688]

Andy Burnham: The costs recorded for ceremonial overheads in each financial year were as follows:

	Costs (£)
2003-04	173,000
2004-05	212,000
2005-06	294,000
2006-07	433,000
2007-08	331,000

It is not possible to disaggregate the costs of ceremonial services costs from these figures.

Departmental Land

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether the funds received by his Department as part of the sale of the land to the north of the British Library have yet been allocated; and what plans he has to make use of any unallocated funds. [224764]

Andy Burnham: All funds retained by the Department from of the sale of the "Land to the North" have been fully allocated.

Departmental Legislation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what estimate (a) his Department and (b) Arts Council England has made of the cost to arts establishments and artists of new (i) regulations and (ii) legislation in each of the last three years; [224775]

(2) what estimate (a) his Department and (b) Sport England has made of the cost to sports clubs of new (i) regulations and (ii) legislation in each of the last three years; [224776]

(3) what estimate (a) his Department and (b) Arts Council England has made of the cost to arts establishments and artists of new (i) regulations and (ii) legislation in each of the last three years; [224956]

(4) what estimate (a) his Department and (b) Sport England has made of the cost to sports clubs of new (i) regulations and (ii) legislation in each of the last three years. [224957]

Andy Burnham: New Government regulation and legislation usually goes through the impact assessment process. Impact assessments are listed in command papers regularly published by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) each year, which are available in the House Library or from BERR's website:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/bre/policy/scrutinisingnewregulations/Regulatory%20Reporting/page44948.html

Impact assessments consider the costs and benefits of proposed new regulation especially for those directly affected. It is usual that key stakeholders across the relevant sectors, which include non-departmental public bodies, are consulted on the identified costs and expected impact in advance of the regulation or legislation being made.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 17 June 2008, Official Report, columns 856-58W, on departmental NDPBs, what funding has been agreed with (a) the Royal Parks Agency and (b) each of his Department's NDPBs for the period 2008-11. [225071]

Barbara Follett: Cash funding for the Royal Parks is as follows:

[1] Date not known

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what additional funding (a) Sport England, (b) Arts Council England, (c) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and (d) English Heritage will receive in relation to the new regional responsibilities announced by his Department on 2 July 2008. [225473]

Andy Burnham: My Department has allocated £400,000 to these bodies in 2009-10, and a further £200,000 in 2010-11.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate (a) Sport England, (b) Arts Council England, (c) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and (d) English Heritage have made of the cost of implementing the new regional responsibilities announced by his Department on 2 July 2008. [225474]

Andy Burnham: These bodies are currently developing the new regional arrangements and we do not yet have an estimate of their costs.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects each of the new regional culture and sport alliances announced by his Department on 2 July 2008 to come into operation; and when he expects each of the new non-departmental public body alliances to meet for the first time. [225476]

Andy Burnham: Regional partners are currently working on plans for the new regional arrangements which will come into effect by 31 March 2009 at the latest. The chief executives of the four NDPBs leading the new arrangements (Arts Council England, Museums, Libraries and Archives, English Heritage and Sport England) met for the first time on 28 July, and subsequently on 29 September, to review the plans and agree a way forward.

Departmental Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent valuation has been made of the property portfolios of (a) his Department, (b) the Royal Parks, (c) English Heritage and (d) Arts Council England. [225687]

Barbara Follett: The information is as follows.

DCMS

As of 31 March 2008, the net book value of the land and buildings on the core departmental estate was £8.46 million. Freehold land is restated to current value every five years using professional valuations in accordance with FRS15. This was last valued professionally as at 31 March 2006 at £140,000. The remainder of the net book value is leasehold improvements stated at cost.

Royal Parks

The legal title of buildings within the Royal Parks remains with the Sovereign, but they are treated as being owned by the Royal Parks and are listed in their accounts as fixed assets. The value of lodges within the parks, which are used as dwellings, is based on their terms of occupation or on their replacement cost if this is lower. The buildings are subject to revaluation under a five-year rolling programme.

During financial year 2007-08, 20 per cent. of the properties within the Royal Parks estate were subject to physical revaluation, in accordance with the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors Appraisal and Valuation Manual. At the same time, dwellings were revalued on the basis of actual rent receivable. The result was a net book value of £45.53 million.

English Heritage

All land and buildings held on the balance sheet are subject to a full professional valuation every five years. A full revaluation was undertaken as at 31 March 2006 by professionally qualified internal valuers and external valuers in accordance with Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors guidance. Interim valuations are carried out only where a material change in value is suspected. An interim valuation was completed during the year ended 31 March 2008. The net book value as at 31 March 2008 was £52.59 million.

Arts Council England

As of 31 March 2008, the net book value of the Arts Council England property portfolio (both freehold and leasehold) was £7.70 million. This includes one freehold property that was professionally valued in 31 March 2005 in accordance with Art Council accounting procedures giving an open market value of £600,000. The remainder of the net book value relates to leasehold and freehold improvements.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [221956]

Andy Burnham: The Department has spent the following on external public relations and marketing companies included in COI's PR Framework in the last 36 months:

	Company	£
2006-07	Harrison Cowley	84,600
2008	Edelman	87,300

The Royal Parks Agency has spent £23,611 with Barkers over the past 36 months.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects his Department to publish its (a) Gambling Study, (b) Scoping Survey of Culture and Sport in the UK, (c) Tourism Productivity Survey, (d) report on World Heritage Status and (e) report on Drivers of Tourism Demand. [224954]

Andy Burnham: The exact date of publication for these documents is still to be confirmed but the Department is committed to releasing them shortly.

Digital Broadcasting

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions he has had with Digital UK on ensuring that work on transmitters and the effect it has on television reception is publicised; and if he will make a statement. [224727]

Andy Burnham: I have had no specific discussions with Digital UK or Ofcom on this issue. However, broadcasters (through Ofcom's code of practice on transition issues) are required to take the necessary steps to keep any potential disruption to viewers to a minimum during the transmitter upgrade programme for digital switchover. Where disruption is unavoidable, broadcasters are required to provide viewers with information about the likely extent of temporary disruption.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made on digital switchover; and if he will make a statement. [225876]

Andy Burnham: Digital switchover is on course, The first full region to switch will be Border, starting with the Selkirk transmitter and its 11 relays, where the process begins on 6 November.

Ofcom's digital television update for the second quarter of 2008 showed that digital TV was in 87.9 per cent. of UK households. In addition, for the same quarter the Ofcom/Digital UK tracker indicated that 89 per cent. of UK households were aware of digital switchover. A successful switch was completed in Copeland almost a year ago.

English Heritage

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many visits there were to English Heritage properties in each year since 1997. [224543]

Barbara Follett: The information requested is outlined in the following table and has been provided by English Heritage. The table relates to visits to staffed properties. In addition to these figures, English Heritage estimates that between 5 million and 6 million visits take place a year to its un-staffed sites.

	Number of visits to staffed English Heritage properties (million)
2007-08	5.3
2006-07	5.3
2005-06	4.7
2004-05	5.3

English Heritage: Educational Visits

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what target was set by English Heritage for providing free education visits in each of the last five years. [224545]

Barbara Follett: The information requested, as provided by English Heritage, is set out in the following table.

	Target
2007-08	593,200
2006-07	564,800
2005-06	536,400
2004-05	507,000
2003-04	413,000

English Heritage agreed the targets for the number of free education visits to its sites with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. The targets are set out in English Heritage's funding agreements. English Heritage made a commitment to achieving 650,000 free educational visits by 2010 in its five-year strategy, Making the Past Part of Our Future, published in 2005.

English Heritage: Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many properties managed by English Heritage are required to display an energy certificate; and how many did so at the latest date for which figures are available. [224971]

Barbara Follett: Following a comprehensive survey of its estate, English Heritage currently estimates that there are approximately 15 properties that require an energy certificate. It has put a programme in place to ensure they are all completed. To date, one property is displaying its certificate and a second is nearing completion. English Heritage estimates that the programme will be completed by December.

English Heritage: Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much English Heritage spent on acquiring historic artefacts in each of the last five years. [224972]

Barbara Follett: The information requested, as provided by English Heritage, is set out in the table.

Amount spent by English Heritage on acquiring historic artefacts

2007-08	512,000
2006-07	116,000
2005-06	82,000
2004-05	115,000
2003-04	153,000

English Heritage: Surveys

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps English Heritage has taken in response to the findings in its most recent annual staff survey. [224976]

Barbara Follett: Information from English Heritage is that it undertook a full staff survey during spring 2007. It had already begun work on a reward, recognition and retention strategy and the survey findings informed its development. An action plan was prepared and key steps taken so far include:

the creation of pay proposals to deal with pay anomalies, to make English Heritage more flexible as an organisation and to align it more clearly with the external market; and the creation of a new management development programme to provide flexible training for all English Heritage managers.

Invest to Save Budget

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department's non-departmental public bodies received from Invest to Save budgets in each of the last three years. [225678]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows how much the Department's non-departmental public bodies received from Invest to Save Budgets in the last three years.

Invest to save project

Round 8	£
2006-07	3,436,000
2007-08	1,102,700

Listed Buildings

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many recommendations for listing of properties were passed to his Department by English Heritage in each of the last five years; and how many such buildings were listed as a result. [225523]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 9 October 2008]: The information requested is set out in the table. It should be noted that not all recommendations made will receive a decision within the same year. The figures shown for the numbers of buildings listed in each year will include some cases recommended by English Heritage within that same year and some cases recommended within previous years. In addition, since 2005, a small number of listings may have resulted from a review of an earlier decision.

	Number of English Heritage recommendations for listing	Number of buildings listed
2003-04	729	483
2004-05	491	536
2005-06	425	379
2006-07	353	399
2007-08	564	477

National Lottery

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of the funding provided to his Department for its joint research budget by each of its non-departmental public bodies comes from National Lottery income. [225284]

Andy Burnham: The total contribution of NDPB, national lottery-sourced funding to the Joint Research Budget is £19,800 per annum, or 6.6 per cent. of the NDPB contribution. This comes entirely from Sport England.

The Joint Research Budget is jointly owned by DCMS and the contributing NDPBs and covers research into public participation in cultural and sporting activities supported both by Exchequer and lottery funding.

Overseas Visitors

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many overseas visitors arrived in the UK in each quarter since 2005. [225465]

Barbara Follett: The table shows the number of overseas visits to the UK since 2005 by quarter. Figures for 2007 and 2008 are provisional.

Visits to the UK by overseas residents

	Quarter	Visits[1] (Thousand)

Offers to the non-established church were made to Christian congregations other than those of the Church of England (Roman Catholic, Baptist, URC, Methodist, etc) and include nine offers totalling £1,003,000 to congregations of other faiths one Buddhist, seven Jewish and one Sikh.

English Heritage also operates a grant scheme for Church of England and Roman Catholic cathedrals (cathedrals of other denominations are eligible under the RGPOW scheme). Eligible cathedrals must be either listed or within a conservation area. In addition to repairs, grants can be offered towards: archaeological surveys, fire detection systems, improved access for maintenance, metric surveys, access audits, archive conservation and conservation plans. Since 2006-07, the scheme has been jointly funded by English Heritage and the Wolfson Foundation.

Sport England: Public Appointments

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to appoint a new Chair of Sport England; whether the remit and responsibilities associated with the post will differ from those of the former Chair; and what remuneration the new Chair will receive. [224498]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 6 October 2008]: I expect to appoint a new chair of Sport England early in the new year and the post will be re-advertised shortly.

The new chair will be responsible for delivering the new Sport England strategy, which focuses on ensuring that a substantial and growing number of people from across the community play sport, and that talented people from all backgrounds are identified early, nurtured and have the opportunity to progress to the elite level. The strategy will deliver one million more people doing sport by 2012-13. The remuneration for the chair will be in the region of £45,000 a year.

Sports: Finance

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what analysis he has made of the elite sports which field teams to represent England at international level and receive no funds from UK Sport; and what estimate he has made of the number of people who are actively involved in each sport. [225014]

Andy Burnham: UK Sport's mission is to lead sport in the UK to world class success, primarily by working with partner sporting organisations to deliver medals at the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

A number of sports field teams to represent England in international competitions and do not receive funding from UK Sport. These include professional sports such as football, cricket, rugby union and rugby league; Commonwealth Games sports such as bowls, netball, squash and ten pin bowling, and other sports such as lacrosse and angling.

The number of people who are actively involved in sports is measured through DCMS's Taking Part survey and Sport England's Active People survey.

Statues

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what statues his Department is responsible for; what the cost of maintenance of these statues was in 2007-08; and what valuation has been made of the statues. [225457]

Barbara Follett: The Secretary of State has responsibilities for the approval of new statues within London, but the Department for Culture, Media and Sport is not responsible for the upkeep of any public statues. The Royal Parks has responsibility for a large number of structures within its estate. These include the following statues:

Abraham Lincoln
George Canning
General Wolfe
William IV
Eagle Squadron Memorial

FDR Roosevelt
Achilles
Boy and Dolphin
Diana the Huntress
Epstein Statue (Pan) (Family of Man)
Four Winds Fountain (Joy of Life)
Household Cavalry Memorial
Little Nell
Albert Memorial
Jenner Statue
Peter Pan
Physical Energy
Queen Victoria (St. James's Park)
Two Baby Bears
Constance Fountain
George V
Bronze Eagle
Goetze Fountain (Triton)
Hylas and Nymph
Lost Bow
Mighty Hunter
Shepherdess
The Awakening
The Boy and Frog
Artillery Memorial
Australia Pillars
The Boy
Cooke Memorial
Duke of York Column
Field Marshall Roberts
George VI
Guards Memorial Kitchener
Mountbatten
Queen Victoria Memorial (Kensington Gardens)
Royal Marines
West Africa Pillar
Wolseley
Burghers of Calais
Emmeline Pankhurst
Arethusa

These are heritage assets and given nil value for accounting purposes. The Royal Parks does not have disaggregated information on the cost of maintaining its statues.

Swimming: Concessions

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effect on participation rates of providing free access to swimming to those aged (a) over 60 and (b) under 16 years; and what estimate he has made of the cost to local authorities of implementing free swimming for (i) over 60s and (ii) under 16s. [223572]

Andy Burnham: Swimming is the most popular physical activity for the over 60s with 7 per cent. taking part at least once a month. It is also the second most popular sport for children aged 11 to 16, with 38 per cent. participating in and out of school.

However, we know that cost can be a barrier to participation to some people. By introducing free swimming, we are removing this barrier and giving people the opportunity to increase the amount of exercise they take. Experience from existing schemes leads us to believe that our free swimming initiative will increase participation rates further.

In each of 2009-10 and 2010-11, £15 million is available to local authorities to provide free swimming to those aged 60 or over and £25 million is available to local authorities to provide free swimming to those aged 16 or under. This is a challenge initiative—building on many existing schemes at local level—that local authorities can opt into should they choose to. We want to help more local authorities to offer free swimming for over 60s and under 16s in support of our objective of getting two million more people active by the time of the 2012 Games in London.

Swimming: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will give a breakdown by main budget heading of the £140 million funding announced on 6 June 2008 to encourage local authorities to offer free swimming. [224770]

Andy Burnham: In each of 2009-10 and 2010-11, a total of £15 million has been made available to local authorities to offer free swimming to those aged 60 or over. Similarly, £25 million has been offered to provide free swimming to those aged 16 or under. In terms of capital funding, £10 million has been made available this year to those authorities who opt in to both elements of the scheme. These authorities may also bid from a £25 million capital fund available in each of 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average local authority entitlement is as part of the £140 million fund announced on 6 June 2008 to encourage local authorities to offer free swimming; and what percentage of the total cost is expected to be borne by local authorities. [224771]

Andy Burnham: There is no new entitlement to free swimming. Eligible local authorities may choose to opt in to offering free swimming as we have defined it in our letter to chief executives, dated 29 July 2008, which I circulated to all hon. Members at the time.

In each of 2009-10 and 2010-11, a total of £15 million has been made available to local authorities to offer free swimming to those aged 60 or over. Similarly, £25 million has been offered to provide free swimming to those aged 16 or under.

Grant allocations have been offered to those of the eligible 354 local authorities who choose to provide free swimming, according to a formula based on the size of their local populations for the relevant age groups.

Those authorities who opt in to both elements of the scheme will receive a pro rata population-based share of the £10 million capital has been made available this year. These authorities may also then bid from a £25 million capital fund available in each of 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was paid to the BBC from television licence revenue in each year since 1997. [225458]

Andy Burnham: The television licence fee revenue received into the Department is surrendered to the Consolidated Fund. The value of licence receipts, less a small deduction for the Department's costs of administering the licence fee, is passed on to the BBC through grant in aid from DCMS. Since 1997, the grant in aid has been as follows:

	BBC grant in aid (£000)
2007-08[1]	2,856,110
2006-07	2,739,006
2005-06	2,624,277
2004-05	2,501,970
2003-04	2,372,527
2002-03	2,277,789
2001-02	2,171,382
2000-01	2,086,326
1999-2000	2,270,801
1998-99	2,146,304
1997-98	1,979,000

[1] The accounting treatment of licence fee revenue income was changed in 2007-08 following discussion with the National Audit Office. For the first time in 2007-08, the income figure takes into account timing delays between the collection of licence fee revenue by the BBC's agents and payment to DCMS.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was received in television licence revenue in each year since 1997. [225459]

Andy Burnham: The following amounts were received in television licence fee revenue between 1997 and 2008:

	BBC licence fee receipt £000
2007-08	2,859,002
2006-07	2,739,160
2005-06	2,624,468
2004-05	2,502,111
2003-04	2,372,686
2002-03	2,277,941
2001-02	2,171,515
2000-01	2,086,475
1999-00	2,270,921
1998-99	2,146,416
1997-98	2,010,880

UK Film Council: Recruitment

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by the UK Film Council on advertising for recruitment in each of the last five years. [225471]

Barbara Follett: The UK Film Council has provided the following information about their advertising costs for recruitment. These figures include all internal executive posts, but not public appointments. Where figures are higher, in particular 2006-2007, this represents a higher staff turnover during these years.

2003-04	29,990
2004-05	29,298
2005-06	53,518
2006-07	101,478
2007-08	65,135

World Creative Business Conference

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been paid to (a) Edelman and (b) Acclaim for services relating to the World Creative Business Conference; and how much he expects to pay to each during 2008-09. [224963]

Barbara Follett: The Department has allocated £1 million towards the running of the World Creative Business Conference in each of the next three years, including 2008-09. This covers the provision of specialist expertise and several other costs, such as venue hire.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the World Creative Business Conference will take place; where it will be held; and how much the event is estimated to cost. [224964]

Andy Burnham: We expect to make a formal announcement of the date and location of the World Creative Business Conference soon. The final cost of the event will depend on a number of factors, including the number of attendees. However, the Department has allocated £1 million towards the running of the World Creative Business Conference in each of the next three years, including 2008-09.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many invitations to the World Creative Business Conference have been sent out; and how many invitees have so far replied. [225072]

Andy Burnham: No invitations have yet been sent. It is expected that formal registration for the event will begin next spring.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Churches: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Drew: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what recent discussions the Church Commissioners have had with HM Treasury on funding for the repair and upkeep of church buildings; and if he will make a statement. [226693]

Sir Stuart Bell: Representatives of the Church of England have had constructive discussions with Ministers and officials from the Treasury, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, the Department for Communities and Local Government, the Office of the Third Sector and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. These interdepartmental discussions are ongoing and I would hope to be able to report the outcome before the Christmas recess.

By way of a statement, the overall aim is to examine the contribution made by church buildings of all faiths to the agendas of Departments and to identify available funding from national, regional and local government sources. From there, the working group is looking at ways of ensuring that these funding streams are fully accessible to churches.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bluetongue Disease

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information he holds on which EU countries currently have bluetongue epidemics; and what strain is prevalent in each case. [225539]

Jane Kennedy: Currently, there are several bluetongue serotypes circulating in different parts of the EU, including serotypes 1, 2, 4, 8, 9 and 16. A map of the current protection zones in place for each serotype can be found on the European Commission website.

Of most importance to the UK are bluetongue serotypes 1 and 8. Bluetongue serotype 8 (BTV-8) was first found in the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Western Germany and in parts of North Eastern France in summer/autumn 2006. In 2007, Northern Europe experienced a dramatic increase of new cases in all existing infected areas, and cases numbered into the tens of thousands as disease steadily spread across Europe.

In 2008, the number of new cases of BTV-8 in many EU member states has declined, but depending on weather conditions, it is possible that there may be further outbreaks this year. BTV-8 continues to be highly prevalent in France (with over 16,000 new cases in 2008) and Germany (over 1,300 new cases). BTV-1 is prevalent in Spain (over 1,000 new cases) and France (over 2,600 cases).

Departmental Paper

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of paper used (a) for photocopying and (b) in printed publications by his Department was from recycled sources in each of the last two years. [220727]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally, the figures are as follows:

	Tonnes	Percentage from recycled sources
Photocopier paper
2006-07	547.9	97
2007-08	601.11	98
Printer paper
2006-07	318.7	100
2007-08	281.7	100

DEFRA's sustainable procurement policy is adherence to the highest standards of recycled paper. DEFRA currently buys paper that contains 75 per cent. recycled fibre for coated paper used in publications and for office paper (copier) and publications using uncoated paper, there is a 100 per cent. recycled fibre target. The only exceptions to these standards are where recycled paper is not available for a specific process e.g. some coloured stocks, security paper and non-carbon reproduction (NCR). Meeting the targets owes much to the fact that a considerable proportion of DEFRA's printed publications are commissioned from a single central business unit using a centrally negotiated contract for recycled paper. The increase in photocopier usage is accounted for by print jobs related to cattle statements, herd statements, herd movements, single payments scheme and animal health disease outbreaks.

Departmental Press

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by his Department on subscriptions for magazines, newspapers and other publications in each of the last 24 months. [215211]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In the last 24 months, DEFRA spent £26,031.55 on subscriptions for magazines and newspapers. It is not possible to give a monthly breakdown as the amount varies depending on the length of the subscription.

Floods

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what critical infrastructure has been identified as vulnerable to flooding; and what the location and level of risk of each is. [224221]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 17 September 2008]: The following table shows the number of critical facilities sites at risk of flooding. The Environment Agency is unable to give the location of these sites for national security reasons.

	Number of sites in flood zone (flood risk probability)
Asset	Significant (1 in75)	Moderate (1 in 75-200)	Low (1 in 200 or fewer)	Total in all three zones

Railway lines (Kilometres)	1,470	750	948	3,213

International Panel on Climate Change: Correspondence

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of correspondence between Dr. John Mitchell, Chief Scientist at the Hadley Centre, and the International Panel on Climate Change occurring in the last 12 months. [225013]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I have been asked to reply.

The Meteorological Office will review correspondence between Professor Mitchell and the IPCC in the last 12 months. Where appropriate, copies will be placed in the Library of the House.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 29 September 2008, Official Report, columns 2421-2W, on non-departmental public bodies, what is the net change is in the (a) amount and (b) percentage of (i) resource, (ii) capital and (iii) total budgets for each of his Department's executive agencies and sponsored bodies from 2008-09 to 2009-10 in (A) cash and (B) real terms; and what savings were achieved in each spending area of each such organisation in that period. [226942]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 14 October 2008]: Requested details for arms length bodies and gross controlled agencies for the 2008-09 and 2009-10 are provided in the following tables. HM Treasury deflators have been used to derive net change in real terms at 2008-09 prices.

DEFRA's other Executive Agencies: the Central Science Laboratory (CSL), the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA), the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) and the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS) recover their full economic costs through charges made to customers for services provided.

How the changes in budget levels between the two years will be applied, are matters for the chief executives of individual NDPBs and Executive Agencies, in consultation with Ministers.

Prawns

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will assess the relative health benefits and safety from toxins of wild prawns farmed in the UK with farmed prawns imported from South East Asia; and if he will make a statement; [226475]

(2) if he will increase the rigorousness and regularity of the testing of shellfish imported from South East Asia; and if he will make a statement; [226476]

(3) what steps he is taking to reduce the risk of toxic imported shellfish being put on sale to the public in the UK. [226542]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Prawns are not farmed in the UK. Some other shellfish are farmed in the UK, but are subject to controls required by EU legislation aimed at raising the standards of aquaculture health throughout the EU.

The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has responsibility for food safety matters, including controls on imported food such as shellfish from non-EU countries. These imports are subject to robust checks at UK seaports and airports of entry by local authorities in accordance with EU food safety and hygiene legislation.

All imports of food products from non-EU countries must meet food safety and food hygiene requirements equivalent to those in the UK. Products of animal origin, including shellfish, may be imported from non-EU countries which ensure that establishments meet EU standards and, have enforcement officials who monitor and are required to certify compliance with EU food safety criteria.

Such products must enter the EU through designated Border Inspection Posts under the control of official inspectors, where they undergo documentary and identity checks and a prescribed proportion are subject to physical compliance checks, which can include testing for toxins.

DEFRA's Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) carries out surveillance for unacceptable residues of veterinary medicinal products in imported foodstuffs every year. This is based on recommendations from the independent Veterinary Residues Committee (VRC), which advises the VMD and FSA on residues issues. The programme focuses on looking for substances prohibited from use in the EU, and which therefore should not be present in food imported into the EU.

Warm water crustaceans have been included in the programme for several years. Several non-compliant results for metabolites of nitrofurans (antibiotics prohibited from use in the EU owing to health concerns) were reported in 2005 and 2006, with fewer non-compliant results in 2007 and 2008 to date. These are predominantly from South-East Asia. The UK authorities wrote to the Commission on this issue in January 2007.

2006	393	23
2008 to date	184	3

Further details of the results can be obtained from the VRC's website at www.secretariat@vet-residues-committee.gov.uk.

Non-compliant consignments are rejected and can be destroyed. The EU Commission is notified through the Rapid Alert System for Food and Feed (RASFF) of such consignments and all EU (and EEA) border posts are advised to reinforce controls.

If a consignment fails these checks then the next 10 consignments from the relevant establishment are checked, for example, for the presence of veterinary residues. EU emergency safeguard conditions are taken when there is an outbreak of disease or other circumstances likely to present a risk to public health.

Inland local authorities also carry out checks of food on sale, regardless of country of origin. It is for food businesses to ensure that food on sale in the UK meets food safety requirements. Robust import conditions and targeted enforcement action is used to check food throughout the food chain to minimise potential risks to public health.

Primates: Pets

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) wild-caught and (b) captive-bred primates have been imported into the UK as pets since 2000. [225073]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Since 2000, the UK CITES Management Authority has issued one import permit to allow the importation of one wild primate for the purpose of keeping as a pet. The animal had been hand reared after it had been rejected by its mother and could not be returned to the wild. The Government's scientific authorities advised that in this particular case there would be no detriment to the conservation status of the species in the wild. A permit was issued with the condition that the animal must be kept in adequate housing and could only be relinquished to a zoo or specialised keeper after ensuring that the intended recipient had been adequately informed of the accommodation, practices and equipment required to ensure the animal would be properly cared for.

There have been no permits issued in the same period to allow captive bred primates to be imported as pets.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many pet primates have been seized in the UK as a result of noise or other nuisance since 2000; and where such seized primates were subsequently kept. [225075]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Any seizures of primates due to noise or other nuisance would be undertaken by local authorities. Central records of such seizures are not held.

Warm Front Scheme

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much Warm Front spent in labour costs associated with installing central heating in each of the last three years; and how many dwelling installations this figure represents. [224909]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The following table illustrates the labour costs associated with the installation of central heating and the number of installations this represents. Figures split by scheme years.

	Number of central heating installations delivered	Heating costs—labour (£)
2005-06	22,188	35,956,029.12
2006-07	81,357	131,348,046.91
2007-08	103,044	162,284,909.55
Total	206,589	329,588,985.58

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many properties in Bassetlaw constituency received Warm Front grants for (a) insulation and (b) central heating in the last three years. [224911]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

In the last three years, Warm Front has delivered (a) 533 insulation measures and (b) 691 heating measures to households in Bassetlaw.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether those living in residential park homes may be eligible to participate in the Warm Front scheme. [225009]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Those residing in park homes are not disqualified from receiving assistance through the scheme and are subject to the same entry criteria as all applicants. However, many park homes can prove 'hard to treat' and may not be suitable for some of the measures currently available under Warm Front.

However, Warm Front has developed mechanisms for assessing new technologies that could be brought onto the scheme and is currently reviewing alternative heating and insulation measures which could provide potential future solutions for park home properties.

Warm Front Scheme: Contracts

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who the largest five contractors were, in terms of business value, installing Warm Front-funded central heating in Bassetlaw constituency have been in the last three years. [224719]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

The five largest contractors, in terms of the number of installations delivered through Warm Front, in Bassetlaw are:

Eaga Energy Solutions Ltd.
East Coast Gas Services Ltd.
Fenhams Contracts.
Heating Efficiency Systems Ltd.
Iguana Services Ltd.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Climate Change

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made on the commitments undertaken at the ministerial G8 Gleneagles Dialogue meeting in Berlin, Germany in September 2007; and if he will make a statement. [225358]

Joan Ruddock: The third Ministerial G8 Gleneagles Dialogue meeting in Berlin in 2007 concentrated on developing an integrated view on energy and climate policy with a focus on technology and investment in sustainable energy systems. The Berlin ministerial recognised the urgent need for clear and predictable policy frameworks on the national and international levels in order to spur more climate-friendly sustainable development pathways and underscored the need for agreement on a strong process to develop a post-2012 framework.

To this end, the International Energy Agency and the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Partnership, the Renewable Energy Policy Network for the 21st century, national experts from Dialogue countries and interested stakeholders were invited to explore in more detail the technology potentials in key sectors in Dialogue countries. Analysis focused on how to ensure economic growth with a lower carbon footprint, including identifying specific innovative mechanisms for technology co-operation. The results were reported at the Japanese G8 presidency in July 2008.

International Financial Institutions were invited, in co-operation with national experts from Dialogue countries and the private sector, to analyse in depth the international co-operation toolbox, including expanding and scaling up mechanisms such as the Clean Development Mechanism, sectoral approaches, and blended public and private financing.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made on the Gleneagles Plan of Action on climate change to exploit cleaner technologies, promote energy efficiency and invest in clean technologies in emerging economies. [225367]

Joan Ruddock: The International Energy Agency (IEA) undertook three years of detailed work under the Gleneagles Plan of Action funded by G8 members. The Agency's report of the main conclusions can be found on its website. On energy efficiency, the IEA has completed an exhaustive analysis of the global potential for improvements in energy efficiency and the action that needs to be taken to realise that potential. This analysis culminated in 25 recommendations made by the IEA to the leaders of the G8 for improving global energy efficiency covering action on buildings, appliances, lighting, transport, industry, energy utilities and cross-cutting policies and which, by 2030, could reduce global demand for oil by 15 per cent., and energy-related CO_2 emissions by almost 20 per cent., G8 leaders at the Hokkaido summit in Japan in July accepted the IEA's conclusions, which also included:

The leaders of the G8, China, India and South Korea agreeing to establish an International Partnership on Energy Efficiency.

A commitment to strongly support the launching of 20 large-scale Carbon Capture and Storage (CCS) demonstration projects globally by 2010 with a view to beginning broad deployment of CCS by 2020.

A commitment to develop road maps for innovative clean technologies and to co-operate through existing and new partnerships.

A commitment to promote the continued development and commercialisation of renewable energy, including through the launch of a Global Bioenergy Partnership.

In terms of work on encouraging investment in clean technologies in emerging economies, the World Bank and other multilateral development banks (MDBs) have been invited to increase dialogue with borrowers on energy issues and put forward specific proposals at their annual meetings to:

(a) make the best use of existing resources and financing instruments and develop a framework for energy investment to accelerate the adoption of technologies which enable cleaner, more efficient energy production and use.

(b) explore opportunities within their existing and new lending portfolios to increase the volume of investments made on renewable energy and energy efficiency technologies consistent with the MDBs' core mission of poverty reduction.

(c) work with interested borrower countries with significant energy requirements to identify less greenhouse gas intensive growth options which meet their priorities; and ensure that such options are integrated into Country Assistance Strategies.

(d) develop local commercial capacity to develop and finance cost-effective projects that promote energy efficiency and low-carbon energy sources.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress the Government has made on Public Service Agreement 27 on leading the global effort to avoid dangerous climate change; and if he will make a statement. [225368]

Joan Ruddock: Public service agreement 27 on climate change covers three major challenges—to reduce overall greenhouse gas emissions by working for a global deal, to reduce UK emissions to put us in the forefront of the move to a low carbon economy; and to ensure the country is adapting to the consequences of climate change which are already unavoidable. Progress has been made on all three fronts but much more still needs to be done.

The Climate Change Bill, Energy Bill and Planning Bill will support the infrastructure changes required in the UK, establish binding carbon budgets, and set up the Committee on Climate Change. The Committee's first report is due in December.

The Government are supporting proposals for strengthening the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, which places a cap on emissions from energy intensive sectors and puts a price on carbon, as the basis for a global carbon trading market.

The Government are consulting on a Renewable Energy Strategy as part of meeting the EU target to source 20 per cent. of the EU's energy from renewable sources by 2020. It is also taking steps to enable nuclear new build and is developing an approach to carbon capture and storage.

The Government are also working with other countries to secure a good outcome from negotiations on the EU's emissions target for 2020 and to prepare for the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change in December 2009.

Insulation: Housing

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the number of (a) people able to carry out insulation work in winter 2008-09 and (b) council-owned or housing association properties eligible for insulation or pipe lagging work under the energy efficiency and household insulation scheme announced in September. [226530]

Joan Ruddock: We are working closely with energy suppliers and the insulation industry to maximise insulation activity under the carbon emissions reduction target (CERT) this winter. There are now some 4,000 people able to carry out insulation work, plus support staff—an increase of almost 500 staff since April 2008.

3.9 million (reported April 2006) local authority and registered social landlord households are eligible to benefit from energy supplier action under CERT; a significant number have already been treated through this and the Decent Homes programme. It is up to landlords to proactively work with energy suppliers to find cost-effective energy saving opportunities which can benefit their tenants.

Interdepartmental Analysts Group

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps the Interdepartmental Analysts Group (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake on climate change and the low carbon economy; and if he will make a statement. [225350]

Joan Ruddock: The Interdepartmental Analysts Group is revising its guidance to ensure that the policies needed to achieve cuts in emissions are evaluated and appraised in a consistent manner. The Group is undertaking evaluation and appraisal of emissions reduction policies beyond those contained in the 2007 Energy White Paper, that will be needed to achieve further cuts in emissions.

JUSTICE

Driving Offences: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were (a) cautioned and (b) fined for speeding in Leeds in each of the last 10 years. [226390]

Maria Eagle: Available information on speed limit offences within the West Yorkshire police force area from 1997 to 2006 (latest available) is provided in the following table. 2007 data should be available later this year.

Data are available at police force area level only.

Number of court imposed fines[1, 2] imposed at magistrates courts and fixed penalty notices issued[3] for speed limit offences[4], within West Yorkshire police force area, 1997 to 2006

		Number of offences
	Court imposed fines[1, 2]	Fixed penalty notices issued[3]
1997	3,738	24,103
1998	4,245	29,635
1999	5,553	24,791
2000	5,619	24,595
2001	4,442	20,937
2002	2,295	32,126
2003	3,349	70,011
2004	4,263	68,827
2005	5,204	66,031
2006	5,955	49,528

[1] May include cases where fixed penalty was issued and not paid and consequently taken to court.
[2] Magistrates courts data only. Fines given at the Crown court total nationally (England and Wales) less than 10 each year.
[3] Covers tickets paid where there is no further action.
[4] Offences under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 ss. 16, 81, 84, 86, 88 and 89; Motor Vehicles (Speed Limit on Motorways) Regs. 1973; Parks Regulation (Amendment) Act 1926, byelaws made thereunder.
Notes:
1. It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete. Written warning may also be under reported.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Lancaster Farms Young Offender Institute

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken in response to recommendations in the 2006 Annual Report of the Independent Monitoring Board for Her Majesty's Young Offender Institute, Lancaster Farms. [226469]

Mr. Hanson: My hon. Friend, the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Justice (Maria Eagle) formally replied to the report on 17 September 2007. This letter contained detailed responses to all of the concerns raised. The Board recently submitted its Annual Report for 2007 and I will be writing to the Chair shortly, addressing the issues that it has highlighted.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he has received representations from the Governor of Her Majesty's Young Offender Institute, Lancaster Farms on late drop offs from court; and if he will make a statement. [226472]

Mr. Hanson: No representations have been made to me by the Governor of Her Majesty's Young Offenders Institute, Lancaster Farms, about the late arrival of young prisoners from court. Data provided by the escort contractor indicate that of 863 young prisoners escorted to HMYOI Lancaster Farms from courts between 1 April 2008 and 30 September 2008, 88 per cent. arrived before 1900 hours and only six arrived after 2000 hours.

Law Centres

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons a full tendering process is undertaken for the setting up of community legal advice networks. [226218]

Bridget Prentice: As public bodies the Legal Services Commission (LSC) and any local authority partners are required to act in accordance with the Public Contracts Regulations 2006 when awarding relevant contracts for public services such as a Community Legal Advice Network. These regulations incorporate European Union (EU) procurement law into UK practice; to ensure a consistent regime for the award of public contracts throughout the EU.

Moreover, the tendering process allows the LSC to secure excellent access, high quality and the best possible value for money.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with representatives of Citizens Advice Bureaux on the proposed changes to the community legal systems. [226219]

Bridget Prentice: My Noble friend, Lord Hunt of Kings Heath, the former Legal Aid Minister, met representatives of Citizens Advice on a number of occasions to discuss a range of issues relating to the Legal Aid Reform programme. The most recent meeting took place in June 2008.

The Legal Services Commission also engage with Citizens Advice on a regular basis to discuss the reform programme. For example, there are regular meetings between the chief executives of the LSC and Citizens Advice, and a bi-monthly meeting is held between the LSC and Not-for-Profit agencies (including Citizens Advice) on contracting issues.

Legal Advice and Assistance

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 26 June 2008, Official Report, column 473W, on legal advice and assistance, what assessment he has made of the effect of the establishment of new community legal advice centres on the viability of citizens advice bureaux in areas where they have not won contracts to run the new centres. [225546]

Bridget Prentice: Community Legal Advice (CLA) services (centres and networks) offer integrated help on housing, debt, employment, welfare benefits, and community care because these problems, in particular, are often interlinked.

They also bring together advice services funded by local bodies, such as local authorities, with legal aid funded by the Legal Services Commission (LSC). Centres and networks aim to provide services that meet the needs of people in the local area and are commissioned through an open tender process.

The LSC currently funds, with the respective local authority, four Community Legal Advice centres in Gateshead, Leicester, Derby and Portsmouth. In addition, the Hull Community Legal Advice centre, which is jointly funded with Hull City Council, will open on 20 October. Citizens Advice Bureaux (CABx) were part of the winning bid in Gateshead, Derby and Portsmouth.

Hull Citizens Advice Bureau was unsuccessful in its bid for the Hull Community Legal Advice centre and the LSC are in discussions with it about its future. Though not part of the Leicester Community Legal Advice centre, the Leicester CABx did not lose any funding as a result of the centre opening earlier this year.

CABx play an important role in advising and supporting local communities.

In addition to those involved in Community Legal Advice centres, the LSC continues to fund around 250 CABx to deliver advice through legal aid.

Legal Aid

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases in the (a) criminal and (b) civil courts were funded wholly or partly through legal aid in the last year for which figures are available; and what the equivalent figures were (i) five and (ii) 10 years previously. [225971]

Bridget Prentice: The following table provides information on legally aided cases in the criminal courts in 1997-98, 2002-03 and 2007-08.

The number of magistrates courts claims provides a reasonable proxy of the number of cases legally aided although in some cases there may be more than one claim if two or more people are represented. The majority of representation orders granted in the Crown court and above will have also received representation in the magistrates' court but a minority will not. In the Crown court, on average, there are 1.2 representation orders per case (again, where more than one defendant is involved in a case).

I am unable to provide an answer in respect of the civil courts, as this information is not held centrally. In particular, many legally aided cases are completed without ever needing to come to court.

Prisoners: Employment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which closed (a) adult (i) male and (ii) female prisons and (b) (A) male and (B) female young offender institutions in England and Wales have introduced changes to the core working day since 1 January 2008; on which date the changes were introduced in each case; and which establishments have not introduced changes. [226262]

Mr. Hanson: The final date for implementation of the standard core day was 29 June 2008. A number of prisons are introducing the change after this date for the reasons given in the following table.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign national prisoners were held in prisons on 30 September, broken down by nationality; and how many prisoners held in England and Wales on that date had an unknown country of origin. [225872]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of June 2008, the last date for which this information is available, there were 11,498 foreign national prisoners detained in all prisons in England and Wales, and 946 for whom the nationality information is not yet recorded on central data systems. The total includes prisoners held on remand or serving custodial sentences, as well as those held under the Immigration Act 1971 (including those in the immigration removal centres of Dover, Haslar and Lindholme).

In June's data some 75 per cent. of prisoners for whom nationality is unrecorded are remand prisoners. Unrecorded nationalities account for 1 per cent. of the overall population.

NOMS continues to work with the Border and Immigration Agency to speed up the system for removing those foreign national prisoners who meet the deportation criteria. Where the information is not already available, this will include establishing the nationality of individuals, and the relevant country of origin (or transit) to deport them to if appropriate.

This information is published at the following website, and is updated quarterly;

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Mentally Ill

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of those in custody in England and Wales have been diagnosed with mental health problems. [225914]

Mr. Hanson: We are aware that there are a number of people in custody in England and Wales who experience mental health problems. The 1997 Office for National Statistics' survey, for example, indicated that as many as 58 per cent. of male and 75 per cent. of female remand prisoners, and 39 per cent. of male and 62 per cent. of female sentenced prisoners met criteria for a diagnosis of anxiety and/or depression. Rates of very severe mental illness were between 7 and 9 per cent. of sentenced men and 14 per cent. of women having a psychotic illness.

Accurate identification of people needing mental health treatment and care is important at all stages in the care and offender pathway. This is why all prisoners are screened at reception for risks of mental ill health and previous history of psychiatric treatment. The Offender Assessment System (OASys) helps to ensure that any person judged to be at risk and/or of needing mental health treatment and care can be identified and referred, where appropriate, to the Mental Health In-Reach Team.

By 2005-06 nearly £20 million was being invested recurrently in mental health in-reach. There are now 102 mental health in-reach teams and all prisons now have access to them: a total of 360 extra staff altogether. There are also new systems to monitor and support those at risk of harming themselves.

Probation: Finance

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) budget and (b) budget deficit was for each probation board in each of the last five years; and what the (i) budget and (ii) projected budget deficit is for each board for 2008-09. [227077]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the year-end budget revenue allocations for the 42 probation boards in each of the last five years, plus the revenue budget allocated to-date in the present financial year for the probation boards and six probation trusts. It also shows the agreed overspends that boards were allowed to carry forward in 2006-07 and 2007-08, plus the latest information from boards on forecast overspends in the present financial year. Information on overspends before 2006-07 is not held centrally and could be obtained by approaching 42 probation areas, which would only be at disproportionate cost.

The budget and forecast overspend figures for 2008-09 are likely to be subject to further revision.

Repossession Orders

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many house repossessions were laid before the courts in each month in each of the last three years, broken down by (a) constituency and (b) region; and how many of these were approved by the court. [226937]

Bridget Prentice: The following tables show the number of mortgage and landlord possession claims issued, suspended orders and outright orders made in the county courts of England and Wales, broken down by Her Majesty Court Service region, since 2005.

The data are not currently available by constituency.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2007 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgateland lordpossession.htm

These figures do not indicate how many houses have been repossessed through the courts, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. As county courts' jurisdictions are not coterminous with the borough boundaries, any single Court's repossession actions are likely to relate to homes in a number of different boroughs.

Young Offenders

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he plans to take to ensure former juvenile prisoners move to young offender prisons or wings once they reach their 18th birthday. [226470]

Mr. Hanson: The policy of the Youth Justice Board is that those young people serving a Detention and Training Order aged 18 and over in a Prison Service unit should remain in the young persons' estate to complete the custodial part of their sentence unless there are exceptional personal or population management circumstances which require them to be moved to the young adult estate.

For those sentenced to longer sentences, arrangements are in place to ensure that within a month of their 18th birthday they are relocated to the young adult estate.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to make arrangements for members of the armed services serving in Afghanistan to be able to receive Christmas parcels after the end of October. [226882]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD, in conjunction with Royal Mail Group, provides a free mail service for letters and packets, up to 2 kg in weight, from families and friends to named MOD personnel deployed in Afghanistan and Iraq throughout the year. The latest posting date to guarantee Christmas delivery is 5 December 2008.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Armed Forces personnel were deployed on operations on the latest date for which figures are available, broken down by location of operation. [226909]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the number of UK service personnel deployed on operations by location at 5 October 2008. The number of personnel in theatre will naturally fluctuate on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including leave (rest and recuperation), temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces and other factors.

Number of UK armed forces personnel deployed by location[1]

Location	Number
Total	14,950
of which
Afghanistan[2,3]	8,800

Number of UK armed forces personnel deployed by location[1]

Location	Number
Iraq[2]	3,900
At sea	820
Qatar	410
Cyprus	260
Oman	260
Kuwait	230
Kosovo	160
Bahrain	80
Bosnia	10
Other	20

[1] Countries with 10 or more personnel are shown separately. Other countries with fewer than 10 personnel per country include Georgia, Nepal, Sudan, Sierra Leone, Democratic Republic of Congo and Liberia.
[2] Figures for Iraq and Afghanistan have been rounded to the nearest 100 for operational security reasons. Other figures have been rounded to the nearest 10. Due to rounding methods used, the total may not equal the sum of the individual locations.
[3] Figures for Afghanistan are artificially high due to a current Operation Herrick Relief In Place (RIP) operation.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints Modern Housing Solutions received in each month since January 2008. [226910]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The number of complaints received by Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) in each month since January 2008 is as follows:

	Number of complaints received
January 2008	658
February 2008	612
March 2008	562
April 2008	731
May 2008	622
June 2008	626
July 2008	656
August 2008	625
September 2008	727

MHS are responsible for the maintenance and repair of approximately 45,000 SFA properties in England and Wales and carry-out over 200,000 response repair jobs each year.

Armed Forces: Mental Health Services

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made in the TRiM project for post-conflict trauma, depression and stress training; what the project's budget is; where the project's administration is located; and if he will make a statement. [226247]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Trauma Risk Management (TRiM) system operates as a proactive, peer group mentoring and support system which aims to identify signs and symptoms and to manage the risk of any mental distress that may be suffered by individuals following a traumatic incident. It is not in itself a treatment programme. The initiative train teams of non-medical personnel from within units to recognise the signs and symptoms of mental distress and give advice to individuals on coping strategies and how to manage them or, where required, refer them for specialist help. The system has already been endorsed by both the Royal Navy and Army Chains of Command.

The allocated budget in Financial Year 2008-09 for all stress management training within the armed forces, which includes costs for TRiM training, is in the region of £1 million. Currently the administration for TRiM training is the responsibility of the individual single services.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) Mastiffs, (b) Vector, (c) Jackal and (d) Ridgeback vehicles have been ordered by his Department; and how many have been delivered. [226912]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The breakdown of Mastiff, Vector, Jackal and Ridgeback ordered and delivered to date is as follows;

	Number ordered	Number delivered
Mastiff	282	108
Vector	185	178
Jackal	202	130

Christmas

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Christmas functions (a) he, (b) officials from his Department and (c) officials from its executive agencies (i) hosted and (ii) attended in 2007-08; what the cost to the public purse was; and if he will make a statement. [226952]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department's instructions on financial management make it clear that it is not permissible to spend public money on Christmas functions. Any Christmas functions that take place are funded from non-public funds or by staff themselves.

Departmental Furniture

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) chairs, (b) desks and (c) other office furnishings have been purchased by his Department for (i) main buildings and (ii) other departmental offices in each of the last five years; and at what cost in each case. [226908]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Within MOD, each top level budget is individually responsible for assessing furniture requirements and for authorising procurement of furniture, including chairs, desks and other office furnishings. Information on expenditure by individual MOD building is not held centrally. For details of overall departmental expenditure on these items for the last five years I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor on 29 September 2008, Official Report, column 2438W, to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban).

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [226490]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Department operates a system of settling invoices within 30 days of their receipt by allowing 19 days for confirmation that the service or supply has been satisfactorily performed and 11 days for the Financial Management Shared Service Centre (FMSSC) to make the payment. Statistics for the 30 day cycle could be provided only at disproportionate cost. For this reason the payment performance of the FMSSC has been used to demonstrate the Department's commitment to prompt payment.

In 2007-08, the FMSSC paid 99.96 per cent., of all valid UK bills within 11 calendar days of receipt as part of the Department's contribution to improving the payment culture in the UK. The FMSSC also introduced daily payment runs to enhance its flexibility in providing a prompt and efficient service to industry and the smaller supplier.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much (a) his Department and (b) its Executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [226798]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The level of expenditure on recruitment consultants and external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

External recruitment advertising is used only if internal recruitment has failed or is unlikely to deliver a suitable applicant. Such recruitment is conducted in line with the civil service recruitment code.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of written Questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226899]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Up to 8 October 2008, 575 written for named day questions were tabled to the Ministry of Defence of which 275 (48 per cent.) were answered on the due date.

Ex-servicemen

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many and what percentage of ex-service personnel were defined as living in absolute poverty in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997; [224680]

(2) how many ex-service personnel were defined as living in relative poverty in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [224897]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Government do not collect statistics on the number of ex-service personnel living in relative poverty. Veterans facing difficulties in their civilian lives have access to the free veterans helpline and the Veterans Welfare Service which provide advice and support, as well as to the UK benefits provided for those in need.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of people eligible for veterans badges who are resident in the Scottish Borders area; and how many badges have been issued to such residents. [223266]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 9 September 2008]: We have not made any estimate of the number of people eligible for veterans badges resident in the Scottish borders.

The information requested is not held in the format that identifies how many veterans badges have been issued in the Scottish borders area and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Hercules Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of Hercules C-130 aircraft have been fitted with explosive suppressant foam. [226997]

Mr. Quentin Davies: 74 per cent. of the Hercules C-130 fleet has been fitted with explosion suppressant foam (ESF). Those aircraft that have not been fitted with ESF will shortly begin to be retired from service.

All Hercules C-130 aircraft that are routinely deployed on operations in Iraq and Afghanistan are now fitted with ESF.

Nuclear Weapons: Compensation

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the costs to his Department to date of legal advice relating to claims made by nuclear test veterans claiming compensation from the Government; and how much is expected to be spent in the next 12 weeks. [222524]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Legal costs to the Department relating to compensation claims brought by nuclear test veterans up to 24 July 2008 amount to £968,050.00. The estimated subsequent costs are £543,300.00.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by his Department has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [221940]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister of State for the Home Department on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W.

Warships

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times Royal Navy (a) destroyers, (b) frigates, (c) submarines, (d) mine countermeasure vessels, (e) patrol vessels, (f) amphibious assault vessels and (g) Royal Fleet Auxiliary vessels underwent the Storob process in each month since January 2008. [226998]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The number of times that items or components of ships' fitted equipment have been transferred between vessels in front line service each complete month this year is as follows:

2008	Destroyers	Frigates	Submarines	MCMVs	Patrol Vessels	Amphibious Assault Vessels	RFA Vessels
January	5	6	18	0	1	1	1
February	7	2	11	0	0	1	2
March	3	3	23	0	0	0	3
April	2	5	20	0	4	0	1
May	5	4	20	2	0	0	0
June	3	4	14	0	1	0	0
July	9	6	30	0	0	1	1
August	6	2	20	5	0	1	0
September	13	4	32	5	0	1	1
Totals	53	36	188	12	6	5	9

The accuracy of all figures is subject to the availability of relevant data and may be subject to revision.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Export Credits Guarantee Dept

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the operating costs of the Export Credits Guarantee Department were in each of the last five years. [222764]

Ian Pearson: The information is as follows.

	£ million
2002-03	30.3
2003-04	30.5
2004-05	31.4
2005-06	28.5
2006-07	25.7

Operating costs are funded from premium income rather than public funds. Figures for 2007-08 will be available later in October as part of ECGD's annual report.

Exports: Sanctions

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to publish a list of items embargoed for export and black-listed end users. [226768]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 14 October 2008]: The FCO publish on their website, on a country by country basis, details of sanctions regimes, arms embargoes and restrictions on the export of strategic goods currently implemented by the UK http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/business-trade/export-controls-sanctions/country-listing/.

As the terms of embargoes vary from country to country details of the items that are subject to embargo are given separately for each country.

Exports: Weapons

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on the export of thermobaric weapons; and if he will make a statement. [222769]

Ian Pearson: While there is no internationally agreed definition of a "thermobaric" weapon, weapons of this nature would be controlled under UK Military List (entry ML4) and exports from the UK would require an export licence. All export licence applications are carefully considered on a case by case basis against the Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria.

Manufacturing Industries: Trade Competitiveness

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps the Government has taken to assist the UK manufacturing sector to compete internationally. [225135]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 8 October 2008]: UK manufacturing is already very successful in global terms. The UK remains the world's sixth largest manufacturer. The Government launched its new strategy "Manufacturing: New Challenges, New Opportunities" last month. It brings together almost £150 million of support for UK manufacturing. Its overarching aim is to ensure that UK manufacturing continues to have the right long-term framework of support to ensure it emerges from the global slowdown stronger and fitter than ever, and better placed to exploit the new opportunities of an increasingly interconnected economy.

The new package of support accompanying this strategy will help UK companies exploit the considerable opportunities in high growth new emerging markets. For example, UK Trade and Investment (UKTI) will provide new support for 600 companies of all sizes to identify manufacturing opportunities in India and China and will also promote UK manufacturing excellence internationally through UKTI led marketing campaigns.

SPIRE System

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the average time taken to process export licences granted under the SPIRE system involving countries of proliferation concern was in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and what the longest time taken for process approval of a licence has been since the system's inception. [225863]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The average time taken to process all Standard Individual Export Licence applications in the last 12 months was 20 working days. The longest time taken to process a case since the SPIRE system's inception is 198 days, in a case which required careful assessment of reported links between the end user and WMD programmes.

There is no published list of countries of proliferation concern. However, the Export Control Organisation publishes quarterly figures on refusal percentages and processing times by destination for Standard Individual Export Licences on its website at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/europeandtrade/strategic-export-control/statistics/process-times/index.html

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Palace of Westminster: Utilities

Mr. Doran: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what progress has been made with preparations for the planned works to replace the mechanical and electrical systems in the Palace of Westminster. [227348]

Nick Harvey: Much of the mechanical and electrical system within the Palace of Westminster has now exceeded its economic service life and major modernisation work is urgently required. It is becoming increasingly difficult to manage the existing services and to replace, repair or extend them as required in an efficient and effective manner and there is a growing risk that breakdown in these essential services could not be quickly repaired. The complete project will take many years and involve considerable cost.

The Commission is concerned to ensure that the mechanical and electrical modernisation is carried out in the most economical way consistent with enabling the House to operate properly. Normal practice is that major works are only undertaken in the Palace of Westminster during the summer recess but the extensive scale of the work planned requires that the full range of options should be carefully considered. The Commission (working with the responsible bodies in the Lords) is therefore ordering a detailed feasibility study to examine whether substantial savings in cost, time and risk could be made by moving some operations of both Houses out of the Palace for a period to enable modernisation to be carried out continuously until its completion. All contingencies need to be looked at carefully. The feasibility study is expected to report in the middle of 2009. No decisions will be taken until all these options have been assessed.

TRANSPORT

A555: Repairs and Maintenance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to decide upon the possible completion of the A555 beyond its junction with the A34; and if he will make a statement. [226704]

Paul Clark: The south east Manchester relief road scheme raises substantial funding and affordability issues. The Department for Transport continues to work on the options with relevant stakeholders on this scheme promoted by Stockport metropolitan borough council.

Aviation

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 17 September 2008, Official Report, columns 2242-3W, on aviation, what estimate he has made of the number of small claims actions pursued by plaintiffs and pursuers against airlines alleging non-compliance with EU Regulation 261/2004; what percentage of such actions have resulted in an award of damages to the consumer; and what the total sum paid by airlines in satisfaction of such claims is. [227160]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We are not in a position to estimate the number of small claims actions issued seeking compensation for non-compliance with EU Regulation 261/2004.

Small claims actions by their nature are dealt with in the civil courts of England and Wales. The required information may be present in court records but is not collected centrally.

The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) is however aware of eight cases of court action, seven of which were successful in obtaining compensation. In the remaining case, the CAA intervened and successfully persuaded the airline concerned to pay, on a "without prejudice" basis. From its monitoring of the media and discussions with complainants, the CAA is aware anecdotally of other cases where passengers have successfully taken court action.

Buses: Vandalism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost was of vandalism to buses in each of the last five years. [225622]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold data centrally on the cost of vandalism to buses. This is partly due to the difficulties in collecting national statistics across the varied reporting systems of the numerous bus companies currently in operation.

However, the Department has commissioned research into the costs of crime committed on public transport in England, the results of which are due to be published next year.

Crossrail Line: Finance

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what financial commitments have been made by the Government as part of the Crossrail scheme for each of the next five years. [226260]

Paul Clark: Over the next five years, the Department for Transport and Transport for London (as joint sponsors of the Crossrail Project) will make total funding contributions of £5.7 billion for Crossrail. Further detail is provided in the following table.

£ million

Year commencing 1 April	DfT committed funding	TfL committed funding
2008	—	500
2009	172	522
2010	220	832
2011	622	788
2012	1,250	799
Total	2,264	3,441

Departmental Consultants

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on consultancy fees since its establishment. [226749]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport has spent £895.6 million on consultancy fees since it was established in May 2002. I would refer the hon. Member to the Official Report dated 29 September 2008, column 2425W which gave details on a year by year basis. Figures for 2008-09 are not yet available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) electronic and (b) manual requests using reasonable cause provisions were received by the Driving and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; how many manual requests were refused in each month and for what reasons; and what reasons for refusal were in each case. [226731]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information is not held in the form requested.

Driving Under Influence

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent consideration he has given to changing maximum levels of alcohol for drivers; and what factors were taken into account as part of such consideration. [226713]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We explained in the report of the second review of the Road Safety Strategy (February 2007) that we intend to keep the case for a reduction in the drink drive legal limit under review. We also made clear that the limit cannot be considered in isolation, and that our first priority is to improve enforcement, building on the recent achievements of the police. The Government are committed to public consultation on further measures to reduce alcohol-related road casualties and will publish a consultation document as soon as possible.

Railways: Airports

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to his Department's high level output specification plan update for July 2008, what steps he is taking to ensure that carriages designed for use on services to airports are refurbished and made fit for purpose when cascaded to train operating companies running other services; and what the estimated completion dates for phases one, two and three of the plan are. [226662]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not specify rolling stock types or interior layouts and design. It is for the train operator to ensure rolling stock deployed is appropriate for the market it serves. The timing of phases one, two and three of the plan is not fixed as it is dependent on the progress of the commercial negotiations between the Department and the train operating companies.

Railways: Exhaust Emissions

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to her statement on 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1184, that a high-speed rail service emits approximately double the carbon dioxide of a lower-speed rail service, (1) if she will place in the Library her Department's analysis of the carbon dioxide emissions from high-speed rail and lower-speed rail; [217517]

(2) how much her Department spent on analysing the carbon dioxide emissions from high-speed and lower-speed rail in the latest period for which figures are available; and how many staff worked on that analysis; [217518]

(3) what estimate she has made of the volume of carbon dioxide emitted per mile travelled by (a) a high speed train, (b) a lower speed train and (c) an average aeroplane. [217519]

Paul Clark: The 2007 Rail White Paper estimated that carbon emissions per passenger for a journey between London and Edinburgh would be approximately 7 kg for conventional speed rail, 14 kg for high speed rail and 26 kg for aviation.

This analysis was informed by Professor Roger Kemp's work on the environmental impact of high speed rail and his report for the Rail Safety and Standards Board on traction energy metrics. Further information on the assumptions underpinning these estimates can be found on the Department for Transport's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/whitepapers/whitepapercm7176/

Professor Kemp's energy metrics report can be found at:

http://www.rssb.co.uk/pdf/reports/research/T618_traction-energy-metrics_final.pdf.

Departmental staff have analysed the carbon impacts of high speed rail but within the context of their wider environmental and rail responsibilities. Consequently, the Department is unable to provide the information on staff and resources as requested.

In March this year, the Secretary of State invited Network Rail to examine options for supporting further growth in the longer term, which might include new conventional and high speed lines. As part of this work, further consideration will be given to the relative carbon performance of higher and lower speed rail options.

Roads: Tolls

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008 to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar, Official Report, column 893W, on roads: tolls, what progress has been made in establishing the road charging trials involving volunteers. [226726]

Paul Clark: On 15 September 2008 the Government confirmed the names of the companies who will run the Demonstrations Project on road pricing technology. Eight bids were received in response to the invitation to tender for the Road User Service Provider's Framework, of which four were successful. They were Intelligent Mechatronic Systems (UK), Sanef Tolling Limited, T-Systems Ltd. and Trafficmaster Plc.

As we announced in 2007 and then updated Parliament in July this year, these trials will explore how time-distance-place charging can work accurately, reliably and affordably while safeguarding privacy. Designing an effective mechanism to achieve these aims presents a significant challenge. We believe that this project will help local authorities in the longer-term development of their plans for combining a local congestion charging scheme investment with major investment in public transport.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will reply to question 220177, on staff, tabled on 15 July. [226925]

Mr. Hoon: I replied to the hon. Member on 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 892W.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what estimate she has made of the number of people who will be required to monitor compliance of the provisions of the Equality Bill, if enacted. [218413]

Maria Eagle: There is no legal requirement on any particular organisation or person to monitor compliance with discrimination legislation generally and the Government intend to maintain this arrangement in the new Equality Bill. However, the Equality and Human Rights Commission has a statutory duty to monitor the effectiveness of discrimination legislation; powers to undertake inquiries and investigations and the power to enforce compliance with public sector duties. So, it will be up to the Commission to consider the allocation of resources to tasks which arise from the provisions of the new Equality Bill.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many maintenance calculations were made by the Child Support Agency in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [223987]

Kitty Ussher: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many maintenance calculations were made by the Child Support Agency in (a) Jarrow constituency (b) South Tyneside (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [223987]

The Agency is able to collate the requested information on current scheme maintenance calculations on cases maintained on the CS2 computer system only. The information available is further restricted to the initial assessment only, although many cases can be reassessed as circumstances change throughout their lifetime.

The information available is provided in the attached table.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Current scheme initial maintenance calculations

	Great Britain	North East	South Tyneside	Jarrow
2003-04	68,500	2,900	200	100
2004-05	94,200	4,700	300	200
2005-06	126,000	6,900	500	200
2006-07	134,700	7,500	500	200
2007-08	141,500	8,700	600	300

Notes:

1. Figures include all current scheme cases with an initial maintenance calculation.
2. As the current scheme came into existence in 2003, figures only go back to this date.
3. Cases have been allocated to the North East region, Jarrow parliamentary constituency and South Tyneside local authority by matching the postcode of the parent with care against the Office for National Statistics postcode directory.
4. Many cases can be re-assessed during their lifetime. Management information for current scheme cases only captures the number of initial assessments. Management information also exists on the date of the latest assessment for current scheme cases. However, as many cases could have been re-assessed many times between the initial assessment and latest assessment, a large proportion of re-assessments are excluded from the data. For this reason, only initial assessments have been included in the information provided.
5. CSCS calculations are not included in these figures. When a CSCS case is closed it is removed from the management information. A large proportion of CSCS cases will have closed and therefore the initial calculation date cannot be extracted from them.
6. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100.

Employment Vacancies: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many notified vacancies there were in Chelmsford local authority area in each of the last six months for which figures are available. [224480]

James Purnell [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The available information is in the table.

Number of vacancies notified to Jobcentre Plus in the Chelmsford local authority area—March to August, 2008

	Number
March	1,029
April	930
May	1,052
June	1,195
July	1,339
August	1,246

Notes:
1. Jobcentre Plus handles only a proportion of vacancies notified by employers. Consequently the figures do not represent the total number of job vacancies available.
2. Interpretation of the Jobcentre vacancy data should take account of changes in recent years to Jobcentre Plus procedures for taking and handling vacancies. The figures are not fully comparable over time and may not indicate changes in labour demand.
3. The Jobcentre Plus vacancies series do not provide comprehensive measures relating to all vacancies in the economy. The proportion of vacancies which are notified by employers to Jobcentre Plus varies over time, according to the occupation and industry of the vacancies and also by geographical area.
4. Comprehensive estimates of all job vacancies (not just those notified to Jobcentre Plus) are available from the monthly ONS Vacancy Survey since April 2001, based on a sample of some 6,000 enterprises. However, the ONS survey is currently designed to provide national estimates only.

Income Support: Mortgages

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to offer additional support to householders who are having difficulties meeting their mortgage repayments; and if he will make a statement. [227241]

Jonathan Shaw: On 2 September we announced that we will reform Support for Mortgage Interest to simplify the system and make it easier for people who are eligible to claim.

The changes include shortening the waiting period before support for mortgage interest is paid from 39 or 26 weeks to 13 weeks for new working age claims from April 2009; increasing the capital limit for new working age claims from £100,000 to £175,000 from April 2009 to take into account the value of people's homes today; and introducing a two year time limit on support for mortgage interest for new jobseeker's allowance claims only.

The system of support for home owners will be reviewed once housing market conditions improve.

Jobcentre Plus: Correspondence

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how long on average it took for Royal Mail Opening Units to receive, open, sort and deliver post to Jobcentre Plus sites using the service in each month in 2008 to date. [225417]

Mr. McNulty: The time taken by Mail Opening Units to receive, open, sort and deliver post is currently not recorded, however, the contracted time for this process equates to 12 hours. Management information gathered supports that this requirement is met.

Jobseeker's Allowance

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how much was paid in jobseeker's allowance in each financial year since 2005; [224651]

(2) how much was paid in jobseeker's allowance in each financial year from 2001 to 2005; [224652]

(3) how much was paid in jobseeker's allowance in each financial year from 1997 to 2001. [224653]

Mr. McNulty: The information is in the following table.

Jobseeker's allowance (JSA) expenditure: 1997-98 to 2007-08

£ million, nominal

JSA	1997-98	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Contribution based	475	474	459	447	470	519	507	445	486	478	420

Pensioners: Poverty

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what response he has made to recent representations by the National Pensioners' Convention on the number of pensioners living on less than 40 per cent. of the median population income. [226254]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Tackling pensioner poverty continues to be one of this Government's key priorities.

The Government have introduced a number of measures to reduce the number of older people in poverty. In 1997, the poorest pensioners lived on around £69 a week, today pension credit ensures that no-one needs to live on less than £124.05 a week (£189.35 for a couple). We have successively raised the standard minimum guarantee in pension credit at least in line with earnings in every year since its introduction, and the value of the safety-net we provide for the poorest pensioners has increased by over a third in real terms since 1997.

Our commitments in the Pensions Act 2007 to continue to uprate the pension credit standard minimum guarantee in line with earnings over the long term, and to reintroduce the earnings link to basic state pension from 2012, or by the end of the next Parliament, will help secure these gains into the future.

We will continue to strive to ensure that older people are aware of, and take up their entitlements through initiatives such as; using sophisticated data matching to identify eligible non-recipients, home visits for vulnerable customers, local and national advertising and media campaigns, a simple and straight-forward claim process and ever closer working with partner organisations. In addition to pension credit we have increased winter fuel payments to £200 for households with someone aged 60-79, and £300 for those with someone aged 80 or over. And we will be making an additional payment for winter 2008-09 of £50 for households with someone aged 60-79 and £100 for those with someone aged 80 or over. Since 1997, we have also introduced free eye-tests, free bus passes for pensioners and free television licences for over 75s.

Post Office Card Account

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to make a decision on the award of the contract for the Post Office card account. [225529]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The procurement process is still under way.

An announcement will be made as soon as possible.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will ensure that his forthcoming decision on the Post Office card account does not jeopardise the viability of local post offices; and if he will make a statement. [226554]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The procurement process is still under way.

An announcement of the outcome will be made as soon as possible.

Social Security Benefits: Medical Examinations

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what professional qualifications are required of doctors who carry out personal capability assessments for his Department; and under what level of oversight they operate. [225456]

Jonathan Shaw: Each doctor is required to have full unconditional General Medical Council registration, and at least three years post full registration experience. The doctors carrying out Personal Capability Assessments must also be approved to carry out assessments by the Chief Medical Adviser to the Department on behalf of the Secretary of State. This condition can only be waived, in exceptional cases, at the discretion of the Chief Medical Advisor. In addition, every doctor must complete a course in disability assessment medicine, and undergo training specific to the benefits with which they are dealing.

Approval by the Chief Medical Advisor is dependent upon ongoing demonstration that the work being carried out meets a satisfactory standard. This is done through regular monitoring, prior to approval, for new entrants, and continuing random audits for all doctors to ensure that standards remain high. Approval to carry out assessments will be removed if their work does not continue at the required standard. This monitoring is carried out by the company who are contracted to provide medical services, ATOS Healthcare. The Department also carries out a range of quality checks independently.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bolivia; Politics and Government

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the Union of South American Nations' special summit on 15 September on developments in Bolivia. [226633]

Gillian Merron: The Government was pleased with the outcome of the Union of South American Nations' (UNASUR) summit meeting on 15 September. Following the summit, the EU, with strong UK backing, issued a statement on 19 September that: supported the steps taken by UNASUR; endorsed the terms of the Palacio de la Moneda Declaration; welcomed that the UNASUR meeting facilitated the signature on 16 September of an agreement to open a national dialogue; and stated the EU's readiness to respond favourably to an invitation to support that dialogue alongside other national and international actors.

The EU Troika is acting as an international facilitator in the national dialogue, in close cooperation with the UNASUR delegation. Our ambassador to Bolivia is participating as a member of the Troika.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information technology projects initiated by his Department have been cancelled prior to completion in the last five years; and what the cost of each such project was to the public purse. [221712]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not cancelled any significant information technology projects during the past five years. To provide more detailed information, on small individual projects—including from across our network of posts—would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226897]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office responded to 62 per cent. (484 of 785) of written named day parliamentary questions on the due date in the current parliamentary session to date.

Georgia: South Ossetia

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department holds on whether the US administration was informed in advance about Georgian plans to take military action in South Ossetia. [223177]

Caroline Flint: We have no information to suggest that the US Administration was informed in advance of Georgian actions. The US Administration has stated in hearings before the US Congress that they had warned the Georgians not to fall victim to provocations, and whatever their fears, a military response would be a mistake. Prior to 7 August, the US and others, including the UK, had encouraged all parties to avoid actions that would escalate tensions.

Malta: Foreign Relations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last visited Malta; what recent steps he has taken to strengthen United Kingdom economic, commercial, cultural and educational links with Malta; and if he will make a statement. [222248]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary regularly meets with his Maltese counterpart at the General Affairs and External Relations Councils, which occur monthly. The last visit by a Foreign Secretary to Malta was by my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) in November 2005.

The UK is Malta's second largest trading partner after Italy (2008 first quarter provisional figures). British business therefore thrives in Malta. Thousands of British tourists visit Malta each year, contributing to Malta's tourism industry.

British culture features regularly in Malta, spanning a wide spectrum from the Globe Theatre group to Duran Duran. The most recent event was a poetry reading by Douglas Dunn earlier last month.

The UK continues to be the country of choice for Maltese post graduates and since Malta's entry into the EU the number of Maltese students choosing to do undergraduate degree courses in the UK has been increasing steadily.

We co-operate closely in other fields such as defence, with regular ships visits and training for the armed forces of Malta. A member of the armed forces of Malta is currently receiving training at Dartmouth and another will go to Sandhurst in September.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of relations with Malta; and if he will make a statement. [222249]

Caroline Flint: We regularly assess our relations with Malta. The relationship between Malta and the UK continues to be strong, based on our shared history and our membership of the EU and the Commonwealth. We have regular engagement with the Maltese through bilateral contacts and international institutions, especially the EU.

Somalia: Piracy

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on trends in the levels of piracy and theft affecting shipping transporting food aid to Somalia; if he will discuss with his international counterparts the protection of food aid to Somalia from piracy and theft; and if he will make a statement. [222733]

Gillian Merron: Prior to French intervention in 2007, World Food programme aid shipments had come under pirate attack. Since the autumn of 2007, the French, Danes and Dutch have all undertaken escort duties which have been successful in deterring further attacks. Canada has agreed to escort World Food programme vessels from mid August. The Government have regularly discussed how best to secure a sustainable, long term solution for protection of food aid shipments from the threat of piracy with both European Union and other international partners.

Sri Lanka: EU External Trade

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government plans to make over the EU General System of Preference Plus (GSP+) status of Sri Lanka for trade purposes, to be reviewed in December, in the light of Sri Lanka's human rights record and the linkage between trade preferences and human rights in the GSP+ scheme legal provisions; and if he will make a statement. [227025]

Mr. Michael Foster: I have been asked to reply.

Decisions on Sri Lanka's General System of Preference Plus (GSP+) status take place at an EU level, and we will participate fully in EU discussions about the future of Sri Lanka's GSP+ status.

We will encourage the Government of Sri Lanka to engage with the Commission to demonstrate its compliance with the human rights and other conventions underpinning the GSP+ scheme.

Tamils

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the numbers of Tamil women and children displaced in Sri Lanka since the end of July 2008; and if he will make a statement. [227019]

Mr. Michael Foster: I have been asked to reply.

We estimate that the number of Sri Lankans displaced in the latest surge in conflict between the Sri Lankan armed forces and separatist extremists has risen from approximately 75,000 in July to between 200,000 and 250,000. Most of these people are Tamils. We estimate that about two thirds of them are likely to be women and children, but it is not possible to calculate numbers exactly because there is no humanitarian access. They are trapped between opposing forces in a pocket of north-east Sri Lanka without the assistance they need. There are plans by the United Nations and the Sri Lankan authorities to mount relief convoys but so far very little is getting through. As I said in the House on 14 October 2008, Official Report, columns 240-48WH, we deplore this situation, have called on all parties to the conflict to facilitate access and humanitarian aid and have committed a further £2.5 million in humanitarian relief through the international agencies.

We estimate that the total number of internally displaced people in Sri Lanka is now at least 500,000.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Visits Abroad

Pete Wishart: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions he has left the United Kingdom since his appointment in pursuit of his official duties; what the purpose of each visit was; what the total cost of each visit was; and how many people accompanied him on each visit. [227165]

The Prime Minister: Since 1999 the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. Copies of these lists are available in the Library of the House. Information on the number of officials accompanying Ministers on overseas visits is included in the list.

All Ministers' travel arrangements are in accordance with the arrangements for official travel set out in chapter 10 of the Ministerial Code.

For information from 2007-08 I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement I made on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 103WS. Information for 2008-09 will be published in the normal way.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in her Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226425]

Chris Bryant: A total of eight non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in 2007 at a total cost of £11,477.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fine Defaulters

5. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of prisoners in Northern Ireland are fine defaulters. [225767]

Paul Goggins: On any given day around 2 per cent. of prisoners are in prison for fine default. In the past year, 28 per cent. of all prison receptions were for fine default.

In July my right hon. Friend the Member for Delyn (Mr. Hanson) and I published a set of wide-ranging proposals to improve the enforcement of fines.

Fuel Smuggling

6. Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of trends in the level of smuggling of fuel into Northern Ireland. [225768]

Paul Goggins: Law enforcement agencies in Northern Ireland and the Republic are actively engaged in a range of operations against fuel fraudsters. In recent weeks there have been a number of significant arrests with almost 30,000 litres of illegal fuel seized together with cash, lorries, cars and other equipment.

Policing and Justice

7. Mr. Woodward: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the budget for Northern Ireland policing and justice is over the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [225769]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office's budget for policing is £1.1 billion for each of the next three years and £0.3 billion for justice for the same period.

The justice budget does not cover the NI Court Service which is the responsibility of the Lord Chancellor.

This level of funding reflects our commitment to sustained investment in policing and justice.

Security

8. Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister and Deputy First Minister on security in Northern Ireland. [225770]

Mr. Woodward: I meet with the First Minister and Deputy First Minister regularly to discuss a range of issues, including security.

Drug-related Crime

9. Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of policing of drug-related crime in Northern Ireland. [225771]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Member for South-West Bedfordshire (Andrew Selous)

Paramilitary Activity

10. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of levels of paramilitary activity in the Province. [225772]

Mr. Woodward: The principal security threat today comes from Dissident republican factions which remain active and dangerous.

The latest IMC Report has confirmed that PIRA has completely relinquished the leadership and other structures appropriate to a time of armed conflict and that the Army Council is effectively redundant.

Loyalist groups have made progress but have yet to decommission their arms.

Prison Population

12. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the likely size of the prison population in Northern Ireland in each of the next three years. [225775]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Prison Service population is currently 1,551. Estimates for the size of the prisoner population over the next three years are 1,632 in 2009-10, 1,697 in 2010-11 and 1,765 in 2011-12. This is based on a 5 per cent. increase up to 2009-10 and 4 per cent. thereafter.

Omagh Bombing

13. Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to ensure full disclosure to the families of the victims of the Omagh bombing of information to be made available to Sir Peter Gibson in his review of the handling of intercept intelligence relating to that event. [225776]

Mr. Woodward: The Prime Minister has invited Sir Peter Gibson to undertake a review of the intercepted intelligence material available to the security and intelligence agencies in relation to the bombing and how it was shared. The Prime Minister has said he will report the outcome of the review to the House as soon as possible after he has received Sir Peter's report.

On-the-run Prisoners

14. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of on-the-run prisoners; and if he will make a statement. [225777]

Mr. Woodward: From 2003 to date, five prisoners remain unlawfully at large. All five were on pre-release home leave; four of the five within two months of release. The fifth, who was within five months of release, was on a town visit, prior to entering the Foyleview regime at Magilligan prison, where he would have availed of alternate weekend home leave.

2008 Olympic/Paralympic Games

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the Northern Ireland Executive on the performance of sportsmen and women from Northern Ireland in the 2008 Olympic and Paralympic games. [225773]

Paul Goggins: Although I have had no recent discussions with Northern Ireland Ministers on this matter, I understand that the hon. Member for East Londonderry, the Northern Ireland Minister for Culture, Arts and Leisure has warmly congratulated all the athletes from Northern Ireland who participated in the 2008 Olympic and Paralympic games in Beijing, and held a reception for all the athletes on 6 October in Parliament buildings.

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many antisocial behaviour injunctions have been issued in Northern Ireland since April 2007. [224693]

Paul Goggins: Injunctions against antisocial behaviour fall under the Housing (Northern Ireland) Order 2003 and as such are a devolved matter under the responsibility of the Department for Social Development.

However, the NI housing executive have advised that they have secured three such injunctions against antisocial behaviour since April 2007.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on increases to the winter fuel payment; and if he will make a statement. [224596]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced on 12 March 2008 the Government's intention to increase winter fuel payments; these were discussed within Government in the normal way.

Social security is of course a devolved matter in Northern Ireland.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Buildings

Pete Wishart: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on which buildings occupied by his Department's agencies and non-departmental public bodies the lease will be due for renewal in the next four years. [214676]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office is responsible for leases relating to one floor of Stockley House, Victoria, London which expire in 2011. Disposal of this space is currently being pursued and there is no intention to renew the lease on expiry.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 238W, on departmental carbon emissions, if he will place in the Library a copy of the dataset and the accompanying methodology used by the Cabinet Office to calculate its payments to the Offsetting Fund in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2006-07. [222217]

Mr. Watson: The information requested by the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Computers

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent advice he has issued to departments on the storage of personal data on memory sticks or other portable data storage devices. [224294]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the Data Handling Report published on 25 June 2008, Official Report, columns 25-6WS, as well as the cross government mandatory minimum requirements in relation to personal data security.

The Data Handling Review states that where data has to be put onto removable media, departments should minimise the information transferred, use encryption and limit user access. References to this guidance can be found in paragraph 13 of the cross government mandatory minimum measures on the following Cabinet Office website; a copy of which has been placed in the libraries of the House.

Departmental Video Recordings

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 1046W, on departmental recordings, what the titles are of the online videos produced for internal audiences which are available on his Department's intranet. [222983]

Mr. Watson: A range of films are produced for internal audiences and are available on the departmental intranet, for example: Cabinet Secretary's address at the All Staff Event 2 July 2008; Cabinet Office Board Meeting 5 June 2008; and About the Women's Network.

Powers of Entry

James Duddridge: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation sponsored by his Department has (i) amended and (ii) enhanced existing powers of entry since May 1997. [221974]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Member for Gedling (Mr. Coaker) on 7 October 2008, Official Report, column 577W.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Criminal Investigation: Data Protection

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what protections are planned in the proposed use of deep packet inspection equipment to ensure that data obtained by these means is not lost or stolen and that police and intelligence agencies do not use their access to this database for purposes other than fighting crime or terrorism. [225869]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The safeguards set out in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 and related statutory codes of practice govern the access to communications data irrespective of the technical means of collection. Unauthorised access to, or disclosure of, data is also an offence under the Data Protection Act 1998.

Extradition: Crimes Against Humanity

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many individuals have been subject to extradition proceedings for (a) suspected war crimes, (b) crimes against humanity and (c) genocide since 2000, broken down by (i) requesting state and (ii) the state in which the crime is alleged to have been committed; [224633]

(2) how many extradition requests were received under Part 1 of the Extradition Act 2003 for individuals alleged to have committed (a) war crimes, (b) crimes against humanity and (c) genocide in each year since the Act came into force, broken down by (i) requesting state and (ii) the state in which the crime is alleged to have been committed. [224634]

Meg Hillier: It is not the normal policy or practice, to confirm or deny the existence of any extradition request ahead of a person's arrest. With that caveat in mind, the following table shows the number of persons arrested in the UK on such charges pursuant to extradition requests received since 2000. In all cases, the alleged conduct was carried out in the requesting state. There have been no European Arrest Warrants issued to the UK for persons accused of conduct falling within the scope of this question. The EAW has been in operation in the UK since 1 January 2004.

Extradition requests

Year received[1]	Number of requests	Conduct	Requesting state
2000	—	—	—
2001	—	—	—
2002	1	War Crimes	Croatia
2003	—	—	—
2004	—	—	—
2005	—	—	—
2006	1	War Crimes	Croatia
	4	Genocide	Rwanda

[1] One extradition request from Spain for offences allegedly committed in Chile was received before 2000, but was refused by the then Home Secretary in March 2000.

Investigatory Powers Tribunal

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times the Investigatory Powers Tribunal has met to investigate specific cases in each year since it was established. [225162]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 9 October 2008]: No figures are available on how many times the tribunal has met in each of the years requested. However, the following table shows the number of applications it has received and investigations concluded for each of those years.

Period	Applications received	Investigations concluded
2 October-31 December 2001	102	71
1 January-31 December 2002	130	95
1 January-31 December 2003	109	100

Period	Applications received	Investigations concluded
1 January-31 December 2004	90	115
1 January-31 December 2005	80	93
1 January-31 December 2006	86	81
1 January-31 December 2007	66	83

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she last met the Chairman of the Investigatory Powers Tribunal. [225191]

Mr. Coaker: The right hon. Lord Justice Mummery is President of the Investigatory Powers Tribunal and my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary has not met him.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) name and (b) title is of each person who sits on the Investigatory Powers Tribunal. [225192]

Mr. Coaker: The Tribunal currently consists of six members. They are: Lord Justice Mummery (President); Mr. Justice Burton (Vice-President); Sir Richard Gaskeil; sheriff principal John McInnes QC; Mr. Peter Scott QC; and Mr. Robert Seabrook QC.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) cost was of establishing and (b) expected annual running cost is of the Investigatory Powers Tribunal. [225193]

Mr. Coaker: The Investigatory Powers Tribunal was established in October 2000 with minimal start up costs as it replaced existing bodies: the Interception of Communications Tribunal, the Security Service Tribunal, the Intelligence Services Tribunal and the complaints committee that dealt with Part III of the Police Act 1997. The Investigatory Powers Tribunal and the Interception of Communications Commissioner's Office have a common Secretariat and the combined running costs of both for 2008-09 is £980,000.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what powers she has to ensure that cases of abuse of intrusive surveillance are investigated by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal; and what the process of appeal is for a person who is dissatisfied with (a) the Tribunal decision not to review their complaint and (b) the Tribunal's decision on their complaint. [225194]

Mr. Coaker: The Investigatory Powers Tribunal's statutory responsibilities are set out in Part IV of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000. There is no domestic right of appeal against Tribunal decisions.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer the letter of 12 June 2008 to her from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Florence Gachvgi. [222584]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to the right hon. Member on 29 July 2008.

Police Arbitration Tribunal

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to (a) implement the decisions of the Police Arbitration Tribunal and (b) backdate that implementation. [225117]

Mr. Coaker: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary will consider any recommendation of the Police Arbitration Tribunal very carefully. In doing so she will take account of the tribunal's findings and reasoning, and relevant factors including affordability and Government policy on public sector pay, including the maintenance of low inflation.

Police Custody: Death

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average cost of investigating the death by non-natural causes of a prisoner held in police custody was in the latest period for which figures are available. [224739]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are taken to investigate the death from non-natural causes of a prisoner held in police custody. [224746]

Mr. Coaker: Under the Police Reform Act 2002, deaths in custody constitute a mandatory referral to the IPCC. The IPCC assesses each referral in line with its obligations, including under article 2 of the Human Rights Act, considers the circumstances of the case referred and decides the appropriate mode of investigation.

An IPCC Commissioner has oversight of the investigation and agrees its recommendation.

Police: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers (a) below superintendent rank and (b) of superintendent rank and above have been suspended by Lancashire Constabulary. [224646]

Mr. Coaker: As at the end of March 2008, six officers below the rank of superintendent were suspended. There were no officers of superintendent and above suspended.

Police: Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has for the implementation of the outcomes of the police pay and conditions arbitration process; and if she will make a statement. [225267]

Mr. Coaker: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary will consider any recommendation of the Police Arbitration Tribunal very carefully. In doing so she will take account of the tribunal's findings and reasoning, and relevant factors including affordability and Government policy on public sector pay, including the maintenance of low inflation.

Police: Procurement

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the marginal costs of duplicate procurement cycles in police forces in England and Wales. [225407]

Mr. Coaker: The "Efficiency and Productivity Strategy for the Police Service 2008-11" makes clear that savings can be made by the police service through increased collaborative procurement, including the use of national and regional contracts for, or open to the police service. The recent Green Paper "From The Neighbourhood to the National: Policing our Communities Together" makes clear that increasingly the Government expect police authorities and chief constables to consider whether procurement decisions should be made locally (collaborating with local partners), regionally or nationally, depending on the nature of the market.

We welcome the work that police forces are doing to implement the procurement strategy for the years to 2011 agreed earlier this year by the Association of Chief Police Officers. That strategy recognises that delivering more efficient procurement depends upon forces, along with local and national partners, aligning plans and reducing duplication.

Police: Resignations

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers retired due to ill health or long-term illness between the ages of (a) 21 to 30, (b) 31 to 40, (c) 41 to 50 and (d) 51 to 60 years in the last five years. [225902]

Mr. Coaker: The age of those leaving the service due to medical retirements is not collected centrally.

The number of police officer medical retirements have been published each year by Her Majesty's inspectorate of constabulary (HMIC) in their annual report. HMIC have advised that these data will no longer be published in their annual report and that the data for 2004-05 would be the last series of data to be published.

The available data are given in the following table.

Police: Rules of Engagement

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with the Association of Chief Police Officers on rules of engagement since 2006. [225164]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 13 October 2008]: There have been no such discussions. Operational tactics when using firearms are a matter for the police. The use of firearms by the police is closely governed by Guidelines produced by the Association of Chief Police Officers (available at):

www.westmercia.police.uk.

Chief Officers must decide in any given circumstances whether armed officers should be authorised to use their firearms. Once authorised to use firearms, it is for the individual officer to ensure they act within the law. The Criminal Law Act 1967 provides that the police may use such force as is reasonable in the circumstances to effect an arrest or to prevent crime.

Robbery: Detection Rates

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the overall detection rate for robbery was in each police force in each year since 1988. [219350]

Jacqui Smith: Detection rates at police force area level have been published for robbery since 1990 and are given in the following tables.

It should be noted that non-sanction detections which contribute to the overall detection rates have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detection rates over time are not fully comparable.

Table 1: Overall detection rates for robbery offences by police force area, 1990 to 2001-02

[1] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced in April 2002. Figures before and after that date are not directly comparable.
[2] It should be noted that non-sanction detections that contribute to the overall detection rate have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detection rates over time are not fully comparable. From 1 April 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they can be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances.

Serious and Organised Crime Agency: Resignations

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who transferred to the Serious and Organised Crime Agency as sworn constables have since left the agency in each month since its inception; and what proportion of (a) sworn constables and (b) all staff this represents. [219432]

Jacqui Smith: Since 1 April 2006, 231 sworn constables have left SOCA. This number includes 58 retirements and 35 who remained as secondees on transfer to SOCA and who have since returned to their home force on conclusion of their secondment. In addition, some former police officers who resigned from SOCA at the end of their 30 years' service have rejoined the organisation, including in the most recent recruitment process.

The following tables detail these data on a monthly basis against (a) those holding powers of a constable, and (b) all staff in SOCA.

Surveillance

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases involving alleged abuse of intrusive surveillance powers by (a) local councils and (b) central Government-controlled bodies were investigated by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal in each year since it was established; and if she will make a statement. [225189]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given by the then Minister of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Harrow, East (Mr. McNulty), to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1374W. It is not the Investigatory Powers Tribunal's practice to publish detailed breakdowns by type or body of complaint, in order to preserve the confidence of people using it that their complaint will be handled confidentially. The Investigatory Powers Tribunal is independent of Government and subject to statutory rules which prevent it from disclosing information to an extent, or in a manner, that is contrary to the public interest. Only law enforcement and intelligences agencies and certain detention authorities can conduct intrusive surveillance under the Regulation of Investigatory Act 2000, but any valid complaint would be investigated by the Investigatory Powers Tribunal.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps for redress are available to people who believe they have suffered from an abuse of intrusive surveillance powers by (a) local authorities and (b) central Government-controlled bodies; and if she will make a statement. [225224]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 13 October 2008]: Under section 65 of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000, the Investigatory Powers Tribunal is the responsible body for any complaint about public authority conduct under the Act. If it determines that there has been a contravention of the Act, it is required to notify the complainant and in certain circumstances make a report to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister. It may, if appropriate, quash any warrant or authorisation, order the destruction of relevant material and award compensation or make any other order as they think fit.

Surveillance: Local Authorities

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on whether local authorities should use directed surveillance powers to monitor dog fouling; and if she will make a statement. [225632]

Mr. Coaker: The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ('RIPA') requires that the use of any covert investigatory techniques must be necessary and proportionate to what the relevant public authority seeks to achieve. It is a matter for each authority to determine what is proportionate in the circumstances. All authorisations must on request be made available for scrutiny to the independent Commissioners established under RIPA. In the case of local authorities' use of directed surveillance, oversight is undertaken by the Office of Surveillance Commissioners.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will instruct the Office of Surveillance Commissioners to assess whether surveillance powers have been used by local authorities to generate income from fines. [225633]

Mr. Coaker: The Office of Surveillance Commissioners was established by statute to provide independent oversight of public authorities using covert investigatory powers. It is not appropriate for Ministers to issue instructions to the Office of Surveillance Commissioners. Under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 local authorities may use directed surveillance for the purpose of preventing or detecting crime or disorder providing it is necessary and proportionate for them to do so.

Surveillance: Telecommunications

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests by law enforcement agencies were made to telephone and internet companies for details of calls or internet use in each year since 2001. [225871]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The information is not held centrally.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Child Minding

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 4 June 2008, Official Report, column 949W, on children: day care, (1) how many and what proportion of daycare settings in the (a) 10 per cent. most deprived, (b) 10 per cent. least deprived, (c) five per cent. most deprived and (d) five per cent. least deprived local authority area were awarded ratings of inadequate following an Ofsted inspection in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08; [223712]

(2) how many and what proportion of childminders were deemed inadequate by Ofsted in the (a) 10 per cent. most deprived and (b) 10 per cent. least deprived local authority areas in each year since such inspections began; [223745]

(3) how many and what proportion of childminders were deemed inadequate by Ofsted in each region in each year since such inspections began; [223746]

(4) how many registered childminders there were in the (a) 10 per cent. most deprived and (b) 10 per cent. least deprived local authority areas in each quarter of the last three years. [223748]

Beverley Hughes: These are matters for Ofsted. The Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, will write to the hon. Member and copies of her replies will be placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 23 September 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Our source for identifying the 5% and 10% most and least deprived local authorities is the Government's "Indices of Deprivation 2007" (an index published once every three years), as taken from the website of the Department for Communities and Local Government (www.communities.gov.uk)

I should alert you to some potential confusion with the figures. In order to capture all inadequate ratings following an Ofsted inspection, the data provided give the number and proportion of providers that were inadequate at any time during that period. Since a provider may receive a re-inspection and no longer be inadequate by the end of the year, these figures do not reflect our other publications which only capture the most recent inspection of a provider. This information is presented in Table A.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Ofsted has been responsible for the inspection of childminders since September 2001. However during the first 18 months we carried out transition inspections where we made an assessment of whether registration should continue and did not give quality grades. We started to judge quality and grade this from April 2003. There are, however, issues relating to the structure of the database used to store inspection outcomes during the period 1 April 2003 to 31 March 2005. These issues make it difficult to present accurate and comprehensive data relating to this period. Furthermore, the inspection framework changed in April 2005 with the result that it is difficult to make meaningful comparisons with the period 2003-05. The inspection data in this response, therefore, relate to the current inspection framework and covers the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2008.

Notes:
1. All inspection data taken from the Regulatory Support Application (RSA) database as it was at 1 April 2008. Active provider data taken from the RSA database as it was at 6 April 2006, 30 March 2007 and 1 April 2008 respectively.
2. In order to capture all inadequate ratings following an Ofsted inspection, the data provided give the number and proportion of providers that were inadequate at any time during the time period. Since a provider may receive a re-inspection and no longer be inadequate by the end of the year, these figures do not reflect our other publications which only capture the most recent inspection of a provider.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 23 September 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

The information you require is presented in Tables A and B attached.

Our source for identifying the 10% most and least deprived local authorities is the Government's "Indices of Deprivation 2007" (an index published once every three years), as taken from the website of the Department for Communities and Local Government (www.communities.oov.uk).

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Children

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy that whenever his Department publishes (a) regulations and (b) guidance relating to children and young persons he will also publish a young persons' version. [226840]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: It is our current policy to consider the needs of our audience for each communication, including with children and young people, and look for the most effective, best value way to reach them on each occasion.

Children: Research

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to improve research standards in trials which involve schoolchildren. [225911]

Beverley Hughes: The Department ensures that all the research it funds goes through an appropriate process of methodological and ethical scrutiny to ensure that children's safety and well-being are protected and that the research results are robust. In addition, the Association of Directors of Children's Services (ADCS) vets all applications made by academics and others to conduct research involving local authority children's services departments, whether funded by the Department or not.

Culture: Curriculum

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what subject matter he expects to be covered in cultural studies under the citizenship curriculum in schools; and if he will make a statement. [226761]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The citizenship curriculum does not prescribe the detailed content of what should be taught, but does encourage young people to explore cultural issues, identity, diversity and values in relation to their own lives alongside important concepts like democracy, justice, right and responsibility. It also encourages students to understand and learn about connections between the diverse cultures and communities in the UK and the wider world. The curriculum encourages a flexible approach to allow teachers to plan lessons which reflect their local context and meet their learners' needs, capabilities and aspirations.

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of his Department. [226517]

Ed Balls: All campaigns have an evaluation mechanism such as response targets (calls to a campaign telephone number or hits on a website). In addition, where the advertising spend is more substantial, campaigns are additionally evaluated through independent customer research which tracks the campaign impact against its objectives, measuring levels of customer awareness and exploring shifts in attitude and behaviour among the target audience.

All departmental advertising is bought on our behalf by the Central Office of Information (COI), which is able to use its purchasing power to negotiate significant discounts, ensuring that our advertising budgets are cost effective in the amount of media they purchase.

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226413]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In the Department annual non-pensionable bonuses were awarded on 1 April 2008 for the 12 month performance reporting period ending on 31 March 2008. The number of bonuses paid was 1,403 and the amount was £1.9 million.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [226807]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: My Department was established on 28 June 2007. The costs paid to recruitment consultants and for external recruitment advertising for senior civil service (SCS) recruitment from 28 June 2007 to the end of the financial year was £213,343. The recruitment consultants employed for these purposes were all drawn from the Cabinet Office Framework agreement.

The costs for vacancies below SCS level are not recorded in the form requested and figures could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department has no agencies.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226902]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has received 773 named day questions so far this session. 396 (50 per cent.) questions have been answered on time.

Food Technology

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to encourage schools to enhance the skills of pupils to prepare and cook meals. [226379]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The new secondary curriculum introduced in September 2008 focuses food technology on practical cooking skills and knowledge. In January 2008, the Government announced that as part of their obesity strategy, food technology will be compulsory for 11 to 14-year-olds from September 2011. Cooking is already compulsory in primary schools.

The Licence to Cook programme delivers a training programme for teachers and supports collaboration between schools that offer food technology and those that currently do not so that more 11 to 16-year-olds have the opportunity to learn how to cook. We have also announced £150,000,000 ring fenced capital investment to build food technology teaching areas in secondary schools currently without facilities and £750,000 for new facilities fro teacher training providers to enable us to reach our target of providing around 800 training places for food technology teachers in the next three years.

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils participated in an Aimhigher programme in each year since 2005, broken down by local authority; and if he will make a statement. [227015]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

Information is not currently available as requested on the number of pupils participating in Aimhigher activities. Information is gathered from Aimhigher partnerships via annual monitoring reports. Due to the diversity of activities delivered by partnerships and differences in recording those activities it has not been possible to collate these in a coherent and reliable format. We are currently working with the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) on the design of a new monitoring report which will enable us to gather data in a more consistent way.

Aimhigher is an important part of the Government's policies to widen participation in higher education amongst people from under-represented groups. Evidence from predecessor programmes shows that the type of activities supported by Aimhigher are successful in raising the aspirations of young people towards higher education, and their attainment whilst at school or college.

The Department, together with HEFCE, is working hard to improve the impact of Aimhigher further. Last year, HEFCE published guidance to help aimhigher partnerships target their interventions more effectively on young people from lower socio-economic groups and other priority target groups. More recently, guidance was published on how to develop programmes of interventions to build up commitment, rather than delivering one-off interventions.

Higher Education: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of 18 year olds from households with annual incomes (a) up to £20,817, (b) between £20,818 and £25,521, (c) between £25,522 and £30,810 and (iv) over £30,810 enrolled at (i) university, (ii) a Russell Group university and (iii) Oxford or Cambridge university in each of the last five years. [226040]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The annual income bands referred to in the question relate to the 2007/08 thresholds for education maintenance allowance (EMA) entitlement of £30 per week, £20 per week, £10 per week and no entitlement to EMA respectively. Neither the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills nor the Department for Children, Schools and Families holds information on the destinations of young people after they have been in receipt of an education maintenance allowance. The Learning and Skills Council are planning a future piece of work to analyse UCAS data on young people progressing into higher education, and to match that with those who have previously been in receipt of an EMA. A copy of that study, when available, will be placed in the House Library.

Learning Disability

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what provision is available outside normal school hours to assist children with learning difficulties with their studies. [226759]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: There are currently over 14,200 schools providing access to the core offer of extended services which includes opportunities to participate in study support activities as part of a varied menu activities from 8 am to 6 pm. By 2010 all schools will be extended schools.

£265.5 million in additional funding over the next couple of years will help ensure that extended schools activities are accessible to all children, including those with special educational needs. A pathfinder is under way, involving schools in 18 local authorities, with the aim of developing best practice and case studies for the full roll-out in 2010.

In addition, the Council for Disabled Children (CDC) has recently produced guidance on access to extended schools and children's centres for disabled children. It identifies practice that promotes access to, and participation in, extended services by disabled children so that they can enjoy the same opportunities as others.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what guidance his Department has issued on the number of feeder schools which may be named as part of a maintained school's admission criteria; [226829]

(2) what representations he has received from independent schools linked to maintained secondary schools on the question of remaining as named feeder schools; [226830]

(3) whether, under his proposed revised admissions guidance in circumstances where an independent Catholic school is one of 19 named Catholic feeder schools for admission to a Catholic maintained school, such an arrangement would be deemed to unfairly disadvantage children from deprived areas. [226831]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Guidance on school admissions is provided in the School Admissions Code. The code does not limit the number of feeder primary schools which maintained secondary schools can include in their admission arrangements. However, giving priority to children attending an independent school, whether faith-based or not, gives those children an unfair advantage over children living nearer the school and attending maintained schools.

In the recent consultation that ended on 2 October there were four representations from individual independent schools or their representative bodies relating directly to the feeder school proposal.

Schools: Catering

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) secondary and (b) primary schools do not have a kitchen, broken down by local authority area. [225840]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not collect this information. However, the School Food Trust's annual survey which can be found at www.schoolfoodtrust.org.uk/documents/annualsurvey3 includes information on catering facilities at national and regional but not local authority level. In response to the trust's latest survey LAs reported that, across England, 20 per cent. of primary and special schools had no kitchen facilities (data from 107 LAs). Virtually all secondary schools have kitchens (data from 100 LAs).

Schools: Health

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health on health visitors; and if he will make a statement. [225967]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families has regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues on issues of mutual interest.

Special Educational Needs

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many communication support workers working with deaf children there are; and how many of these have a qualification in sign language equivalent to a Council for Advancement of Communication with Deaf People Level 3 qualification. [227391]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested is not collected centrally.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Advertising Standards Agency: Public Appointments

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport who appoints those sitting on the Advertising Standards Agency; and for how long they are appointed. [227005]

Andy Burnham: The Chair of the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) is appointed by the Advertising Standards Board of Finance and the Broadcast Advertising Standards Board of Finance. Members of the ASA Council are appointed by the Chair and serve a three year term.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what criteria are used to appoint those holding a position on the Advertising Standards Authority. [227008]

Andy Burnham: The ASA Council operates independently of the Government and the advertising industry, it consists of 15 members appointed by an independent Chairman, currently the right hon. Lord Smith of Finsbury, and criteria for appointment are therefore primarily a matter for the ASA. Council members are chosen for their breadth of experience and do not represent any sector or business. The membership covers both the non-broadcast and the broadcast remit.

Archery: Finance

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which competitive archery centres received funding originating from his Department in 2008. [224910]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England and UK Sport have advised that no awards from lottery or Exchequer funds have been made to competitive archery centres in 2008.

Art Works: Exports

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, columns 21-23W, on art works: exports, which objects (a) were purchased before the expiration of the bar and (b) were sold to overseas buyers in each year since 2002-03. [226314]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 13 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the published annual reports of the Reviewing Committee on the Export of Works of Art and Objects of Cultural Interest, copies of which are available from the House Library. The information for (a) can be found in part I under 'items acquired'. The information for (b) is not available as it is neither the Committee's—nor DCMS's—responsibility to record an object's movements in the event of an export licence being granted.

Big Lottery Fund: Recruitment

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by the Big Lottery Fund on advertising for recruitment in each of the last five years. [225470]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Big Lottery Fund has provided the following information about their advertising costs for recruitment in each of the last five years. These figures include all executive posts, but not public appointments.

British Grand Prix

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 34W, on the British Grand Prix, what subjects were discussed at the meeting with Bernie Ecclestone on 18 March. [226235]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 13 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 34W.

Cycling: Facilities

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which indoor BMX tracks are available for public use. [224913]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has advised that as far as they are aware, there are no permanent indoor BMX tracks of the type suitable for competition racing available for public use in the UK.

Departmental Conferences

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date his Department's All Staff Conference took place; how many staff attended; how many Ministers attended; and what the total cost of the event was. [225467]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport held its 2008 staff conference on 5 February. The total cost of the event was £21,345 (excluding VAT), two Ministers attended the conference and 437 staff booked a place at the event.

Departmental Equality

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he has taken to improve his Department's workforce equality monitoring as set out in his Department's corporate plan. [225679]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In May 2008 Human and Business Resources did a monitoring exercise on behalf of the Department to encourage staff to declare across all the equality strands. This was supported by the departmental diversity champion in a message that went out to all staff. In addition all new staff coming into the Department must complete an equal opportunities monitoring form.

Departmental Land

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the land to the north of the British Library was sold for; and how much was retained by his Department. [224765]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The asset known as "the Land to the North of the British Library" was sold for £85.018 million. The department will retain £39.8 million with the balance being surrendered to the Treasury.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department received from its non-departmental public bodies in rental income in each of the last 10 years. [225288]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In each of the last 10 years my Department has received the following rental income from its NDPBs.

		Retained by DCMS £	Surrendered to the Consolidated Fund	£

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) new builds and (b) major refurbishments for a cost in excess of £0.5 million were completed by his Department in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08. [213727]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department completed a major refurbishment project in excess of £0.5 million in 2006-07.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and (b) Visit Britain spent on advertising appointments in each of the last five years. [225694]

Barbara Follett: The costs incurred on advertising ministerial public appointments to the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and to VisitBritain were:

	£ total (excluding VAT)
(a) Museums, Libraries and Archives Council
2004-05	Nil
2005-06	15,167

Departmental Security

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department has spent on security in each year since 1997. [225675]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The amount spent on security since December 2005 is detailed as follows. Information prior to December 2005 is not available.

	Security guarding	£ Equipment, hardware and maintenance
December 2005 to March 2006	197,880	4,609
April 2006 to March 2007	642,945	31,427
April 2007 to March 2008	528,170	109,887

In 2007-08 the Department upgraded its CCTV and security systems.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date his Department conducted its annual staff survey for 2008; which organisation conducted the survey; and what estimate he has made of the cost of the survey. [225466]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS staff opinion surveys take place biennially and the last one was in 2007. ORC did the survey on behalf of the Department and the cost of the survey was £21,540.

Departmental Telephone Services

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which agencies or units for which his Department is responsible require the public to make telephone calls to them on numbers which charge more than the national call rate; and how much income each such agency derived from such charges in each of the last three years. [225720]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Neither the Department nor its Agency (The Royal Parks) have telephone numbers that charge more than the national call rate.

English Heritage

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many events were staged at English Heritage properties in each of the last five years; and what the total attendance at these events was. [225290]

Barbara Follett: The information requested, as provided by English Heritage, is set out in the table.

Football Foundation: Grants

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what grants have been given out by the Football Foundation for stadium improvements since its inception. [224583]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Football Foundation advise that their non-charitable arm, the Football Stadia Improvement Fund (FSIF), has awarded 1,043 grants worth £95,708,715 since 2000.

Football: Finance

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which professional and semi-professional football clubs have entered administration in the last three years. [224915]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Football Association has advised that the following professional or semi-professional clubs have entered administration since 1 October 2005.

Crawley Town Football and Social Club: entered administration 5 June 2006;

Farnborough Town Football and Social Club Ltd.: entered administration 26 July 2006;

Halifax Town Association Football Club Ltd.: entered administration 14 March 2008;

Leeds United Association Football Club Ltd.: entered administration 4 May 2007;

Luton Town Football Club Ltd.: entered administration 22 November 2007;

Rotherham United FC Ltd.: entered administration 18 March 2008; and Bournemouth and Boscombe Athletic Community Football Club Ltd.: entered administration 7 February 2008.

National Lottery

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport at which 100 outlets the most Lottery ticket sales were made in the latest period for which figures are available. [224591]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We have been informed by the national lottery operator, Camelot, that information regarding retailers' sales is commercially sensitive and cannot be released.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport in which 50 constituencies the most Lottery ticket sales were made in the latest period for which figures are available. [224592]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We have been informed that the national lottery operator, Camelot does not routinely collect ticket sales information on a constituency or postcode basis.

However, an analysis of sales data by postcode area is available in the Libraries of both Houses and provides information up to 2004.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what income his Department received from (a) the National Lottery Distribution Fund and (b) the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund in each year since 1997. [225283]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department receives income from the funds to recover grant-in-aid paid to the National Lottery Commission for the regulation of the Lottery and to recover costs incurred by DCMS in managing the funds;

(a) Income received by DCMS in each year from the National Lottery Distribution Fund is shown in the following table:

£000

	Recovery of National Lottery Commission Grant-in-Aid	Recovery of DCMS costs
1997-98	1,991	203
1998-99	1,815	589

National Lottery: Religion

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what guidance he has issued to the National Lottery on the handling of funding bids from faith-based organisations; and if he will make a statement. [226757]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have issued policy directions to all UK and England Lottery distributors, copies of which have been placed in the House Libraries. They direct each distributor on the persons to whom, the purposes for which and the conditions subject to which it distributes any money. They include no specific direction on the handling of funding bids from faith-based organisations.

Olympic Games 2012: Football

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the Government's policy is on the formation of a football team to represent Great Britain at the London 2012 Olympics. [226136]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 2008]: Any decision on whether a Great Britain football team participates at the London 2012 Olympic games is a matter for FIFA, the four Home Nations' Football Associations, and the British Olympic Association. Discussions between the various parties continue.

While we are proud of our individual traditions, the Government believe that a GB Olympic football team at the 2012 London Olympics could be very exciting for football fans and the general public.

The Government also believe this should not affect the rights of the four Home Nations to compete separately in international football tournaments—an important part of our footballing tradition.

Olympic Games: China

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government has taken to recognise the achievement of the Great Britain team in the 2008 Olympics. [225392]

Mr. Sutcliffe: An Olympic reception was hosted by the Prime Minister at Lancaster House on 3 October to recognise the achievements of the Olympic athletes at Beijing 2008 and there is to be a similar reception for Paralympic athletes at the British Museum.

Children's Play: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on children's play in each of the last three years; and how much he expects to spend on it in each of the next three years. [225683]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In each of the last three years my Department spent £500,000 on three contracts with national play organisations. These contracts ended in March of this year and following a tendering exercise we have awarded three new contracts relating to children's play, again totalling £500,000 in each of the next three years until March 2011.

Religious Buildings: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions English Heritage has had with representatives of (a) the Baptist Church, (b) the Methodist Church and (c) the United Reformed Church on making funds available for the repair of listed buildings in their ownership. [225418]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage has advised that it holds regular discussions with all faith groups and meets the main denominations, including the Baptist Church, the Methodist Church and the United Reformed Church, more formally through its Places of Worship Forum which sits four times a year. During the last nine months English Heritage's Head of Places of Worship Policy has had individual meetings with representatives of all three denominations. During these meetings funding was discussed in relation to English Heritage's Inspired! campaign. Denominations were also asked to encourage congregations to apply for Repair Grants for Places of Worship.

Sport England: Boxing

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which boxing clubs received funds through Sport England in 2008. [224908]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised that the following boxing clubs have received awards to date in 2008.

Lottery Funding:

The McCrory Foundation (Glenn McCrory International School of Boxing): £59,810.

Exchequer Funding (Community Club Development Programme):

The National Smelting Company Amateur Boxing Club: £68,000.

Sports: Disabled People

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding has been allocated to support (a) sports for disabled people and (b) disabled athletes from (i) the National Lottery and (ii) his Department as grant-in-aid in each year since 1997. [224977]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Funding in support of sports for disabled people, and for disabled athletes is provided by Sport England and UK Sport. Sport England and UK Sport have advised that detailed breakdowns of funding for individual athletes could be provided only at disproportionate cost, but they have provided figures for overall grants in each year since 1997 as follows:

Sport England

Sports: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much unallocated sports grant-in-aid there is in his Department's budget; and what plans he has to make the money available for grassroots sports initiatives. [225334]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has no unallocated sports grant in aid.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department provided for the Physical Education, School Sport and Club Link Strategy in each of the last five years. [225685]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Physical Education, School Sport and Club Links (PESSCL) strategy has now evolved into the Physical Education and Sport Strategy for Young People (PESSYP).

The following table shows DCMS investment to support PESSCL/PESSYP over 2003-08:

Financial year	£ million
2003-04	27
2004-05	38
2005-06	45
2006-07	44.75
2007-08	44.75

Sports: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Lottery funding was awarded to sport-related groups in Leeds in each of the last five years. [226381]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has advised that it has made the following relevant Lottery awards in Leeds:

	Total (£)
2003-2004	7,138,166
2004-2005	2,833,963
2005-2006	3,028,476
2006-2007	7,393,195
2007-2008	2,799,863
Grand total	23,193,663

In addition, some grants made by the Big Lottery Fund may have benefited groups related to sport in Leeds.

Sports: Private Sector

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date Fast Track presented him with a business case for raising private sector support for elite sport; and on what date he approved the business case. [225707]

Andy Burnham: Fast Track Sales were appointed as the Department's official adviser in July this year. Fast Track are working with DCMS and UK Sport on the detail of the 'Medal Hopes' funding scheme which I hope will attract sponsorship from national, regional and local businesses to help realise the potential of those athletes on UK Sport's World Class Performance Programme. Further details of the scheme will be announced in due course.

State Visits: Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department has spent on each state visit to the UK since 2003. [225461]

Andy Burnham: The costs recorded as being directly attributable to state visits in each financial year were as follows:

	Costs (£)
2003-04	343,000
2004-05	495,000
2005-06	360,000
2006-07	112,000
2007-08	172,000

Information is not held in the Department's accounting system on the costs of individual visits.

Taking Part Survey

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of expenditure incurred in conducting the most recent Taking Part survey; and what proportion of this expenditure was met by his Department's non-departmental public bodies. [225522]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 9 October 2008]: The Taking Part survey contract was renewed in May 2008 to extend the survey until 2010-11. Fieldwork under the new contract began in July.

The estimated cost across the three-year period (2008-09 to 2010-11) is £5.5 million. In addition to supporting core running costs of the survey, this total includes other costs such as additional analysis, piloting and questionnaire reviews.

The participating non-departmental public bodies make the following proportionate contributions to the total cost:

Contributions from NDPBs to Taking Part, 2008-09 to 2010-11

	Percentage
Arts Council England	16
English Heritage	4
Museums, Libraries and Archives Council	4
Sport England	33

Wembley Stadium: Construction

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on monitoring progress in the construction of Wembley Stadium in each of the last three years; and if he will break down the costs by category. [225282]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS engaged Sport England to monitor the contract for the demolition and rebuilding of Wembley Stadium and provide confirmation that work relating to milestones had been satisfactorily completed and payment could be made by the Department. The cost of this monitoring in the last three years is as follows:

2005-06	75
2006-07	50
2007-08	75

As the monitoring only related to confirming that work had been satisfactorily completed there is no breakdown of costs into categories.

TREASURY

Banks: Republic of Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the consequences for UK-owned and based financial institutions of the decision by the Irish government to underwrite all deposits held by Irish banks. [226210]

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications for the competitiveness of United Kingdom banks of the decision on 29 September of the Irish Government to place an unlimited two year guarantee on all deposits and some debts in six Irish banks. [225953]

Ian Pearson: A number of EU member states have recently increased the compensation limits of their deposit-guarantee schemes. Member states have now agreed to coordinate their actions and to take account of the cross-border effects of national decisions. The European Commission is bringing forward a proposal to promote convergence of deposit-guarantee schemes.

The competitiveness of UK banks should not be adversely affected by these moves As set out in the Chancellor's statement on financial markets to the House of Commons of 13 October, the Government are bringing forward specific and comprehensive measures to ensure the stability of the financial system and to protect ordinary savers, depositors, businesses and borrowers.

Child Trust Fund

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families on low incomes in Leeds West constituency have not claimed the Child Trust Fund initial payment since its introduction. [226325]

Ian Pearson: Eligibility to the Child Trust Fund is not subject to a claim. Where parents do not use the Government voucher to open an account themselves, HMRC opens an account for the child instead. All UK resident children in a Child Benefit award, who are born on or after 1 September 2002 and who are not subject to immigration control, will have a Child Trust Fund.

Credit Unions

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to promote saving with credit unions in the current financial circumstances. [226608]

Ian Pearson: The Government recognise the role that credit unions together with other mutual societies play in encouraging a savings culture among its members as well as the contribution they make in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

Government are currently consulting on proposals to amend credit union legislation The proposed changes, which include reform of the membership criteria and the ability to pay interest on members' savings, will serve to increase public awareness of the services provided by credit unions and to encourage their use.

Departmental Research

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of his Department's budget was used for research within its areas of responsibility in each of the last 10 years. [218072]

Angela Eagle: Details of the Treasury's administration budgets and spending on research and development are shown in the annual resource accounts.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226815]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers endeavour to answer written parliamentary questions promptly wherever possible. Of the 948 named day questions tabled to the Treasury in the current parliamentary session, 613 (64.7 per cent.) were answered on the day nominated by questioners.

Drugs: Smuggling

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the monetary value was of illegal drugs seized by HM Revenue and Customs in 2007-08. [227242]

Mr. Timms: In the financial year 2007-08 HMRC seized controlled drugs to the monetary value of approximately £292 million.

Economic Situation: Families

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps his Department has taken to assist families in the current economic climate; [226332]

(2) what recent steps his Department has taken to assist families in reducing their household bills. [226333]

Mr. Timms: On 11 September the Government announced a £1 billion package of energy efficiency measures, including at least 50 per cent. off a range of energy saving measures for all households, with 11 million of the most vulnerable households qualifying for these free of charge.

In addition, extra help for the vulnerable this winter will be provided by an increase in cold weather payments, which will triple from £8.50 to £25 for this winter.

On 2 September the Government announced reforms to the support for mortgage interest (SMI) system—which is paid to people on income support, pension credit and income-based jobseeker's allowance to help meet the interest payments on their mortgage—to more accurately reflect the value of people's property and reduce the waiting time before help from SMI is available. The Government will keep this system of support under review.

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer given to his question on 14 July 2008 by the Exchequer Secretary, Official Report, column 140W, and to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer gave to the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland (Dr. Kumar) on 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 631W.

Taxation: Aviation

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate his Department has made of (a) the carbon dioxide and (b) the nitrogen oxide emissions output for all fleet models of aircraft (i) currently using and (ii) predicted to use UK airports as part of its formulation of aviation duty policy; [224854]

(2) what estimate his Department has made of (a) the carbon dioxide emissions output during the landing and take off cycle and (b) the maximum take off weight of all fleet models of aircraft (i) using and (ii) predicted to use UK airports as part of its formulation of aviation duty policy; [224855]

(3) what recent discussions his Department has had with the Department for Transport on the use of (a) carbon dioxide emissions output during the landing and take off cycle and (b) the maximum take off weight as a basis for a per aeroplane aviation duty. [224856]

Angela Eagle: A formal consultation on aviation duty was published on 31 January 2008 and closed on 24 April 2008. This consultation considered all aspects of the operation of the duty including the basis, for which Maximum Take-Off Weight was the lead option. Two alternatives were also discussed and these were the CO_2 emissions and NOx emissions in the landing and take-off cycle (LTO).

170 consultation responses were received and these have been considered in the policy development process. Further analysis of the suitability of CO_2 emissions or NOx emissions in the LTO and of Maximum Take-Off Weight as the basis of the tax has been ongoing. DFT along with other Government Departments has been involved in the development of the duty. The details of the duty have not yet been set. The Chancellor plans to make an announcement in the autumn.

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of the rate of duty to apply to waste derived fuel oil from 1 November 2008 on (a) the volume of hazardous waste oil recovered and re-processed, (b) investment in the collection and re-processing of hazardous waste oil, (c) the manufacturing of secondary fuel product, (d) the volume of hazardous waste oil sent to landfill and (e) the volume of hazardous waste oil incinerated; [226448]

(2) what consideration he has given to exercise the discretion provided under the Energy Products Directive to observe differentiation in the application of hydrocarbon oil duty to reflect the quality and environmental impact of different waste derived fuel oils; [226449]

(3) if the Government will delay the introduction of hydrocarbon oil duty until the Waste Protocols Project is complete; [226450]

(4) if the Government will review its decision not to exercise the discretion provided under the Energy Products Directive to observe differentiation in the application of hydrocarbon oil duty to reflect the quality and environmental impact of different waste derived fuel oils once the Waste Protocols Project is complete; [226451]

(5) what consideration the Government has given to applying the 15 euro per kilogramme minimum required under the Energy Products Directive to duty on Waste Derived Fuel Oils. [226452]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Morley and Rothwell (Colin Challen) on 14 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1059-60W.

Firearms: Smuggling

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many weapons HM Revenue and Customs prevented from entering the UK in 2007-08. [227244]

Mr. Timms: This information is published in annex F, page 110 of the HM Revenue and Customs Departmental Report 2008 which is available from the House of Commons Library and at the following web address:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/dept-report-2008.pdf.

Gift Aid Scheme

David Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how long the gift aid transitional rate of 22 per cent. announced on 12 March 2008 will remain in place; and if he will make a statement. [227006]

Mr. Timms: The Chancellor announced at Budget 2008 that the Gift Aid transitional rate will be applied to qualifying donations from individual taxpayers made in the tax years 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11.

HMRC

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the operational costs of the HMRC offices in (a) St. Helens, (b) Blackburn and (c) Chorley were in each of the last five years. [226576]

Mr. Timms: Most of the offices of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) house staff from a number of different business units. Individual business units are organised on national lines and are allocated budgets to meet their total costs and overheads for all their staff. It would be possible only at disproportionate cost to break down the costs of each business unit to individual office level.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the condition of the HMRC offices in (a) St. Helens and (b) Blackburn; and if he will make a statement. [226613]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC's) offices in St. Helens and Blackburn are occupied under the terms of an estates Private Finance Initiative (PFI) contract. Under this contract HMRC's estates partner, Mapeley, is required to ensure that all HMRC accommodation meets the required contractual standards.

Managers: Fees and Charges

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was paid by employers in fees and subscriptions on behalf of their employees, as recorded in section M of P11D forms, in each of the last three years. [226621]

Mr. Timms: The taxable value of fees and subscriptions paid by employers on behalf of their employees is shown in table 4.1 "Recipients, taxable amount and income tax and NICs liability by each main category of benefit" on the HM Revenue and Customs website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/taxable_benefits/menu.htm

Member: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon, sent on behalf of his constituent Mr. Mike Wetton, reference wet/jeh, dated 28 July 2008. [227238]

Yvette Cooper: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Taxation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the effect on revenue to the Exchequer of index linking capital gains and taxing them as income. [222938]

Mr. Timms: A broad estimate of the eventual steady state impact of index linking capital gains and taxing them as income, taking account of the likely taxpayer response to such a change, is additional receipts in the order of £2 billion a year by comparison with the capital gains tax regime contained in the Finance Act 2008. However, a reform of this kind would result in a large behavioural response and as such estimates are susceptible to a wide margin of error.

Working Tax Credit

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many families with children have claimed the childcare element of the working tax credit in (a) Leeds West constituency and (b) the City of Leeds since the element was introduced. [226324]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, estimates of the average number of families benefiting from the child care element of working tax credit, by constituency and local authority, in 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 are provided in the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards. Geographical Analyses", for each relevant year. These publications are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax: Fire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with (a) regional management boards and (b) local authority-controlled companies' representatives on the apportionment of running costs in respect of the FiReControl project with regard to council tax; and if she will make a statement. [226671]

Mr. Khan: A consultation paper on inter-regional cost apportionment was issued on 7 August 2008 as Fire and Rescue Service Circular 41/2008. We have invited responses to this consultation by 31 October 2008 and all of these will be considered before making a decision.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 787W, on council tax: valuation, what the evidential basis was for the observations on the number of consequentials made in the minutes of the meeting of the Programme Board. [225449]

John Healey: The observations referred to were made on the basis of ongoing feedback from staff who had been undertaking work, up to that time, on the revaluation.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) her Department and (b) its Executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if she will make a statement. [226806]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Communities and Local Government can provide information on the total amount it has spent on recruitment including the use of consultants and external advertising for the last five financial years.

Financial year	Recruitment spend (£)
2003-04	397,827.12
2004-05	440,671.26
2005-06	349,630.64
2006-07	267,469.08
2007-08	516,468.48

The figures provided include the recruitment of staff into the senior civil service in the agencies of the Department.

We do not hold more detailed information on the amount spent by (a) the Department and (b) the Executive agencies on the use of (i) consultants and (ii) external advertising for the last five financial years.

The Department used the following recruitment consultants in the last five financial years:

2003-04

Succession Planning Associates Ltd.
Penna plc.
Capita Business Services Ltd.
Saxton Bampflyde Hever
KMC International
KPMG

2004-05

Departmental Voluntary Work

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many departmental staff of each grade undertook voluntary work as set out in her Department's volunteering policy in the last 12 months; and how many days of volunteering those staff undertook (a) in total and (b) on average. [226121]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally and so there would be a disproportionate cost involved in collating information from individual line managers to provide an answer at this time.

In addition to our provisions for special leave to undertake certain types of voluntary roles, the main Department has recently launched a new volunteering scheme to promote a variety of development opportunities for all staff to enable them to play an active part in their community. As part of this scheme we have improved our information management system so that staff can record their volunteering activities, and we will therefore be able to provide related information in the future.

Domestic Visits: Minister for Yorkshire and the Humber

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which parliamentary constituencies the Minister for Yorkshire and the Humber has visited in her capacity as Minister for the region in the last 12 months. [226931]

Mr. Khan [holding answer 14 October 2008]: The Minister for Yorkshire and Humber has visited or attended meetings in the following constituencies since October 2007, some on more than one occasion.

The right hon. Caroline Flint—from 4 October 2007 to 26 January 2008

Constituency	Number of times visited
Bradford West	1
City of York	1
Don Valley	2
Doncaster Central	2
Doncaster North	1
Hull West and Hessle	1
Leeds Central	2
Scarborough and Whitby	1
Wakefield	1

The right hon. Rosie Winterton—from 27 January to 3 October 2008

Constituency	Number of times visited
Barnsley Central	1
Barnsley West and Penistone	2
Batley and Spen	1
Bradford North	1
Bradford South	2

Richmond	1
Rotherham	1
Sheffield Central	3
Skipton and Ripon	2
Wakefield	6
Wentworth	1

Eco-Towns

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of proposals that the first eco-towns should go ahead in those sites which are urban extensions; how she expects eco-towns to provide sustainable community development models for future urban communities; and if she will make a statement. [226868]

Mr. Iain Wright: We want eco-towns to be exemplars in tackling the challenges of housing growth and climate change, and they will make an important contribution to the development of new technologies and practices, as well as promoting excellent new design. As such they will help inform the development of towns, cities, suburbs and urban extensions. More details about the standards that eco-towns must meet will be set out in the draft eco-towns Planning Policy Statement, which we will be publishing shortly for consultation.

Some of the schemes we are considering are close to urban areas, but an eco-town needs to have the critical mass to develop its own identity, standards and scope for innovation.

Fire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library the minutes of meetings of the FiReControl Project Business Case Assumptions Review Group held in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [226670]

Mr. Khan: I have placed copies of the summary notes for the three meetings held of the Business Case Assumptions Review Group in the House library. We published the Business Case Part 1: "The Regional Case" on the 8 July and a copy has been placed in the House Library. The Business Case Part 2: "The National Case" will be published later in the year and a copy placed in the Library.

Fire Services: Consultants

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department paid PA Consulting for work related to the FiReControl project in each quarter from 1 April 2005 to 30 September 2008; and if she will make a statement. [226637]

Mr. Khan: Total paid to PA Consulting for work relating to the FiReControl project from 1 April 2005 is £21.7 million broken down by quarter as follows:

	2005	2006	2007	2008
Q1	1,907,761.54	1,453,129.09	765,534.36	1,663,500.46
Q2	1,959,540.14	1,375,895.98	806,915.69	1,968,397.55
Q3	2,362,422.82	1,511,144.05	2,236,355.59	—
Q4	1,816,378.06	1,035,375.34	804,426.91	—
Total	8,046,102.56	5,375,544.46	4,613,232.55	3,631,898.01

Fire Services: Data Protection

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to safeguard sensitive data during transfer between fire and rescue services to central databases at data centres identified under the FiReControl project; and if she will make a statement. [226636]

Mr. Khan: The FiReControl project will ensure that all data transfers between Fire and Rescue Services and the FiReControl central database will be fully protected and encrypted, commensurate with the type of data being transferred, in alignment with HMG standards and good practice guidance written by CESG, the information assurance arm of GCHQ. In line with CESG guidance, technical measures are complemented with physical, personnel and procedural measures. These will be fully tested and assured, and subject to ongoing review to ensure a comprehensive approach to safeguard all information.

Fire Services: Expenditure

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on agency staff employed in respect of the FiReControl project since 1 April 2005, broken down by regional management board; and if she will make a statement. [226638]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not held centrally.

Homelessness

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households registered as homeless there were in each of the last eight quarters, broken down by (a) local authority and (b) age of applicant. [226460]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). These households are known as 'accepted' households.

Data on accepted households are provided in our quarterly Statistical Release on Statutory Homelessness, which is published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. This includes acceptances by local authority, and acceptances by age band of applicant.

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/homelessnessstatistics/publicationshomelessness/

Acceptances by local authority are published in each quarter's Statistical Release, in the Supplementary Tables. In addition, a table showing these data for the last eight quarters has been placed in the Library.

Data on the age band of accepted applicants, for the last eight quarters, can be found in Table 10b of the most recent quarterly Statistical Release on Statutory Homelessness, available in the Library. For ease, this table can be found as follows:

Acceptances by age of applicant

	Total number of households accepted during period	16-24	% of total	25-44	% of total	45-59	% of total	60-64	% of total	65-74	% of total	75 and over	% of total

Housing: Construction

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of reductions in land values for the Government's housebuilding targets. [226869]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government do not publish forecasts for private house building.

Housing: Heating

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received on building regulations for domestic heating pumps; and if she will make a statement. [226881]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are different technologies associated with domestic heating pumps. The Department is engaging with a number of industry associations over the role of these technologies in buildings, especially as part of the 2010 review of Part L (energy efficiency) of the Building Regulations and the Code for Sustainable Homes, which set standards in terms of energy efficiency.

Housing: Low Incomes

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the average length of time taken was for a family to be provided with suitable housing after entering the socially provided housing waiting list in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire in each of the last two years; [226393]

(2) how many families were on the socially provided housing waiting list in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire in each of the last 10 years. [226392]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information for average length of time on a housing waiting list is not collected centrally.

Information about social housing waiting lists is collected in respect of households rather than families. Where local authorities and registered social landlords operate a common register, households registered with the RSL will be included in the data. However, registered social landlords are independent bodies and can keep their own waiting lists. Information on the number of households on local authorities' waiting lists broken down by Government office region and local authority for 1997 to 2007 is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600 at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/144458.xls

Copies of this table have been deposited in the Library of the House.

The number of households on local authorities' waiting lists for Yorkshire and the Humber, North Yorkshire, South Yorkshire, West Yorkshire and Leeds from 1997 to 2007 is given in the following table.

Number of households on local authorities' housing waiting: 1997 to 2007

	Number of households on the waiting list (excludes households looking for transfers)
	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007

Communities and Local Government Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix return (HSSA)

Local authorities in England report the number of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual housing strategy statistical appendix returns. The size of the waiting list is not an indicator of absolute need; it is only useful as a broad indicator of housing demand in an area. Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been assessed against the Code for Sustainable Homes since 1 May 2008; how many of these homes have been issued with (a) design stage and (b) post-construction certificates for levels (i) 3, (ii) 4 and (iii) 6 of the Code; and if she will break down these figures by type of landlord. [226969]

Mr. Iain Wright: There is approximately a six month time lag between registration and the design stage assessment, with a further time lag between the time the design is assessed and graded and when the home is built and the post-construction assessment carried out.

382 homes have been assessed against the Code for Sustainable Homes since 7 April 2008 (which is the date that we received data). Of these 337 received design stage certificates at code level 3 and none at code levels 4 and 6.

There are now 11 homes with post construction certificates; nine at code level 3 and two at code level 4. We do not currently hold data on whether the property is freehold or the status of the tenancy.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Code for Sustainable Homes assessors in each region have been fully accredited; and how many are in training. [226970]

Mr. Iain Wright: As of 13 September 2008 there were 884 licensed code assessors; in addition there are 981 people that have either completed the training or will have by the end of the year but have yet to become licensed assessors. We currently do not hold data on the numbers of assessors in each region.

Housing: Valuation

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the internal refurbishment of a property, where the physical refurbishment affects the notional rent that the property would attract, should routinely lead to the carrying out of revised valuation by the Valuation Office Agency prior to the 2010 business rates revaluation. [225654]

John Healey: The Valuation Officer has a statutory duty to maintain a correct rating list. When he/she becomes aware that an internal physical refurbishment of a property has increased its rateable value, under the statutory definition, he/she is obliged to alter the current rating list accordingly. The rateable value must have regard to the market conditions at the antecedent valuation date (1 April 2003 for the current rating lists), and will take effect from the completion of the works.

A refurbishment which addresses disrepair may not warrant an increase in the rateable value since the statutory definition already assumes a reasonable state of repair.

Housing: Yorkshire and the Humber

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many first-time buyers purchased a home in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire in each of the last 10 years. [226380]

Mr. Iain Wright: Communities and Local Government do not hold the information requested.

The Council of Mortgage Lenders does publish data on number of mortgages to first-time buyers for the UK but not at more local geographies. The UK data can be found at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/filegrab/lML2.xls?ref=4624

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what requests for meetings her Department has received from businesses operating at ports to discuss changes to the rules on business rates for businesses on ports land and the backdating of that tax. [226652]

John Healey: The Department has received no request for a meeting from businesses operating at ports. The Department has received 14 letters from businesses, local authorities and MPs on behalf of their constituents setting out the concerns of businesses within the ports. The Government are aware of the concerns and are looking at the situation.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many businesses located in British ports have gone into liquidation since the issuing of business rate demands for port tenants; and what their names are. [226654]

John Healey: The Department does not collect such information.

Parking: Income

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) gross and (b) net income from parking was for each local authority in England in each year between 1996 and 2003. [225640]

John Healey: I have placed in the Library of the House a table showing the requested information on the gross and net income on parking services by each local authority in England between 1998-99 and 2001-02.

Figures for 1997-98 have been presented separately owing to complexities arising from the extensive local government reorganisation which took place around that time.

For 1996-97, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 6 October, Official Report, column 354W.

For 2002-03 and 2003-04, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck) on 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 941W.

Aggregate information for England is published in editions of Local Government Financial Statistics and the information is drawn from the Communities and Local Government Revenue Outturn (RO) returns.

Comparisons across years may not be valid due to changing local authority responsibilities.

Regional Ministers

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of the (a) private offices, (b) salaries, (c) administration costs and (d) travel expenses, broken down by (i) first class rail, (ii) standard class rail, (iii) first class air travel, (iv) economy class air travel and (v) taxis of Regional Ministers since their appointment has been; and if she will make a statement. [226753]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Secretary of State to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 22 May 2008, Official Report, column 448W. There have been some slight amendments to the figures collected in May as follows:

Government office	Grade and FTE
West Midlands	FTE increased from 1.7 to 1.9 Added: 0.2 Administrative Officer
South East	FTE increased from 2.0 to 2.55 Now: 0.2 Grade 6, 0.75 Grade 7, 0.4 Higher Executive Officer, 1.0 Executive Officer, 0.2 Administrative Officer
South West	FTE increased from 1.0 to 1.9 Now: 0.2 Grade 6, 0.4 Grade 7, 0.5 Higher Executive Officer, 0.8 Executive Officer

Regional Ministers do not receive a salary for carrying out their duties over and above that given to them as Departmental Ministers.

This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

CLG incurred costs of £4,324.78 for driver services for Regional Ministers' travel in the region. As all other travel expenses were covered by their home Departments, this information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Rented Housing: Private Sector

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government is taking to protect tenants who are faced with the possibility of eviction when their buy-to-let landlord becomes insolvent. [225929]

Mr. Iain Wright: We believe it is good practice where possible for the lender to let the tenancy run and use the rental payments to cover the mortgage repayments until the end of the tenancy or where the tenancy has become a periodic tenancy to give the statutory two month notice period as a minimum.

We have commissioned an independent review of the private rented sector, from Julie Rugg and David Rhodes, Centre for Housing Policy, University of York. It will report on 23 October and we will consider any recommendations the report makes in relation to landlord insolvency.

Taxis

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was claimed in expenses for taxi travel by officials from (a) her Department and (b) its Executive agencies in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2005-06, (iii) 2004-05, (iv) 2003-04 and (v) 2002-03; and if she will make a statement. [227046]

Mr. Khan: Total amounts claimed in taxi expenses by officials in this Department and its direct predecessors are as follows:

	Core department	£ Government offices
2002-03	115,226	—
2003-04	146,071	10,606
2004-05	158,506	43,318
2005-06	149,382	47,140
2006-07	121,564	41,427
2007-08	109,444	40,657

Figures for the Government offices in 2002-03 are not available and for 2003-04 are for part of the year only. Figures for taxi expenditure incurred by the Department's Executive agencies are not available centrally.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans his Department has to require colleges to accept targets from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) for adult education courses which are not themselves funded by the LSC; and if he will make a statement. [225050]

Mr. Simon: We are committed to continuing to increase Government investment in adult skills. Alongside this investment from Government there needs to be a shared responsibility for investment in skills and training by learners and employers, especially where they realise the greatest private returns.

Increasing income through fees, including activity not funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is a key part of ensuring there is a full range of provision available to adult learners.

The LSC have developed a consistent national framework designed to help colleges understand the scope they have for increasing fee income. While some colleges have responded very proactively and innovatively to this agenda, increasing both income and choice for learners, other colleges have not seen it as a priority.

We have therefore been working with the LSC, the Learning and Skills Improvement Service and the Association of Colleges to create a package of support consisting of good practice guides, a fees toolkit and workshops. This support is designed to help all colleges understand how they can adopt fee strategies which have seen other colleges expand fee income and increase learner choice.

Alongside this the LSC have introduced fee income targets to ensure that the profile and importance of this agenda is clear to all colleges. This will also ensure that we are able to recognise the overall volume of education and training delivered by FE colleges outside of LSC funding.

Apprentices: Newcastle-under-Lyme

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many apprenticeships were (a) available and (b) taken up in (i) Newcastle-under-Lyme and (ii) North Staffordshire in 2007-08; [226603]

(2) what apprenticeships were (a) made available and (b) taken up in (i) Newcastle-under-Lyme and (ii) North Staffordshire in 2007-08. [226604]

Mr. Simon: The latest fully audited data that we have is for the 2006/07 academic year. Figures are not directly available for North Staffordshire. Figures have been provided for Staffordshire local authority.

Apprenticeships are demand-led and employer responsive; therefore the number of apprenticeship places available is determined by the number of places employers are able to offer and subject to learner demand. That is why, in terms of monitoring performance, we focus on the number of people who actually start on an apprenticeship programme.

"World-class Apprenticeships" confirmed our commitment to stimulate a greater supply of apprenticeship places with employers. This is a key element of the remit of the new National Apprenticeship Service and its National Vacancy Matching Service which will help employers advertise apprenticeship vacancies and enable prospective apprentices to apply for them online.

Arts: Knowledge Transfer Partnerships

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made in establishing a knowledge transfer network for the creative industries. [227178]

Mr. Lammy: The formation of the Creative Industries Knowledge Transfer Network, Creative Industries Technology Innovation Network (CITIN), was announced by the Technology Strategy Board in May this year, and the KTN began work in August. It will be managed by the University of the Arts London, Imperial College London, the Royal Institute of British Architects (RIBA) and Tiga, the trade association for games developers.

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226422]

Mr. Simon: In the Department annual non-pensionable bonuses are awarded on the 1 April 2008 for the 12 month performance reporting period ending on 31 March 2008. The number of non-pensionable bonuses paid to members of the senior civil service was 41 at a total cost of £312,000.

The pay award for staff below the SCS has not been agreed and therefore no awards have been made yet.

Disabled People

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of staff in (a) his Department and (b) the executive agencies for which he is responsible are disabled; and what the average salary in his (i) Department and (ii) executive agencies is of (A) full-time disabled staff, (B) full-time non-disabled staff, (C) part-time disabled staff and (D) part-time non-disabled staff. [220185]

Mr. Simon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich East (Mr. Watson) on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 651W.

Graduates: Debts

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many students who left (a) Leeds University and (b) Leeds Metropolitan University since 2005 are not earning the £15,000 threshold to begin paying back their student loans; [226387]

(2) what the average wage was of graduates of (a) Leeds University and (b) Leeds Metropolitan University of (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08. [226388]

Mr. Lammy: The Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) collects information on graduates' salaries through the Destination of Leavers from Higher Education (DLHE) survey. The DLHE Survey captures the first destinations of graduates, six months after leaving university. The most recent information available is for those who graduated in 2006/07 who were surveyed in early 2008.

In 2006/07, 51 per cent. of UK domiciled leavers who obtained first degree qualifications and entered full-time paid employment in the UK disclosed their salary. 36 per cent. from the University of Leeds and 66 per cent. from Leeds Metropolitan University disclosed their salary. HESA therefore advises caution in analysis of leavers by salary. Respondents are asked to report their salary to the nearest £1,000.

The latest available information on salaries of graduates, six months after graduation, is shown in the following tables. Comparable figures for the 2007/08 academic year will be available in July 2009.

Table 1: Number of UK domiciled leavers who obtained first degree qualifications by destination six months after graduation academic years 2005/06 and 2006/07

Source:
Destinations of Leavers from Higher Education (DLHE) survey.

Around 80 per cent. of eligible students choose to take out maintenance loans. Therefore not all leavers have student loans.

Repayments of income-contingent student loans are linked to a borrower's income and not the amount owed. Repayment is at 9 per cent. of annual income over a threshold of £15,000, collected through the tax system, usually by employers each pay date for borrowers on PAYE, in the same way as income tax and national insurance contributions. This allows a greater degree of career flexibility—for example, if someone takes a career break, becomes unemployed or takes lower paid employment. In addition borrowers can voluntarily make repayments direct to the Student Loans Company, even if their income is below the repayment threshold.

Recent graduates will typically have lower salaries when entering the labour market than they will receive later in their careers. For students graduating in 2002/03 the first degree median salaries increased from £16,000 at the Early Survey (six months after graduation) to £22,000 at the Longitudinal Survey (three and a half years after graduation), an increase of 37.5 per cent. This compares with an increase in average earnings across the whole economy of around 11.5 per cent. over the same period.

Higher Education

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will convene a Joint Ministerial Committee with counterparts in the devolved administrations to co-ordinate policies and action in the field of higher education. [226265]

Mr. Lammy: A good deal of higher education policy is devolved. It is for different Administrations to decide their policies and they will not always agree on the right way forward. For example, we believe it is fair to ask undergraduates to make a contribution to the cost of their higher education, and that the revenue provided by their fees is important if universities are to deliver world-class teaching. The Scottish Executive has different policies.

Where there is a continuing UK-wide arrangement, notably in the Research Councils' funding, officials and ministers work closely with their counterparts in the devolved Administrations. Where matters are devolved, there are appropriate levels of contact between DIUS and the devolved Administrations to discuss developments and share information, which reflects the importance the Government place on the relationship between the Administrations.

My predecessor, my hon. Friend the Member for Harlow (Bill Rammell), appeared before the Welsh Affairs Select Committee on 15 July 2008. In a letter sent to the chair of that Committee following the Committee meeting, he stated that he was willing to take part in meetings with his counterparts in the devolved Administrations. I agree with this approach.

Higher Education: Sustainable Development

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will hold discussions with representatives of universities to encourage the adoption of environmentally sustainable practices in universities. [226719]

Mr. Lammy: Yes. Ministers have already held a number of such discussions and we expect to hold more in future.

During the past year we have asked the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) to ensure that by the end of this spending review period all universities in receipt of capital funding should have plans to reduce carbon emissions. In future, performance against these plans should be a factor in future capital allocations.

We have also agreed with HEFCE a key performance target for the Council's strategic plan as follows:

> to finalise during 2008-09 in consultation with stakeholders a revised strategy for sustainable development in HE, which features a realistic target for carbon reductions which are sufficient to ensure satisfactory progress towards the Government targets of reducing carbon emissions by 60 per cent. against 1990 levels by 2050 and at least 26 per cent by 2020.

Reducing emissions from universities is important in its own right, but we believe it is particularly valuable because universities can provide examples of best practice to inspire businesses, other public services and community groups. We recognise that universities are autonomous institutions, and we want to work in partnership with them to address the sustainability agenda.

The University of Gloucestershire is one of the universities with which we have discussed these issues. It is an institution that reflects strong commitment to the sustainability agenda through its management, teaching and research activities.

Physics: Research

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what UK research and development projects are being undertaken into (a) quantum crypto-graphics and (b) electro-optics; how much funding such projects are planned to receive from the public purse in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [225376]

Mr. Lammy: The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) and the Technology Strategy Board (TSB), funded through the Science and Innovation Budgets, support a portfolio of research grants in these areas.

Grants as of October 2008 – EPSRC

	Number of grants	Value (£)
(a) Quantum crypto-graphics	74	57,605,310
(b) Electro optics	28	14,077,542

In addition, EPSRC is currently funding 69 grants totalling £53,093,462 in the area of optoelectronics which is a separate but related branch of technology to electro-optics. Information on individual grants funded by EPSRC is available from 'EPSRC Grants on the Web' at http://gow.epsrc.ac.uk/.

From 2004 to 2008, the Technology Strategy Board contributed £3,903,712 to projects that explicitly mention electro optics or optoelectronics in their title or abstract under the Key Technology Area of Electronics, Photonics and Electrical Systems.

The Technology Strategy Board has not identified any projects containing the words 'quantum crypto-graphics' in the title or abstract.

Sector Skills Councils

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what records his Department holds of non-registered sector skills bodies; and whether such bodies will be included in the current review and relicensing procedure for registered sector skills councils. [227029]

Mr. Simon: The Department holds records for Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) in connection with their licensed status, and for Industry Training Boards in relation to their levy arrangements and non-departmental public body status. The Department does not keep systematic records for non-registered sector skill bodies. The records that are kept on such bodies relate to correspondence and meetings arising from specific approaches from organisations.

All sector skill bodies will have an opportunity to provide evidence and commentary on the relicensing of individual SSCs. The UK Commission for Employment and Skills has a website that includes a link for employers and stakeholders to post views on how SSCs are performing. The relicensing process will include a rigorous assessment of each SSC by independent third party assessors. The relicensing process is for existing Sector Skills Councils only. The performance of other sector bodies is not part of the assessment process.

Vocational Education

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many people started courses under train to gain in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by (a) region and (b) local authority; [226588]

(2) how many people are expected to start courses under train to gain in 2010-11, broken down by (a) region and (b) local authority; [226587]

Mr. Simon: Since it was rolled out nationally in 2006 over 101,000 employers have been engaged, over 570,000 learners have started a learning programme and over 290,000 qualifications have been achieved. Recent independent evaluations of the service show that both employer and employee satisfaction with their experience of train to gain is high.

A breakdown of the number of people starting courses through train to gain in 2006-07 since the programme began in April 2006 is set out in Table 1 by region and local authority (2006-07 is the latest year we have fully audited data for). We do not have this information for 2010-11. In the demand-led skills system that the Government have created, the geographical distribution of train to gain learners is driven by employer demand. In addition the Learning and Skills Councils annual statement of priorities, which will be published soon, will set out their spending plans and targets to 2010-11. In 2010-11 we plan to invest over £1 billion of public funding through the service, to help employers invest in their businesses by investing in the skills of their employees.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on consultancy fees in each year since the Department was created. [225578]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Hemsworth (Jon Trickett) on 13 December 2007, Official Report, column 838W. Consultancy spend for the year 2007-08 is £246 million.

Departmental Fraud

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many instances of fraud were recorded in his Department in each of the last five years; what the monetary value of the fraud was in each case; what the nature of the fraud was in each case; and how many of his Department's staff were (a) reprimanded and (b) dismissed as a result in each case. [226117]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) collates details of recorded fraud and passes the results to HM Treasury for inclusion in their annual fraud report, which may be found on HM Treasury's website at:

http://62.164.176.164/fraud_public_spending_and_reporting.htm

Departmental Internet

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the (a) design and (b) maintenance of the Race Against Global Poverty section of his Department's website (i) has cost and (ii) is projected to cost. [226114]

Mr. Douglas Alexander [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The total cost of designing the 'Race Against Global Poverty' section of DFID's website was £83,221.17. Maintenance costs are £10,109.70 per annum for database hosting, usage statistics and bandwidth.

This section of the DFID website is designed to assist pupils in the subjects of ICT, geography and citizenship, as part of the secondary school teaching curriculum. Since it was launched on 30 June 2008 there have been 54,962 user sessions on this section of the website.

Departmental Press

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which organisations provided media monitoring services to (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies in each of the last three years; and what the total cost was of each contract. [224868]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department's media monitoring is supplied by Energy Data Service Ltd. (EDS) and the Media Monitoring Unit (MMU). Available figures for the annual costs of each contract are as follows:

Haiti: Hurricanes and Tornadoes

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assistance the UK has provided to those affected by the hurricanes in Haiti. [225507]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) committed up to £7 million for humanitarian relief and early recovery to the Caribbean after the recent hurricanes, some £6 million of which is for Haiti to help restore water, sanitation and other essential services and supplies. DFID also sent a humanitarian assessment team to Haiti and is supporting UN relief co-ordination there with two seconded experts.

In addition, the European Community Humanitarian Office (ECHO) is committing €700,000 for humanitarian relief, 15.8 per cent. of which is charged to DFID's budget.

Although DFID has no long-term bilateral development programme or representation in Haiti, DFID will continue to support Haiti through engagement with and funding of multilateral agencies such as the World Bank, United Nations, European Union, regional CARICOM institutions, the Caribbean Development Bank and international NGOs. We judge these actors to be best placed to assist Haiti's development because of their long-term presence.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made by the United Nations relief fund to help those affected by the recent hurricanes in Haiti; and if he will make a statement. [225508]

Mr. Michael Foster: The United Nations (UN) issued an international appeal for post-hurricane humanitarian relief funding for Haiti totalling $107 million. So far we understand donors have committed $23,540,000, 22 per cent. of the appeal. The Department for International Development (DFID) is channelling £4 million of its £6 million humanitarian aid for Haiti through the UN.

In the very difficult circumstances prevailing in Haiti all agencies are finding it difficult to manage relief. There are challenges of staffing, co-ordination and logistics. We have targeted our support to be as helpful as possible to the UN agencies in overcoming these constraints.

Overseas Aid

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what factors are taken into account in his Department's risk management policy on distribution of aid. [220378]

Mr. Michael Foster: Much of the Department for International Development's (DFID) work is in high risk environments. Staff must be safeguarded, financial control maintained and our development activities must reduce poverty. DFID's systems are designed to provide a high and consistent level of management everywhere, including in difficult environments. DFID tackles three types of risks:

Risks to DFID staff and resources;

Risks to the delivery of international development

Risks faced by poor people throughout the world

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the outcome of the UN High-Level Event on the millennium development goals on 25 September, with particular reference to the financial contributions pledged by the British Government. [225581]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The high level event (HLE) on the MDGs involved the broadest ever alliance assembled to fight for poverty reduction. Participants in the event, and the nearly 60 partnership events during the week, represented over 140 countries and leaders of NGOs, business, faith groups, philanthropic organisations and cities.

At the UN HLE the UK Government committed to spend an estimated £450 million over the next three years to support national health plans for eight international health partnership countries. Prime Minister Gordon Brown also announced the foundation of a multistakeholder Taskforce on Innovative Financing for Health Systems to help meet the financial gap on the health MDGs. With the aim that this Taskforce will report to the Italian G8 summit in 2009.

On education the UK Government committed £50 million for the education fast-track initiative (FTI) as part of a multi stakeholder approach launching the new "Class of 2015" partnership which looks to address the funding gap in order to help make it possible to get 24 million children into school by 2010. It is part of delivering on our commitment, announced in April 2006, to provide £8.5 billion in support of education over 10 years. There was also an announcement of a £5 million commitment for a partnership with Comic Relief totalling £10 million (£5 million each) through which school children in the UK will raise money for schools in Africa. As with the FTI funding it's part of our delivering on our £8.5 billion commitment.

The UK announced £40 million to support the affordable medicines facility for malaria, which the UK encourages the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria (GFATM) to host. This is in support of the global malaria action plan that was developed by Roll Back Malaria, with contributions from 250 partner organisations, and launched with Malaria No More, Roll Back Malaria, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the UN on the 25 September. The action plan points the way towards universal coverage of bed nets and spraying by 2010, and achieving near zero malaria deaths by 2015.

On food security the UK Government committed £42 million to the Horn of Africa as part of the Government's emergency assistance. This was part of the $1.75 billion announced by stakeholders at the UN HLE in emergency food aid to stop starvation in the Horn of Africa, and for the rapid distribution of support, including seeds and fertilizers, to 30 priority countries.

I will be answering questions relating to the UN HLE at the Africa All Parliamentary Group (APPG) on 28 October and at the International Development Committee on the UN high level event on 30 October.

Somalia: Asylum

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the number of Somalian refugees in Yemen; and what steps the UK has taken to facilitate their safety and security. [225602]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Figures from the United Nations Refugee Agency (UNHCR) show that as at January 2008, there were 79,000 Somali refugees in Yemen. This figure is projected to rise to 82,720 by the end of 2008.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is not currently providing assistance to UNHCR for the purpose of supporting Somali refugees in Yemen. However, through DFID's bilateral programme in Yemen, we will be providing £7 million between 2008 and 2013 to support efforts to increase access to justice and policing for all those living in Yemen.

DFID is also working in Somalia, to improve governance, security, health, education, livelihoods and provide emergency humanitarian relief. Our support is aimed at building more stable conditions so that fewer Somalis feel forced to seek a better life elsewhere.

Sri Lanka: Overseas Aid

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has made to the Sri Lankan government to ensure free passage of food, medicines and other humanitarian supplies to the North of Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [227016]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for International Development raised the humanitarian situation in Sri Lanka in a bilateral meeting with President Rajapakse on 26 September in New York at the United Nations General Assembly. They stressed the need for a political solution to the Conflict as well as the need to secure humanitarian space and to provide humanitarian relief to an estimated 220,000 Internally Displaced Persons trapped in the conflict zone in the north of Sri Lanka.

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the UK Government is taking to ameliorate the humanitarian situation in the north of Sri Lanka. [227022]

Mr. Michael Foster: In addition to diplomatic engagement, the UK Government are providing funding for humanitarian aid. The Department for International Development (DFID) contributed £1.25 million in 2007-08 through the UN and the International Red Cross. Following the latest DFID humanitarian assessment mission to Sri Lanka 15-24 September, which visited the north, DFID has agreed a further £2.5 million humanitarian aid. We are in urgent discussion with the UN and the Red Cross about how to channel this aid as quickly as possible to assist the 200,000-250,000 internally displaced people caught up in the latest upsurge in the conflict.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what the initial findings of his Department's assessment team on the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka are; and if he will make a statement; [227486]

(2) how many people were on his Department's assessment team on the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka; [227487]

(3) how many days his Department's assessment team spent observing the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka on its recent visit; [227488]

(4) what areas were visited by his Department's assessment team on the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka; [227489]

(5) whether his Department's assessment team reported being subject to significant travel restrictions during its visit to Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement; [227490]

(6) what further steps the Government plans to take in response to the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka. [227491]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) assessment of the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka is that it is severe and in need of urgent relief action. As I reported to the House on 14 October 2008, Official Report, columns 240-48WH, we estimate that the number of Sri Lankans displaced in the latest surge in the conflict between the Sri Lankan armed forces and separatist extremists has risen from approximately 75,000 in July to between 200,000 and 250,000. Because many of these people have suffered multiple previous displacements they are particularly vulnerable. They are trapped between opposing forces in a pocket of north-east Sri Lanka without the assistance they need, lacking food, water, shelter, healthcare or sanitation. It is impossible to gauge exact numbers or their full plight because there is no humanitarian access to them. There are plans by the United Nations and the Sri Lankan authorities to mount relief convoys but so far very little is getting through.

As I said in the House on 14 October 2008, Official Report, columns 240-48 WH, we deplore this situation, have called on all parties to the conflict to facilitate access and humanitarian aid and I am pleased to have committed a further £2.5 million for humanitarian relief through the international agencies.

The DFID assessment team comprised one UK-based humanitarian specialist who has previously worked in Sri Lanka and has visited Sri Lanka many times and a representative of the British high commission in Colombo.

The assessment team visited Sri Lanka from 16 to 24 September, including Vavunia and Jaffna District, where they were able to travel without difficulties or restrictions. They were unable to visit the Wanni area because security there could not be assured.

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka. [227582]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) assessment of the humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka is that it is severe and in need of urgent relief action. As I reported to the House on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 240-48WH, we estimate that the number of Sri Lankans displaced in the latest surge in the conflict between the Sri Lankan armed forces and separatist extremists has risen from approximately 75,000 in July to between 200,000 and 250,000. Because many of these people have suffered multiple previous displacements they are particularly vulnerable. They are trapped between opposing forces in a pocket of north-east Sri Lanka without the assistance they need, lacking food, water, shelter, health care or sanitation. It is impossible to gauge exact numbers or their full plight because there is as yet no proper humanitarian access to them. The United Nations and the Sri Lankan authorities are attempting relief convoys but so far relatively little is getting through.

As I said in the House on 14 October, we deplore this situation, have called on all parties to the conflict to facilitate access and humanitarian aid and I am pleased to have committed a further £2.5 million for humanitarian relief through the international agencies.

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to ensure that humanitarian aid (a) workers and (b) supplies can reach the districts of Kilinochchi and Mulaitivu in northern Sri Lanka. [227583]

Mr. Michael Foster: In addition to diplomatic representations, the Department for International Development (DFID) supports the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), which has a permanent international and national staff presence in Kilinochchi and Mullaittivu. As I said in the House on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 240-48WH, we are pressing for full humanitarian access to those areas.

We are also pressing for Sri Lankan and United Nations relief convoys to deliver aid in safety and will support UN and other aid agency partners to increase their aid operations as soon as possible, assisted by the further £2.5 million from DFID that I was pleased to announce on 14 October.

HEALTH

Babies: Medical Examinations

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what procedures are in place for ensuring that children have (a) a hip examination at birth and (b) another examination at between six and eight weeks old. [224759]

Ann Keen: Screening for developmental dysplasia of the hips (DDH) is part of the routine physical examinations that every baby has, first within 72 hours of birth and then at 6-8 weeks old, as part of the Child Health Promotion Programme (CHPP), which covers pregnancy and the first five years of life. The examinations are usually performed by doctors, but can also be carried out by midwives and specialist nurses.

All the screening programmes in the CHPP have met the criteria set out by the National Screening Committee. Screening programmes require local implementation of an agreed pathway, including clear guidelines on referral to assessment and differential diagnostic services.

Bowel Cancer

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government is taking to improve bowel cancer awareness and early diagnosis among men. [225706]

Ann Keen: Raising awareness of the signs and symptoms of cancer is a key element of the "Cancer Reform Strategy" (copies of which have already been placed in the Library). Through the National Awareness and Early Diagnosis Initiative, we will be taking forward work to improve awareness of the signs and symptoms of all cancers, including bowel cancer, among men and women. As part of this work, we will be working to support local interventions to increase cancer symptom awareness and encourage early presentation. We are currently investing in the Improvement Foundation's pilot work to develop and test methods of raising awareness of bowel, breast and lung cancers in 20 of the most deprived areas in the country.

Through section 64, we are currently funding a Men's Health Forum project which aims to increase bowel cancer screening awareness and uptake by men.

The Department has worked with health professionals, patient groups and the voluntary sector to develop standardised messages for bowel cancer. Work to update the messages will be commencing shortly.

In addition, from 2010, the NHS Bowel Cancer Screening Programme will be extended to men and women aged 70 to 75. We are currently piloting the extension in five pilot sites, and an evaluation of this will inform the national roll-out of the extension.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish the first annual report on progress towards objectives contained in the Cancer Reform Strategy. [224576]

Ann Keen: The National Cancer Director's first annual report on the Cancer Reform Strategy will be published by the end of the year.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms he has implemented for monitoring progress towards NHS waiting time standards outlined in the Cancer Reform Strategy. [224577]

Ann Keen: Performance against the current national health service cancer waiting times standards is monitored by NHS trust and is published on a quarterly basis by the Department of Health at:

http://www.performance.doh.gov.uk/cancerwaits/index.htm

We will continue to publish performance data by NHS trust on a quarterly basis as the extended waiting time standards set out the Cancer Reform Strategy are introduced from the end of December 2008. Local progress is monitored by commissioners of the service.

Cardiovascular System: Health Services

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many primary care trusts have developed their own vascular assessment or screening programmes; [225176]

(2) how many free vascular risk assessments have been provided under the Government's Putting Prevention First programme in each primary care trust. [225185]

Ann Keen: From 2009-10, the national health service is being asked to implement a vascular risk assessment and management programme or 'vascular checks' for people in England aged between 40 and 74, the proposals for which were set out in "Putting Prevention First" published on 1 April 2008, copies have already been placed in the Library. This programme will help ensure greater focus on the prevention of cardiovascular disease, diabetes and kidney disease and will help people remain well for longer.

There is already a considerable amount of prevention and risk management activity taking place in primary care trusts in relation to individual conditions such as coronary heart disease and diabetes. There are no central records of exact numbers. The aim of the vascular checks initiative is to build on this valuable work so that the advantages of risk assessment and management are available to all who are able to benefit. The Department is currently working with stakeholders including commissioners, general practice and the pharmacy sector, on how best to do this.

Cervical Cancer: Screening

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made towards developing (a) an information pack to be issued regarding screening programmes and (b) a public relations strategy to boost participation of women aged 25 to 35 years in cervical cancer screening; and when he expects these policies to be implemented. [224882]

Ann Keen: As set out in the Cancer Reform Strategy, the National Health Service Cancer Screening Programme is commissioning an Improvement Foundation project to look at addressing the falling participation of younger women in the NHS cervical screening programme. The evidence and outcomes from the Improvement Foundation's local work will inform the development of the NHS Cancer Screening Programme's information materials and public relations strategy in this matter. The Improvement Foundation are expected to deliver the outcomes from their work to the NHS Cancer Screening Programme by the end of 2009.

The NHS Cancer Screening Programmes have already produced posters specifically targeting women in the age range of 25-35.

Chemotherapy Advisory Group

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects the National Chemotherapy Advisory Group to report; [224883]

(2) what steps he is taking to implement the recommendations of the National Chemotherapy Advisory Group. [224884]

Ann Keen: It is anticipated that the first draft of the National Chemotherapy Advisory Group report will be issued to key stakeholders for informal consultation by the end of the year. The National Cancer Director will then make recommendations to the NHS following consideration of comments received. The National Cancer action team will provide support for cancer networks and primary care trusts to implement recommendations.

Cot Deaths: Research

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent in the last year for which figures are available on (a) research into Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, (b) mental health research, (c) neurological research, (d) ophthalmic research, (e) audiology research and (f) HIV/AIDS research. [224598]

Dawn Primarolo: The information available is shown in the following table.

Estimated research and development (R and D) expenditure in 2007-08

£ million

	Departmental and National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) programmes	National health service R and D transitional support funding
Sudden infant death syndrome	0.2	n/a
Mental health	[1]18.2	47.4
Neurology	[1]16.4	39.1
Ophthalmology	2.5	n/a
Audiology	0.4	n/a
HIV/AIDS	2.2	n/a n/a = Not available

[1] Includes NIHR clinical research network expenditure. Details of individual projects supported by the UK Clinical Research Network are available at: http://public.ukcrn.org.uk/search.

Over the last 10 years, the main part of the Department's total expenditure on health research has been devolved to and managed by NHS organisations. These organisations account for their use of the allocations they receive from the Department in annual research and development reports. The reports identify total, aggregated expenditure on certain priority areas including mental health, chronic neurological conditions and degenerative neurological disorders. They do not provide details of spend on the other conditions listed in the table.

The Medical Research Council (MRC), like the NIHR, is one of the main agencies through which the Government support biomedical research. The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills. Relevant MRC expenditure is not included in the figures above.

Death: Football

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will commission research into the causes of death of active amateur and professional footballers over the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [226244]

Ann Keen [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The Department is not planning to commission the research suggested. However, the Department has supported a recent initiative led by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, the national football organisations and Cardiac Risk in the Young to promote awareness of familial heart conditions and the risks they pose to footballers.

Discussions are also currently taking place between the two Departments and the other UK health departments on whether further research into the effectiveness of testing young athletes for these conditions ought to be carried out.

Dementia: Drugs

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to publish proposals to reduce the level of inappropriate prescribing of anti-psychotic medication to people with dementia, as heralded in his Department's draft dementia strategy. [225509]

Phil Hope: The Department originally anticipated that the results of the review into the use of anti-psychotic drugs for people with dementia would be available before the National Dementia Strategy is published. Given the work involved on developing the strategy, this will not now be possible. The strategy is now likely to be published in mid-November, and we anticipate that the results of the anti-psychotics review will be published early in 2009.

Dementia: Research

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in plans for the dementia research summit that was announced in June; for what reasons the summit was not held in accord with the originally planned timetable; and if he will make a statement. [226317]

Phil Hope [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The dementia research summit has been delayed because of the pressure of work on developing the National Dementia Strategy and Implementation Plan. We now anticipate that the summit will take place in December 2008.

Dental Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the contribution to dental outcomes in England made by (a) dental technicians and (b) clinical dental technicians. [224678]

Ann Keen: Dental technicians continue to make an essential contribution to high quality dental treatment through the manufacture of dental appliances to the standards set in the Medical Devices Directive. Increasing numbers of clinical dental technicians are building upon this contribution by both manufacturing and fitting dental appliances to edentulous patients having met the registration requirements set by the General Dental Council.

Dental Services: Bassetlaw

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients used NHS dental services in Bassetlaw in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; [224610]

(2) how many registered NHS dental patients there are in Bassetlaw constituency; and how many there were in (a) 2007 and (b) January 2008. [224923]

Ann Keen: Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with a national health service dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

Information on the number of patients seen by an NHS dentist in England, over the previous 24-month period, is available in table C1 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: Quarter 3: 31 December 2007" report. Information is available for the 24-month periods ending 31 March 2006, 31 March 2007, 30 June 2007, 30 September 2007, and 31 December 2007. Information is provided by strategic health authority and primary care trust (PCT). Information by constituency is not available under the new contractual arrangements.

This report, published on 5 June 2008 by the NHS Information Centre for health and social care, has already been placed in the Library and is available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0708q3

The Dental Services Division (DSD) of the NHS Business Services Authority has recently issued 'patients seen' information at PCT level. However, this was for management information purposes. PCTs have recently raised some issues which suggest that the way in which patients are allocated to PCTs across the various quarters needs to be reviewed. This means that sub-national information on patients seen was not included in the "Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report. This report, published on 21 August 2008 by the NHS Information Centre for health and social care, has already been placed in the Library. The DSD has confirmed that this issue could only have a minimal impact on the national figures. They were therefore labelled as provisional pending the review. An update will be provided in the "Dental Statistics for England: 2008/09 Q1" report in November 2008.

Increasing the number of patients seen within the NHS dental service is now a priority in the Operating Framework for the NHS in England 2008-09. We have supported this with an 11 per cent. uplift in overall dental allocations to PCTs from 1 April 2008. Copies of the Operating Framework have already been placed in the Library.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the NHS budget for dentistry in Bassetlaw constituency was in each of the last 20 years. [224924]

Ann Keen: This information is not available in the format requested.

Prior to April 2006, most primary dental services were provided under former General Dental Service arrangements. These were demand-led services, funded from a single national budget, where the pattern of dental expenditure was largely determined by where dentists chose to practice and how much national health service work they chose to undertake. Expenditure was accounted for by the former Dental Practice Board on a national basis only.

However, certain information on primary dental care expenditure in individual primary care trusts (PCTs), health authorities or constituency areas is available for earlier years. The Information Centre for health and social care published the following report on 26 March 2008:

"NHS Expenditure for General Dental Services and Personal Dental Services: England 1997/98-2005/06". This report has already been placed in the Library and is available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalexpend1997to2006

The report includes information on primary dental care expenditure by constituency for 1997-98 to 2005-06 in tables A3 and B3 of annex 3. Table A3 relates to 'gross' expenditure and table B3 relates to 'net' expenditure. 'Gross' expenditure refers to the full cost of the payments recorded; 'net' expenditure reflects the cost of these payments to the NHS after the deduction of income from NHS dental charges paid by patients. Information by PCT and strategic health authority (SHA) is also available in tables A1 and B1.

This information is based on the old contractual arrangements which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006 and is not directly comparable with subsequent expenditure data reflecting the new framework and scope of local commissioning arrangements for primary dental care services introduced from April 2006. Further notes to aid interpretation of the information are shown in the 'Contents and Notes' page of annex 3.

PCTs assumed responsibility for the local commissioning of primary dental care on 1 April 2006. Under the new service framework, the Department awards each PCT an annual primary dental service allocation to maintain and develop dental care services. Allocations are net of any income from NHS dental charges paid by patients, which PCTs retain as additional funding for dentistry. PCTs may direct further local NHS resources to dentistry if they consider it appropriate in the light of local needs and priorities. PCTs therefore determine their own local operational budgets taking into account the total resource they intend to commit to dentistry including any expected income from NHS dental charges. The Department's primary dental service allocations to Bassetlaw PCT since April 2006 is shown in the following table.

Primary dental care service allocations to Bassetlaw PCT (net of patient-charge revenue)

Financial year	Net allocation (£000)
2006-07	2,644
2007-08	2,839
2008-09	3,142

Note:
Any PCT which hosts an approved training post for a dental vocational trainee will receive a supplementary net funding allocation from its SHA to cover the relevant costs.

Data on actual expenditure on primary dental services can be derived from PCT accounts. Expenditure totals for Bassetlaw PCT are set out in the following table. However, accounts data do not separately identify expenditure by constituency area or any other sub-division of a PCT area.

Expenditure on primary dental care services in Bassetlaw PCT, 2006-07 to 2007-08

	Financial year
	2006-07	2007-08
Gross expenditure	4,059	4,403
Dental charges paid by patients	1,079	1,180
Net expenditure	2,980	3,223

Note:
PCTs also commission secondary dental services such as specialist hospital dental departments, which they fund from their general NHS budgets, but expenditure on these services is not separately identified in PCT accounts.

Dentistry: Technicians

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to support training and professional development for clinical dental technicians. [224679]

Ann Keen: The General Dental Council is responsible for approving training courses, which lead to the registration of dental care professionals. We believe that a training course for clinical dental technicians needs to be established in England. We were therefore very encouraged to learn that the Postgraduate Dental Dean for south east coast is collaborating the university of Kent to devise a course which should give credit for relevant experience and competencies which some dental technicians have already acquired. We understand the programme will be submitted to the General Dental Council's Education Committee in December and, if it is approved, places will be advertised in the new year.

Diabetes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many primary care trusts have developed their own diabetes strategy. [225177]

Ann Keen: This information is not centrally collected. Responsibility for implementing the diabetes national service framework rests with the national health service, and it is for primary care trusts to commission services that meet the needs of their local population.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) financial and (b) administrative support the Government has given to campaigns to raise awareness of the risk factors for diabetes. [225178]

Ann Keen: The national health service (NHS) next stage review, 'High Quality Care for All', published on 30 June 2008, announced the introduction of the Reduce Your Risk campaign, which will raise awareness of the vascular checks programme and vascular conditions generally, including diabetes. Copies of this publication have already been placed in the Library.

In addition to this, The Change4Life campaign is a forthcoming £75 million social marketing programme that is part of "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: A Cross Government Strategy for England" (copies of which have already been placed in the Library). The campaign will support and encourage people to live healthily by helping them to make significant and sustained choices to behaviours around diet and physical activity. This will also help prevent obesity and reduce the risk of developing type 2 diabetes and other cardiovascular diseases.

Through the Section 64 general grant scheme (now known as Third Sector Investment programme), we have given a total of £305,976 in support of three projects that include raising awareness of type 2 diabetes since 2005.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how his Department plans to address the need for improvements in emotional and psychological support for diabetes patients identified in the National Service Framework's Five Years On report. [225180]

Ann Keen: The Department, in collaboration with Diabetes UK, has established a joint working group to identify what needs to be done to enable the national health service and local care services to meet the psychological and emotional needs of all people with diabetes to support them to self-care. This will include examining the competencies required to deliver an appropriate service. The group is part of a wider workstream looking at ways that local services can develop support for people with diabetes to self-manage, including care planning, structured education and self-monitoring.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimated percentage of hospital beds were occupied by patients with diabetes in each primary care trust at the latest date for which information is available; [225181]

(2) how many people have been admitted to hospital in diabetes-related emergencies in the last 12 months. [225182]

Ann Keen: Information on the estimated percentage of hospital beds occupied by patients with diabetes in each primary care trust is not available in the format requested. The recent report 'Improving Emergency and Inpatient Care for People with Diabetes' estimates that around 10 per cent. of all hospital beds in the United Kingdom are occupied by people with diabetes.

The following table shows the number of people admitted to hospital in diabetes-related emergencies in 2006-07, the latest year for which figures are available:

Total emergency admissions to hospital in England in which a patient had a primary diagnosis of diabetes related condition in 2006-07

	Total emergency admissions
2006-07	[1]43,822

[1] Finished admissions episodes (FAE): a FAE is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. FAEs are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many diabetes patients (a) are receiving, (b) have received and (c) have not received structured education for diabetes through DESMOND programmes in each primary care trust; [225186]

(2) how many diabetes patients (a) are receiving, (b) have received and (c) have not received structured education for diabetes through DAFNE programmes in each primary care trust. [225187]

Ann Keen: This information is not available in the format requested. The DAFNE centre reports, to date, that 8,698 people in England have become DAFNE graduates. The following table breaks this down by centre.

Data Quality:

Work force statistics are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data. Processing methods and procedures are continually being updated to improve data quality. Where this happens any impact on figures already published will be assessed but unless this is significant at national level they will not be changed. Where there is impact only at detailed or local level this will be footnoted in relevant analyses.

Health Services: Interpreters

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the risks of medical accidents or misapprehension of clinical information identified by the seventh report of the Confidential Enquiry into Maternal and Child Health, Saving Mothers' Lives, of using friends and family as interpreters in medical and social care contexts, what steps he has taken to ensure that health and social care professionals have the assistance of interpreters qualified at the level of the National Occupational Interpreting Standards. [224792]

Ann Keen: We have advocated in the maternity standard of the National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services that all national health service maternity care providers and primary care trusts make provision for translation, interpretation and advocacy services based on an assessment of the needs of their local population. Copies of the framework have already been placed in the Library.

National health service and social care bodies are not required to report their arrangements for interpretation and translation services to the Department. When planning such services, they should take due account of their legal duties, the composition of the communities they serve, and the needs and circumstances of their patients, service users and local populations.

Heath and social care bodies usually commission such services from private organisations that provide access to qualified and trained interpreters. NHS bodies can also access telephone interpretation through NHS Direct, which operates from 21 call centres in England and have access to interpretation for over 100 available 24 hours a day seven days a week.

Health Services: Ministers of Religion

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which departmental authority is responsible for the central funding allocation for hospital and healthcare chaplaincy; what proposals are in place for its use in 2009-10; and when these will be discussed with the nine world faith communities; [224704]

(2) what funding allocations have been made from the central allocation for hospital and healthcare chaplaincy for 2008-09; and what (a) bids and (b) requirements were made by the relevant representations of the nine world faith communities at which the allocation is directed. [225017]

Ann Keen: Funding for the provision of health care chaplaincy services is built into the financial allocations to primary care trusts, who commission services on behalf of patients.

The Department also holds a central fund of £185,000 to provide grants for the provision of support to chaplains across the nine leading world faith communities. Following an independent review of central funding of hospital chaplaincy in 2005, it was agreed that the nine leading faith groups in England would receive a share of the NHS hospital chaplaincy grant. For 2008-09, the United Synagogue Visitation Committee, The Muslim Council of Britain and the Free Churches Group at Churches Together in England each received £35,000, with the remaining funds distributed among the other six faith groups that bid. This financial year the Department's Equality and Human Rights Group managed the allocation, and more support was given to minority faith groups from the remaining budget to ensure a more equitable distribution of funds to help them provide for the religious and spiritual needs of patients while in hospital.

Chaplaincy grants for the next financial year have yet to be determined. We will be holding a stakeholder event in January 2009 with the main leading faith groups in England to consult on central funding allocations for 2009-10.

Health Services: Pay

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the timetable is for making changes to payment by results taking account of findings from the review of payment by results and cancer. [224578]

Ann Keen: We are seeking to make progress on the recommendations in the report entitled "Ensuring PbR supports the delivery of effective cancer services" as soon as practicable. Copies of this report have been placed in the Library. Some recommendations have already been implemented, such as the establishment of an Expert Reference Panel for cancer. Other issues require further work and discussion before changes can be implemented, such as coding for chemotherapy and radiotherapy, currently being considered by National Cancer Action Team working groups. This work programme is in line with the commitment to further develop payment by results for cancer services made in the "Cancer Reform Strategy" (copies of which have already been placed in the Library).

Healthcare for London

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what meetings officials or Ministers in his Department have had with representatives of Healthcare for London over the past 12 months; and what the date of each meeting was. [224304]

Mr. Bradshaw: Healthcare for London is a programme funded by and run on behalf of London's primary care trusts, to deliver improvements to the capital's healthcare over the next 10 years. Representatives of the Healthcare for London team have met with Ministers or officials to keep them informed of implementation of the programme on the following occasions between September 2007 and August 2008.

Lord Darzi, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, had meetings with representatives of Healthcare for London on the following dates: 20 November 2007, 23 and 28 April 2008 and 11 June 2008.

Department officials have had meetings with Healthcare for London representatives on the following dates: 7 and 13 February 2008, 4, 9, 14, 16 and 23 April 2008, 3, 9, 11, 17 and 24 June 2008, 7, 9, 17, 22, 23 and 25 July 2008, and 5, 6, 7, 11 and 27 August 2008.

Liver Diseases: Health Services

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department's Liver Disease Service Review will reach its conclusions; and when he plans to make a decision on the future of liver disease services. [225269]

Ann Keen: We recognise that there is strong support for developing a national plan for liver disease. We are considering what the national health service needs to do over the next few years in order to address these pressures, and how this should be monitored.

We shall announce next steps in due course.

Lung Diseases

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people required treatment for mesothelioma in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [224748]

Ann Keen: Whilst we do not collect figures on the number of people requiring treatment for mesothelioma, we do collect information relating to the number of finished episodes where the primary diagnosis was mesothelioma. This information is provided in the following table, but it should be noted that the figures relate only to admitted patients and do not include any patients who are treated for mesothelioma in accident and emergency but not admitted, patients treated in an outpatient setting, or patients treated in the community.

It should also be noted that Northumberland, Tyne and Wear strategic health authority and County Durham and Tees strategic health authority combined to form the North East strategic health authority in 2006-07.

Notes

Finished consultant episode (FCE)
An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.

Ungrossed data
Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Diagnosis (primary diagnosis)
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.

Assessing growth through time
HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. During the years that these records have been collected the NHS there have been ongoing improvements in quality and coverage. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity overtime.

Primary care trust (PCT) and strategic health authority (SHA) data quality PCT and SHA data was added to historic data-years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of Treatment and SHA of Treatment is poor in 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of GP practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the letter of 18 March 2008 from the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State in the Home Office with responsibility for crime reduction to the hon. Member for Altrincham and Sale, West, what changes have been made to his Department's Frank website with regard to the Under-Secretary's request for a review of its advice on the link between cannabis and mental health. [226828]

Dawn Primarolo: My hon. Friend, the Member for Gedling, the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State in the Home Office (Mr. Coaker), in his letter of 18 March 2008 to the hon. Member for Altrincham and Sale, West (Mr. Brady) pledged that new or additional advice on the links between cannabis and the onset of mental health problems presented by the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) report "Cannabis: Classification and Public Health (2008)" would be fully and accurately reflected in the information and advice provided through Frank and elsewhere from Government. The ACMD report was published in April 2008.

The Government responded to the ACMD report on 13 October 2008 stating that the Frank campaign, which has been extremely effective in highlighting to young people the harms associated with cannabis, will be updating the information it provides following the ACMD's report. An enhanced campaign of activity reflecting these new messages will be undertaken in the near future.

National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what expenditure his Department incurred in maintaining and operating the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence in the most recent financial year for which figures are available. [225969]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1749W.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what procedures are used to appoint staff to posts in the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence; what criteria are applied; and who is responsible for making decisions on staff selection. [225970]

Dawn Primarolo: These are matters for the independent National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE). NICE should be contacted direct for this information.

NHS: Drugs

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health under what circumstances an exceptional uses medical panel may reverse a clinician's recommendation for treatment with a drug approved by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence; and if he will make a statement. [225377]

Dawn Primarolo: Unless it has been amended or waived for a specific treatment, a statutory funding direction requires national health service organisations to make funding available for treatments recommended by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) within three months of publication of final guidance. The Government would not expect a primary care trust to refuse funding for a treatment prescribed by the patient's clinician that has been recommended by NICE and is covered by the funding direction.

Patients: Death

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of NHS patients who died in NHS hospitals as a result of (a) dehydration and (b) starvation in each of the last three years. [224745]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Spinal Injuries: Health Services

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the number of spinal cord injury patients who are being managed by people without specialist skills relating to the condition; [224710]

(2) what assessment he has made of whether the number of beds and other resources available in spinal cord injury centres are sufficient to meet the specialist needs of all spinal cord injury patients promptly and appropriately; and how many beds there were in the designated specialist spinal cord injury centres in the latest period for which figures are available; [224899]

(3) what mechanisms are in place for the collection of national data on spinal cord injury patients, their management and the outcomes of their care; and what steps he is taking to improve such mechanisms. [225053]

Ann Keen: No estimate has been made of the number of spinal injury cord patients who are being managed by health professionals without specialist skills relating to this condition.

No assessment has been made on whether the number of beds and other resources in spinal injury centres is sufficient to meet the needs of those with spinal injuries. It is the responsibility of the individual centres, and regional commissioners, to ensure that they are able to meet the anticipated needs of the regional population they serve. Information on the number of beds provided at such centres is not collected centrally.

There are no existing mechanisms, or plans, to collect national data specifically on spinal cord injury patients.

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what mechanisms are in place to monitor the outcomes of spinal cord injury care to ensure the minimum quality standards are being achieved; [224711]

(2) what mechanisms are in place to monitor those foundation trusts that host the specialist spinal cord injury centres to ensure that those centres provide an appropriate level of service to patients with spinal cord injury. [224712]

Ann Keen: Spinal cord injury services are a specialised service, as defined within the National Specialised Services Definition Set. It is for specialised commissioning groups on behalf of their constituent primary care trusts to assess local needs and to contract directly with each NHS trust or NHS foundation trust for these services. Contracts should cover appropriate standards of care and include mechanisms for monitoring standards and ensuring patients that are treated appropriately.

Ian Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what mechanisms are in place for (a) the funding of specialist spinal cord injury centres, (b) decisions on how much is to be allocated to the trusts that host each specialist spinal cord injury centre and (c) the system by which each host trust is monitored in the provision of spinal injury care; [224714]

(2) whether multidisciplinary teams of medical and paramedical specialists trained in the appropriate care of spinal cord injury are present within the NHS other than in the specialist spinal cord injury centres established by his Department; where specialist centres are located; and whether his Department has issued guidance on the commissioning of spinal cord injury services outside these specialist spinal cord injury centres; [224715]

(3) what procedures are in place to ensure early referral of all spinal cord injury persons to the relevant expert Spinal Cord Injury Centre service; and what recent assessment he has made of possible improvements to those procedures. [225055]

Ann Keen: Spinal cord injury services are a specialised service, as defined within the National Specialised Services Definition Set. It is for specialised commissioning groups (SCGs) on behalf of their constituent primary care trusts to assess local needs and to contract directly with each national health service trust or foundation trust for these services. Contracts should cover appropriate standards of care and mechanisms for ensuring patients are treated appropriately. SCGs are currently working together on a development project to produce an agreed national tariff for spinal cord injury services.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) have the responsibility for ensuring they have appropriate teams of medical and paramedical staff able to deliver the services required to meet the needs of their local population. This may include staff trained in the care of those with spinal cord injuries where PCTs provide these services. Information on the provision of such local services is not collected nationally.

The National Service Framework for Long-term Conditions provides detailed guidance on the provision, and commissioning, of health and social care for those with long-term neurological conditions, including spinal injuries. Copies of this publication have already been placed in the Library.

It is the responsibility of health professionals to make an individual assessment of each patient with spinal cord injuries to determine their health and social care needs, and if required, the most appropriate time for referral to a specialist spinal injury centre.

We have made no recent assessment of possible improvements to this procedure.

Stem Cells

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the letter of January 2008 from the Association of Medical Research Charities and others to Lord Darzi, on the creation of pluripotent embryonic cell lines, what (a) cell types have been generated and (b) disorders ameliorated in animal models using stem cells from the umbilical cord matrix; and if he will make a statement. [225945]

Dawn Primarolo: Cells of the connective tissue, blood, muscle and neurons have been generated from umbilical cord stem cells. Clinical and animal studies of umbilical cord stem cells, especially for diseases like leukaemia, show potential.

The United Kingdom Government are and always have been supportive of the use of stem cells from all sources, including embryos, foetuses, adult tissue and umbilical cord.

Written Answers to Questions

TREASURY

11 Downing Street: Art Works

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what items from the Government Art Collection are located within his Ministerial residence in Downing Street. [222989]

Angela Eagle: I am arranging for a list of works of art to be deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

Bank Notes: Visually Impaired

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 800W, on bank notes: visually impaired, if he will introduce paper currency with marks identifiable by touch to assist visually impaired individuals. [227609]

Ian Pearson: The Bank of England is responsible for the design of its banknotes. It consults regularly with the Royal National Institute of Blind People regarding the design of its banknotes and is currently satisfied that the use of different dimensions for the four different denominations is the most effective way of assisting visually impaired individuals. The Bank of England has no plans to introduce new marks identifiable by touch.

Bank Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will remove the negative control which has been placed on the assets of Landsbanki in the UK. [227454]

Ian Pearson: The Government have frozen the funds of Landsbanki to prevent actions being taken which would be to the detriment of the UK economy. We are working constructively with the Icelandic Government to ensure that UK depositors and creditors of Icelandic banks are not unfairly disadvantaged. The Treasury will keep the freezing order under review.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to take steps to protect commercial depositors in the event of a bank collapsing. [227627]

Ian Pearson: The Government has announced a number of measures to maintain financial stability, to protect savers and to rebuild confidence in the financial system. This action is designed to help businesses, individuals and the wider economy.

Bank Services: Charities

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether bodies that are (a) registered charities only, (b) both registered charities and also companies limited by guarantee and (c) unincorporated associations are included within the Government's commitment to protect bank deposit holders up to the sum of £50,000. [227368]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is responsible for making the rules of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS), including the rule change which increased the compensation limit for bank deposits to £50,000, and the rules which determine whether a body is eligible to claim compensation under the scheme. The increased compensation limit applies in relation to claims by all eligible claimants. The rules on eligibility for FSCS compensation are set out in the FSA handbook which is available on the FSA website. Guidance on eligibility for FSCS compensation is available on the FSCS website.

Bank Services: Local Authorities

Mr. Cawsey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether deposits by (a) North Lincolnshire Council and (b) other local authorities in failed overseas banks will be fully protected by the Government. [226827]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 14 October 2008]: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement given by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears) on 14 October 2008, Official Report, columns 34-36WS.

Borders: Fraud

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many forged documents were confiscated at the UK's borders by HM Revenue and Customs in 2007-08. [227216]

Mr. Timms: HMRC officers working within the UK Border Agency act to detect the importation of prohibited and restricted goods at the UK border. In the course of that activity, large numbers of forged documents are seized. These documents are referred to other agencies to investigate. The number of documents seized are not systematically retained.

Financial Services Authority: Pay

Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many staff employed by the Financial Services Authority were paid over £100,000 including bonuses in the last year for which figures are available; [227665]

(2) what the pay scales (a) before and (b) after bonuses are of staff employed by the Financial Services Authority earning above £100,000; [227666]

(3) what the total remuneration package is of each of the directors of the Financial Services Authority; [227667]

(4) how many employees of the Financial Services Authority were paid bonuses in the last 12 months; [227668]

(5) how many (a) people and (b) full-time equivalent staff have been employed by the Financial Services Authority in each year since it was established. [227669]

Ian Pearson: These matters are the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority (FSA), whose day to day operations are independent from Government control and influence.

Money Supply

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will undertake an investigation of the effects of arrangements for control of the money supply which include creation of it by private financial institutions in the form of credit; and if he will make a statement. [226556]

Ian Pearson: Monetary policy in the United Kingdom is set by the independent Monetary Policy Committee of the Bank of England.

The Capital Requirements Directive implements the international Basel II agreement into EU legislation which stipulates how much of their own financial resources banks and investment firms must have in order to cover their risks. The Financial Services Authority is responsible for implementing the directive in the UK.

Select Committees: Government Responses

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to respond to the Report from the Treasury Select Committee on Banking Reform, HC 1008. [226871]

Ian Pearson: The Government expect to respond to the Treasury Committee's report very shortly.

Welfare Tax Credits: Complaints

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints from customers over tax credits his Department has received in each (a) year and (b) month since tax credits were introduced, broken down by type of complaint; and if he will make a statement. [225738]

Mr. Timms: For information up to and including February 2008, I refer the hon. Member to the answer my predecessor gave the hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander) on 1 May 2008, Official Report, column 634W.

Information for the period March 2008 to September 2008 is provided in the following table.

2008	Number of complainants (approximate)
March	2,950
April	3,500
May	2,700
June	3,650
July	4,450
August	3,300
September	3,850

Detailed information on the types of complaints, some of which often cover a range of subjects, is not available.

TRANSPORT

Bus Services: Finance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what grants have been given since 2003 from the Urban Bus Challenge Fund. [227111]

Paul Clark: Urban Bus Challenge competitions were held in 2001, 2002 and 2003 and a total of £53 million was awarded in those competitions. No new awards have been made under this scheme since 2003. Annual expenditure since 2003 on projects successful in the competitions has been as follows.

	£ million
2003-04	11.1
2004-05	4.3
2005-06	7.1
2006-07	4.8
2007-08	1.9

Buses: Crimes of Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many attacks there were on bus drivers in each of the last five years. [225624]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold data on the numbers of attacks against bus drivers. However, the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) are able to provide the following information:

Attacks against bus and coach drivers

	Number of attacks
2002-03	483
2003-04	398
2004-05	403
2005-06	405
2006-07	380
Total	2,069

Source:
Data collected by HSE and local authorities under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1995

For this period, no fatal injuries to bus drivers involving acts of violence were reported to HSE or local authorities (under RIDDOR).

It is important to note that incidents involving bus drivers will only be reported to HSE or local authorities if they come into the RIDDOR criteria of 'fatal' or 'major', or if the attack resulted in a period of sick absence of more than three days. There will of course be other instances of less serious violence or verbal attacks which are not recorded centrally. And in many cases, the bus driver concerned may choose to not report the incident to his or her employer.

Driving Tests: Buildings

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list those purchases of land or buildings made by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies as a result of the rationalisation of driving test centres; and when these transactions were conducted. [224661]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Driving Standards Agency has purchased the following land as a result of the multi-purpose test centre (MPTC) project.

Location of land	Transaction conducted
Burgess Hill MPTC, West Sussex	January 2008
Enfield MPTC, Middlesex	October 2006
Ipswich MPTC, Suffolk	January 2006
Colwick MPTC, Nottinghamshire	October 2006

Emergency Services: Accidents

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 14 March 2008, Official Report, column 473, on emergency services: accidents, how many of those accidents which occurred involving blue light vehicles from the (a) police force, (b) fire service and (c) ambulance service in each of the last five years that resulted in (i) deaths and (ii) serious injuries were on pedestrian crossings. [226564]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of reported personal injury road accidents involving vehicles from (a) the police force, (b) the fire service and (c) the ambulance service resulting in (i) deaths and (ii) serious injuries on pedestrian crossings in each Government office region in 2002 to 2007 are given in the tables.

(a) Police

Number of fatal accidents

Government office	2006	2007
North West	0	1
West Midlands	1	0
London	0	1
Total	1	2

(a) Police

Number of serious accidents

Government office	2002	2003	2004	2006	2007
North West	0	0	0	1	1
East Midlands	0	0	1	0	0
West Midlands	0	1	0	1	0
South East	0	0	0	1	1
London	0	0	1	1	4
Total	1	1	2	4	6

(b) Ambulance

Number of fatal accidents

Government office	2005
Wales	1
Total	1

(b) Ambulance

Number of serious accidents

Government office	2002	2004	2005	2006	2007
Yorkshire and the Humber	0	1	1	1	0
Total	1	3	1	1	1

There were no fatal or serious accidents involving fire service on pedestrian crossings recorded in 2002 to 2007. Where no Government office region or years are shown, there were no fatal or serious accidents recorded for that Government office region or year.

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicles are taxed to drive on UK roads. [227103]

Jim Fitzpatrick: As of the 31 December 2007 there were 33,956,832 vehicles taxed to drive on the roads of Great Britain.

Motorcycles: Parking

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will issue guidance to local authorities on regulating the parking of motorcycles in residents' parking bays; and if he will make a statement; [225673]

(2) if he will encourage local authorities to allow motorcycles to park free of charge in (a) residents' parking bays and (b) parking bays; and if he will make a statement. [225674]

Paul Clark: The Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 gave local authorities flexible powers to provide, charge for, regulate and restrict on-street and off-street parking facilities, in a way that reflects the needs of their local communities. These are matters for local authorities and the Department for Transport has no plans to issue guidance on the use of those powers.

Where local authorities provide parking bays for use by specific classes of vehicle only, they are responsible for ensuring that the use of those facilities is correctly specified in Traffic Regulation Orders, where necessary, and indicated with appropriate signs and markings. The Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 2002 prescribe the traffic signs and road markings for motorcycle parking and for residents' parking bays. The Department for Transport's Traffic Signs Manual also provides detailed guidance on the correct design and use of signs and markings.

Motorways: Accidents

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what average time it took to reopen a motorway to the full flow of traffic after a collision had occurred in the latest period for which figures are available. [227107]

Paul Clark: Nationally during September 2008 the average time to reopen a motorway to full flow following a collision was 51 minutes and nine seconds. However, this mean figure is skewed by a small number of more severe incidents. The median time taken to restore full capacity was 24 minutes.

Pedestrian Crossings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has better to publicise knowledge of the knurled knob on pelican crossings for those with disabilities and children. [225421]

Paul Clark: The Government have no wide reaching plans to publicise the provision of rotating cones (knurled knobs) at some controlled pedestrian crossings, but are aware of such knowledge being part of mobility training by organisations such as RNIB and Guide Dogs for the Blind UK.

Railways

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to respond to the Office of the Rail Regulator's review of the rail network draft determination. [226644]

Paul Clark: My officials submitted the Department for Transport's response to the Office of Rail Regulation's (ORR) 5 June publication, "Periodic Review 2008: Draft Determinations", on 4 September. The response has been published on the ORR website at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/upload/pdf/DDresp-dft-040908.pdf

Railways: Fares

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect of the recent 10 per cent. increases in off-peak fares between Milton Keynes and London Euston on London Midland's franchise commitment to increase passenger numbers. [225702]

Paul Clark: No assessment has been made of the fares changes brought into effect in September. These are unregulated fares, the levels of which are managed by London Midland.

Railways: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many submissions the Office of the Rail Regulator received as part of its review of the rail network draft determinations; how many of these related to the redoubling of the Kemble to Swindon track; and if he will publish the responses received. [226645]

Paul Clark: The Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) had a total of 114 responses to the draft determinations. Of these there were 40 that related to the Swindon-Kemble scheme. All 114 responses have been published on the ORR website with the Swindon-Kemble responses being available at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/ConWebDoc.9204

Railways: Manpower

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of his Department's staff are working on (a) high speed rail development and (b) the reopening of former railway lines and stations as part of their official duties. [226743]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport's approach to developing transport strategy, set out in the October 2007 White Paper "Towards a Sustainable Transport System", proceeds from the identification of transport challenges and specific problems to be resolved, rather than by developing specific potential investment options.

The Department's rail network strategy division is working on this basis, and Network Rail has been invited to examine options for supporting further growth in the longer term, which might include new lines. Network Rail's new lines study is due to be completed in summer 2009.

Unadopted Roads

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many streets he estimates have remained unadopted for over (a) 75 years and (b) 100 years. [224887]

Paul Clark: We have no record of how many streets have remained unadopted for 75 or 100 years after they were built. This information is not held centrally, and there is no legal requirement for local authorities to maintain such a list in their areas.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Act on Carbon Dioxide

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many enquiries the Energy Saving Trust's Act on carbon dioxide advice line has dealt with in each month since April 2008. [226975]

Joan Ruddock: The Act on CO_2 advice line, launched in April 2008, provides consumers with comprehensive advice on how to reduce their carbon footprint.

The Act on CO_2 advice line run on behalf of the government by the Energy Savings Trust has dealt with the following inbound telephone inquiries each month since April:

Month	Number of successful inbound calls excluding Scotland
April	31,586
May	23,019

Month	Number of successful inbound calls excluding Scotland
June	27,914
July	34,274
August	33,708
September	93,377

The Energy Saving Trust's total customer contacts will increase through outreach events and other initiatives, customers will also receive advice via feedback on completed home energy checks and through electronic media.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was claimed in reimbursable expenses by press officers in his Department in each of the last three financial years. [221162]

Jonathan Shaw: The information on reimbursable expenses is available only at disproportionate cost.

Disability Living Allowance: Students

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what restrictions there are on the use by students of disability living allowance to purchase equipment related to their disability. [227453]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no restrictions on what customers of disability living allowance can spend their benefit on. Customers are free to spend the benefit according to their own priorities.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 19 August, transferred from HM Treasury (PO reference: 1/60002/2008), on the poverty line for couples. [225992]

Mr. McNulty: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 13 October 2008.

Occupational Pensions

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average occupational pension payable in the UK was in 2007-08. [226771]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 14 October 2008]: The information requested is not available.

Information on the amount of occupational pension received by people of pension age can be found in table 3.7 of the publication 'The Pensioners' Incomes Series 2006/07' which may be found in the Library.

Pensioners: Overseas Residence

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what states are designated as non-qualifying destinations for the annual state pension uprating payable to UK pensioners overseas; [227161]

(2) what reason the annual pension uprating is withheld from state pensioners who have relocated to certain overseas countries on retirement; and if he will make a statement. [227162]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 15 October 2008]: The UK state pension is payable world-wide but is only uprated abroad where there is a legal requirement to do so.

Annual upratings of the UK state pension are paid abroad under the EC's Social Security Regulations to pensioners who have a UK state pension and are living in the European economic area and Switzerland.

Upratings are also payable in countries and territories with which the UK has a reciprocal social security agreement that requires increases to be paid. The UK has such agreements covering: Barbados; Bermuda; Bosnia-Herzegovina; Croatia; Guernsey; Isle of Man; Israel; Jamaica; Jersey; Mauritius; Montenegro; the Philippines; Serbia; Turkey; the United States of America; and, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

The UK state pension is not annually uprated in any other country.

Notes:

1. The agreement with Guernsey covers also Alderney, Herm and Jethou.

2. UK state pension recipients on other Channel Islands receive upratings under Regulation 12 of the Social Security (Persons Abroad) Regulations 1975 (SI 1975/563).

3. The agreement with United States of America covers also American Samoa, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands).

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost of extending the benefit of the annual state pension uprating to UK citizens in receipt of state pensions who are resident in Australia, Canada and South Africa; and if he will make a statement. [227163]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 15 October 2008]: To uprate UK state pensions paid to persons in Australia, Canada and South Africa would cost approximately £380 million in 2008-09 and would increase year on year.

Notes:

1. This figure does not include paying any arrears.

2. The estimate for the cost of unfreezing frozen-rate pensions includes estimates for the rate of increase of the caseload and the impact of turnover in the caseload between the time of the data sample and the time of the uprating.

Source:

September 2007 Retirement Pension and Widows Benefit administrative data, 5 per cent. sample.

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many persons entitled to UK state pensions are not entitled to the annual state pension uprating by reason of their location overseas. [227164]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 15 October 2008]: The latest estimate of the number of UK state pensions paid to pensioners living in frozen rate countries is approximately 530,000.

Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, 100 per cent. data, February 2008

Post Office Card Account: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether a disability impact assessment was carried out on the tendering process for the Post Office Card Account contract; [226764]

(2) what accessibility criteria were included in the tender for the Post Office card account contract. [226765]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 14 October 2008]: The Invitation to Tender requested that potential suppliers provide details of their facilities for disabled people and supplier responses were considered during the tender evaluation to ensure compliance with the Disability Discrimination Acts of 1995 and 2005. The successful supplier will be contractually bound to provide the services in accordance with these Acts.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what steps he is taking to reduce the levels of fraud and error in the benefit system; [226233]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to tackle benefit fraud. [226657]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 14 October 2008]: The Government are committed to paying the right benefits to the right people at the right time. As part of that commitment we have specific strategies in place to tackle both fraud and error.

We have a well defined and successful strategy for tackling benefit fraud based on preventing, detecting and deterring fraud. Strategy initiatives include professionally qualified investigators, a hard hitting media campaign and cross checking information on benefit claims against other data sources.

At 0.6 per cent. of benefit expenditure, fraud is at its lowest ever level. This is down from 2 per cent. in 2000-01. But we are not complacent and are introducing innovative new measures such as data matching with credit reference agencies and piloting voice risk analysis.

We are now applying the same drive and determination to tackle error. In January 2006, the Department created a task force with a specific aim of reducing official error in the most vulnerable benefits and has subsequently published and implemented its first ever error reduction strategy, published in January 2007. The strategy addresses both over and underpayments and is based on preventing new error from entering the system; ensuring that customers and staff comply with benefit rules and identifying and correcting existing errors.

The Department has also established a dedicated Benefit Simplification Unit to tackle complexity in the benefits system which is a major cause of error.

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people did not receive benefits to which they were entitled due to (a) fraud and (b) error in the benefit system in each of the last five years. [226234]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 14 October 2008]: Information is not available.

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the proportion of all cases of fraud and error in the benefit system that arose from misdirected mail in the latest period for which figures are available. [226655]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 October 2008]: The information requested is not available. However, this Department has an agreement with Royal Mail not to redirect benefit related communications sent to customers by the Department and local authorities.

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many benefit payments were made in error due to fraud arising from the impersonation of the deceased in the latest period for which figures are available. [226656]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 October 2008]: The information requested is not available. However we cross check our records with the Office for National Statistics on a weekly basis to capture information on deaths recorded with the local registrars so benefit payments can be stopped immediately in such cases.

Unemployment

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many times the definition of the unemployment claimant count and any inclusions to or exclusions from that count have changed since 1997; and what the reason for the change was in each case. [226203]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many times the definition of the unemployment claimant count and any inclusions to or exclusions from that count have changed since 1997; and what the reason for the change was in each case. (226203)

The definition of the unemployment claimant count has not changed since 1997, following the introduction of Jobseeker's Allowance in 1996.

Although not a change to the definition of the unemployment claimant count, the introduction of the system of joint claims for Jobseeker's Allowance from 2001 has meant that both members of certain couples are now required to claim JSA jointly and both are required to look for work. This change has led to certain claims being counted as two separate claims when they would previously have appeared as one claim. Without this change, the current level of the unemployment claimant count would be about 9,000 lower than it currently is.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Leader of the House how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day her Office has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226812]

Chris Bryant: The Leader of the House of Commons has substantively answered 100 per cent. of the 34 named day questions on the specified date so far in the current parliamentary session.

The information is available on the Commons Leader website at:

www.commonsleader.gov.uk.

Parliamentary Session

Mr. Baron: To ask the Leader of the House (1) how many hours the House sat in each session (a) in 1980, (b) in 1990 and (c) in each session between 1996 and 2006; [227355]

Mr. Baron: To ask the Leader of the House how many hours the House spent considering (a) primary legislation on the Floor of the House and (b) delegated legislation (i) in Committee and (ii) on the floor of the House in each session commencing in (A) 1980, (B) 1990 and (C) each session between 1996 and 2006.[1] [227367]

Chris Bryant: The information given in the table is available in the sessional information digests:

n/a = Not available. Up until the 1984-85 session the sitting hours were not broken down. Therefore, only the total number of sitting hours can be provided.

The number of hours considering primary legislation and delegated legislation in committee can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

JUSTICE

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small- and medium-sized businesses were paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [226492]

Mr. Wills: The proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from all businesses paid within 30 days of receipt in 2007-08 is as follows:

		Percentage
(a)	Ministry of Justice Core Department[1]	90
(b)	Executive agencies of the Ministry of Justice[2]	77

[1] Ministry of Justice Core Department includes former Department for Constitutional Affairs HQ, Wales Office, Scotland Office, Office for Criminal Justice Reform and National Offender Management Service HQ elements.

[2] Executive agencies for the Ministry of Justice include HM Courts Service, Tribunals Service, Office of the Public Guardian and HM Prison Service.

The Ministry has launched a major drive to improve this performance towards the target of paying 100 per cent. of correctly rendered invoices within 30 days. Two of the main actions are to enforce compliance with purchasing processes within the Ministry, and to reinforce the policy with suppliers that they are required to send their invoices directly to the Shared Service Centre which processes payments centrally, rather than to individual offices around the Ministry.

The proportion of invoices paid within 30 days of receipt for small and medium sized businesses could be provided only at a disproportionate cost, as the Department does not currently hold this information.

The Ministry welcomes the initiative announced by the Prime Minister in Prime Minister's Questions on 8 October 2008, and is preparing plans to pay all small and medium-sized enterprises within 10 days of receipt of invoice.

Departmental Reviews

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress has been made in the interdepartmental review on representative actions; and how many officials have responsibility for the review, broken down by pay band. [225741]

Bridget Prentice: An inter-departmental steering group of officials has been established to consider this issue. It has met twice, most recently on 29 September, and has agreed to organise a meeting with the Civil Justice Council (CJC) to discuss its interim report. The group will advise ministers on the way forward early next year.

1. [Official Report, 10 November 2008, Vol. 482, c. 3MC.]

following publication of the CJC's final report. This process is being managed by two Ministry of Justice officials at Band A and Band B (under the oversight of a member of the senior civil service). None of these officials work exclusively on this area.

Lancaster Farms Young Offender Institute

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he plans to take to relieve overcrowding on the young offenders side of Her Majesty's Young Offender Institute, Lancaster Farms in order to allow ex-juvenile offenders to transfer from the juvenile side on reaching their 18th birthday. [226471]

Mr. Hanson: The policy of the Youth Justice Board is that those young people serving a Detention and Training Order aged 18 and over in a Prison Service unit should remain in the young persons' estate to complete the custodial part of their sentence unless there are exceptional personal or population management circumstances which require them to be moved to the young adult estate.

For those sentenced to longer sentences, arrangements are in place to ensure that within a month of their 18th birthday they are relocated to the young adult estate.

Prisoners

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how long on average elapsed between the time that prisoners were unlocked in the morning and returned to their cells in the evening in the last three months for which figures are available; and what the average number of returns to and releases during the day was (a) on weekdays and (b) at weekends, broken down by each (i) adult (A) male and (B) female prison and (ii) (1) male and (2) female young offender institution in England and Wales. [226253]

Mr. Hanson: The average weekday time out of cell for the last three available months is shown in the following table. Data are provisional and subject to ongoing validation.

	Average weekday time out of cell
May	9.53
June	9.57
July	9.72

The National Offender Management Service does not collate data on the number of returns to cells and releases from cells during the day, on (a) weekdays and (b) weekends. Therefore, this data cannot be provided for each prison.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisoners from London are being held in prisons outside London; [227119]

(2) how many prisoners were held in prisons outside the criminal justice area of their last known address in each of the last 10 years, broken down by criminal justice area. [227120]

Mr. Hanson: As at March 2008 (the latest date for which data are available), 11,200 prisoners out of a total of 16,600 prisoners who gave London as their home area were held outside of London. This issue is one of the reasons why we are seeking to extend capacity through the larger prison programme in London and the South East.

Data on the distance from criminal justice area are only available from 2005 onwards and is shown in the tables.

Average figures for distance from home for prisoners are 50 miles for men and 58 miles for women.

Prisoners: Employment

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what partnerships each prison developed with external companies to provide (a) training and (b) work for prisoners in each of the last five years. [227122]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has a significant number of relationships, including partnerships and commercial contracts, with private, public and voluntary sector organisations aimed at providing training and work for prisoners. Governors have for some time been encouraged to develop a range of local initiatives in this area. NOMS has just begun a process of mapping these activities. I will write to the hon. Member when the exercise is complete.

Prisons: Drugs

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many hours of training (a) on average and (b) in total prison governors have received relating to illegal drugs in the last 12 months. [226549]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service does not hold central records of all the training undertaken by governors or other prison staff. Any such information would be recorded at a local level and collating this information would incur disproportionate costs.

HM Prison Service attaches great importance to the learning and development of all staff, including prison officers, ensuring that they are equipped with the right skills at the right time in their Prison Service career. This includes NOMS drugs strategy.

WALES

Christmas

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many Christmas functions (a) he, (b) officials from his Department and (c) officials from its Executive agencies (i) hosted and (ii) attended in 2007-08; what the cost to the public purse was; and if he will make a statement. [226967]

Mr. Paul Murphy: We have details of receptions given by the Wales Office. My predecessor hosted two Christmas receptions in the financial year 2007-08, one in London and one in Cardiff. They were attended by parliamentarians, journalists and those with an interest in Welsh affairs generally. The cost was £5,058.

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of his Department. [226512]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has not commissioned any advertising in the last 12 months.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many citizens' juries his Department has held since 1 July 2007; what the cost was of each; what issues were discussed at each event; and how many (a) Ministers and (b) members of the public attended each event. [227468]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

Referendums

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the policy of the Government is on the submission to Parliament of any request for a referendum made by the Welsh Assembly Government during the present term of the Assembly under Part IV of the Government of Wales Act 2006. [226116]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Any request for a referendum made by the Welsh Assembly Government would be dealt with under the provision of section 104 and schedule 6 of the Government of Wales Act 2006.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012: Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister for the Olympics which voluntary organisations she has met to discuss their involvement in the delivery and legacy aspects of the 2012 Games; and what the outcome has been of these discussions. [226586]

Tessa Jowell: Voluntary organisations are key to the Government's vision for 2012. I have met a number of them including Cancer Research, Fields in Trust, the Prince's Trust, Sport England, Thames 21, V, Volunteering England, the Work Foundation and the Youth Sport Trust, and have addressed over two hundred representatives of these and other local and national voluntary organisations at various events. These events have informed the Government's ambition for encouraging tens of thousands more young people to give time to their local communities, directly or indirectly, as a result of the Games as set out in the published Legacy Action Plan. More information can be found at http://www.culture.gov.uk/images/publications/2012LegacyActionPlan.pdf.

I continue to liaise with the London Organising Committee for the Olympic and Paralympic Games as it develops its recruitment programme for volunteers needed to deliver the Games in 2012, which is to be launched in 2010.

PRIME MINISTER

Written Questions: Government Responses

Peter Luff: To ask the Prime Minister if he will review the accuracy of the answer given by his predecessor to the hon. Member for Mid Worcestershire on 12 November 1997 relating to Formula One sponsorship to ensure any inaccuracies and inadvertently misleading statements are corrected. [227361]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by Mr. Speaker on 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 557.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many closure notices have been issued under section 169A of the Licensing Act 2003 for persistently selling alcohol to children. [226019]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The offence only came into force on 7 April 2007. The latest available licensing statistics cover the period until 31 March 2007 and are therefore outside the period of this offence coming into force. We have asked for data during our most recent statistics collection covering the period from 1 March 2007 to 31 March 2008, so we anticipate having figures when these are published on 31 October.

Arts

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which regional development agencies will pilot creative economy strategic frameworks; and when he expects the pilots to (a) begin and (b) end. [227173]

Barbara Follett: The Regional Creative Economy Strategic Frameworks are being piloted by the North West Regional Development Agency and the South West Regional Development Agency.

The south west's pilot started on 19 May 2008 and is expected to end in January 2010.

The north west's pilot began in May 2008. They will report on their consultation in January 2009. The recommendations will then be incorporated into the region's Integrated Regional Strategy in 2010.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport by what date he expects to have developed the Menu for Local Infrastructure to be used by local authorities to attract creative industries to their area. [227175]

Barbara Follett: The Menu for Local Infrastructure will be developed by the Local Government Association (LGA) with the support of the regional development agencies, DCMS and others. The LGA plans to publish the menu in the spring of 2009, according to current timetables.

Churches: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions English Heritage has had with representatives of (a) the Roman Catholic Church and (b) non-conformist churches on the repair and upkeep of church buildings. [226699]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage has advised that it holds regular discussions with faith groups including the Roman Catholic and non-conformist churches about the repair and upkeep of church buildings. They meet formally through its Places of Worship Forum which sits four times a year. English Heritage's Inspired! is the umbrella campaign for all its support for places of worship.

Cycling: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding has been allocated to support (a) individual cyclists and (b) the British Cycling Federation from (i) the National Lottery and (ii) his Department as grant-in-aid in each year since 1997. [224839]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Funding in support of British Cyclists and the British Cycling Federation is provided by Sport England and UK Sport. Sport England and UK Sport have advised that detailed breakdowns of funding for individual athletes could be provided only at disproportionate cost, but they have provided figures for overall grants in each year since 1997 as follows:

Additionally, in the financial year 2001-02 UK Sport allocated £37,486 of lottery funding to host the World Track Cycling Championships.

Departmental Land

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what use has been made of the income relating to the sale by his Department of the land to the north of the British Library. [224766]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department is retaining £39.8 million from the sale of this asset. £30 million of this will be used to meet the CSR asset disposal target and has been allocated accordingly. The balance was used to part fund the purchase of the D'Offay art collection by the Tate Galleries.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much of his Department's spending on administration in 2007-08 was in relation to (a) the 2012 Olympics, (b) the arts, (c) sports, (d) heritage, (e) tourism, (f) licensing and (g) the creative industries. [225504]

Andy Burnham: The administration costs (the direct costs of departmental policy development and implementation) directly relating to each area of responsibility were as follows.

2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games	5,480,000
Arts	1,826,000
Sports	1,827,000
Heritage (architecture and the built environment only)	1,315,000
Tourism and licensing	1,220,000
The creative industries (including broadcasting)	2,562,000

Tourism, licensing and other policy responsibilities for the hospitality industry were the responsibility of a single division, and it is not possible to disaggregate the costs without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he has taken in response to the findings from his Department's most recent annual staff survey. [224975]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department had its last staff survey in June 2007. The results were presented to the Executive Committee in September 2007. Following on from this the Evidence and Analysis Unit in the Department developed a pulse survey to go out to a sample of staff on a regular basis to measure progress against the action plan to support the transformation programme.

English Heritage

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what income his Department received from English Heritage in each of the last 10 years. [225285]

Barbara Follett: In each of the last 10 years my Department has received rental income from English Heritage as set out in the table.

English Heritage: Fees and Charges

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average price of entry to an English Heritage property was in each of the last three years. [224974]

Barbara Follett: The information requested has been provided by English Heritage and is set out in the following table. The average charge shown is based on one full-price adult ticket. English Heritage has over 400 sites in its care of which around 112 are staffed and charge admission. The remaining sites are free to visit.

	Maximum charge (£)	Minimum charge (£)	Average charge (£)	Number of sites
2005-06	8.85	2.00	3.66	116
2006-07	9.50	2.00	3.82	117
2007-08	9.80	2.40	4.09	112

The main reason that entry fees for English Heritage sites have gone up faster than the rate of inflation is the investment at many key sites. English Heritage has invested over £21 million to improve the visitor experience at sites like Kenilworth, Battle Abbey and Audley End. English Heritage average admission prices have traditionally been behind that of the market. In 2007-08 the average adult admission charge for English Heritage properties was £4.09, while the average for all attractions in England was £5.00.

Invest to Save Budget

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many Invest to Save bids were sponsored by his Department in each of the last three years. [225677]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows how many Invest to Save bids were sponsored by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in the last three years.

	Bid round	Bids sponsored

National Lottery: Bolton

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many projects in Bolton North East have received awards from National Lottery funding bodies; and how much those awards came to in total. [226270]

Mr. Sutcliffe: 390 projects in the Bolton North East constituency have received lottery funding with a total value of £51,590,068.

These figures refer only to grants specifically located within, and benefiting the constituency area and excludes those grants which may have been attributed to addresses in the constituency, to headquarters offices for example, but which have a wider geographical benefit. These figures are derived from the Department's lottery grants database, which uses information supplied by lottery distributors and is searchable at:

www.lottery.culture.gov.uk

National Lottery: Yorkshire and the Humber

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of Lottery funding available has been awarded to organisations in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire over the last 12 months. [226382]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Leeds local authority area received 0.99 per cent. of the funding made available by the Lottery distributors over the period 10 October 2007 to 10 October 2008. The Yorkshire and the Humber region received 7.39 per cent. over the same period.

Lottery grants are not awarded on a geographical basis but are made in response to the quality of applications received and against the distributing bodies' funding criteria.

The figures quoted refer only to grants specifically located within, and benefiting the Leeds local authority area and the Yorkshire and the Humber region and excludes those grants which may have been attributed to addresses in these areas, to headquarters offices for example, but which have a wider geographical benefit. These grant figures are derived from the Department's lottery grants database, which uses information supplied by Lottery distributors and is searchable at www.lottery.culture.gov.uk.

Public Libraries

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects the modernisation review of England's public library service to report. [227171]

Barbara Follett: The Library Service Modernisation Review is expected to report in the spring of 2009.

Regional Cultural Consortiums: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding he has allocated for regional cultural consortia in each of the next three years. [225475]

Barbara Follett: The Regional Cultural Consortiums currently receive annual grant in aid of approximately £1.7 million. The Consortiums are in the process of being dissolved and will all cease to operate 31 March 2009. No further funding has been allocated to the Consortiums beyond this date.

We are providing an extra £50,000 per annum per region in 2009-10 and £25,000 per annum per region in 2010-11 to the four key public bodies, to assist them in developing and implementing their plans for the new arrangements in their regions.

World Heritage Sites

Sir Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the guidelines for applicants for World Heritage Status will be published. [226879]

Barbara Follett: The Government will publish a consultation document on its UK World Heritage Review shortly. Should we decide, following the outcome of the consultation, to revise the current UK Tentative List, appropriate guidelines on applications for inclusion on the List will be made available

SCOTLAND

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [226799]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has incurred no costs on recruitment consultants in the last five years; in 2006-07, the Office spent £8,069 on recruitment advertising.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many and what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day questions his Department has answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament to date. [226891]

Ann McKechin: Details of the percentage of written named day questions answered on the due date in the current session of Parliament are shown in the following table:

	Number of named day questions tabled	Percentage of named day questions answered on the date specified

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers: Shipbuilding

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the first plate of metal for each of the two new aircraft carriers will be cut. [227357]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The formal cutting of the first plate of metal for each of the new aircraft carriers corresponds with the start of production in the main shipyards, which is expected to commence in early 2009 for HMS Queen Elizabeth and mid-2010 for HMS Prince of Wales. However, long lead items, including steel, have been procured.

Armed Forces: Dogs

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military working dogs his Department had in each year since 1997, broken down by type of dog. [226904]

Mr. Kevan Jones: At 1 August 2008, holdings of Military Working Dogs by type were:

Type	Total
Patrol Dogs	512
Army/RAF Police	21
Police Dogs	223

Type	Total
Arms and Explosive Search	89
Vehicle Search	35
Drug Detection	8
Multi Purpose Drug Detection	11
Tracker	10
Infantry Patrol	2
Explosive Detection Dog	0
Total	911

This figure is a snapshot in time, and includes those dogs being trained, those in service in the UK and those deployed on operations. It should be noted that the number of holdings may vary weekly according to training input and outflow, together with operational demand. The Ministry of Defence is currently reviewing its holdings of Military Working Dogs to ensure that its holdings meet its requirements.

Information for previous years is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much on average it cost to train fully a military working dog of each breed used in the latest period for which figures are available. [226905]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The approximate average cost of training a successful dog by type in 2006-07 (the latest year for which data are available) is shown in the following table.

Type of dog	Cost per successful dog (£)
Patrol Dogs	8,200
Army/RAF Police Dogs	15,000
MOD Police Dogs[1]	-
Arms and Explosives Search Dogs	22,600
Vehicle Search Dogs	7,300
Multi Purpose Drug Detection Dogs	15,500
Tracker Dogs	8,500

[1] Training a Ministry of Defence police or Military Guard Service dog up to the point on its introduction into service will cost the same as training an Army or RAF police dog. Wethersfield dog section provides further continuous annual training for all MOD police dogs. The cost of this additional training is not recorded centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military working dogs were killed in service in each year since 1997; what type of dog was involved in each case; and what the (a) location and (b) circumstances of death were in each case. [226990]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since November 2006, approximately 250 dogs have died in service. It is not possible to break down this figure by type of dog, location or circumstances. However, in the majority of cases (around 55 per cent.) death occurred at the Defence Animal Centre in Melton Mowbray, as this is where many dogs are returned at the end of their service.

Figures are not available prior to November 2006, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many fully trained military working dog handlers there were in the armed forces in each year since 1997. [226991]

Mr. Kevan Jones: At 1 August 2008, there were 1,087 military working dog handlers across Defence. Of these, there were none in the Royal Navy, 178 were with the Army and 199 were with the Royal Air Force. The remaining 710 dog handlers were with the various policing and guarding services across the Ministry of Defence.

Data for previous years is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Training

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of foreign armed forces received (a) training and (b) hospitality at UK military establishments in each year since 2003, broken down by (i) nationality and (ii) reason for providing training; and whether conditions applied to the provision of the training. [226842]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since April 2003, 20,601 members of foreign armed forces from 147 countries have received training at military establishments in the United Kingdom. All of these individuals will have received some form of hospitality from the training establishment, ranging from a basic welcoming reception to the provision of MOD service accommodation. This applies to all course places whether they are part or fully paid for by MOD, or whether the country in question pays for the training itself.

The principal objective of this training activity is to use British Defence assets in peacetime to discourage hostility abroad, build and maintain trust between states, facilitate inter-operability with British armed forces, and assist in the development of democratically accountable armed forces; thereby helping to make a significant contribution to conflict prevention and resolution. The provision of training is also undertaken for income generation purposes, but all offers of training are made only where they comply with wider Government policy on engagement and the relevant security restrictions applying to each country.

The list of countries receiving training and the total numbers of students trained by financial year is shown as follows.

• = Indicates personnel from that country commenced training at UK military establishments in that year 2008-09 figures are based on attendance in year to date. Where a course spans two plus financial years, the • indicates year that training commenced. There may be a few instances where a student was present in a "blank" year indicated with a "—" for this reason.

[1] Records for FY 2005-06 for students attending Land Warfare Centre may be incomplete, owing to possible corruption of data when there was a change of databases.

[2] Some attendance records only denote that the student was part of a contingent from ECOWAS or was from a NATO member. They would have been West African or Western European respectively, but otherwise nationality is unknown.

Caveats:

1. Foreign military personnel attending exercises in UK and Exchange Officers are excluded.
2. Where one student attended two different courses he/she may be counted twice.

Army Boards of Inquiry

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Army Boards of Inquiry have been convened since 1997; and how many of these have been reconvened. [224793]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Army: Labour Turnover

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) inflow, (b) outflow and (c) voluntary outflow figures for the Army rates were in each year since 2003, broken down by corps. [226982]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following tables show the available information on inflow, outflow and voluntary outflow for the Arms and Service of the Regular Army Soldiers by financial year since 1 April 2003.

Due to ongoing validation of data following the implementation of the new joint personnel administration (JPA) system, flow information for 2007-08 is only available at the whole Army level and is not yet available analysed by Arm/Service. To provide this information at the present time would incur disproportionate cost.

Work on the analysis of intake and outflows is currently ongoing and once available, this information will be sent to the hon. Member and a copy placed in the Library of the House.

[1] Voluntary outflow (VO) is defined as exits from trained personnel which are generated by the individual before their time expiry.

Future Surface Combatant

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessments have been made of the vulnerability of future frigates to missile strikes; what studies have been undertaken of the relative resilience against such strikes of (a) trimaran and (b) conventional frigate hull designs for the Future Surface Combatant (FSC); and if he will make a statement on progress in the design of the proposed variants of the FSC. [227065]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Future Surface Combatant (FSC) programme is still in the early stages of concept and the design is not expected to be confirmed until early in the next decade. Some work has been undertaken to assess the merits of using different types of hull form, including trimaran and conventional designs. Studies to assess the vulnerability and resilience to missile strikes of FSC are, however, planned.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost has been of compensation paid by his Department to Iraqi citizens since 2005. [226851]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Since financial year 2005 the Ministry of Defence has paid £6,504,472 in compensation to Iraqi citizens as follows:

Financial year	Total payments (£)
2005-06	653,699
2006-07	573,651
2007-08	2,303,803
1 March 2008 to 10 October 2008	2,973,319

The payment made in 2007-08 includes a £2 million payment made to a 13-year-old boy who was shot in the stomach when a member of HM forces negligently discharged his rifle. He sustained severe neurological and spinal injuries resulting in a multi-faceted disability including paralysis in the legs, loss of sensation, loss of bladder control and impairment of bowel control. He will require care for the rest of his life.

The payment made in the current financial year includes £2.83 million paid to the family of Baha Musa and eight other Iraqi civilians following their detention by British Forces during September 2003.

Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many vehicles of each type were reported (a) lost or missing and later recovered and (b) lost or missing and not recovered by armed forces in the United Kingdom in each year since 1997. [222067]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on vehicles lost and recovered is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Leicestershire

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authority-owned non-decent dwellings there were in (a) the East Midlands and (b) North West Leicestershire in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [227550]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department collects figures on local authority non-decent homes through the published annual business plan statistical appendix. According to the latest returns available, the number of non-decent local authority homes as at 1 April 2007 in North West Leicestershire was 1,239 (27 per cent. of stock). The figure for the East Midlands as a whole was 46,118 (22 per cent. of stock). The regional figure includes non-decent homes in local authorities which had established an arm's length management organisation to manage their homes.

Departmental Information Officers

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many press officers her Department has employed in each year since its establishment. [227433]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 14W to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Browne).

The Department's press officers are listed in The White Book, published by COI, which is available in the Library of the House. The book is updated twice yearly.

Departmental Press

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 580W, on departmental press, if she will break down the budget for each year by (a) press and (b) communications. [227460]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 580W by my hon. Friend the Member for Gloucester (Mr. Dhanda). And the answer he gave on 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 717W to the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws).

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small- and medium-sized businesses was paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) her Department and (b) the agencies for which her Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [226500]

Mr. Khan: Unfortunately this information is not available. The Department for Communities and Local Government measures the proportion of invoices for goods and services which were paid within 30 days but does not separately identify invoices from small and medium-sized businesses.

Deprivation Indicators

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the lower layer super output areas in each parliamentary constituency are. [226209]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question concerning what Lower Layer Super Output Areas there are in each parliamentary constituency. (226209)

The table provides for each of the 569 parliamentary constituencies in England and Wales a listing of the Lower Layer Super Output Areas within them. There are a total of 34,378 Lower Layer Super Output Areas in England and Wales, of these 693 are covered by two parliamentary constituencies, and eight within three parliamentary constituencies. These 'split' Lower Layer Super Output Areas are indicated in the table.

A copy of the table has been placed in the Library.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether energy performance certificates may make reference to the performance of (a) light bulbs, (b) fridge-freezers and (c) dishwashers in a property. [226682]

Mr. Iain Wright: The ratings on the EPC provide a measure of the overall energy efficiency of a domestic property and its environmental impact, calculated in accordance with a national methodology that takes into account factors, such as insulation, heating and hot water systems, ventilation and fuels used.

Light bulbs are mentioned in the EPC, where there is a recommendation to install low energy lighting, because lighting is an integral part of the property's structure. Fridge-freezers and dishwashers, which are subject to their own rating system, are not part of the overall calculation of CO_2 emissions and energy use calculations and are, therefore, not referred to in the EPC.

Ethnic Groups: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on the funding by (a) her Department and (b) local authorities of groups or organisations that form, operate or advertise themselves on the basis of ethnicity. [227360]

Mr. Khan: The Commission on Integration and Cohesion was concerned that groups based on single identities were potentially divisive. However, as both CLG and local Government fund bodies which aim to promote equality of opportunity, we consulted earlier this year on cohesion guidance for funders, looking at how funders could both promote equality of opportunity and cohesion through the conditions they placed on funding. We will be publishing the results of that consultation shortly, along with next steps.

Fire Services: Expenditure

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the revenue costs of the regional project team were in each regional management board area in respect of the FiReControl project in financial year 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [227314]

Mr. Khan: CLG provided funding in 2007-08 in each region to cover the costs of regional project teams, as follows:

	Amount (£)
East Midlands	147,051
East of England	147,051
London	160,413
North East	157,051
North West	157,051
South East	147,051
South West	157,051
West Midlands	147,051
Yorkshire and Humber	157,051

CLG also gave £56,041 to every FRA, excluding LFEPA to fund a project co-ordinator post.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to date has been of the development and implementation of (a) the data capture and management toolkit version 1 product and (b) the early station end equipment product in respect of the FiReControl project; and if she will make a statement. [227315]

Mr. Khan: £696,856.62 has been paid to EADS Defence and Security Systems Ltd for the development of the data capture and management toolkit version 1. No payment will be made for early station end development, although a capital charge will be payable when a station end is installed.

Housing: Children

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many children were registered as living in (a) temporary accommodation, (b) non-decent accommodation and (c) overcrowded accommodation in each local authority area in each year since 2004. [226459]

Mr. Iain Wright: Figures are available at local authority level for the number of children in temporary accommodation, but not for the numbers living in non-decent homes or in overcrowded accommodation.

Information about English local authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data collected includes the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Information on the numbers of households housed in temporary accommodation is reported quarterly by local authorities as at the last day of each quarter. The number of dependent children or expected children in these households has been collected since mid 2004. Figures reported by local authorities from 2004-05 onwards (as at the end of March each year) are provided in a table, which has been placed in the Library.

Housing: Low Incomes

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the criteria to be used in the allocation of social housing to people released from prison. [227121]

Mr. Iain Wright: The statutory Allocations Code of Guidance, issued in 2002, does not provide advice on general categories of people released from prison. The guidance does however advise housing authorities that, where sex offenders are allocated accommodation, this should be in the light of considered decisions about managing risk associated with their release from prison into the community involving multi-agency arrangements with the police, probation services, social services, health professionals and other relevant bodies. The code also refers local authorities to earlier guidance issued by the Department in November 1999. This document is available from the following link.

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/pdf/157737.pdf

The statutory Code of Guidance on Choice Based Lettings, issued this year and placed in the Library on 26 August, offers advice to enable prisoners to access the information necessary to make informed decisions about homes they may wish to bid for on release from prison. This document is available from the following link.

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/doc/cblguidance.docl.

Housing: Repairs and Maintenance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what procedures are in place to monitor the average time taken on housing repairs by (a) local authorities and (b) housing associations. [225485]

Mr. Iain Wright: For local authorities, the average time taken on urgent housing repairs is monitored through the Comprehensive Performance Assessment framework.

Where appropriate and as part of a risk assessment of overall performance, the data may be used to trigger further investigations of performance by the Audit Commission.

The Housing Corporation's expectations of registered social landlords (RSLs) on responsive repairs are set out in the Regulatory Code. RSLs must develop and manage good quality homes that seek to meet people's needs and preferences now and in the future. The Housing Corporation's guidance on repairs is that RSLs should have a responsive repair service that meets legal and contractual obligations, is efficient and effective and that service standards are published. RSLs will monitor their own performance on repairs which may include the average time taken.

The Housing Corporation collects information on levels of tenant satisfaction with repairs and maintenance, which is then published in the form of performance indicators. Performance on tenant satisfaction is published in Housing Corporation Assessments. The Corporation's field staff will engage with a RSL where it becomes aware that the RSL's tenants are not satisfied and it does not consider that the RSL is taking sufficient steps to address their concerns.

The Housing and Regeneration Act 2008 set up the Tenant Services Authority, a new regulator of social housing which will have powers to set standards and monitor performance for the management of social housing, including on maintenance and repairs. The TSA was set up to put tenants at the heart of regulation, and address their concerns with the housing management service. The TSA is likely to consult on standards to cover both registered social landlords and local authority landlords in 2009.

Housing: Stafford

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what public funding is available to assist local authorities in Stafford constituency to enable the provision of new affordable housing in the next three years. [225312]

Mr. Iain Wright: We are investing £8 billion over the three years 2008-11 in the provision of affordable housing through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme. Of these funds the West Midlands region is set to receive around £460 million. This compares to expenditure on affordable housing through the Housing Corporation in that region of £280 million over the previous three years.

It is open to registered social landlords, other developers and local authority special purpose vehicles such as arm's length management organisations (ALMOs) to bid to the Housing Corporation for funding. We recently announced our intention to invite local authorities who continue to directly manage their stock to bid on the same terms.

We do not hold information at constituency level.

Local Authorities

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons her Department's local priorities website does not list all local priorities chosen by local authorities, including those not negotiated with central Government. [225453]

Mr. Khan: The local priorities website was launched with the signing of local area agreements (LAAs) on 30 June. The Department is working to make information on the details of local priorities which have been set, though not negotiated with central Government as part of LAAs, also available on the website.

Local Authorities: Cost Effectiveness

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to require information on efficiency savings by local authorities to be included with council tax bills issued by local billing authorities. [225554]

John Healey: I previously announced in February 2008 that, subject to consultation, from 2009 information on waste and better working will be set out with council tax bills, so that local people can see what is happening in their council's search for greater efficiency.

Our proposals are currently out to consultation. The consultation paper 'Inclusion of Efficiency Information with Council Tax Demand Notices' is available at

Local Authorities: Equal Pay

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps are being taken to assist local authorities to meet requirements for equal pay for men and women; and if she will make a statement. [226135]

John Healey: Central Government have increased the financial flexibility available to local authorities to meet their equal pay obligations and to speed up progress on delivering equal pay. On 26 September, the Government issued £455 million of equal pay capitalisation directions for 34 local authorities. This builds on the £500 million issued to 46 authorities last year, and takes the total approved by Government to more than £1.1 billion. This support will ensure authorities maintain the positive momentum they have established in implementing equal pay settlements.

Non-Domestic Rates: Ports

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consultations were undertaken with those businesses operating within ports prior to the introduction of business rates for port tenants; what form those consultations took; and how long the consultation period was. [226653]

John Healey: Consultation about removal of the power of the Secretary of State to prescribe rateable values, for ports and other utilities, was undertaken in "Modernising Local Government Finance : A Green Paper" published by DETR in September 2000 and in "Strong Local Leadership - Quality Public Service" a White Paper published by ODPM in December 2001. The Local Government Act 2003 then removed the power to prescribe a formula for rating statutory ports.

The port operators were advised by letter of the review of ports and its background in May 2006. Since then there have been detailed discussions to establish the facts, on a case by case basis, with interested parties both among port operators and port tenants and the time taken has varied, dependent on the complexity of each.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is considering to mitigate the financial effects upon traders of the recent change in rating methodology for docks and harbours. [227548]

John Healey: The Department has received representations over the rating of businesses within the ports, and the Government are looking closely at the matter.

Pensioners: Low Incomes

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of (a) pensioners and (b) children were living in income-deprived households in each parliamentary constituency calculated using the Indices of Deprivation 2007. [226208]

John Healey: Tables have been deposited in the Library setting out the numbers and percentages of (a) pensioners and (b) children living in income-deprived households in each parliamentary constituency in England. The data is based on the Income Deprivation Affecting Older People Index and Income Deprivation Affecting Children Index, both of which form part of the Indices of Deprivation 2007.

Regeneration: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 30 June 2008, Official Report, column 630W, on regeneration: Canvey Island, whether the absence of an additional access road for Canvey Island constituted one of the impediments. [225823]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government are aware that an additional access road for Canvey Island is an important local issue. We understand that discussions are underway among the relevant planning and transport authorities and other partners in the south Essex Thames Gateway to identify possible solutions. Any solutions which will require funding from Government will need to be considered by the region when it is preparing its advice to Government on the Regional Funding Allocations.

Regional Planning and Development

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will (a) set a deadline for the formal submission of Castle Point Borough Council's Local Development Scheme and (ii) set out what process of public consultation will be undertaken for the scheme; and if she will make a statement. [226832]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Secretary of State's policy is to consider reviews of local development schemes in response to annual monitoring reports, against their reported timetable for the year and exceptionally to consider any review prepared by the local authority during the year. I understand Castle Point borough council intend to bring forward a review in 2009.

There is no requirement for public consultation on a local development scheme. This is for the local planning authority to consider.

Regional Planning and Development: Kent

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration was given to including (a) the Sittingbourne and Kemsley Light Railway and (b) the Dolphin Barge Museum in the vision framework set out in her Department's Green Cluster Study for Milton Creek; and if she will make a statement. [227431]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Green Cluster Study for Milton Creek was commissioned via Greening the Gateway Kent and Medway to provide a brief strategic statement of the opportunities for creating green space north of Sittingbourne town centre, along Milton Creek to the Swale. It has no planning status, and is purely intended to set out an overall vision.

The study does include Sittingbourne and Kemsley Light Railway. Both the Light Railway and the Dolphin Barge Museum are acknowledged in contributing to the development of the vision. However, the purpose of the publication is not to describe in detail individual schemes or stakeholders, but to present a broad assessment of opportunities in the area.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent reports she has received on local development and regeneration plans of Swale Borough Council; and what her policy is on the future development of (a) the Sittingbourne and Kemsley Light Railway and (b) the Sittingbourne Dolphin Barge Museum. [227432]

Mr. Iain Wright: The overall strategy for the physical regeneration of Swale is set out in the Swale borough local plan, adopted in 2008. Following adoption of the local plan, the borough council has commissioned a master plan for Sittingbourne town centre, and this is currently under way.

Communities and Local Government is supporting the regeneration of Sittingbourne through an indicative allocation of Thames Gateway funding of £10.9 million, of which £7.5 million will contribute to the construction of Sittingbourne Northern Relief Road; £2 million will contribute to the development of Sittingbourne Learning Campus, and the balance will fund the completion of the master plan and the development of proposals for increasing capacity at junction 5 of the M2.

The Government do not have any policy on the future development of the Sittingbourne and Kemsley Light Railway or the Sittingbourne Dolphin Barge Museum because these are matters for the local authority.

Regional Planning and Development: Thames Gateway

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what financial commitments have been made by her Department towards the development of the Thames Gateway. [226259]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's plans were set out in "The Thames Gateway Delivery Plan" published in November 2007.

Repossession Orders

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Council of Mortgage Lenders on housing repossessions; and if she will make a statement. [227636]

Mr. Iain Wright: Government are working closely with a range of stakeholders—including the Council of Mortgage Lenders—to help vulnerable households facing repossession remain in their homes wherever possible.

Right to Buy Scheme

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been purchased under the right to buy scheme in (a) rural and (b) non-rural areas in each year since 1997 expressed in (i) absolute terms, (ii) per 1000 population and (iii) per 1,000 households. [227307]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on the number of local authority right to buy sales in England is shown in the following table. The table shows the number of sales, the number of sales per 1,000 population, and the number of sales per 1,000 households, in urban and rural areas.

	1997-98	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Smoke Alarms

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which fire and rescue services provide smoke alarms free of charge to domestic dwellings. [227434]

Mr. Khan: In 2004, Communities and Local Government invested £25 million pump priming capital over four years in the Home Fire Risk Check initiative. This money enabled all fire and rescue services to embed a programme of home visits where they would provide tailored fire safety advice to households. As part of a home visit, all fire and rescue services would, if necessary, install smoke alarms to vulnerable households free of charge.

This funding resulted in fire and rescue services in England installing over 2.4 million smoke alarms. Many fire and rescue authorities may also have invested in and installed further smoke alarms outside of and even before this grant.

Social Services: Children

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account she has taken of concerns raised by local authorities about the ability of the new Children's Social Services formula, used in the 2008-11 local government funding settlement, to assess accurately the complex needs of children in urban areas. [227235]

John Healey: The children's formula is based on extensive research by experienced independent researchers and used the 2003 Children in Need survey, which contains data on children's social service clients in almost every social service authority in England. It is calculated using up to date indicators of need and is based on research from within 141 local authorities. The new formula therefore better reflects the current patterns of relative need and the cost drivers for children's social services than the old formula it replaces.

London councils have argued that the formula is systematically biased against councils with the highest needs. However, the consideration of so-called 'unmet need' was part of the terms of reference of the research project, and was examined as thoroughly as possible by the researchers. They did not consider this issue impacted sufficiently seriously on the robustness of the formula to cast doubt on its overall reliability.

Society of Local Authority Chief Executives

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding the Audit Commission provided for the (a) Society of Local Authority Chief Executives and (b) Senior Managers Foundation Imprint magazine in 2007-08. [226125]

John Healey: The Audit Commission provides no funding to the Society of Local Authority Chief Executives and Senior Managers. During 2007-08, the Audit Commission provided £4,000.00 in sponsorship to the Solace Foundation Imprint magazine.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

British Council: Theatre

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British (a) plays and (b) concerts were performed overseas by British performers under the auspices of the British Council in each year since 1998. [226672]

Caroline Flint: The British Council does not hold detailed records on individual plays and concerts performed overseas and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost. The British Council currently has three key programme areas: intercultural dialogue, climate change, and supporting the UK's creative and knowledge economy, which such performances support.

Cuba: Sanctions

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will have discussions with the US Administration on the application of trade sanctions to Cuba. [225012]

Bill Rammell: The UK regularly discusses its policy on issues of mutual concern, including Cuba, with the US. We also re-iterate our opposition to the US embargo on Cuba publicly through our yearly vote at the UN General Assembly. The last vote took place on 30 October 2007.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Borders: Vehicles

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many private cars were searched by officers of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs or the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each month since October 2007 when crossing (a) from Northern Ireland to the Republic of Ireland and (b) from the Republic of Ireland to Northern Ireland. [227359]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of this letter will be placed in the Library of the House and the Official Report.

Matters relating to officers of HMRC should be directed to HM Treasury.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which projects his Department (a) funds and (b) provides other assistance to (i) directly and (ii) indirectly in Afghanistan; how much funding his Department is providing for such projects; and with which organisations his Department works on these projects. [225939]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I have placed a list in the Library of all the bilateral projects that the Department for International Development (DFID) funded in Afghanistan in 2007-08. The DFID imputed share of multilateral Official Development Assistance in Afghanistan in 2006-07 (the latest year for which we have data) was £41.7 million.

DFID works with a range of organisations to deliver its programme of aid in Afghanistan, including multilateral organisations, civil society organisations, the government of Afghanistan, other bilateral donors and the private sector.

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the Government is contributing financially to the Afghanistan National Development Strategy in 2008-09; and what involvement the Government has in the formation and implementation of the strategy. [225941]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The production of the Afghanistan National Development Strategy (ANDS), which was published in July 2008, was led by the Government of the Islamic Republic of Afghanistan (GoIRA) in consultation with donors, including the Department for International Development (DFID). All of DFID's expenditure is in line with the ANDS. We expect to spend £123 million in 2008-09. DFID alongside other donors helped finance the production of the strategy. DFID is also helping support the GoIRA to put in place effective arrangements for overall management of the ANDS as well as the development of new national programmes in key sectors.

Chad: Security

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effect of the security situation in eastern Chad on the delivery of humanitarian assistance to refugees in the region. [225873]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The rise of banditry, against a background of total impunity, is cited by humanitarian actors as the current main direct threat to humanitarian action. The key impacts are a reduction in access to affected populations by humanitarian agencies, and the disruption of service provision where access is still possible. Since the beginning of the year, the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) reports that there have been 120 incidents against humanitarian agencies.

The World Food Programme (WFP) ration to 240,000 refugees was cut by 20 per cent. earlier in the year, partly as a result of increasing insecurity. After a serious security incident in May, Save the Children (UK) was compelled to pull out from the central axes (Abeche-Adre). While this resulted in the disruption of health service provision to 30,000 refugees in Breidjing camp, other agencies have since stepped in to fill the gap.

Service provision to internally displaced people (IDPs) has also been affected by insecurity. Most recently, attacks on relief workers in the Abeche area have resulted in three NGOs reducing staff presence or temporarily suspending programmes. This has compromised health, nutrition, and water, sanitation, and hygiene interventions targeting 40,000 IDPs.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has made to the government of Chad on action against perpetrators of criminal acts which impede the delivery of humanitarian aid in eastern Chad. [226081]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: According to the UN, the last year has seen an increase in the level of criminality in eastern Chad compared to 2007. There has also been a shift in the target of the criminality. Increasingly, it is the humanitarian workers that are the focus of violent crime and banditry, including attacks on compounds and carjackings.

The UK Government have not made any direct representations to the Government of Chad over this issue. However, the UK Government supported UNSCR 1778 which established MINURCAT, the UN police training and advisory mission, and authorised the deployment of an EU force (EUFOR), the humanitarian protection force in Chad and Central African Republic (CAR). The objective of this interlinked UN and EU mission is to facilitate the delivery of humanitarian aid. MINURCAT is specifically mandated to maintain law and order in refugee camps and internally displaced persons sites through the training of Chadian gendarmes, and to contribute to tackling the prevailing impunity by promotion of human rights and rule of law.

Humanitarian Aid

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of his Department's budget was spent on humanitarian aid in each of the last five years. [227492]

Mr. Michael Foster: The proportion of Department for International Development (DFID) programme expenditure spent on humanitarian aid in each of the last five years is shown in the following table and split by bilateral and imputed multilateral expenditure:

Table 1: Proportion of DFID programme expenditure spent on humanitarian aid since 2003-04

Percentage

	Proportion of DFID bilateral programme expenditure spent on humanitarian aid	Proportion of DFID imputed multilateral expenditure spent on humanitarian aid
2003-04	11.46	8.51
2004-05	11.15	6.63
2005-06	13.91	12.27
2006-07	11.01	5.25
2007-08	10.63	n/a

Imputed multilateral expenditure is assessed from the figures reported by the multilateral organisations to the Development Assistance Committee (DAC). 2007-08 will not therefore be available until 2009.

Kosovo: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government has taken to improve the stability of the Kosovo government. [226777]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Different Departments within the UK Government are working together to improve stability in Kosovo. We are funding work to help establish effective Rule of Law, prevent renewed conflict and to establish an effective and transparent security sector. We have allocated £4.15 million from the joint Foreign and Commonwealth (FCO)/Department for International Development (DFID)/Ministry of Defence (MoD) Conflict Prevention Pool for this work in 2008-09. To strengthen Kosovo's key institutions, the UK is also helping the Kosovo government review their structures and improve their effectiveness. These programmes are in addition to the UK's contribution to stability in Kosovo through the NATO Kosovo Force (KFOR), the UN Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK), the EU's largest ever Rule of Law mission, EULEX, and the office of the EU Special Representative and International Civilian Representative in Kosovo.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent support the Government has given to the government of Kosovo for economic growth. [226778]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK is playing an active role in supporting international efforts to build economic growth in Kosovo, and thereby reduce poverty and unemployment. The Department for International Development (DFID) tabled a paper on key actions to support economic growth at the recent Kosovo Donors' conference (the paper is available online at: http://www.seerecon.org/kdc/gae.pdf). DFID has been instrumental in ensuring that future World Bank and European Commission (EC) assistance to Kosovo will be focused on improving the prospects of economic growth. One result of this is the World Bank's current work to design a US $90 million Multi-donor Trust Fund for Sustainable Employment. The EC has indicated it will contribute to this.

In addition to this work, DFID is funding programmes in the Rule of Law sector which will contribute to giving investors greater confidence of a return on their investments. DFID is also supporting Kosovo's EU pre-accession process through a project to help the Government of Kosovo align its standards with those of the EU in a range of areas, including agriculture and food safety. This is important if Kosovo secures access for its products to the EU market.

Overseas Aid: Education

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much and what proportion of UK aid was allocated to education projects in the most recent resource allocation round; what proportion of these projects are located in states affected by significant conflict; and if he will make a statement. [227436]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The latest comprehensive spending review committed DFID to increasing its expenditure through multilateral and bilateral channels on education to £1 billion a year by 2010-11. This represents 12 per cent. of the Department of International Development's (DFID) planned total departmental spending in 2010-11.

Data are not held centrally on DFID's future spending allocation for education in states affected by conflict. Nevertheless, DFID is committed to increased support for fragile states (which include most of those significantly affected by conflict). Support to education in these countries is therefore expected to rise over the coming years.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the Government plans to spend on basic services for the population in the Nuba Mountains following the signing of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan; and how much of this has been spent to date. [225882]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Since the signing of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement on 9 January 2005, the Department for International Development (DFID) has allocated approximately £26.7 million to improve basic services in North Sudan (which includes the Nuba Mountains). Of the £26.1 million allocated through the Multi Donor Trust Fund (MDTF), all was disbursed. Based on figures available at 31 December 2007, approximately 18 per cent. of the total MDTF funding in the north was spent in South Kordofan.

In addition, since the inception of the Common Humanitarian Fund in 2006, DFID has provided £7.4 million ($13 million) for humanitarian and early recovery activities in Southern Kordofan.

Funding for South Kordofan includes the Nuba Mountains and other impoverished areas. Funding for the contested and politically sensitive area of Abyei is separate to this.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many business improvement districts have been established in each region. [225394]

John Healey: I am the Minister responsible for policy on business improvement districts and have been asked to reply.

Number of established bids in each region

Region	Number of bids
London	17
South East	7
South West	8
Eastern	3
East Midlands	6
West Midlands	9
North East	2
North West	10
Yorkshire and Humberside	1
Total bids	63

Consumer Focus: Manpower

Mark Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many staff are expected to be employed as part of Consumer Focus Wales. [224831]

Mr. McFadden: The total number of staff who will be based at the Consumer Focus Wales office is 35.

Environment Agency: Finance

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what funding has been provided to the Environment Agency by Yorkshire Forward in each of the last five years; and what the purposes of the funding were. [223791]

Mr. McFadden: The following payments have been made by Yorkshire Forward to the Environment Agency for the last five years (April 2003 to March 2008). Payments greater than £10,000 have been itemised.

	Payment (£)	Purpose
2003-04	14,691.04	Other (seven invoices)
2004-05	6,722.20	Other (six invoices)
2005-06	2,711,575.77	—
Comprising:
	2,680,000.00	One-off grant to fund capital works comprising part of the Humber Estuary Shoreline Management Plan.

	Payment (£)	Purpose
	15,000.00	Grant to fund an Opportunity Plan conducted by Scott Wilson and commissioned by the Strategic Partnership for the River Ouse and its tributaries, to identify potential locations for environmental enhancement projects, focusing on regeneration of urban waterfronts, better access to leisure activities, land management to increase wildlife, renewable energy through alternative fuel crops, and improve awareness and knowledge of river systems, (see £10,000 additional payment in 2006-07).
	12,728.77	Data evidence and modelling techniques—SCPnet
	3,847.00	Other (two invoices)
2006-07	23,511.73	—
Comprising:
	10,000.00	Grant re Ouse Enhancement Opportunity Plan (£15,000 first payment in 2005-06).
	13,511.73	Other (seven invoices)
2007-08	19,146.85	—
Comprising:
	18,003.35	Data evidence and modelling techniques—SCPnet
	1,143.50	Other (one invoice)

SCPnet was developed during the 2005-06 financial in order to provide a facility for the RDAs nationally to call on research data in order to inform debate and preparation of strategies for the regions. The process involved the 'appointment' of a champion to operate as co-ordinator for the project. Data collection, collation and presentation, continue with updates for this data source and to organise RDA lead meetings to steer the process for that year and future periods. The system also incorporates (through observatories), the collation of data and development of modelling tools to inform policy development. There are elements of support costs for meetings travel and subsistence and training on the REEIO and REAP models.

The process has been approved for continuation to date with annual contributions by each of the RDAs.

Fisheries: Compensation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much has been paid out so far under the Icelandic Fishermen's Compensation Scheme; and to how many recipients. [225629]

Mr. McFadden: The Department paid out just under £43 million under the scheme launched in October 2000, to 4,400 successful claimants. In addition, around £14 million was paid out to almost 9,000 claimants under the previous ex-gratia scheme that operated between 1993 and 1995.

Freight: Liquidation

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many haulage businesses went into administration or liquidation in each region of England and Wales in each of the last 10 years. [227071]

Mr. McFadden: The information held by the Insolvency Service on corporate liquidations and administrations is not sufficiently detailed to identify those businesses which operated within the haulage industry, on a regional basis.

While official statistics concerning compulsory liquidations are sourced from the Insolvency Service, those for voluntary liquidations and administrations are sourced from Companies House. There have been changes over recent years to the extent and type of sectoral and regional information collected and analysed. It is not possible to combine the various data sets available to provide a comprehensive answer to the question.

INTERREG Programme

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 30 June 2008, Official Report, columns 627-28W, on the INTERREG programme, whether any bodies have sought approval to participate in a grouping. [225563]

Mr. McFadden: To date, no UK bodies have sought the approval of the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to participate in a European Grouping of Territorial Co-operation.

Minimum Wage: Yorkshire

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many workers in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire received wages at the national minimum rate in each year since 2000, broken down by sex. [226378]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many workers in (a) Leeds and (b) Yorkshire received wages at the national minimum rate in each year since 2000, broken down by sex. (226378)

Estimates for the number of jobs paid at the national minimum wage are not available from ONS. However, estimates for the number of all employee jobs paid below the national wage are available by Government Office Region. This is the lowest geographical breakdown.

I attach a table showing the number of jobs earning less than the national minimum wage for Yorkshire and The Humber for all employees for each year since 2000.

A guide to measuring low pay and associated articles can be found on the National Statistics website at:

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the effect that the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency prize draw promotion for customers renewing their vehicle excise licence online will have on the number of people choosing to renew their vehicle excise licence at a post office. [225395]

Mr. McFadden: Responsibility for the issue and renewal of motor vehicle excise licences, including the channels available to do so, rests with DVLA. The arrangements in place for renewal of licences at post offices are a contractual matter between DVLA and Post Office Ltd. These provide for this facility to be available at around 4,600 nationally and there has been no reduction in that number since online and telephone renewal was introduced.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to encourage the renewal of vehicle excise licences through post offices; and if he will make a statement. [225396]

Mr. McFadden: The DVLA offers a number of methods of renewing vehicle licences. Renewal at a post office remains an important option.

I understand from Post Office Ltd. that 28,334,825 licence renewals took place at a post office branch during the period April 2007 to March 2008.

Motor Vehicles: Manufacturing Industries

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what support his Department provides for UK car, van and truck manufacturing; what account his Department has taken of (a) the current economic climate and (b) EU proposals for restrictions on automotive emissions in providing such support; and if he will make a statement. [227018]

Ian Pearson: BERR continues to work closely with the automotive manufacturing industry on a range of key issues for the sector and has made clear it stands ready to assist the industry on new issues where appropriate, especially in the current economic climate. Work is also in train under the framework of the Manufacturing Strategy to ensure that British manufacturing has the right long-term framework of support. An example of support for the automotive sector announced in the recent Manufacturing Strategy is a major new pilot programme for low carbon cars, along with £20 million initially for the public procurement of innovative low carbon and zero emission vans. The recent allocation of £6.2 million Selective Finance for Industry in England (SFIE) to Nissan is another example of support available from Government.

The Government facilitated industry-led New Automotive Innovation and Growth Team (NAIGT) announced by BERR in April 2008 is looking at how to address the two key strategic challenges of maintaining a competitive edge in the face of low-cost competition and ensuring that the UK benefits from the transition to advanced low-carbon technologies. The results of the NAIGT review, due to report to BERR by the end March 2009, will help industry and Government focus their efforts to help improve the competitiveness of the sector in the coming years.

The European Commission's proposals to establish EU-wide mandatory targets for new car carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions are just one of a range of regulations directly affecting the automotive sector. Government works closely with industry, through initiatives such as the BERR-led Vehicle Industry Policy and European Regulation (VIPER) group, to ensure industry is engaged in the regulatory process at the earliest opportunity and that regulations are proportionate, practicable and appropriate. The CO_2 from cars dossier is widely considered to be the most significant ever for the EU automotive industry. Negotiations continue in Europe and the UK Government are working closely with the European Commission, other member states and industry to secure a Regulation which combines ambitious, but realistic, targets with sufficient flexibility to allow for the diversity of the UK and European automotive sector.

Non-Departmental Public Bodies: Manpower

Mark Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many staff were employed by (a) the Welsh Consumer Council, (b) Postwatch Wales and (c) Energywatch Wales in each of the last five years. [224830]

Mr. McFadden: The information is as follows.

	Number of staff
	Welsh Consumer Council	Postwatch Wales	Energywatch Wales
2007-08	10	4	12-15
2006-07	14	4	12-15

2003-04	17	5	12-15

Post Offices: Closures

Mr. Leech: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on how many occasions Post Office Ltd. has responded to public opposition by reversing a decision to close a post office branch as part of the Network Change Programme; and what percentage of branches considered for closure under the programme this figure represents. [225822]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many post offices have been closed in villages and towns with a population smaller then 10,000 inhabitants in (a) England, (b) Wales, (c) Scotland and (d) Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [227304]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post Offices: Disabled

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform to what extent Post Office Ltd. is required to ensure that post offices providing services to members of the public are compliant with laws relating to disabled access. [225314]

Mr. McFadden: Post Office Ltd. acknowledges the requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act. Post Office Ltd. itself is responsible for compliance with the Act in respect of access for disabled people to its services at Crown offices, and sub-postmasters and franchisees are similarly responsible for promoting disabled access to the services they provide.

Post Office Ltd. is committed to the needs of all disabled customers whether they visit Crown offices or franchised offices and it is therefore engaged in a continuing process of working with its sub-postmasters to maximise the accessibility of its services to disabled customers and support compliance with the Act.

For example, as part of the Network Change Programme, where a post office branch has been selected for closure, Post Office Ltd. has checked the accessibility of alternative local branches including the accessibility of public transport for disabled people. Post Office Ltd. has also set up a fund that contributes towards improvements in sub-postmasters' premises that improve access for disabled people. Post Office Ltd. has also trialled using the Direct Enquiries website to provide information to disabled people on the accessibility of branches.

Post Offices: Military Bases

Mr. Walter: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many post offices situated within the secure areas of military establishments have been closed or are scheduled for closure as part of the Post Office Network Change programme; and if he will list their locations. [227358]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Postwatch: Publications

Andrew Selous: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much the hardback book "Post, Present and Future", produced by Postwatch in September 2008, cost to produce and distribute. [225980]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The costs of producing and distributing the hardback report, "Post, present and future", recently published by Postwatch, are as follows:

Production costs: £29,010

Distribution costs: £2,483

James Duddridge: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what costs were incurred in the (a) production and (b) distribution by post of the Postwatch publication, "Post, Present and Future". [226124]

Kate Hoey: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the cost was of (a) producing and (b) distributing the hardback report "Past, Present and Future" recently published by Postwatch. [225548]

Mr. McFadden: The costs of producing and distributing the report, "Post, present and future", recently published by Postwatch are as follows:

Production costs: £29,010

Distribution costs: £2,483

Recruitment: Complaints

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many complaints the Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate has received regarding the advertising of non-existent jobs in the last 12 months; and how many of these complaints have been upheld. [225348]

Mr. McFadden: Between 1 October 2007 and 30 September 2008, the Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate received 30 complaints regarding the potential breach of the regulation regarding the advertisement of non-existent jobs (regulation 27 of the Conduct of Employment Agencies and Employment Businesses Regulations 2003). All 30 complaints were investigated and warnings were issued to 11 companies who were found to be in breach of the Regulations.

Recruitment: Fraud

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many companies have been found to be advertising non-existent jobs in each of the last 10 years. [225349]

Mr. McFadden: The Department does not hold such information.

The Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) acts to resolve complaints about advertisements in UK media, including television, radio, press, posters, direct marketing and some online advertising. The ASA publishes details of all formally resolved adjudications on its website. This database can be accessed at:

http://www.asa.org.uk/asa/adjudications/public/

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what powers the Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate has to prevent recruitment companies from placing advertisements for non-existent jobs. [225549]

Mr. McFadden: The Employment Agency Standards (EAS) Inspectorate investigates all complaints received about recruitment companies that suggest any breach of employment agency legislation. This includes the regulations governing advertisements, where agencies cannot advertise specific vacancies unless they have the authority of the employer concerned in respect of that position.

Any breach of the Conduct of Employment Agencies and Employment Business Regulations 2003 is a criminal offence and agencies can be prosecuted in the magistrate's court. In addition, the EAS has powers to seek to prohibit individuals from being involved in the running of an agency for up to 10 years.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to prevent the publication in print or via the internet of bogus notices from recruitment agencies and other organisations advertising non-existent jobs. [225550]

Mr. McFadden: Regulation 27 of the Conduct of Employment Agencies and Employment Business Regulations 2003 specifies that agencies cannot advertise specific vacancies in print or on the internet unless they have the authority of the employer concerned. The Employment Agency Standards Inspectorate investigates any complaints received. Any breach of regulations is a criminal offence which can be prosecuted in magistrates court.

In addition, misleading advertisements made by both the recruitment agencies and other organisations about employment vacancies may be prohibited under the Business Protection from Misleading Marketing Regulations 2008, which is enforced by Trading Standards and the Office of Fair Trading (OFT).

More generally, all employers placing vacancies with Jobcentre Plus are required to provide specified information (including contact details) to help reduce the likelihood of bogus employers advertising vacancies and to safeguard jobseekers. Jobcentre Plus has a robust Employer Complaints process through which jobseekers can report any issues around inappropriate vacancies or employer activities. If Jobcentre Plus receives a complaint from a customer about an employer who is advertising fictitious vacancies it will be investigated. If the investigation concludes the employer is advertising bogus vacancies, they will be removed from their systems immediately and if appropriate, access to Jobcentre Plus services may be withdrawn to the employer.

Additionally, Jobcentre Plus has put further measures in place to ensure that recruitment agencies only advertise genuine vacancies. Most importantly, before vacancies are accepted Jobcentre Plus requires them to sign a service level agreement (SLA) with Jobcentre Plus agreeing to the terms for using their services. Jobcentre Plus takes these conditions very seriously and will investigate any complaints that individual agencies are not complying with the terms of the SLA. This ultimately could lead to Jobcentre Plus terminating service with a recruitment agency in breach of their agreement.

Small Businesses: Regional Development Agencies

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what research his Department has (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) evaluated on attitudes of small and medium-sized enterprises to regional development agencies. [223820]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has conducted the following research into regional development agencies (RDAs), which included attitudes of small and medium-sized enterprises to RDAs.

In 2006-07, the National Audit Office carried out independent performance assessments (IPAs) of all the RDAs (except for London which had been covered in a previous Audit Commission review). This is available on the NAO website:

http://www.nao.org.uk/guidance/rdas.htm

In 2003, BERR published the results of regional surveys of stakeholders' perception of the RDAs. The survey was not directed specifically at small and medium sized enterprises, but included the Small Business Service (SBS), Business Links (BL), voluntary sector, businesses, chambers of commerce (LCC).The surveys were commissioned from MORI Social Research Institute.

TICC: Redundancy

Mr. Betts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 292W, on TICC: redundancy, how much was paid in compensation on a non-statutory basis; and under what authority. [226615]

Mr. McFadden: Nil. Only payments guaranteed by statute are payable from the National Insurance Fund to employees on the insolvency of an employer.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) charged and (b) convicted of persistently selling alcohol to children under section 147A of the Licensing Act 2003. [226025]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Section 147A of the Licensing Act 2003, as amended by section 23 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 came into force on 6 April 2007.

As a result, complete data for this offence will be available for 2008 and beyond. Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009. Data in relation to individuals charged with offences are not held centrally.

Animal Experiments: Scotland

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reasons are for the increase in the number of scientific procedures on animals at commercial establishments in Scotland from approximately 35,000 in 2006 to approximately 70,000 in 2007. [225097]

Meg Hillier: The apparent increase in the number of scientific procedures on animals at commercial establishments in Scotland in 2007 is principally explained by a change in the way in which the figures were calculated. Using the revised, more accurate methodology, the corresponding figures for 2006 and 2007 were, 67,776 and 70,296, respectively. The increase of 3.7 per cent. arises from a normal variation in the level of business activity.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Yorkshire and the Humber

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) under the age of 18 years and (b) aged 18 years and over were served with anti-social behaviour orders in (i) Leeds and (ii) Yorkshire in each of the last five years. [226384]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the number of Antisocial Behaviour Orders (ASBOs) issued is not available below Criminal Justice System (CJS) area level.

The latest available data for the West Yorkshire CJS area are to 31 December 2006 and are shown in the following table.

Number of antisocial behaviour orders issued at all courts in the West Yorkshire Criminal Justice System area, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, by age group[1], 1 January 2002 to 31 December 2006

West Yorkshire	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	Total
10-17	11	60	156	115	81	423
18+	3	37	148	143	136	467
Age unknown[1]	—	—	1	2	—	3
Total	14	97	305	260	217	893

[1] Where age not reported to the Office for Criminal Justice Reform.

Notes:

1. Previously issued data have been revised.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Computers: Crime

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when sections 35 to 38 of the Police and Justice Act 2006 relating to computer misuse are expected to be brought into effect; and if she will make a statement. [226020]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Sections 35 to 38 of the Police and Justice Act 2006 were commenced on 10 October 2008 along with Part 2 of the Serious Crime Act 2007.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to extend the application of serious crime prevention orders to offences under the Computer Misuse Act 1990; and if she will make a statement. [226021]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government are currently preparing a consultation document to enable a full public consultation on this matter. It is expected that this consultation will begin in November and run for 12 weeks. The outcome of the consultation will determine whether the application of serious crime prevention orders is extended to include offences under the Computer Misuse Act.

Crime

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the extent and nature of gang-related criminal activity; and if she will make a statement. [226023]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There is no single definition of a 'gang' and so it is difficult to assess the extent and nature of gang activity.

However, the Tackling Gangs Action Programme (September 2007 to March 2008) was set up to tackle gangs who use serious violence and firearms as a central part of their activities. The focus was in the four cities with the highest number of firearms homicides: London, Manchester, Birmingham and Liverpool.

As part of this work, police forces in these cities identified 774 individuals, of whom 655 had on average 11 convictions each, of which the majority were for public order, harassment, drugs, violence and acquisitive offences.

Crime: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent evaluation has taken place of the efficacy of the prolific and priority offenders programme in (a) Peterborough and (b) Cambridgeshire; and if she will make a statement. [226066]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has not commissioned a separate evaluation of the Prolific and other Priority Offender programme in Peterborough or Cambridgeshire. A report on the national evaluation of programme was published in February 2007 as Home Office Online report 08/07. This showed that those offenders first selected as Prolific and other Priority

Offenders in September and October 2004 had a reduction of 62 per cent. in their overall level of convictions over their first 17 months on the programme. These findings are very positive, although we cannot necessarily attribute them solely to the programme because we do not know what would have happened had it not been introduced.

A copy of the full evaluation report is available on the Home Office and crime reduction websites www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/onlinepubs1.html

www.crimereduction.gov.uk/ppo/ppominisite01.htm.

Crime: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding was allocated to the prolific and priority offenders programme in Peterborough City Council area in each year since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [226065]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Prolific and other Priority Offender programme was launched in 2004 to tackle those offenders in every area of England and Wales who commit most crime or whose offending causes most damage to their local communities. The programme involves effective partnership working between agencies. It does not receive direct, dedicated funding from the Government. The costs of the programme are met locally.

Crime: Statistics

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to collect statistics on the number of recorded offences that are investigated by the police; and if she will make a statement. [224623]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There are no plans to collect this information centrally.

Crimes Against Humanity

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people suspected of (a) war crimes, (b) crimes against humanity and (c) genocide are estimated to be present in the UK; and if she will make a statement. [224628]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office does not collate data on the total numbers in the UK who are suspected of these crimes. Certain applicants to the UK Border Agency are screened for involvement in war crimes, crimes against humanity or genocide. Figures on the numbers considered by the War Crimes Team are provided in response to question 224629, Official Report, column 1072W, although these are based only on applicants to UKBA and are not directly indicative of the numbers of suspects estimated to be present in the UK.

Criminal Records

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to ensure that unproven allegations against an individual where no charge has been made or conviction secured are not registered on the Criminal Records Bureau's database. [226559]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) only operates a central database in order to record transactions that occur during the disclosure process, where an applicant's personal data, provided on an application form, are compared against information held by the police, the Department of Health and the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Enhanced disclosures also contain relevant non-conviction information provided by local police forces. Non-conviction information of this sort is referred to as "approved information" and is released under Section 113B (4) of Part V of the Police Act 1997, which states that:

"Before issuing an enhanced criminal record certificate the Secretary of State shall request the chief officer of every relevant police force to provide any information which, in the chief officer's opinion (a) might be relevant for the purpose described in the statement under subsection (2) (the positions eligible for Enhanced Disclosure) and (b) ought to be included in the certificate".

Therefore, the police have a duty to disclose information which they believe may be relevant and should be disclosed.

The chief officer of each police force is Data Controller, under the Data Protection Act 1998, of all information placed by that force on the PNC or retained in local force records. Therefore, only the chief officer of any given force or his nominee has the power to amend or delete the approved information relating to an applicant and neither the CRB nor the Home Office has any influence over such decisions.

The CRB does operate a disputes process, which enables an individual to challenge the accuracy and relevancy of any information shown on their Disclosure.

Criminal Records Bureau: Standards

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people contested details held on record by the Criminal Records Bureau in each of the last five years. [225388]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) do not hold criminal records but do release information held on police records and other data sources.

The total number of disclosures where the details released by the CRB were contested by the applicant in the last five years is detailed in the following table. These are referred to within the disclosure process as disputes and the CRB has procedures in place to allow an applicant to dispute the information provided.

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Total number of disputes	1,739	2,265	2,675	3,077	4,931
Total number of disclosures issued	2,284,688	2,430,937	2,770,265	3,277,957	3,323,251

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the cost-effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of her Department. [226525]

Mr. Woolas: All Home Office advertising media buying is placed via the Central Office of Information (COI). Aggregation of government expenditure ensures that media bought via COI is cost-effective and delivers value for money. The prices that Government pay for media spend are benchmarked against those of private sector advertisers by independent media auditors and this demonstrates significant savings for the taxpayer.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which (a) dining, (b) cultural and sporting and (c) hospitality events (i) Ministers in her Department, (ii) officials in the UK Border Agency and its predecessors and (iii) officials in the Identity and Passport Service and its predecessors have attended which were funded by (A) Government and (B) private sector companies with contracts to work for her Department in each of the last five years. [223843]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Deportation

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were deported from the UK in each of the last 30 years. [226548]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the number of persons removed, including voluntary departures, from the UK in each of the last 30 years.

Further National Statistics on removals from the UK are available from the Library of the House and Table 6.1 of the Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2007 bulletin

[1] Prior to 1989 figures exclude EC (European Commission) nationals refused entry at port and subsequently removed. Since 1994 figures include persons removed from juxtaposed controls. Since 1999 figures include persons leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return Programmes run by the International Organization for Migration. Since 2005 figures include persons who it has been established have left the UK without informing the immigration authorities. Since October 2006 figures include persons leaving under Facilitated Return Schemes.

[2] Figures rounded to the nearest five and may not sum to the totals shown because of independent rounding.

[3] Persons who had sought asylum as some stage, excluding dependants.

[4] Data on dependants removed are not available before April 2001.

[5] Figures may include a small number of dependants leaving under Assisted Voluntary Return Programmes.

[6] Provisional figures.

Deportation: Offenders

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which sections of the UK Border Act relating to the deportation of foreign national prisoners (a) had and (b) had not been commenced on 30 September 2008; and the provisions of which sections are in active use. [226015]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 14 October 2008]: UK Borders Act 2007 Commencement Order No. 3, came into force on 1 August 2008. This order commenced the following provisions which are now in active use.

(a) the provisions set out in Section 32-38 (inclusive) in respect of a person to whom Condition 1 (within the meaning of section 32 of that Act) applies; and

(b) section 39 (consequential amendments).

Detention Centres

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many mobile detention centres her Department was operating on 30 September 2008. [225927]

Mr. Woolas: A mobile detention facility pilot consisting of a single vehicle started in Northampton on 30 September and will last for five weeks. This pilot will cover the full range of operational scenarios to test operational capability within the UK and how it complements, or adds to the existing fleet of vehicles available to United Kingdom Border Agency enforcement officers.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the first pilot of the use of mobile detention vans by the Border Agency. [225989]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 13 October 2008]: A first pilot of a mobile detention solution ended in January 2008. It focused on the needs of immigration officers operating at small ports without short term holding facilities. The deployment in Poole and Newhaven was used to hold people discovered in vehicle searches as a more secure alternative to transporting them to police stations.

The integration of customs and immigration activity at ports as part of the creation of the United Kingdom Border Agency has led to a review of existing port holding facilities. That will inform a future decision on the deployment of any future mobile capability.

During the course of the pilot, the merit of using this type of facility for both pre-planned enforcement operations and to apprehend illegal immigrants was also considered. As a result, the need for a revised vehicle specification was identified to provide the additional flexibility required by UKBA's operational enforcement officers.

Using the revised specification, a second mobile detention pilot started in the Northampton area on 30 September 2008.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent estimate is of the incidence of domestic violence in (a) rural and (b) urban areas. [225880]

Mr. Alan Campbell: As part of a statutory performance indicator, data on the number of domestic violence incidents reported to the police in England and Wales is collected annually. The most recent available figures for 2006-07 were collected under the police performance assessment framework.

The figures, broken down by (a) rural and (b) urban police force areas in England and Wales in accordance with the ACORN (a classification of residential neighbourhoods) are outlined in the following table.

Domestic violence incidents 2006-07

Force area	Number reported
Rural
Cambridgeshire	7,501

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of domestic violence were reported to the police in each police force area in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [225881]

Mr. Alan Campbell: From the information collected centrally on recorded crime, it is not possible to identify recorded cases of domestic violence. Such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information on the number of incidents of domestic violence in England and Wales but it is not possible to break the statistics down by police force area.

Drinking Banning Orders

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drinking banning orders have been granted under the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006. [226017]

Mr. Alan Campbell: None. Drinking banning orders have not yet been commenced under the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006. The implementation of DBOs has been delayed in the light of recent developments; an improvement in alcohol-related disorder problems and the Government's Alcohol Strategy which sets out the way forward for tackling alcohol misuse. We will need to monitor the situation and take stock at a later date on whether, in the light of this, there is still a need for DBOs.

Driving Offences

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were stopped by police for driving an unsafe car which did not comply with MOT requirements in (a) Wales and (b) each region of England in (i) each of the last 10 years and (ii) 2008. [227074]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on such stops is not recorded centrally.

Available information on court proceedings, issue of fixed penalty notices, Vehicle Defect Rectification Scheme notices and written warnings in respect of vehicle test and condition offences is contained in the Ministry of Justice Statistical Bulletin "Motoring Offences and Breath Test Statistics, England and Wales 2006" and its associated Supplementary Tables. The documents are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

www.justice.gov.uk/publications/motoringoffences.htm

Drugs: Crime

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the prevalence of incidents involving the use of covert administration of scopolamine derivatives in connection with crimes of assault. [226710]

Mr. Alan Campbell: No assessment has been made on this matter.

Entry Clearances

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visas issued by posts abroad were revoked in each of the last five years. [226062]

Mr. Woolas: A visa may be revoked by the visa-issuing post overseas under paragraph 30A of the Immigration Rules if (a) false representations were made or material facts not disclosed for the purpose of obtaining the visa, or (b) a change of circumstances since the visa was issued has removed the basis of the holder's claim to be admitted to the UK, or (c) the holder's exclusion from the UK would be conducive to the public good. Apart from multiple entry visit visas, a visa may only be revoked before the holder has travelled to the UK. (A visa may also be cancelled by the visa-issuing post for administrative reasons, e.g. where a mistake has been made).

An Immigration Officer at a UK port may refuse Leave to Enter to the holder of a valid visa for any of the above reasons under paragraph 321 of the Immigration Rules. Such a refusal would invalidate the visa. Leave to Enter which is in force may also be curtailed or cancelled for similar reasons under paragraphs 321A-323 of the rules.

We can only gather information about revoked visas at disproportionate cost because it cannot be retrieved centrally for technical reasons. Local searches could be initiated if a particular country is specified.

Entry Clearances: Belarus

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which Belarusian nationals are on the Government's list of those denied entry to the UK. [226455]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency maintains a watchlist of information and intelligence which is used to inform decisions. It is longstanding policy not to disclose the specific data held on this watchlist or the source of the data on it.

The UK does comply with the travel ban imposed by the EU against certain officials of Belarus. The details of those subject to an EU travel ban are published by the EU on their Common Foreign and Security Policy website.

Homicide

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of gang-related homicides in each of the last three years. [226022]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Available data were published in table 1.06 of "Homicides, Firearm Offences and Intimate Violence 2005-06" which was released as an internet-only Home Office Statistical Bulletin on 25 January 2007. At that time there were 10 homicides currently recorded under the apparent principal circumstance category of 'attributed to gang warfare, feud or faction fighting' for 2003-04, nine for 2004-05 and seven for 2005-06. However, with the introduction of a new database in March 2007, comparable data for 2006-07 are not available. It is hoped that figures for 2007-08 will be available after the next annual homicide chapter is published in January 2009.

Identity Cards: Finance

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has paid to (a) public relations and advertising companies, (b) consultants and (c) other firms for advice on identity cards and identity management in each of the last five years. [223840]

Meg Hillier: I refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer of 6 March 2008, Official Report, column 2691W, to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban).

Immigrants: Marriage

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to issue guidance on the UK Borders Agency website on the implications of the House of Lords judgements in the cases of Metock and of Baiai. [224696]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency is implementing the ECJ judgment in the case of Metock, which relates to the conditions under which European economic area (EEA) nationals' direct family members can reside in the UK. Updated guidance will be published shortly. The UK Border Agency's processes for assessing applications from those in the UK are already compliant with the Metock ruling.

The House of Lords judgment of 30 July in the cases of R (on the application of Baiai and others) v. Secretary of State for the Home Department concerns the Certificate of Approval scheme under section 19 of the Asylum and Immigration (Treatment of Claimants etc) Act 2004 which was developed as a way of combating sham marriages. The UK Border Agency is considering the full implications of this judgment and will publish appropriate guidance once that consideration is completed.

Immigration

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of projected levels on net migration into the UK over the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 25 years; from which countries arrivals are expected; and if she will make a statement. [226841]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question asking what recent estimate has been made of projected levels of net migration into the UK over the next (a) five, (b) 10 and (c) 25 years; from which countries arrivals are expected. (226841)

National population projections are normally produced every two years. The latest (2006-based) national population projections were published by the Office for National Statistics in October 2007 and the next (2008-based) set are planned for publication in October 2009.

The levels of net inward migration to the UK for future years assumed in the 2006-based projections are summarised in the following table. The assumptions underlying national population projections are demographic trend based. They are not forecasts. They do not attempt to predict the impact that future government policies, changing economic circumstances or other factors (whether in the UK or overseas) might have on demographic behaviour.

Mid-year to mid-year	Assumed net migration
2008-09	+230,000
2009-10	+221,400
2010-11	+211,400
2011-12	+201,400
2012-13 and 2013-14	+191,400
2014-15 onwards	+190,000

These assumptions are not available broken down by country of origin or destination.

Licensing Laws

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many summary reviews of a premises licence have been sought by the Police under section 53A of the Licensing Act 2003. [226018]

Mr. Alan Campbell: This information is not held centrally by the Home Department.

Members: Correspondence

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister of State expects to reply to the letters to the UK Border Agency, dated 10 June 2008 (ask card ref B20445/8) and 9 September 2008 from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood, regarding Damion McDermott (receipt no. LR162100466). [226640]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency wrote to my right hon. Friend on 16 July 2008 and again on 13 October 2008.

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister of State expects to reply to the enquiry dated 9 September 2008 from the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood regarding Saeed Saleh (Home Office reference H1069116). [226641]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency wrote to my right hon. Friend on 10 October 2008.

Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when her Department plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Manchester Central of 25 July 2008, on JT, reference M15977/8. [227123]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 14 October 2008]: The Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department, my hon. Friend the Member for Hackney, South and Shoreditch (Meg Hillier) wrote to my hon. Friend on 9 October 2008.

Offensive Weapons: Leeds

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people aged (a) under the age of 18 years and (b) 18 years and over were arrested in Leeds for carrying (i) knives and (ii) firearms in each of the last 12 months. [226385]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, such as violence against the person and robbery.

Payment Industry and Police Joint Intelligence Unit

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how the Payment Industry and Police Joint Intelligence Unit will co-ordinate its work with the (a) Police Central E-Crime Unit and (b) National Fraud Strategic Authority; and if she will make a statement. [226647]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Police Central E-Crime Unit was launched on 30 September 2008 and will provide law enforcement support for electronic crime reported to the National Fraud Reporting Centre (NFRC), and will also help develop the overall policing response to electronic crime. It is envisaged that this unit will be operational in spring 2009 and the relationship it will have with the Payment Industry and Police Joint Intelligence Unit (PIPJIU) has yet to be finalised, but work on developing the unit is ongoing.

The National Fraud Strategic Authority (NFSA) was formally created as an executive agency of the Attorney-General's office on 1 October to drive forward a comprehensive national strategy for tackling fraud. It brings together Government, criminal justice practitioners, business and the public, focusing on reducing the harm caused by fraud and making the UK a harder target for fraudsters.

Another part of the National Fraud Programme, the NFRC, will radically streamline the way that the public report fraud to the police, while its intelligence bureau will equip law enforcement agencies with a powerful intelligence tool and help form the basis of better prevention advice and alerts for businesses and the public. The NFRC is expected to become operational in spring 2009 and details of how it will operate are still being finalised. However, it is envisaged that it will accept reports of fraud both from individual members of the public and from organisations such as the PIPJIU.

Police: Manpower

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers per 100,000 residents there were in (a) Derbyshire, (b) Chesterfield and (c) each police authority in England in each year since 1997. [225328]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is as follows:

(a), (c) Data at the police force level are published annually in the Home Office Statistical Bulletin series "Police Service Strength, England and Wales", and are given in table 1.

(b) Data at the basic command unit level have been collected since 2002-03, are published annually online as supplementary tables of the main Police Service Strength bulletin, and are given in table 2.

Police: Mass Media

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what her policy is on the disclosure of details of criminal activity by the police to the media; [226734]

(2) how many police forces have introduced policies of withholding reports of criminal activities from the media; and if she will make a statement; [226735]

(3) whether she has advised chief constables that reports of criminal activities should not be disclosed to the media; [226737]

(4) how many representations she has received on the decision of Essex Police not to make reports of criminal activities available to the media. [226738]

Mr. Alan Campbell: These issues are related to operational matters that are the responsibility of the chief constable of the force concerned. The Home Office has received no representations and made no recommendations. If there are particular concerns about force policy in this area they should be raised with the chief constable.

Road Traffic Offences: Foreigners

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many non-UK residents have committed motoring offences which, had they been committed by UK residents, would have resulted in (a) a fixed penalty being issued and (b) penalty points being added to a driving licence, excluding those offences pursuable under the provisions of the European Arrest Warrant, in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [226724]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Motoring offence statistics do not identify the place of residence of those offered fixed penalties or whose licences are endorsed by court order. The offer of a fixed penalty, whether or not accompanied by penalty points, is not automatic, but a matter of police operational discretion in every case. If a case goes to court and is endorsable the court will decide the number of penalty points to be endorsed, within the scale prescribed for the offence, or may decide for special reasons not to order endorsement.

Security Guards: Licensing

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many convictions under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for supplying unlicensed security staff there were in the North Wales Police force area in 2006; [226691]

(2) how many convictions under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for working in a licensable role without a Security Industry Agency licence there were in the North Wales Police force area in 2006. [226692]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 13 October 2008]: There were no convictions in the North Wales Police force area for the offence of supplying unlicensed security staff under section 5 of the Act in 2006.

In 2006 there were seven convictions in the North Wales Police force area under section 3 of the Private Security Industry Act 2001 for working in a licensable role without a Security Industry Agency licence.

UK Border Agency: Corruption

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place in the UK Border Agency to prevent staff corruption. [226144]

Mr. Woolas: There are a range of measures in place in the UK Border Agency to prevent staff corruption. These include pre-employment and security screening for staff, safeguards, checks and balances built into systems and processes and a programme of security audits. It is not in the public interest to disclose specific details of these mechanisms as to do so would compromise them.

UK Border Agency: Marketing

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has spent on changing (a) signage and (b) other branded external and internal fittings at UK Border Agency buildings and airport facilities. [226055]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency has not kept central records of expenditure on changes to signage and other external fittings. To attempt to provide a composite figure would represent a disproportionate cost to the Department.

UK Border Agency: Security

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many electronic breaches of security there were at the UK Border Agency in each of the last three years. [226145]

Mr. Woolas: It is not in the interests of the UK's national security for Departments to confirm whether they hold information about attacks against their IT systems. This would enable individuals to deduce how successful the UK is in detecting these attacks and so assist such persons in testing the effectiveness of the UK's IT defences. This is not in the public interest.

UK Border Agency: Surveys

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken to assess staff morale at all grades within the UK Border Agency; and if she will publish the results of any such assessment. [226059]

Mr. Woolas: Managers in the UK Border Agency use a wide range of methods to assess staff morale, and to hear their views on practical changes which would improve motivation and performance. These include regular conversations with direct reports and with whole teams throughout the line management chain; programmes of visits to and discussions with frontline staff; and a variety of fora hosted on the Department's intranet whereby staff can post their views and get responses from Board members and other senior managers.

The management also hold regular meetings with the recognised trade unions at all levels.

In common with other Departments, the Home Office including the UK Border Agency, carries out a regular survey of staff attitudes and engagement. The results of the most recent survey are available to staff on the intranet, and will be published on the Cabinet Office public website in the next month.

UK Border Agency: Uniforms

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on the (a) design and commissioning and (b) manufacturing of uniforms for the UK Border Agency and its predecessors in each of the last five years. [226053]

Mr. Woolas: We are not yet in a position to provide the cost of the design, manufacture and distribution of uniforms for the UK Border Agency. We are currently scoping the requirements for a single uniform for frontline officers. The costs will be dependent on the commercial and procurement solutions delivered.

In 2006-07, the Home Department spent (inclusive of VAT) £16,017.00 on the provision of uniforms for frontline operational staff at the border; £970,001.14 in 2007-08 and £192,384.24 in 2008 to date.

Vetting

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) Criminal Records Bureau and (b) Enhanced Criminal Records Bureau checks were conducted in each year for which figures are available. [226612]

Meg Hillier: The number of Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) checks which have been dispatched since the CRB's inception are detailed in the following table and separated by the two types of checks that the CRB currently offer, standard or enhanced disclosures:

	Disclosures dispatched
Financial year	Number of standard disclosures	Number of enhanced disclosures
2002-03	178,375	1,258,719
2003-04	285,130	1,999,558
2004-05	275,197	2,155,740
2005-06	313,368	2,456,897
2006-07	329,223	2,948,734
2007-08	294,592	3,028,659

HEALTH

Action on Smoking and Health: Finance

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he takes to audit funding provided to Action on Smoking and Health by his Department to determine what proportion is used to lobby his Department; [227446]

(2) how many meetings (a) he, (b) his ministerial colleagues and (c) his officials have had on the future of tobacco control with (i) charities, (ii) professional bodies, (iii) retail businesses and (iv) manufacturers in the last three years; which of the charities with which meetings have been held are funded by his Department; and in each case how much funding has been allocated to each charity. [227447]

Dawn Primarolo: Action on Smoking and Health (ASH) received funding from the Department in the current financial year in accordance with the 'Section 64 General Scheme of Grants to voluntary and Community Organisations'. The standard conditions attached to these grants including audit procedures are published on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/managingyourorganisation/Financeandplanning/Section64grants/DH_076281

ASH has received this grant specifically to carry out a defined project entitled "Capitalising on Smokefree: the way forward". None of this funding is to be used for lobbying purposes.

The Department has completed a public consultation on 31 May 2008 on the future of tobacco control. This consultation was carried out in accordance with the Cabinet office code of practice. A copy of the, consultation document has already been placed in the Library.

Meetings have taken place at all levels of the Department, and at regional and local level. No central record has been kept of all the meetings held with the organisations listed and with other stakeholders. The consultation has received over 95,000 responses and these are being analysed.

In due course a summary of the analysis of responses will be published on the Department's website. A large number of charitable organisations will have been involved in responding to the consultation. Details of the funding of those organisations attending meetings or taking part in this consultation have not been collected in the form requested. There will continue to be meetings with interested stakeholders at all appropriate levels, as a future strategy is developed to tackle the death and disease caused by smoking.

Breast Cancer: Screening

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Government has in place to ensure that there are appropriate resources and infrastructure for all breast screening units to have at least one full-field digital mammography set by 2010, as stated in the Cancer Reform Strategy. [226282]

Ann Keen: Primary care trusts are responsible for ensuring that all local breast screening units have at least one full-field digital mammography set by 2010. The rollout of digital mammography to the NHS Breast Screening Programme is being supported by a capital investment of approximately £120 million. This money has been allocated to trusts as part of the wider capital funding allocation they receive.

As a result of requests from local breast screening services, we have put in place a national framework contract for digital mammography X-ray equipment. This approach will enable standardised equipment to be purchased, the best value for money to be obtained, and will support local services with national expertise. Further details on how this will be taken forward will be issued to the national health service in the autumn.

Cancer: Children

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what childhood cancer centres there are in England; and how many (a) patients under treatment, (b) consultant medical staff and (c) clinical nurse specialists there are at each. [226143]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect this data centrally.

With regard to staff, it is for local employers to work in partnership with cancer networks, strategic health authorities, national health service trusts and post graduate deaneries to put in place a sustainable process to access, plan and review their workforce needs against local and national priorities for cancer.

Care Homes

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the availability of residential care home places in (a) Bexley, (b) London and (c) England. [225924]

Phil Hope: We were informed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that the total numbers of residential care homes and places, as at 10 September 2008, were as shown in the following table. It should be noted that the figures shown are the total number of registered homes and places on the date shown. Information on occupancy levels and vacancy rates in care homes is not collected centrally.

Numbers of care homes and registered places

Area	All care homes	Registered places
England	18,464	450,210
London	1,978	39,916
Bexley	36	1,069

Cervical Cancer

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to increase the detection rates for cervical cancers in women under 25 years old. [226880]

Ann Keen: The incidence of cervical cancer in women under the age of 25 is very rare. In 2005, only 1.9 per cent. of all registrations of cervical cancer were in women aged under 25 and there were no deaths from cervical cancer in that age group.

Any women under 25 who are concerned about their risk of developing cervical cancer should contact their general practitioner or genito-urinary medicine clinic to discuss the matter.

In September 2008, we introduced a human papillomavirus immunisation programme to routinely vaccinate girls aged 12-13 years. Young women aged 17-18 will also be offered the vaccination during the current school year, and a catch-up of girls up to the age of 18 will commence next autumn. As the vaccine offers protection against the two virus types that cause 70 per cent. of all cervical cancers, we expect this immunisation programme to reduce cervical cancer rates in England over time. Experts estimate that the programme will save 400 lives a year.

Chiropody

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has published on the decontamination procedure for nail clipping implements used for chiropody care in the NHS. [226276]

Ann Keen: The Department has not published specific guidance on decontamination procedures for nail clipping or indeed other procedures within chiropody and podiatry. However, the Department has recently started a process of consultation with the professional and learned bodies across the foot-care professions and many other groups within primary care. This will result in a specific Health Technical Memorandum (HTM 01-07) Decontamination in Primary Care. Publication, following consultation and peer review, is expected in nine to 12 months' time.

Dental Services

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists per 100,000 residents there were in (a) Chesterfield, (b) Derbyshire and (c) England in each year since 1997. [225899]

Ann Keen: The number of dentists with NHS activity per 100,000 population, during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 is available in Table G1 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007-08 report. Information is available by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT). Information by constituency is not available. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006.

This measure is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. The revised methodology counts the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also on the NHS Information Centre website at:

http://www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

The number of persons per NHS dentist in England, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in Annex F of the NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report England: 31 March 2006 report. The information is provided by PCT and SHA. Equivalent information by constituency is not available; however the number of NHS dentists by constituency is available in Annex G.

This measure relates to the number of NHS dentists recorded on PCT lists as at 31 March each year. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements, which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also on the NHS Information Centre website at:

http://www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity

The dentist numbers published are headcounts and do not differentiate between full-time and part-time dentists, nor do they account for the fact that some dentists may do more NHS work than others.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will discuss with the Chief Dental Officer the development of a programme to encourage universal regular cleaning of teeth, with the co-operation of relevant manufacturers of oral hygiene products; and if he will make a statement. [226207]

Ann Keen: The Department has been collaborating with manufacturers of oral hygiene products on oral health promotion since 2001. Under the Brushing for Life scheme, which was launched in 2001, free packs containing a toothbrush a tube of fluoride toothpaste and a leaflet on oral hygiene are given to families with young children in clinics and Sure Start Children's Centres. The leaflet is designed to reinforce the advice given by the health or social care professional, who gives the pack to the child's parent or carer, about the importance of brushing with fluoride toothpaste in the morning and at night. Colgate-Palmolive (UK) Ltd was awarded the contract for the supply of toothpaste in the most recent competitive tendering exercise. The chief dental officer has collaborated with the company on a series of conferences to publicise the Brushing for Life Scheme and, more recently, to promote good practice in incorporating preventive measures in general dental practice. The chief dental officer has regular contact with the other major toothpaste and oral hygiene products manufacturers.

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether there is a limit on the number of patients who can be registered with any one NHS dentist. [226268]

Ann Keen: How many patients a dentist is able to provide care for is a matter for the individual dentist, taking account of the contracted yearly activity he or she has agreed with their local NHS primary care trust to deliver. Registration is no longer part of the formal national remuneration system.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists have their surgeries on premises shared with private dental hygienists. [227435]

Ann Keen: This information is not held centrally. Most dentists are independent contractors, and many practice owners chose to offer both national health service and private treatment. It is for practice owners to decide whether to employ or engage a hygienist as part of their dental team, and whether or not to use them to deliver private or NHS dental treatment.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the NHS dentists' contract requires dentists offering treatment under the NHS to provide dental (a) polishing and (b) cleaning services under the contract. [227437]

Ann Keen: The national health service contractual requirement is to provide all proper and necessary dental care and treatment that the patient is willing to undergo. A Band 1 course of treatment (diagnosis, treatment planning and maintenance) includes examination, diagnosis (for example X-rays), advice on how to prevent future problems, and scaling and polishing if clinically needed.

Dental Services: Fees and Charges

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the average charge made by dentists for (a) crown fitting, (b) root treatment and (c) a check-up. [226267]

Ann Keen: Dentists are not paid separately, nor are patients charged, for single items of national health service dental treatment. The present three tier system of NHS dental charges sets the charge payable by an NHS patient according to the overall content of each course of treatment. From 1 April 2008 the patient charge for a band 1 course of treatment which may include an examination and diagnosis, treatment planning and preventive treatment, is £16.20. The charge for a band 2 course of treatment, which includes any necessary band 1 treatment plus any interventions such as fillings or root canal treatments, is £44.60. A band 3 course of treatment, which includes any necessary band 1 and band 2 treatments plus the provision of appliances such as one or more crowns, bridges and dentures, incurs a patient charge of £198. A patient does not have to pay for NHS dental treatment if they are aged under 18; aged 18 and in full-time education; pregnant or have had a baby in the previous 12 months; or are in receipt of certain defined benefits, tax and pension credits, or qualify for assistance under the NHS low income Scheme.

The Department collects no data on charges levied by dentists for private dental treatment, which are set by the individual dentist or dental practice.

Dental Services: Greater Manchester

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS patients are registered with dentists in (a) Bolton and (b) Greater Manchester. [226269]

Ann Keen: Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with a NHS dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to "registration" is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ("patients seen") over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

Information on the number of patients seen by an NHS dentist in England, over the previous 24-month period, is available in Table C1 of Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: Quarter 3: 31 December 2007" report. Information is available for the 24-month periods ending 31 March 2006, 31 March 2007, 30 June 2007, 30 September 2007 and 31 December 2007. Information is provided by strategic health authority and primary care trust (PCT).

This report, published on 5 June 2008 by the Information Centre for health and social care, has already been placed in the Library. It is available on the Information Centre for health and social care's website at: www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0708q3

The Dental Services Division (DSD) of the NHS Business Services Authority has recently issued patients seen information at PCT level. However, this was for management purposes. PCTs have recently raised some issues which suggest that the way in which patients are allocated to PCTs across the various quarters needs to be reviewed. This means that sub-national information on patients seen was not included in the "Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report, published by the NHS Information Centre on 21 August 2008. The DSD has confirmed that this issue could have only a minimal impact on the national figures. They were therefore labelled as provisional pending the review. An update will be provided in the "Dental Statistics for England: 2008/09 Quarter 1" report in November 2008.

Dental Services: Private Sector

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will undertake an investigation of the effect of the takeover of dental practices by Associated Dental Practices Co. Ltd on the provision of dental services; and if he will make a statement. [226115]

Ann Keen: Associated Dental Practices is one of a number of corporate bodies providing national health service dental care. The company bids for NHS contracts on the same basis as any other company or individual practice owner. Since the reform of dental contracts in 2006, providers of dental services, do not control the level of provision of dental services but contract with primary care trusts to deliver an annual amount of service.

We are committed to increasing the number of patients able to access NHS care and welcome the growing interest of commercial companies in providing services to the NHS.

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226420]

Mr. Bradshaw: There were 809 non-pensionable bonuses awarded to staff in the last year, at a cost of £2,423,701.

Special bonuses can be awarded to any member of staff in recognition of work beyond their normal range of duties. Annual bonuses are paid to staff who are members of the senior civil service (SCS), based on the extent to which objectives are met, how they are met and how stretching they are. The figures provided cover special bonuses for the year from 1 October 2007 to 30 September 2008, and annual SCS bonuses awarded in 2008.

Diabetes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average points score was for practices across each primary care trust for the 16 indicators for diabetes in the quality of outcomes framework. [225179]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what figures his Department holds on predicted diabetes rates in the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [225183]

(2) how many people with diagnosed type two diabetes there are in each primary care trust; and how many people are estimated to have undiagnosed type two diabetes in each such area. [225184]

Ann Keen: The Department does not hold information on predicted diabetes rates for the next 10 years. Yorkshire and Humber Public Health Observatory's PBS Diabetes Population Prevalence Model forecasts that, if obesity levels continue to rise at the same rate, there will be over 3.2 million with people with diabetes in 2020.

	Scenario 1: Obesity rise continues[1]	Scenario 2: Obesity maintained at 2005 level
2005	2,262,484	2,262,484
2010	2,561,421	2,434,164
2015	2,874,066	2,600,833
2020	3,229,734	2,788,676
2025	3,605,133	2,974,995

[1] Based on extrapolation of 1991-2006 trend in body mass index distribution in the Health Survey for England

Information on the number of people diagnosed with type 2 diabetes in each primary care trust (PCT) is not available. However, tables have been placed in the Library which show the number of people on diabetes registers (including both type 1 and type 2 diabetes) from April 2007 to March 2008, broken down by PCT, from the Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF). Patients will only contribute to the figures in QOF if they are registered with a general practice participating in the QOF. The QOF only includes people with diabetes aged 17 or over.

The PBS Diabetes Population Prevalence Model can estimate the number of people with diagnosed and undiagnosed diabetes in each PCT. The table shows the estimated number of people with type 2 diabetes (diagnosed and undiagnosed) per PCT in 2005, the latest information available from the PBS model.

Health Inequality

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he has taken to develop a joint health inequality study with his counterparts in the Scottish Executive, Northern Ireland Assembly and Welsh Assembly Government. [226870]

Dawn Primarolo: No steps have been taken to develop a joint health inequality study. While responsibility for health matters rests with the devolved Administrations, there has been, and continues to be, liaison and co-operation between the Department and the other health departments on health inequalities, including meetings to exchange information on current work and strategy.

Health Professions: Training

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government has taken to ensure health practitioners are suitably qualified and trained. [226774]

Ann Keen: The publication of High Quality Care for All in June 2008 followed an intensive consultation with all the key stakeholders including patients, the public and staff. The report was warmly received by all and set out how the NHS work force will be developed, specifying how the Department will work with regulatory bodies, professional groups and commissioners to ensure that health practitioners are suitable qualified and trained to deliver high quality healthcare. The report has already been placed in the Library.

Health: Finance

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost of offering free universal health check ups for everyone over 40 years of age starting from April 2009, as announced by the Prime Minister on 23 September; what the expected take-up rate is; and on what that estimate is based. [225951]

Ann Keen: The free universal check up for those aged over 40, to which the Prime Minister referred on 23 September, is the vascular checks programme. This will put in place an integrated, systematic population-wide vascular risk assessment and management programme for those between the ages of 40 and 74. The programme will assess people's risk of heart disease, stroke, diabetes and kidney disease.

The total annual cost at full implementation (including interventions to manage the risk of vascular disease) was estimated to be in the region of £250 million in the first phase of the modelling. This is in addition to what is currently being spent on vascular checks type activity in many primary care trusts. The estimate is based on detailed economic modelling work that underpins the vascular checks programme, on which we have recently consulted. We are reviewing our modelling and analysis in the light of this.

The expected take-up rate of the vascular checks programme we have used in the economic modelling is 75 per cent., based on the rate achieved in the national breast screening programme.

Health: Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) from which budget the funding will be taken for the free universal check-ups for everyone over 40 years of age from April 2009; [226283]

(2) how his Department's free universal check-ups for everyone over 40 years of age, available from April 2009, will differ from the free consultations with a GP that are available to any patient who has not had one in the last three years; [226284]

(3) how his Department plans to advertise to those over the age of 40 years the availability of free universal check-ups from April 2009; [226290]

(4) what checks will be included in the free universal check-ups to be made available to everyone over the age of 40 years starting from April 2009; [226295]

(5) where the free universal check-ups available to everyone over 40 years of age will be delivered; and how long each check-up will take; [226296]

(6) how many free universal check-ups for those over the age of 40 years his Department expects to be given in 2009-10; and what the average cost of each check-up is expected to be; [226297]

(7) how frequently people over 40 years of age will be able to receive a free universal check-up after April 2009. [226298]

Ann Keen: The free universal check up for those aged over 40, to which my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister referred on 23 September, is the vascular checks programme. This will put in place an integrated, systematic population-wide vascular risk assessment and management programme for those between the ages of 40 and 74. The programme will assess people's risk of heart disease, stroke, diabetes and kidney disease. People will be recalled every five years unless they are identified as having a high risk of vascular disease or have previously untreated or undiagnosed existing vascular disease, in which case they will be managed appropriately through primary care.

The vascular check will include a number of well-evidenced tests for vascular disease and diabetes risk factors such as blood pressure, cholesterol measurement, and Body Mass Index and questions such as age, gender, smoking status, physical activity, and family history. Each person will be given the results of their tests, which will be an individual assessment of their vascular risk, and advice on how to manage it. Following this, appropriate interventions will be offered depending on the individual's level of risk. We estimate it will take two appointments at about 15 minutes each to complete the check.

The check is designed to be undertaken in a variety of settings to ensure maximum possible take up. For example, it can be undertaken in a general practitioners surgery, a pharmacy or other community settings such as community centres. Primary care trusts (PCTs) will commission this service and in doing so will decide the most appropriate locations in which it should be delivered bearing in mind the local needs and circumstances of their population.

It is difficult to estimate the number of tests that will be undertaken during the first year of implementation in 2009-10 since many PCTs are already running vascular checks type programmes in their areas. Also, implementation of this programme will be phased and so the number of checks carried out in the first year will depend on the pace at which each PCT decides to roll it out. The estimated average cost of a vascular check used in the first phase of the modelling that underpins this programme was in the region of £33.50. This figure may be subject to change as further modelling work is currently underway to refine costings, following a consultation exercise over the summer. The funding to implement this programme will be allocated to PCTs.

The NHS Next Stage Review, "High Quality Care for All", published on 30 June 2008, announced the introduction of the 'Reduce Your Risk' campaign, which will raise awareness of the vascular checks programme and vascular conditions generally. This publication has already been placed in the Library.

Heart Diseases

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the clinical strategy on chronic obstructive pulmonary disease to be published. [226067]

Ann Keen: The Department is aiming to publish the Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease Strategy before the end of the current financial year.

Independent Reconfiguration Panel

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) who the last five people to leave the Independent Reconfiguration Panel were; when they left; and how long they served for; [226457]

(2) what discussions his Department had with the Independent Reconfiguration Panel on its review of services at Bridlington Hospital prior to the announcement of the Panel's decision; [226541]

(3) how many people the Independent Reconfiguration Panel employs; [226543]

(4) what payments members of the Independent Reconfiguration Panel receive; [226544]

(5) who makes appointments to the Independent Reconfiguration Panel; and what the duration of such appointments is. [226545]

Ann Keen: Four members have left the Independent Reconfiguration Panel (IRP) since it was established in 2003. Dame Kathyrn Elcoat (left 19 May 2005), Lise Llewellyn (left 31 March 2006), Malcolm Stamp (left 31 March 2006) and the Right Reverend Mark Santer (left 30 September 2007).

Departmental officials liaised with the officers of the IRP over the timing of the publication of the IRP report on Bridlington in line with the protocol between DH and the IRP. The Secretary of State for Health also met with Dr. Peter Barrett (chair) and Richard Jeavons (chief executive) of the IRP in July 2008 to review all ongoing IRP work.

The IRP is an advisory non-departmental public body (NDPB) sponsored by the Department of Health. The IRP is supported by three full time staff, a chief executive, a secretary and an office support manager.

Members of the panel are entitled to claim £140 per day for work on IRP business together with normal expenses in line with civil service rates.

It is the Appointments Commission who appoints all members to the IRP and all original members have been re-appointed though the Appointments Commission. Although the chair of the IRP was reappointed by Ministers on 1 April 2005, this time he will be re-appointed by the Appointments Commission. Initial terms of office are usually four years.

Lung Diseases

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many individuals diagnosed with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease have also been diagnosed with asthma in each primary care trust in England; and if he will make a statement. [226478]

Ann Keen: This information is not held centrally as it is not possible to accurately identify or analyse patients with both asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease from General Practice Disease Registers.

Maternity Services

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on (a) the NHS and (b) NHS maternity services in the 2007-08 financial year. [225896]

Ann Keen: The requested statistics are given as follows.

Forecast outturn net NHS expenditure for 2007-08 is £89,217 million[1].

Total expenditure on the commissioning of secondary maternity services by primary care trusts in 2007-08 is £ 1,787 million[2].

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire of 2 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1101-02W, on maternity services: finance, how much was spent on NHS maternity services in each region of England in 2007-08. [225946]

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will assess whether a policy of introducing compulsory single room occupancy in maternity units would result in the closure of any existing units. [226721]

Ann Keen: In the national health service, it is practice that all women give birth in single rooms except where medical interventions take place, for example, a caesarean section which would mean delivery in an operating theatre. Pre and post-natal stays may be in a single room or in a multi-bed bay. In some cases, especially antenatal, it may be inappropriate from a clinical standpoint, for example, day observation, for a single room to be used.

There is no policy of compulsory single room occupancy. How maternity services are structured and commissioned, to meet the needs of the local population, is a matter for local determination.

Medical Equipment

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of disposable surgical instruments supplied to the NHS since 1997, broken down by sub-heading. [226277]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following table.

NHS trusts and strategic health authorities make decisions on the use of disposable or single-use instruments at local level.

A framework agreement for single use instruments was awarded in May 2001 with all products for England being supplied through the NHS Supply Chain. NHS Supply Chain places orders against this agreement depending on the orders received from NHS trusts. The framework is not mandatory and does not cover all NHS trusts. Prior to 2003 data were collated at a local trust level and no information is held centrally.

Midwives

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS consultant midwives there were in each region of England in 2007. [225889]

Ann Keen: The number of NHS consultant midwives there are in each region of England is shown in the following table.

NHS hospital and community health services: nurse consultants in the Maternity Services area of work in England by strategic health authority area as at 30 September 2007.

Note:
Workforce statistics are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data. Processing methods and procedures are continually being updated to improve data quality. Where this happens any impact on figures already published will be assessed but unless this is significant at national level they will not be changed. Where there is impact only at detailed or local level this will be footnoted in relevant analyses.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the NHS workforce in England comprised midwives in each of the last two years for which figures are available, expressed in terms of (a) headcount and (b) full-time equivalent. [225892]

Ann Keen: The 2006 national health service workforce census showed that there were 24,469 midwives or 18,862 full-time equivalent.

The 2007 NHS workforce census showed that there were 25,093 midwives or 19,298 full-time equivalent.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average annual cost to public funds was of training a student midwife in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by (a) tuition, (b) bursary and (c) other costs. [225894]

Ann Keen: The average national benchmark price for the tuition fee for a student midwife in 2007-08 was £7,968.

The average NHS Bursary paid to a student midwife in 2007-08 was £5,796. This includes the basic award, all supplementary allowances and one off payments.

Other costs include:

a reduced rate loan for living costs from the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills. Student midwives in receipt of a means tested NHS Bursary can apply for this reduced rate loan. Information is not held centrally on the cost of these loans for student midwives.

Access to Learning Funds which is the extra financial support provided by colleges and universities to students in financial hardship. Information is not held centrally on the cost of Access to Learning Funds for student midwives; and Salary support funding for student midwives who are seconded onto midwifery courses. Information is not held centrally on the salary support costs for student midwives.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many student midwives were in receipt of a bursary in each academic year since 1996-97; what average bursary was paid to a student midwife in each year; and what the total cost was of all bursaries paid to student midwives in each year. [225895]

Ann Keen: The number of student midwives in receipt of an NHS bursary in each year since 1996-97, the average bursary paid to a student midwife in each year and the total cost of all bursaries paid to student midwives in each year is shown in the following table.

[1] Includes nil award holders (European Union fees only students and students whose living allowance element of the bursary has been reduced to nil after income assessment). Phased uptake. Prior to 1997 local education authorities were primarily responsible for the administration of HE maintenance grants under Department for Education and Skills (mandatory awards) regulation to degree level students. From 1999 Student Bursaries became responsible for the payment of bursaries to new diploma level students, formally the responsibility of higher education institutions.

[2] Includes the basic award and all supplementary allowances. Excludes one-off payments e.g. re-imbursement of practice placement costs.

[3] Includes one-off payments e.g. disabled students allowance, reimbursement of practice placement costs etc.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2008, Official Report, columns 513-4W, on midwives, how many live births per full-time equivalent NHS midwife there were in (a) England and (b) each region of England in 2007. [225947]

Ann Keen: The information will be available in December 2008.

Naomi House

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to assist Naomi House in recovering the funds it invested in Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander Limited. [227363]

Mr. Bradshaw: The investment of funds by charitable organisations are governed by investment and accountability rules set by the Charities Commission, and are beyond the scope of the Department.

The Charity Commission has published guidance concerning the principles to be applied in the investment of charitable funds (its leaflet CC14) and has recently published guidance to charities concerning the Financial Compensation Scheme. Queries relating to charitable funds should be directed to the Charity Commission in the first instance.

Naomi House

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding his Department has provided to Naomi House in each of the last four years. [227364]

Ann Keen: The Department has provided Naomi House with payments under the Children's Hospice and Children's Hospice at Home scheme only for the past three years. Details of that funding is shown in the following table.

2006-07	330,000
2007-08	300,000
2008-09	317,475

NHS Foundation Trusts: Bank Services

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what deposits foundation trusts held with commercial banks in the latest period for which figures are available; [227457]

(2) whether any foundation trusts have deposits in Icelandic banks. [227546]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to my written ministerial statement issued on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 38-39WS.

We have been advised by the Chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS foundation trusts) that as at 31 March 2008 the aggregated cash balances and investments of 89 NHS foundation trusts (authorised as at 31 March 2008) amounted to £2.3 billion. The cash and investment balance is broken down as follows:

	£ million
Cash at commercial banks and in hand	256.6
Cash at Office of Paymaster General	1,636.8
Investments	374

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what rules govern foundation trusts depositing funds other than with the Paymaster General. [227458]

Mr. Bradshaw: National health service foundation trusts are autonomous organisations, free from central Government control. As high performing organisations, NHS Foundation Trusts have wide discretion to invest money. The boards of NHS Foundation Trusts are responsible for ensuring that surplus cash is invested in accordance with their duty to safeguard and properly account for the use of public money. Monitor, the independent regulator, has issued best practice guidance on how NHS Foundation Trusts should mange their cash. This guidance reflects prudent practice, and is designed to promote fiscal responsibility and prudent investments that do not compromise effective, efficient and economic delivery of services.

NHS: Bank Services

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the extent to which (a) primary care trusts, (b) strategic health authorities, (c) NHS trusts, (d) foundation trusts and (e) the NHS bank hold deposits in commercial banks; what advice he has given to such NHS organisations on the exposure of such investments to bank collapse; and if he will make such a statement. [227456]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect in-year data for the cash balances of commercial bank accounts held by strategic health authorities (SHAs), primary care trusts (PCTs), NHS trusts or NHS foundation trusts. However this information is reported at the end of the financial year and forms part of an NHS organisation's annual accounts.

For indicative purposes, the following table shows the amount held on deposit in commercial banks or held as cash at the 31 March 2008.

Organisation type	Commercial cash at bank and in hand (£000s)
Strategic health authorities	4
Primary care trusts	6,790
NHS trusts	10,113
NHS foundation trusts	256,600

In general, the large majority of cash balances held by NHS organisations will be in Government bank accounts with HM Office of the Paymaster General, which all NHS organisations must hold.

SHAs and PCTs may hold commercial bank accounts but in practice the large majority of cash balances of all SHAs and PCTs will be in Government bank accounts. In addition, SHAs and PCTs are discouraged from holding commercial bank accounts by applying a charge to any average cleared balance over £25,000.

National health service trusts are able to hold commercial bank accounts but these are limited by legislation and in practice the large majority of balances for NHS trusts will be held in Government bank accounts.

NHS foundation trusts are autonomous organisations, free from central Government control. As high performing organisations, NHS foundation trusts have wide discretion to invest money. The boards of NHS foundation trusts are responsible for ensuring that surplus cash is invested in accordance with their duty to safeguard and properly account for the use of public money. Monitor, the independent regulator, has issued best practice guidance on how NHS foundation trusts should mange their cash. This guidance reflects prudent practice, and is designed to promote fiscal responsibility and prudent investments that do not compromise effective, efficient and economic delivery of services.

It should be noted the NHS Bank no longer exists.

NHS: Finance

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the increase in the total NHS settlement for 2007-08 was spent on additional or increased salaries. [226863]

Ann Keen: The requested statistics are given in the table.

Proportion of the increase in the NHS expenditure on pay

£ million

	Total NHS expenditure	Total pay bill
2006-07 out-turn	80,561	35,312
2007-08 estimated out-turn	89,217	36,685
Increase	8,656	1,373

Notes:
1. Total expenditure is calculated as the sum of revenue and capital expenditure net of non-trust depreciation and impairments. This is in line with HMT guidance.
2. Total pay bill comprises all NHS staff in England only and excludes agency; includes estimates for foundation trusts.
3. Pay bill figures are taken from final NHS financial returns for 2006-07.
4. The forecasts of pay for 2007-08 are consistent with those supplied as part of the written evidence to pay review bodies.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will break down the NHS Settlement for 2007-08 as allocated to centrally-funded initiatives by main budget heading; and if he will make a statement. [226864]

Mr. Bradshaw: The requested information is contained in the Department of Health's departmental report 2008 in tables 9.18 and 9.19, page 160, which has been placed in the Library.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the budgets of NHS organisations have been top-sliced in 2008-09; whether the top-sliced amounts held by the strategic health authorities at the end of 2007-08 have been returned to the organisations; and if he will make a statement. [227455]

Mr. Bradshaw: The 2008-09 national health service (NHS) operating framework confirms that strategic health authorities (SHAs) may agree arrangements with the primary care trusts (PCTs) in their area which allow the voluntary transfer and lodgement of revenue resources with the SHA, provided that such transfer is within the limit of the overall SHA planned surplus. The Department does not expect SHAs to require an involuntary top slice of PCT revenue allocations.

Audited NHS accounts for 2007-08 report the net value of the top-sliced revenue resources transferred to, and paid back, by SHAs during the year, and the balance remaining with SHAs at the year-end. This information has already been placed in the Library.

NHS: Negligence

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many litigation cases were brought against his Department for clinical negligence in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much was paid out as a result. [226854]

Ann Keen: The Department has not received any litigation cases for clinical negligence. Claims of clinical negligence in the national health service are made against the NHS body providing the care.

Of the 4,593 cases formally claimed in 2007-08, as of 30 September 2008, 2,262 have been settled, with £18,217,815 being paid out in damages, £2,272,334 in defence legal costs and £7,878,866 in claimant legal costs. The NHS Litigation Authority, which handles clinical negligence cases on behalf of member organisations, provided this information. The data do not include claims made against self-employed contractors in primary care.

NHS: Pay

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to raise pay levels for care workers in the NHS. [226720]

Ann Keen: NHS care workers are paid according to the Agenda for Change (AfC) system. The AfC pay system covers all directly employed NHS staff except doctors and dentists pay review body groups and very senior managers. A three-year pay deal for AfC staff is in place which provides a headline pay uplift of 2.75 per cent. for 2008-09, among the best increases in the public sector this year. The deal will be worth 2.54 per cent. in 2009-10 and 2.5 per cent. in 2010-11. These increases are in addition to year-on-year incremental increases for the vast majority of AfC staff.

NHS: Training

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government has taken to improve the skills of non-medically trained NHS employees. [226775]

Ann Keen: The Department has worked with key stakeholders such as NHS Employers, Skills for Health and trade unions to develop education and career frameworks and to ensure effective use of the Joint Investment Fund that will provide up to £100 million per year of extra investment. This will be backed up by a doubling in investment in apprenticeships in the NHS.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government has taken to improve the skills of NHS contracted staff. [226776]

Ann Keen: The Government expect that all staff possess the level of skills required to deliver high quality health care, irrespective of whether they are employed directly by the NHS or they have been contracted to deliver that service. This applies to clinical and non-clinical staff alike.

Nurses

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of each item of guidance his Department has issued to the NHS in the last 12 months on the modern matrons programme; [226299]

(2) what data his Department has gathered from NHS trusts to assess progress with the implementation of the modern matrons programme. [226300]

Ann Keen: Information about the number of modern matrons is collected centrally. This shows that there were 5,538 modern matrons in post on 6 June. No further information is collected centrally and no guidance has been issued in the last 12 months.

Organs: Donors

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date he expects the report of the Organ Donation Taskforce on presumed consent to be published. [227544]

Ann Keen: The Organ Donation Taskforce is currently considering its findings on the potential impact on organ donation rates of introducing an opt out system of consent. It will shortly submit its report to UK Health Ministers for consideration after which the report will be published.

Patients: Transport

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he has taken to improve the conditions under which critically ill patients are transferred between hospitals. [226847]

Ann Keen: Local health commissioners work with local hospitals, ambulance trusts and critical care networks to assess, commission and monitor the arrangements for transferring critically ill patients. We would expect that transfers follow relevant guidance from professional organisations, in particular the Intensive Care Society.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) from what date prescription charges will be abolished for all patients with long-term conditions; how much he expects this measure to cost; and how many patients per annum he expects to benefit from it; [226285]

(2) when he plans to publish the conclusions of his Department's review into the prescription charging system in England. [226288]

(3) how much he expects abolishing prescription charges for cancer patients to cost; and from which budget this funding will be taken; [226286]

(4) how many cancer patients paid prescription charges in the latest year for which figures are available. [226287]

Ann Keen: The expected cost of exempting cancer patients in England from prescription charges is around £20 million a year. This will be funded from within our existing Comprehensive Spending Review settlement.

We do not hold figures on how many cancer patients currently pay prescription charges however, we estimate this to be in the region of 250,000 people.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether patients with long-term diseases will be eligible for free prescriptions under his recently announced proposals to extend eligibility for such prescriptions. [226722]

Ann Keen: As announced by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State in his written ministerial statement to the House on 8 October 2008, Official Report, column 17ws), we have asked Professor Ian Gilmore to lead a review of prescription charges on how to implement our plans to phase in free prescriptions for those people in England with long term conditions effectively. The Government estimate that a further five million people will be exempted from paying prescription charges at a cost of between £250-£350 million a year depending on the actual numbers of such patients and the timetable for implementing these changes.

We expect to publish the findings of this review in summer 2009.

Social Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the evidential basis is for his Department's assertion that there is likely to be a £6 billion funding gap in social care in 20 years' time. [226292]

Phil Hope: This information is available on the Care, Support, Independence website at:

www.careandsupport.direct.gov.uk/stakeholder-information

The article on future funding requirements for adult social care has been placed in the Library.

Social Services: Finance

Alistair Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress he is making in devising an independent complaints procedure for those who arrange and finance their own social care and who are currently excluded from other statutory complaints procedures. [226119]

Phil Hope: We will be seeking to legislate as soon as parliamentary time allows. In the meantime departmental officials are working with the local government ombudsman on the details of the proposed new arrangements whereby the ombudsman is given the power to handle complaints by people who fund or arrange their own adult social care services.

Tobacco

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the tobacco industry in the last 12 months. [227784]

Dawn Primarolo: During the last 12 months there have been a number of meetings between departmental officials and representatives of the tobacco industry.

These meetings are technical in nature relating to compliance with the regulation of the industry at national, European and international levels.

Trauma Audit and Research Network

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of hospitals participate in the Trauma Audit and Research Network; and what steps he plans to take to increase the number of hospitals participating. [226848]

Ann Keen: The Trauma and Audit Research Network (TARN) is an independent organisation that is not funded directly by the Department, and as such the Department does not collect data on participation rates. TARN publishes a wide range of information about their work on their website, www.tarn.ac.uk. Further information can be obtained from TARN via:

Professor Tim Coats (Chairman)

Trauma: Children

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of trauma cases involved children in the latest period for which figures are available. [226849]

Ann Keen: We are unable to supply the information requested as the definition of trauma is too wide to accurately supply data. Medically "trauma" can refer to any serious or critical bodily injury, wound or shock. In psychiatric terms a "trauma" may refer to an experience that is emotionally painful, distressing or shocking which often results in lasting mental and physical effects.

Wharfedale Hospital

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients Wharfedale Hospital in Leeds treated in each year since it opened in 2004. [226386]

Ann Keen: The information is not available as requested. Data on the count of hospital admissions to Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust, which includes the Wharfedale Hospital, from 2003-04 to 2006-07 is shown in the following table.

	Total admissions
2006-07	196,662
2005-06	190,604
2004-05	187,404
2003-04	182,822

Notes:
Finished admission episodes: A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Please note that admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year. Data quality: HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the NHS in England. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain. Assessing growth through time: HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. During the years that these records have been collected by the NHS there have been on-going improvements in quality and coverage. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example, a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted for in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time. Source: Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), The Information Centre for health and social care: NHS Hospitals England and activity performed in the Independent Sector in England commissioned by English NHS.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Cervical Cancer

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many women under the age of 25 years were diagnosed with cervical cancer in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [227232]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many women under the age of 25 years were diagnosed with cervical cancer in each of the last five years for which figures are available [227232].

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases (incidence) of cancer are for the year 2005. Numbers of cases of cervical cancer for the years 2001 to 2005 for England are given in Table 1 below.

Table 1: Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of cervical cancer[1] under the age of 25 years, England, 2001-05

Colorectal Cancer

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) men and (b) women were diagnosed with bowel cancer in each calendar year since 1997, broken down (i) by Government region and (ii) by those aged (A) under 30, (B) 30 to 40, (C) 41 to 50 and (D) 51 to 60 years. [225704]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many (a) men and (b) women were diagnosed with bowel cancer in each calendar year since 1997, broken down (i) by Government region and (ii) by those aged (A) under 30, (B) 30 to 40, (C) 41 to 50 and (D) 51 to 60 years. [225704]

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2005. Numbers of cases of bowel cancer for men and women in each calendar year since 1997, broken down (i) by Government office region and (ii) by age are given in Table 1 and Table 2 below. Ages are presented to be consistent with the standard age groups published by the Office for National Statistics (0-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59).

Departmental Press

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 2 July 2008, Official Report, column 1003W, on departmental press, if he will (a) estimate the cost of answering the Question and (b) set out the cost assumptions on which that estimate is based. [225555]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested by the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) cannot be separately identified on the Cabinet Office's accounting system. To seek to identify the costs involved would require consulting individual budget holders across the Department who in turn would have to identify relevant expenditure in order to obtain a total for the Department. The Department estimates that the cost of obtaining this information would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold as stated by my hon. Friend the then Financial Secretary to the Treasury on 28 November 2006, Official Report, column 87WS.

Drugs: Death

Norman Lamb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) men and (b) women died from drug misuse in each year since 1997. [227510]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many (a) men and (b) women died from drug misuse in each year since 1997. (227510)

The table attached provides the numbers of deaths for which the underlying cause was drug poisoning, where any drug controlled under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 was mentioned on the death certificate, for (a) males and (b) females, from 1997 to 2007 (the latest year available).

Table 1: Number of deaths from drug misuse,[1] males and females, England and Wales, 1997 to 2007[2, 3]

	Male	Female
1997	1,041	271
1998	1,142	315
1999	1,321	307
2000	1,329	275

2005	1,260	348
2006	1,250	323
2007	1,287	317

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) for the years 1997 to 2000, and Tenth Revision (ICD-10) for 2001 onwards. Deaths were included where the underlying cause was due to drug poisoning (corresponding ICD-9 and ICD-10 codes are shown in the following table) and where a drug controlled under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 was mentioned on the death certificate.
[2] Figures include deaths of non-residents.
[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the employment rate was of (a) people, (b) UK citizens and (c) UK-born people aged over 50 years old in (i) each year since 1997 and (ii) each of the last eight quarters for which figures are available. [225147]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what the employment rate was of (a) people aged over 50 years of working age (b) UK citizens aged over 50 years of working age and (c) UK-born people aged over 50 years of working age in (i) each year since 1997 and (ii) each of the last eight quarters for which figures are available. (225147)

The attached table gives the employment rates of people aged between 50 and state pension age for the categories requested.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. UK citizens are defined as those who report their nationality as UK at the time of the survey.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proportion of the increase in the employment of people of working age since 1997 was accounted for by (a) foreign nationals and (b) workers born abroad. [226634]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what proportion of the increase in the employment of people of working age since 1997 was accounted for by (a) foreign nationals and (b) workers born abroad. (226634)

Between April-June 1997 and April-June 2008, foreign nationals accounted for 52 per cent of the increase in the employment of people of working age (men aged 16-64 and women aged 16-59). The corresponding figure for workers born abroad was 67 per cent.

Foreign nationals are defined as those who report their nationality as non-UK at the time of the survey.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people in employment in the UK were (a) UK citizens, (b) citizens of other EU states and (c) citizens of non EU states in each year since 1978. [226635]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

The attached table gives the number of people in employment for the categories requested, from April-June 1995 to April-June 2008. Comparable data prior to 1995 are not available. The table excludes those whose nationality is not known.

Citizenship is defined as the nationality reported by respondents at the time of the survey.

The estimates are derived from the Labour Force Survey. As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

The figures in the table are derived from the LFS microdata which are weighted using the official population estimates published in autumn 2007. They are not entirely consistent with the figures published in the monthly Labour Market Statistics First Release which are weighted using more up-to-date population estimates.

Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV—for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical Robustness
* 0 ≤ CV< 5 Estimates are considered precise
 5 ≤ CV < 10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise
 10 ≤ CV < 20 Estimates are considered acceptable
* CV ≥ 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes

Government Departments: Annual Reports

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what consideration he has given to producing a Whole of Government annual report; what recent representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [227596]

Kevin Brennan: There are no such plans at present.

Inter-departmental Migration Task Force

Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Minister is responsible for the delivery of the workplan of the Inter-departmental Migration Task Force. [227221]

Kevin Brennan: The National Statistician is responsible for the delivery of the Migration Statistics Improvement Programme, which is taking forward the delivery of the Interdepartmental Migration Task Force workplan. A ministerial group co-chaired by my hon. Friend the Member for Wentworth (John Healey), Minister for Local Government and my hon. Friend the Member for Oldham, East and Saddleworth (Mr. Woolas), Minister for Borders and Immigration, monitors and provides ministerial support for the programme.

Migration: Statistics

Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what consultation by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) undertook with Government departments before the ONS's revised methodology for allocating international migrants to regions and local authority areas was published on 24 April 2007. [227234]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what consultation the Office for National Statistics had with Government departments before the Office's revised methodology for allocating international migrants to regions and local authority areas was published. (227234)

Over a significant period of time prior to implementation, ONS officials had regular discussions with the key Departmental user of population and migration statistics, specifically:

The Department for Communities and Local Government, given their role with local grant funding;

The Department of Health, including representation on the Technical Advisory Group (TAG) of the Advisory Committee for Resource Allocation (ACRA); and

The devolved administrations.

Also, at each stage in the development and implementation of the improved methodology, we kept government departments, local authorities and other users informed. Papers were submitted for discussion at the regular meetings held with the population sub-group of Central and Local Information Partnership (CLIP). Membership of CLIP includes representatives from Government departments, as well as from local government. The proposed new methodology was first discussed by CLIP in April 2006 prior to the announcement, in August 2006, of plans to implement the revised methods and the publication of indicative figures and explanatory papers in April 2007. Presentations of the methods were made at conferences and seminars, in particular British Society of Population Studies.

ONS is now leading a cross-departmental programme of work to improve migration and population statistics that has been in place since April 2008. We liaise closely with other government departments who are members of a steering group overseeing this work. The Local Government Association is also represented on the steering group.

Through this, a series of working groups that meet regularly, seminars and workshops that are arranged to engage local stakeholders, ONS continues to liaise closely with central and local Government on the improving migration statistics programme.

Office of the Third Sector: Operating Costs

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much it cost to run the Office of the Third Sector in 2007-08. [225262]

Kevin Brennan: The administration costs for the financial year 2007-08 of the Office of the Third Sector are published as part of the Cabinet Office Annual Report and Accounts 2007-08. Copies are available in the Library of the House.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Blackpool

9. Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the proposals to expand higher education provision in Blackpool. [227257]

Mr. Lammy: Blackpool is one of the areas which will benefit from our new "university challenge" policy to expand locally accessible higher education. As a result of previous decisions taken by the Higher Education Funding Council for England and other funders, there will be new opportunities through the establishment of a higher education centre supported by the University of Lancaster. I would like to wish the centre and others like it every success in their efforts to unlock the talent of the people and places they serve.

Further and Higher Education

10. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent steps the Government have taken to increase the numbers of students in further and higher education. [227258]

Mr. Lammy: Government spending on higher education has increased by 24 per cent. in real terms from 1997-98 to 2008-09 to more than £8 billion a year. A record 1,156,000 places are funded in 2008-09. So far, acceptances for 2008 entry show a rise of 7 per cent. on 2007 Planned further education spending on adult skills will increase from £4.8 billion in 2007-08 to £5.3 billion by 2010-11. This will support around three million funded adult learners per year. To date, we have exceeded our Skills for Life target for 2010, and increased the number of adults in the work force qualified to level 2 to 2.1 million compared with 2001.

13. Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many higher education students are studying in further education colleges. [227263]

Mr. Simon: The latest available figures show that in 2006-07, there were (provisionally) around 131,000 students studying for a higher education qualification in a further education college in England.

Final figures for 2006-07 will be available early next year.

21. Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to ensure further education college courses meet the needs of employers. [227271]

Mr. Simon: FE colleges play a valuable role in delivering Train to Gain and Apprenticeships programmes, responding to the needs of employers to ensure their employees have the skills they need to remain competitive. We are investing £18 million pounds through the World Class Skills Programme to help FE colleges to help them respond to employer demand. The Training Quality Standard for Employer Responsiveness and the National Skills Academies will also strengthen colleges' ability in this area.

Construction Industry

11. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he next expects to meet representatives of the construction industry to discuss skills levels in that industry. [227260]

Mr. Simon: Ministers in this Department are in regular touch with representatives of the construction industry about skills levels in the industry, both about immediate issues like sustaining apprenticeships, and about longer term skills needs. These meetings will continue.

Research and Development: Universities

12. Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what support his Department has given to collaborative public-private research and development programmes in universities; and if he will make a statement. [227261]

Mr. Lammy: According to the HEBCI survey in 2008, university income from external sources is at an unprecedented level, currently £2.6 billion per annum. The Government support public-private research collaborations through the Higher Education Innovation Fund, which will give £396 million to support knowledge transfer over the three years of the current round, the Technology Strategy Board and all seven of the Research Councils. For example, EPSRC spends 40 per cent. of its budget on collaborative research.

Apprenticeships

14. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government plan to take to ensure that apprentices do not lose their jobs in the current economic situation. [227264]

Mr. Simon: To help apprentices through the current economic situation, we have set up a clearing house for construction apprentices which has already placed two-thirds of those referred with a new employer or training provider.

We will examine urgently whether this model can be developed in other sectors. And we will look at additional ways of providing apprenticeships, including the employment of apprentices by Group Training Associations; and giving the best employers support to train more apprentices than they themselves need in order to equip smaller companies in their supply chain.

15. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what funding his Department is providing to support apprenticeships in the construction trades in 2008-09. [227265]

Mr. Simon: Funding for apprenticeships is planned to increase by almost a quarter between 2007-08 and 2010-11, to over £1.1 billion. We do not allocate funds on a sectoral basis. We are concerned about the position of apprentices in the construction industry and just a few weeks ago, my right hon. Friend announced a new taskforce with major employers and unions to explore how we expand construction apprenticeships and improve training opportunities. We also announced the creation of a clearing house to match redundant construction apprentices with employers in their region to enable them to finish their training.

16. Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government are taking to ensure that young people are aware of available apprenticeship opportunities. [227266]

Mr. Simon: The current Education and Skills Bill requires schools to provide impartial careers education. Information about apprenticeships is included in 14-19 area prospectuses. We are also building a new apprenticeships national vacancy matching service which will enable employers to advertise vacancies for young people wanting apprenticeships to consider the opportunities and make application online.

The Apprenticeships Draft Bill contains provision to ensure that schools inform young people about apprenticeships. We are also examining whether it is possible to achieve this outcome without primary legislation through other mechanisms such as statutory guidance.

Small Businesses

17. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government are taking to improve the skills training available to employees of small businesses. [227267]

Mr. Simon: The Government are investing significant funding through the Train to Gain programme, which by 2010-11 will rise to over £1 billion a year. 61 per cent. of learners that accessed a Train to Gain funded course in 2006/07 were employed by employers of up to 250 employees.

In addition, the leadership and management programme for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) in Train to Gain supported over 2,400 employers in 2007/08. We are increasing investment in this programme to £30 million per year for the next three years and have widened eligibility to cover organisations with between 10 and 250 employees.

We will ensure that the support that we provide for all businesses is fit for purpose in the current economic climate, and will be setting out measures for that shortly.

Skills Needs

18. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will publish regular forecasts of the future skills needs of the economy by sector. [227268]

Mr. Simon: The UK Commission for Employment and Skills, which started work in April, is working to ensure that—through its annual skills assessment and regular skills projections—we continue to improve the information available to Government and employers about future skills needs.

Toilet Facilities: Universities

19. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will hold discussions with university authorities on the provision of toilet facilities in universities. [227269]

Mr. Lammy: We have no plans for any specific discussions with university authorities on this subject. Universities are independent and autonomous bodies and how they choose to designate their facilities is a matter for them.

Student Finance

20. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will review the funding available to students working towards an equivalent or lower qualification. [227270]

Mr. Lammy: Student support is generally targeted at first time entrants to higher education because the Government believe it is right to give priority for public funding to those without an HE qualification. Our policy on equivalent level qualification is consistent with this view. But it provides extra support for institutions teaching existing students, and for subjects of strategic importance; and there are more general opportunities for equivalent and lower level students to study courses which attract institutional funding such as foundation degrees and employer co-funded provision.

Apprentices: Small Businesses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department is taking to encourage small and medium-sized enterprises to offer apprenticeships. [227756]

Mr. Simon: There are a number of proposals in 'World-class Apprenticeships' aimed at supporting and encouraging small and medium-sized business to take on apprentices.

These included the recently launched sector growth pilots. These pilots are designed to trial a range of support including wage and training subsidies and while this is not exclusively for small businesses, they will be encouraged to bid for this funding. We are also developing proposals set out in World Class Apprenticeships to support SMEs to form their own group training associations to support the delivery of apprenticeships.

We are committed to revising the current apprenticeship blueprint and to support Sector Skills Councils to develop Apprenticeship frameworks to be more flexible and responsive. This includes work with employers to encourage and enable them to submit their own frameworks for funding, by drawing from a Sector Skills Council 'bank' of qualifications.

We are also working with the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, who recently surveyed SMEs to establish how the new National Apprenticeship Service can meet better the needs of employers. The survey focused on, although was not limited to, reducing the administrative burden on them. Together we will consider how best to take forward the recommendations coming out of the survey.

Arts: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he expects his Department to publish research quantifying the economic benefits of the creative industries. [227179]

Mr. Lammy: The commitment in "Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy" to establish the contribution of innovation to value added in the creative industries is being taken forward jointly by DIUS and DCMS.

A research project to look at how value is generated in creative industries and how they might spread value to other parts of the economy is now under way.

We expect to publish a report on the research findings in spring 2009.

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the cost effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of his Department. [226526]

Mr. Lammy: All DIUS commissioned advertising is assessed for cost effectiveness by pre and post tracking research that measures the situation or issue before and after the advertising has run. All advertising campaigns are commissioned through the Central Office of Information (COI) to ensure the quality of the media planning and to exploit the bulk media discounts that COI negotiate with media owners.

Departmental Press

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which organisations provided media monitoring services to (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies in each of the last three years; and what the total cost was of each contract. [224953]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills' (DIUS) media monitoring is supplied by Energy Data Service Ltd. (EDS) and the Media Monitoring Unit (MMU).

DIUS was formed on 28 June 2007 as a result of the machinery of government changes. Information on the costs of contracts for the provision of media monitoring services to DIUS is therefore only available for the current financial year.

Available figures for the annual costs of each contract are as follows:

EDS

2008/09: £26,269 (to date)

MMU

2008/09: £42,125 (annual subscription)

For much of its business, the Department operates through a number of arms length bodies including 20 non-departmental public bodies and other agencies. It is the responsibility of each body to manage its contracts and costs. Therefore the Department does not hold the information requested centrally and there would be a disproportionate cost to gather the information requested.

Higher Education

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many expressions of interest have been made to the Higher Education Funding Council for England for new higher education centres under the Department's University Challenge initiative; and what the timetable is for assessing such bids. [227430]

Mr. Lammy: The Higher Education Funding Council for England is still in the process of analysing the responses to its consultation paper on our new "University Challenge" policy. After the consultation period ends, the council will conclude that analysis, which will also cover any expressions of interest. However, the consultation document made clear that there is not a fixed bidding timetable. Rather, HEFCE can receive proposals at any time, and there is an ongoing approval process. The council's regional teams are already working with a number of institutions in the early stages of developing proposals. Local authorities and other bodies which wish to be involved with the development of new HE centres will need to develop links with a local educational partner and at least one higher education institution.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what funding streams are available to universities on application to (a) his Department and (b) the Higher Education Funding Council for England. [227423]

Mr. Lammy: The Department does not make payments directly to universities and so there are no such funding streams.

The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) makes the great majority of its payments to universities in the form of block grant.

In addition to this funding it currently operates the following special funding streams: the Strategic Development Fund, which supports individual projects to achieve change in the HE sector at a strategic level, such as lifelong learning networks, New University Challenge developments, and inter-university collaborations; the Leadership, Governance and Management Fund, which supports staff development across the HE sector; the Revolving Green Fund, which supports initiatives to bear down on carbon emissions on a spend-to-save basis; and the Shared Services Feasibility Studies, which delivers efficiency gains in the HE sector via the use of shared services.

HEFCE will also be making the payments to institutions under the Government's scheme to promote voluntary giving to universities, in which we have made available £200 million to match-fund private donations worth at least £400 million

Higher Education: Teachers

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many university lecturers have left the profession in each of the last five years. [227426]

Mr. Lammy: Neither the Department nor the Higher Education Funding Council for England collects this data.

Innovation: Public Sector

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of recent trends in innovation in the public sector; and if he will make a statement. [227754]

Mr. Lammy: In November DIUS will publish the first annual innovation report which will include examples of public sector innovation from across Government. Work is ongoing to develop better metrics for innovation, including in the public sector and these will be used to assess performance and trends in future reports. In early 2009 the NAO will publish a report on how Government are currently managing public sector innovation with a set of recommendations.

Science

Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department plans to take to increase public interest in science. [227259]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS manages a portfolio of funded activities to support our ongoing commitment to public engagement in science. These include: National Science and Engineering Week, the BA festival of science, the Sciencewise-Expert Resource Centre for public dialogue, STEMNET and the UK Resource Centre for Women.

DIUS is currently consulting on a vision for science and society with a key element focused on increasing public interest in science. The consultation closes on October 17.

Students: Loans

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of students who applied for a student loan received it after the agreed date in each of the last five years. [227424]

Mr. Lammy: The first payments of income-contingent student loans are made after the university or college confirms that the student is in attendance. On current performance, the Student Loans Company (SLC) then initiates payment within one working day of receipt of the confirmation in all cases. Payments are made through an automated system into bank accounts, which takes three working days from initiation.

A payment may be made after the start of the course if the student's application has been received late and did not allow sufficient time for processing. A change in student's circumstances can also affect payment where re-assessment is required.

SLC monitors payment performance against a target set in a service level agreement with the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, and reported in the SLC Annual Report. The target is for 95 per cent. or more of payments to be initiated within one working day of confirmation of attendance, and 99 per cent. within two days. In 2007-08 100 per cent. were initiated within one working day.

The following table shows performance given in the annual reports. The target has changed over the years.

	Measure	Target (percentage)	Actual performance (percentage)
2007-08	Initiated in 1 working day	95	100
	Initiated in 2 working days	99	100
2006-07	Initiated in 1 working day	95	98.2
	Initiated in 2 working days	99	100
2005-06	Initiated within month	99	99.4
2004/05 academic year	Loans paid 1-14 days	90	94.9
	Loans paid 1-17 days	100	95.4
2003/04 academic year	Loans paid 1-14 days	90	91.9
	Loans paid 1-17 days	100	94.7

Union Learning Representatives Programme

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what plans he has to promote and develop the union learning representatives programme. [227255]

Mr. Simon: Union learning representatives have a key role to play in raising the demand for learning and skills, especially for workers with low skill levels and those with literacy and numeracy problems. With their real-life experience and credibility in the workplace, union learning reps inspire trust and foster ambition in others, giving them the confidence to seek new ways to improve their skills.

That is why we will continue to support the Union Learning Fund and unionlearn, the TUC's learning and skills organisation, to develop and promote the work of union learning reps. We have increased the funding for union learning from £2 million in 1998 to over £21 million in 2008—so that by 2010 there will be 22,000 trained union learning reps helping over 250,000 workers into learning each year.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Birds: Hunting

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Government's policy on bird rearing and shooting is; when that policy was introduced; and if he will make a statement. [226562]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government's policies towards the game bird industry are consistent with the 2005 rural manifesto which stated that "We will work with the relevant bodies to ensure that country sports are protected while ensuring high standards of environment protection, animal welfare and safety".

We have no plans to restrict the sport of shooting.

Game birds reared for sporting purposes are covered by the Animal Welfare Act 2006. This Act makes it an offence to cause unnecessary suffering to an animal, and also contains a duty of care so that people responsible for an animal must take such steps as are reasonable to ensure its welfare.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many and what proportion of staff in (a) his Department and (b) the executive agencies for which he is responsible are disabled; and what the average salary in his (i) Department and (ii) executive agencies is of (A) full-time disabled staff, (B) full-time non-disabled staff, (C) part-time disabled staff and (D) part-time non-disabled staff; [220188]

(2) when he will reply to Question 220188, on staff, tabled on 15 July. [226917]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him on 8 October 2008, Official Report, columns 551-657W.

New Forest: Environment Protection

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the draft New Forest Recreation Management Strategy, if he will publish the evidence upon which the New Forest National Park Authority concludes that many people who live locally and use the New Forest take its tranquillity and high environmental quality for granted. [227624]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I understand that the New Forest National Park Authority's evidence for this is already in the public domain, in the form of the following publications:

Survey of Recreation Visits to the New Forest National Park by Tourism South East with Geoff Broom Associates, prepared on behalf of the Countryside Agency in September 2005;

Interim statement of the special qualities for the New Forest National Park, paper number NFNPA 92 06, presented to the National Park Authority on 18 May 2006;

Future Matters consultation—a joint consultation between New Forest District Council, Changing Lives Partnership (the Local Strategic Partnership) and the National Park Authority, which took place in December 2006;

Statement of special qualities for the New Forest National Park, paper number NFNPA 191 07 presented to the National Park Authority on 28 June 2007.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which consultants were employed by the New Forest National Park Authority to advise on the draft New Forest Recreation Management Strategy; whether the process of appointment was subject to competitive tender; and if he will place a copy of the terms of reference given to the consultants in the Library. [227626]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I understand that the consultants employed were 'Land Use Consultants', based in Bristol and that the contract for this work was subject to competitive tender. I will arrange for a copy of the invitation to tender and the specification for the development of the National Park Plan and the Recreation Management Strategy to be placed in the Library.

Hill Farming

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many letters he has received on the Uplands Entry Level Scheme; and how many of those opposed its introduction. [225433]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We received 48 letters responding to our informal document on Uplands Entry Level Scheme (Uplands ELS), which was published shortly after the Secretary of State's statement in July confirming that an uplands strand of the Entry Level Stewardship scheme would replace the Hill Farm Allowance in 2010. This document sought views on specific design aspects of Uplands ELS, and so did not solicit views on support or opposition for its introduction. A summary of the responses received, together with the outcome of regional meetings with stakeholders on Uplands ELS, will be published shortly.

Horses: New Forest

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the draft New Forest Recreation Management Strategy, if he will publish the evidence justifying the proposed policy of the New Forest National Park Authority that the use of horses for recreation in the New Forest needs to be restricted. [227625]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I understand there is no proposed policy to restrict the use of horses in the New Forest and there is unrestricted access for horses on the Open Forest.

The New Forest National Park Authority has published a number of policies and proposals in its draft Recreation Management Strategy and draft National Park Plan that are the subject of a public consultation until 14 November 2008. All interested parties are free to make their views known to the Authority and to have those views fully considered.

Decisions on these issues are for the Authority to take. It is an independent Authority operating within the local government framework and legislation.

Ivory

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the decision to make available to China stockpiled ivory for onward sale; and what assessment he has made of the potential effect of this decision on elephant populations. [226487]

Huw Irranca-Davies: At the Standing Committee of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) in July, the UK voted to approve China as a trading partner in the one-off sale of legal ivory held by four southern African nations. The UK and Bulgaria reflected the combined EU position, which was reached based on evidence that China had fulfilled the strict conditions for trading partner status as laid down in the Annotations to the CITES Appendices and agreed by CITES Parties.

The UK is supporting two programmes (Monitoring the Illegal Killing of Elephants (MIKE) and the Elephant Trade Information System (ETIS)) which will monitor the effect of the sale on illegal poaching and trade, and is represented on the Steering Group monitoring their work.

National Forest Estate

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for a repositioning exercise of the National Forest Estate to better deliver public policy objectives. [226677]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We have no current plans to reposition the public forest estate. Any significant repositioning would require a full appraisal of the estate in the light of the new Strategy for England's Trees Woods and Forests, published last year, and the Delivery Plan, which has been prepared by the Forestry Commission and Natural England and is due for publication soon.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria are used on the National Forest Estate for the identification of sites for disposal, retention and purchase. [226678]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Assets (woodlands and other property) that are making a relatively limited contribution to our forestry policy objectives and where there are limited public benefits are sold. The resulting funds are reinvested in forestry policy priorities such as community woodlands around our cities, improved recreation facilities and habitat restoration. This reinvestment is often made in projects where there is additional support and funding from partners.

Land purchases occur where opportunities arise to enable the Forestry Commission to secure high levels of public benefit. For example, the purchase of freeholds that will increase public access or the creation of new community woodlands close to where people live.

National Rights of Way Casework Team

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many representations the National Rights of Way Casework Team has received since its inception; what the (a) longest, (b) shortest and (c) average period between the receipt of a representation and the issue of a decision on that representation has been; how many decisions have been issued more than 12 months from the date of receipt of the representations; and what the longest time is a representation has remained without the issue of a decision. [224637]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The National Rights of Way Casework Team has received 71 representations (direction requests) since its inception. The requested information on representation handling times can be provided only by reviewing all the 71 case files and therefore can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether any full-time equivalent members of staff in his Department are working on projects relating to the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games. [221868]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department is currently applying less than one full-time equivalent member of staff to our work on legacy planning for 2012. This input is expected to rise over the coming years. Staff at the Environment Agency and Natural England are also involved in work related to the Games.

New Forest: Parking

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which car parks under the control of the New Forest National Park Authority are being considered for designation as dog-free car parks; and what evidence there is to justify such a designation in each case. [227622]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I understand that the New Forest national park authority does not control any car parks in the New Forest. If the concept of 'dog free' car parks is developed it would be implemented by the landowner or operator, as has been the case where the Forestry Commission has introduced a few temporary closures during the breeding season for ground nesting birds.

The authority has published a number of proposals in its draft Recreation Management Strategy, including on the issue of dog-free car parks and responsible dog-walking, that are the subject of a public consultation until 14 November 2008. All interested parties are free to make their views known to the authority and to have those views fully considered.

Decisions on these issues are for the authority to take. It is an independent authority operating within the local government framework and legislation.

Postal Services

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to monitor the cost of its mail services in the last 12 months. [221480]

Hilary Benn: The core Department's supplier of postal services is Royal Mail. In financial year 2007-08, and from information held centrally, the Department incurred costs of some £4.89 million with Royal Mail.

This compares with £5.21 million for the financial year 2006-07. On figures to date for financial year 2008-09, annual expenditure with Royal Mail will total a little over £4 million—a further substantial reduction in expenditure obtained though efficiencies and commercial discussions.

Postal services from Royal Mail attract mailsort, postal and volume discounts.

DEFRA's policy is to reduce the number of printed publications, especially leaflets that are produced and posted to stakeholders.

Primates: Pets

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many illegally held pet primates have been seized in each year since 2000; and where such seized primates were subsequently kept. [225076]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The enforcement and administration of the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 is a matter for local authorities. Central records are not kept on seizures of illegally held pet primates.

Trapping

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reason the Government awarded the contract for research into the safety and efficacy of the use of snares to the Game and Wildlife Conservation Trust. [225715]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The research contract was awarded to the Central Science Laboratory (CSL) and the Game and Wildlife Conservation Trust with CSL as the lead partner. The two organisations successfully bid for the contract in response to an advertised open competition. The bid from these contractors was considered to offer the best value for money and provide the best solution. This conclusion was reached with the help of independent reviewers who are experts in relevant fields.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will publish the (a) terms of reference and (b) contract details relating to the proposed arrangement between the Game and Wildlife Trust and his Department on research into the use of snares. [225717]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The terms of reference for the research were advertised in the form of a research specification for an open competition. The specification will be placed in the House Library.

Details of the contract will also be placed in the House Library.

Warm Front Scheme

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department takes to ensure that householders are invoiced separately for the parts, labour, travel and management fees associated with Warm Front Scheme work undertaken for them. [222011]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

In order to avoid potential confusion, Warm Front customers are only invoiced for the costs of works required that exceed the grant maxima (£2,700 for gas heating and £4,000 for oil). Currently, contribution letters provide customers with the costs of any previous Warm Front measures to the property (which are deducted from the new grant), installer labour costs (harmonised by region) and costs for any required materials (set centrally across the country).

As regards travel expenses, individual jobs do not attract different charges depending on their distance from the contractor.

The scheme's management fees are not taken from the grants of individual Warm Front customers, but rather from the central grant fund made available to the scheme.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make a statement on the level of start-up funding in academies compared with Fresh Start schools. [224670]

Jim Knight: Start-up grants for academies are designed to enable a new body—the academy trust—to effect a complete educational transformation for the pupils. To this end, start-up grant provides for substantial new resources in terms of books, equipment and materials. If the academy is not full, start-up grant also helps meet the overhead costs of the senior and middle management teams, so that these can be of a size and quality to carry through that transformation, and various transitional costs during the period in which new buildings are being constructed. It also meets necessary expenditure on transforming the ethos of an academy such as uniform and induction costs. The length of time over which start-up grant is payable depends on the rate of pupil build-up and building completion.

The level of start-up grant for academies is therefore, in most cases, substantially higher than that for a Fresh Start school, which has a more limited purpose. Giving poorly performing schools a Fresh Start can be a very successful way to raise standards. In some cases, this may be the appropriate short-term action, prior to a long term solution such as an Academy or a Trust. Giving a school a fresh start means closing and reopening it on the same site under the normal school reorganisation procedures. Schools requiring a Fresh Start are allocated revenue and capital funding on the basis of need based on the size and phase of the school. Capital resources to support a Fresh Start of a school will involve either a re-build of the school or development of suitable teaching facilities needed at neighbouring school to enable closure of the school needing a fresh start.

Academies: Governing Bodies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on the (a) number and (b) proportion of governors on the governing body of an academy who (i) represent and (ii) are appointed by the principal sponsor; and if he will make a statement. [227502]

Jim Knight: There are variations in the overall number of governors of Academies. However the sponsors of an Academy (excluding the LA, where the LA is a co-sponsor) must appoint a majority of the Governing Body members. If there are non-LA Co-Sponsors as well as Lead Sponsors the Lead Sponsor will appoint at least one more Governor than the non-LA Co-sponsor.

If an Academy is to be jointly sponsored, both sponsors will appoint the same number of Governors but collectively appoint a majority.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many consultations were completed by his Department in each year since 1997. [227440]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The figures for DCSF and its predecessors the Department for Education and Employment and Department for Education and Skills are as follows:

	Consultations completed
1997 (from 1 August)	2
1998	3
1999	3
2000	28
2001	63
2002	34
2003	40
2004	35
2005	56
2006	30
2007	67
2008 (to date)	37

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the total cost was of the bonuses paid through the education maintenance allowance for submitting course work on time in the latest period for which figures are available; when the bonus was introduced; and if he will make a statement. [225416]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) and hold information about payments made under the scheme. Mark Haysom, the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member for Yeovil with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library. EMA bonuses were included in the pilots and have been an integral part of the scheme since its beginning in 1999.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 15 October 2008:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Questions that asked; "what the total cost was of the bonuses paid through the Education Maintenance Allowance for submitting course work on time in the latest period for which figures are available; when the bonus was introduced" and "how many local authorities allow people enrolled on an entry to employment programme to apply for education maintenance allowance online; what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the online application process".

The total Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) bonus payments paid out during the academic year 2007/8 amounted to £68.2m. Bonus payments are paid based on an agreement between the individual learning provider and the individual learner and upon the learner achieving the aims of this agreement. It is not possible to say how many learners achieved a bonus for submitting coursework on time. Bonus payments were introduced at the same time as EMA was rolled out nationally in 2004/5.

From 2008/09 all eligible learners who enrol on an E2E program are entitled to receive EMA on a non-income assessed basis which means they receive the maximum amount of £30 award.

The Learning and Skills Council contracted Liberata to introduce an online application system this year for the first time. We regret that a delay occurred to the launch of the new online learner application system because of some issues with the system in testing, and wanted to ensure that it was absolutely right before making it available to learners.

It is important to note that, as in previous years, learners are able to apply for EMA by paper application forms that are available from schools, colleges, connexions services, learning providers and by calling the helpline.

The number of applications received is broadly in line with our expectations for the year.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which companies bid for the education maintenance allowance contract which was awarded to Liberata; and by what criteria such bids were assessed. [226047]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). The LSC contracts with Liberata UK Ltd to carry out the helpline, assessment and payment function. Mark Haysom, the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 15 October 2008:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Questions that asked; "Which companies bid for the education maintenance allowance contract which was awarded to Liberate; and by what criteria such bids were assessed."

Over 30 companies showed an expression of interest but only two progressed to competitive dialogue. Capita and Liberata bid for the contract to administer the Learner Support Programme, of which Education Maintenance Allowance is a part.

The LSC carried out the procurement process in accordance with the Public Contracts Regulations 2006 using competitive dialogue. This allowed the LSC to work closely with both bidders over a number of months ensuring that there was understanding of requirements and potential solutions on both sides. At the end of this both bidders were asked to submit a proposal and that was evaluated against an agreed evaluation model. The key criteria were quality and cost, which included making assessments of their operational delivery capability, technical solutions, project and programme management, proposals for handling transition arrangements, value for money, and sensitivity to increases in volumes of applications.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Lancashire

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people in West Lancashire constituency have received education maintenance allowance since its inception. [225758]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) and hold information about payments made under the scheme. Mark Haysom, the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 15 October 2008:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked; "How many people in West Lancashire constituency have received Education Maintenance Allowance since its inception."

Information on the number of young people who have applied, enrolled and received Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) is available at Local Authority Level, but not at constituency level. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payments in the academic year.

In the first year of national roll out EMA was available to all 16 year olds across England and to 17 and 18 year olds in former pilot areas (young people who are 19 are entitled to receive EMA in certain circumstances). In 2005/06 EMA roll out continued and EMA was available to all 16 and 17 year olds nationally. In 2006/07 EMA was available to all 16, 17 and 18 year olds nationally.

EMA take-up for Lancashire Local Authority area during each academic year since inception is as follows:

	Number
2004-05	7,081
2005-06	10,564
2006-07	12,995
2007-08	13,396
2008-09	[1]4,120

[1] To end September 2008

EMA Take-up data showing the number of young people who have received one or more EMA payments during 2004/05, 2005/06, 2006/07 and 2007/08 is available on the LSC website, at the following address:

http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/Data/statistics/learner/EMA_take_up.htm

Families

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children under 11 years of age live in single-parent families in (a) Bassetlaw constituency and (b) England. [225344]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October2008:.

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many children under 11 years live in single-parent families in (a) Bassetlaw and (b) England. (225344)

Using the Annual Population Survey household dataset for January to December 2007, the figures to the nearest thousand, are as follows:

Area	Number of children under 11 in single-parent families in 2007
England	1,383,000
Bassetlaw constituency	3,000

The APS household datasets are designed for analyses at the family and household levels and for person-level analyses involving the characteristics of the families and households in which people live. More information can be found here:

As with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty as different samples give different results.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of children taking GCSEs in (a) grammar schools, (b) comprehensive schools, (c) secondary modern schools and (d) independent schools were awarded five or more GCSEs, broken down at (i) A* to A and (ii) A* to B grades in the most recent year for which figures are available. [224526]

Jim Knight [holding answer 6 October]: The information broken down at A*-C can be found in table 3 of the following Statistical First Release (SFR):

DCSF: GCSE and Equivalent Examination Results in England 2006/07 (Revised)

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000768/index.shtml

Further breakdown of grades can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Special Educational Needs

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in what formats GCSE examinations are available for children (a) with a (i) visual and (ii) hearing impairment and (b) who are dyslexic; and how many times each such format has been used in the last three years. [221705]

Jim Knight: The regulation of public examinations in England is the responsibility of Ofqual. Ofqual requires awarding bodies to provide examination papers in appropriate formats to ensure candidates with disabilities have access to examinations.

It is the responsibility of the Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ) to coordinate these formats on behalf of the awarding bodies.

Details of these formats are published in the JCQ guidance "Regulations and Guidance Relating to Candidates who are Eligible for Adjustments in Examinations". This guidance is available online at http://www.jcq.org.uk.

The following table sets out how many times these formats have been approved for children with (a) (i) visual and (ii) hearing impairment and (b) who are dyslexic in the last three years.

Number of requests approved for	2005	2006	2007
Reader	55,640	67,390	80,798
Scribe (including voice-activated computer)	28,324	34,821	40,275
Computer/word processor	14,222	16,996	21,713
Extra time (more than 25 per cent. extra time)	3,383	2,393	2,489
Alternative venue	1,582	1,948	1,993
Use of signer	942	613	952

Number of requests approved for:	2005	2006	2007
Practical assistant	814	953	1,049

Notes:
1. These figures cover AQA, Edexcel and OCR only; the three awarding bodies based in England.
2. These figures are for the number of awarding-body approved arrangements rather than the number of candidates. An individual candidate may require a number of arrangements for each examination they take and they may take examinations from more than one awarding body.

Home Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the total number of children under 16 years of age who are home educated in England. [226441]

Jim Knight: We have made no estimate of the number of children who are home educated in England.

Pre-school Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in the 10 per cent. (a) most and (b) least deprived local authority areas were working securely within each of the 13 assessment scales of the Foundation Stage Assessment Profiles in each year since 2005. [226005]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 13 October 2008]: Information is only available for seven of the 13 assessment scales and for children resident in the 30 per cent. most deprived areas. This is shown for 2007-08 in the tables which have been placed in the House of Commons Library. Further information on the proportion of children working securely within the additional six assessment scales and for earlier years can be compiled and checked only at a disproportionate cost.

The most recent information on the Foundation Stage Profile was published in the Statistical First Release 25/2008 "Foundation Stage Profile results in England 2007/08" on 18 September 2008, which is available on the Department's website

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000812/index.shtml.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in (a) Basingstoke, (b) Hampshire and (c) each region were working securely within each of the 13 assessment scales of the Foundation Stage Assessment Profiles in each year since 2005. [226006]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 13 October 2008]: The available information for 2005 to 2008 is shown in the tables which have been placed in the House of Commons Library. Information is not available at parliamentary constituency level.

The most recent information on the Foundation Stage Profile was published in the Statistical First Release 25/2008 "Foundation Stage Profile results in England 2007/08" on 18 September 2008, which is available on the Department's website

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000812/index.shtml.

Pre-school Education: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment his Department has made of the (a) adequacy of the funding for the extension of the free entitlement to nursery care to all two-year-olds nationwide and (b) the ability of the private, voluntary and independent sector to meet the costs of these places. [227441]

Beverley Hughes: We are currently working with our delivery partners to develop plans to extend the free early education entitlement for two-year-olds. 63 local authorities are currently delivering up to 15 hours of free provision to the most deprived two-year-olds. £100 million funding is available to fund this pilot until April 2011. The child care strategy announced in June and to be published by the end of this year, will set out next steps. The funding for the next stages of the child care strategy will be taken in the light of the wider fiscal position.

Pupil Exclusions

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils received more than (a) 10, (b) 11, (c) 12, (d) 13, (e) 14 and (f) 15 or more fixed period exclusions in a 12-month period in each of the last five years; [226443]

(2) how many pupils have been given more than three fixed period exclusions in the last three years. [226444]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of pupils who have received fixed period exclusions was collected for the first time for the school year 2003/04. The available information is shown in the tables. Information on pupils who have received more than (a) 10, (b) 11, (c) 12, (d) 13, (e) 14 and (f) 15 fixed period exclusions can be provided only at disproportionate costs. Due to changes in the underlying data collection, information for the school year 2005/06 is only available for secondary schools.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were given more than one fixed period exclusion in a 12 month period in each of the last five years; and how many such pupils were eligible for free school meals. [226445]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of pupils who were given more than one fixed period exclusion and their eligibility for free school meals can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The available information on the number of fixed period exclusions (including any multiple exclusions) and free school meal eligibility is shown in the following tables and covers the school years 2005-06 and 2006-07. Information for 2004-05 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pupils: Exclusions

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) which 20 maintained schools had the greatest (a) number and (b) proportion of pupils (i) excluded and (ii) permanently excluded for (A) physical assault against an adult, (B) physical assault against a pupil and (C) bullying in the most recent year for which figures are available; [226036]

(2) which 20 maintained schools issued the (a) highest and (b) lowest number of (i) permanent and (ii) fixed-term exclusions in the most recent academic year for which figures are available; and how many such exclusions were issued by each such school. [226035]

Jim Knight: The information could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of school funding per pupil for each primary and secondary school in Yeovil constituency in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; what the average funding level for all English schools is for each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [227032]

Jim Knight: The Department allocates education funding to local authorities so the requested information for Yeovil constituency is not available.

The per pupil revenue funding figures for years 2007-08 to 2008-09 for Somerset local authority and England are provided in the following table. Since 2006-07, the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) is the main source of school funding. As the DSG is distributed through a single guaranteed unit of funding per pupil, a primary/secondary split is not available.

	2007-08 DSG plus grants	2008-09 DSG plus grants
Somerset	4,130	4,350
England	4,530	4,690

Notes:
1. This covers funding through the Dedicated Schools Grant, School Standards Grant, School Standards Grant (Personalisation) and Standards Fund as well as funding from the Learning and Skills Council; it excludes grants which are not allocated at LA level.
2. These figures are for all funded pupils aged three to 19.
3. Figures have been rounded to the nearest £10. Price Base: Cash.
4. Some of the grant allocations have not been finalised. If these do change, the effect on the funding figures is expected to be minimal.
5. The actual revenue funding that individual schools in England receive via their school budget shares is a matter for individual local authorities to decide locally through their own local funding formulae (subject to satisfying the minimum funding guarantee for schools from 2004-05 onwards). Consequently, the amount of money allocated to each school in England depends very much on the individual local authorities' own policy for funding their schools. Different authorities retain varying amounts of funding centrally to spend on behalf of their schools while others chose to give schools more autonomy over how they spend their money by devolving more funding to the individual schools.

School Meals

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools which do not have a kitchen capable of providing hot meals. [228057]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Schools and Learners on 15 October, Official Report, column 1295W.

Schools: Assessments

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what percentage of mainstream maintained schools did not enter any pupils for (a) a GCSE and (b) an A-level in history in each year since 2005; [227387]

(2) how many and what percentage of mainstream maintained schools did not enter any pupils for (a) a GCSE and (b) an A-level in geography in each year since 2005. [227388]

Jim Knight: 145 mainstream maintained schools did not enter any pupils for an A-level in history in 2006/07. This was 8 per cent. of mainstream maintained schools.

264 mainstream maintained schools did not enter any pupils for an A-level in geography in 2006/07. This was 15 per cent. of mainstream maintained schools.

Figures for GCSE and other years are not readily available and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Schools: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of school responses to the questions on e-safety in Ofsted's 2008 Self Evaluation Form; [227188]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the snapshot report of school responses to question 4b of the self evaluation form provided to his Department by Ofsted. [227189]

Jim Knight: Ofsted has conducted a snap-shot assessment of schools' responses to questions of e-safety in the self-evaluation form, in response to the report of the Byron Review. It will publish this shortly and a copy will be placed in the Library.

Schools: Local Authorities

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils in secondary schools attended their nearest maintained school in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by each local authority; and if he will make a statement. [224671]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the independent evaluation of the Making Good Progress pilot will be published; and if he will make a statement. [227722]

Jim Knight: The Making Good Progress pilot is being externally evaluated by PricewaterhouseCoopers and a final evaluation report is due in the autumn of 2009. PricewaterhouseCoopers will also be publishing an interim report on the first year of the pilot later this year.

Specialist Schools: Languages

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many mainstream maintained secondary schools are designated as specialist language colleges. [227389]

Jim Knight: 352 maintained schools in England are designated as having a language specialism, of which 220 are specialist language colleges, 20 are specialist schools which have languages combined with another specialism and 112 are other specialist schools which have languages as a second specialism.

JUSTICE

Care Proceedings: Expert Evidence

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the results of the review of family law cases following the Cannings judgment; and what steps he is taking to increase confidence in medical expert witnesses in child protection cases. [225315]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

Following the statement made by the then Minister for Children my right hon. Friend the Member for Barking (Margaret Hodge) on 23 February 2004 (in response to the Court of Appeal's judgment in the appeal against the conviction of Angela Cannings) the then Department for Education and Skills issued Circular LAC (2004)5 to local authorities on 25 February 2004. This asked local authorities "to consider those cases that are affected by the Attorney General's review".

The Association of Directors of Social Services subsequently undertook a survey of local authority cases. The results were placed in the Library on 17 June and 16 November 2004. The then Minister for Children made a statement to the House on 17 June summarising the results of the first stage of the survey, and on 16 November the second stage of the survey.

The Legal Services Commission is working with the Department of Health to pilot key proposals from the Chief Medical Officer's 2006 report—"Bearing Good Witness: Proposals for reforming the delivery of medical expert evidence in family law cases". Once implemented, these important reforms will help ensure that the family courts in England have access to the best information when making decisions that will affect the lives of some of our most vulnerable children.

Driving Offences

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many driving bans were served concurrently with prison sentences in each region of England and Wales in (a) each of the last 10 years and (b) 2008 to date. [227144]

Maria Eagle: Although the court proceedings data held by my Department provide information on the sentencing of individuals for individual offences, including whether they are disqualified from driving as a result of those offences, it does not hold information on whether each person is already banned from driving when sentence is passed.

Family Courts

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent steps the Government has taken to improve public accountability of the family courts. [227310]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice has consulted twice about improving the accountability and openness of family courts. Central to this openness has been recognition of the need for better provision of information about the work of the family courts. There are clear benefits to the public having access to a record of the decisions courts have made, which reflects the public interest in the due administration of justice.

In July 2007 we announced our intention to pilot the provision of written judgments when a final order is made in certain family cases. The courts in the pilot areas will for the first time routinely produce for county court and High Court cases, a written record of the court's decision, i.e. a hard copy of a judgment. Family Proceedings Courts will continue to provide the written reasons, which they are already required to do. The judgments or written reasons will be: (1) issued to the parties, (2) retained on the court file for the child to access on reaching adulthood, should they choose to do so; and (3) made anonymous and published online for the public to view.

Providing judgments to the parties is intended to help those who have been through proceedings to understand why decisions were reached. Publication of anonymised judgments online is intended to improve perceptions of the family courts within society.

The Government are committed to improving the transparency and accountability of family courts, while protecting those most vulnerable in society. My Department intends to make further detailed announcement on the pilot soon.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when his Department expects to publish its substantive response to its consultation on Confidence and confidentiality: openness in family courts - a new approach. [227311]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 1031W, to the hon. Member for South Derbyshire (Mr. Todd).

Judiciary: Females

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its objectives in respect of the proportion of women in the judiciary. [227034]

Mr. Straw: Some progress is being made in improving the number of women judges in England and Wales. As of 1 April 2008, 19.03 per cent. of the judiciary were female—an increase from 2001's figure of 14.1 per cent. At District Judge level and below, women account for 25.6 per cent. of the judiciary. In the senior judiciary, the recent appointment of five female High Court judges will bring the total number of female judges in the High Court and above to 20, the highest ever number, out of a total of 164 in the senior judiciary (High Court, Court of Appeal, Heads of Division and Law Lords).

There remains a long way to go before we have a judiciary that reflects society in gender terms. In recognition of this fact, all measures that could help to improve diversity in the judiciary are currently being considered. This will ensure that we maintain the highest possible standards of those appointed.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the change in the percentage of eligible women barristers entering the judiciary has been since the date of his predecessor's 2004 consultation on increasing diversity in the judiciary. [227059]

Mr. Straw: Prior to 2006-07, no formal statistics were compiled on the pool of people eligible for a given judicial appointment in England and Wales. Moreover, the eligibility criteria vary widely between different types of judicial post. For these reasons, statistics on the number of women barristers eligible for judicial appointment are not available.

The following table presents statistics for the years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2007-08 on:

women appointed to the judiciary of England and Wales as a proportion of all appointees (fee-paid or salaried) women barristers appointed to the judiciary of England and Wales as a proportion of all barrister appointees (fee paid or salaried).

Comparable statistics are not available for 2006-07, as this was a transitional year during which responsibility for judicial appointments was passed from the former Department for Constitutional Affairs to the Judicial Appointments Commission. Comparisons over time should be made with caution, as the set of judicial posts to which appointments are made will vary from year to year.

	All appointments			Barrister appointments
	Total	Women	Women as percentage of total	Total	Women	Women as percentage of total
2004-05	294	86	29	160	43	27
2005-06	259	110	42	80	44	55
2007-08	458	156	34	178	50	28

Judicial Appointments annual reports, Judicial Appointments Commission.

During the period covered by this table, the overall proportion of women serving in the Judiciary of England and Wales increased from 15.8 per cent. (at 1 April 2004) to 19.0 per cent. (at 1 April 2008). These figures include both salaried and fee-paid judicial office holders in the courts, but do not include members of the Tribunals judiciary.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when his Department plans to answer the letter dated 31 July sent by the hon. Member for Billericay to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Access to Justice on the subject of Britain's nuclear test veterans. [227939]

Bridget Prentice: I replied to the hon. Member's letter on 14 October 2008. I apologise for the delay.

Powers of Attorney

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received on the waiting period for the processing of an application for a lasting power of attorney; and if he will make a statement. [227393]

Bridget Prentice: Since the implementation of the Mental Capacity Act (MCA) 2005 in October 2007 the Public Guardian is responsible for registration of Lasting Powers of Attorney. One of the key safeguards of the registration process is the requirement for a statutory six-week waiting period for objections against registration to be made.

Representations were made to the Secretary of State for Justice by the President of Solicitors for the Elderly in June 2008, and by the President of the Law Society in July 2008, that the Office of the Public Guardian (OPG) was failing to issue the required notice to start the waiting period in a timely manner.

The OPG is now issuing the notice required to start the waiting period within its published target of 10 working days. Where there are problems with an application for Lasting Power of Attorney, applicants are similarly notified within 10 working days.

The OPG has received representations generally about Lasting Powers of Attorney and will be looking at whether the current registration processes are proportionate and effective during the review of the implementation of the MCA launched earlier this month.

Prisons

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) daily, (b) weekly and (c) monthly (i) percentage and (ii) total turnover of inmates was in each prison establishment (A) in each of the last 10 years and (B) in each month in each of the last three years. [227118]

Mr. Hanson: Information on the turnover of prisoners in each prison establishment is not available. However, during 2006, the last year for which the information is available, there were 90,000 receptions under immediate custodial sentence into all prison establishments in England and Wales. In the same year, there were 78,500 discharges from sentences.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Sentencing

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many custodial sentences of (a) less than one month, (b) between one and three months, (c) between three and six months and (d) between six and 12 months were handed down in each of the last 10 years, broken down by offence. [227117]

Maria Eagle: The requested information is contained in the following table.

Statistics for 2007 will be published at the end of November.

Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will reassess his Department's proposals to merge the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal with the Care Standards Tribunal and the Mental Health Review Tribunal in England; what assessment he has made of the likely effects of this merger on parents of children with special educational needs; and if he will make a statement. [227236]

Bridget Prentice: I am responding as Minister responsible for Tribunals. I do not consider that a reassessment is necessary. It is proposed that the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) will cease to exist as a stand-alone body and become part of the First-Tier Tribunal in accordance with the provisions of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 (the "Act"). The Government consider that the Act provides the most appropriate statutory framework for maintaining strong and independent tribunals and for improving the services they provide to users.

Groups representing the interests of the parents of children with special educational needs have been consulted during the development of the proposals to transfer the SENDIST jurisdiction into the Health, Education and Social Care (HESC) Chamber of the First-Tier Tribunal. Rules of procedure for the Chamber have been drawn up with the foil involvement of SENDIST's judiciary and members.

The tribunal is committed to the ethos that it has always had, namely of keeping the interests of the child at the forefront of its procedures and decision making.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of cases going to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal concerned children with autism over each of the last five years; in what proportion of these cases the applicant was successful; and how many local authorities conceded the case before the case reached the hearing. [227572]

Bridget Prentice: The following table shows the outcomes of special educational needs (SEN) appeals for children where autism was recorded at registration as the main or only SEN. Decided cases are those where a tribunal hearing takes place and a decision is issued. The decided cases can then be broken down into those that have either been successful in whole or in part and those that were dismissed. In this table those that were dismissed include those that were struck out. Withdrawn cases are those where the appellant decides to discontinue their appeal before a hearing takes place or decision is issued. Conceded cases are those where the local authority meet the requirements of the appeal before a hearing takes place or a decision is issued.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many disability discrimination cases concerning children with autism spectrum disorders went to the Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal in each of the last five years; and in what proportion of these the applicant was successful. [227578]

Bridget Prentice: The Special Educational Needs and Disability Tribunal (SENDIST) does not record autism as a type of disability. As a result, no Disability Discrimination Act claims have been recorded. The following table shows the outcomes of all SEN appeals. Withdrawn cases are those where the appellant decides to discontinue their appeal before a hearing takes place or decision is issued. Conceded cases are those where the local authority meets the requirements of the appeal before a hearing takes place or a decision is issued.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Deer: New Forest

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of deer in the New Forest National Park; and whether it is the policy of the National Park Authority to impose restrictions on the deer population. [227960]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There is no overall estimate of the deer numbers in the New Forest National Park and the authority has no policy for the management of deer numbers in the park. However, the Forestry Commission is responsible for the management of 47 per cent. of the park area and carries out an annual visual census of deer on its land. These records date back to 1960 and the figures for 2008 are

Fallow: 1,422;

Roe: 437;

Red: 117; and

Sika: 93.

These visual census figures will underestimate the total number of deer in the area and a corrected figure is used when the Forestry Commission sets its annual cull level in accordance with its deer management plan.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information technology projects initiated by his Department and its predecessors have been cancelled prior to completion in the last five years; and what the cost of each such project was to the public purse. [221713]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following three major core DEFRA IT projects have been terminated prior to completion within the last five years. Details of projects conducted within core DEFRA only have been included where there have been write-off costs as a result of closing the project. Details of other smaller IT projects could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost to the Department.

Catalyst Project

Catalyst was designed to provide an Electronic Data and Records Management system for DEFRA. The total expenditure from inception to termination was £12.6 million. This included costs of a large pilot and of preparing for the wider programme, which was not rolled out.

Phoenix IT Project

Phoenix was designed to handle licences for protected species covered by international conventions. The total expenditure from inception to termination was £3,998,807.

Customer Information Programme

The Customer Information Programme was designed to enable DEFRA to hold improved customer information. The total expenditure was £9,691,000.

New Forest National Park Authority

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people are employed by the New Forest National Park Authority; and how many of those are resident within the boundary of the National Park. [228014]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The New Forest National Park Authority employs some 65 (full-time equivalent) staff. DEFRA holds no information on how many live inside or outside the National Park boundary.

Tourism: New Forest

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will require the New Forest National Park Authority to extend the deadline for consultation on the draft Recreation Management Strategy. [228015]

Huw Irranca-Davies: This is a matter for the New Forest National Park Authority which I understand has announced an extension of the consultation period to Friday 14 November.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate the New Forest National Park Authority has made of the number of people (a) resident in and (b) holidaying in Christchurch constituency who visit the New Forest annually; and what consultation has been carried out with Christchurch residents on the draft Recreation Management Strategy. [228016]

Huw Irranca-Davies: These are matters for the New Forest National Park Authority.

However I understand its draft Recreation Management Strategy says 29 per cent. of day visitors come from Dorset (Tourism South East 2004-05 survey) and that, in addition, the survey suggests 9 per cent. of 'local day visitors from home' come from 'Highcliffe, Mudeford and Christchurch'.

I also understand that the authority mailed documents to Burton and Hurn parish councils, Christchurch borough council and Dorset county council, and has since responded to numerous requests for documents from the Christchurch area.

WALES

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [226811]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has not used recruitment consultants to recruit staff. During the last five years external recruitment only occurred in 2006-07 and cost £17,240.92.

The Wales Office has no executive agencies.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council England: Manpower

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people were employed by Arts Council England in (a) 1997-98 and (b) 2007-08 in (i) the Chief Executive's office, (ii) the Chairman's office, (iii) press and public affairs, (iv) finance and resources, (v) business assessment and planning, (vi) finance, (vii) information, (viii) office services, (ix) personnel, (x) combined arts, (xi) drama, (xii) dance, (xiii) film, video and broadcasting, (xiv) literature, (xv) music, (xvi) touring, (xvii) visual arts, (xviii) arts and disability and (xix) policy and research. [223882]

Barbara Follett: The information requested has been provided by Arts Council England (ACE) and is set out in the table. Job titles provided by ACE do not correspond exactly with those in the question, but where they differ, ACE has allocated staff with the most relevant job description to the definitions in the question.

Arts: Further Education

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department has commissioned research on the extent to which further education institutions are equipping students with the skills needed to help them make a contribution to the creative economy. [227186]

Barbara Follett: My Department has not commissioned any direct research in to the extent to which further education institutions are equipping students with the skills they need to help them make a contribution to the creative economy.

However, in order to meet commitment 4 of Creative Britain: New talents for the New Economy, my Department has commissioned research into the landscape of employer engagement in higher education subjects closely related to the creative industries. The findings of this research, due to report in summer 2009, will be used to demonstrate how to forge stronger links between higher education institutions, further education colleges, creative professionals, the creative and cultural industries and the wider community.

Departmental Accountancy

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what balances his Department held with (a) other central Government Departments and (b) local authorities at the end of each financial year since 1997. [225695]

Barbara Follett: The table sets out the Department's debtor and creditor balances with central Government Departments and local authorities since 2003. Financial Reporting Manual (FReM) did not require disclosure of these balances in earlier years and it would incur disproportionate cost to obtain them.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) new builds and (b) major refurbishments were completed by his Department for a cost in excess of £0.5 million in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08 to which the Building Research Establishment Environmental Assessment Method or equivalent was applied; how many such buildings were assessed as (A) pass, (B) good, (C) very good and (D) excellent; and if he will make a statement. [213694]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department carried out a refurbishment in excess of £0.5 million in 2006-07. A BREEAM assessment was applied. The provisional result is very good.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on staffing in each year since 1997 in (a) cash and (b) real terms. [225697]

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses was paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [226502]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department and its agency, The Royal Parks, do not routinely maintain statistics on performance of invoice payments analysed by size of businesses. This information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

However, the proportion of undisputed invoices for goods and services procured from all suppliers paid within 30 days of receipt by the Department in 2007-08 was 98.4 per cent.

The Royal Parks' performance on similar basis was 96.3 per cent. for 2003-04, the latest year for which information is readily available. Invoice payment performance information relating to later years can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [226808]

Andy Burnham: The Department and its agency, the Royal Parks, do not separately identify the cost of recruitment consultants from other recruitment costs such as advertising. The total amount spent on recruitment including external advertising and on recruitment consultants in each of the last five financial years is shown in the following table.

2003-04	88,670.89
2004-05	34,931.46
2005-06	131,133.02
2006-07	276,315.13
2007-08	148,474.98

The following recruitment consultants have been employed over the last five financial years:

Capita (2005-06)

Whitehead Mann (2005-06)

Odgers (2006-07 and 2007-08)

Taylor Bennett (2007-08).

Sports: Young People

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government plans to take to encourage more young people to participate in Olympic sports. [225391]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government are working with a range of partners to get more people more active and encourage participation among young people in a range of physical activities including Olympic Sports. Following the publication of Sport England's new strategy, Sport England is working with 46 sports to develop funding submissions for the period 2009-13, which will set out ways in which those sports can contribute to a world-class community sports system in the UK. The 46 sports include all the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Sports, and as part of the funding submissions sports will be asked to set out proposals for the talent development pathways.

Those sports able to demonstrate an ability to deliver against the talent development outcome will be commissioned to do so. Sport England officers have been guiding sports through the commissioning process, offering them significant technical input into the production of their funding submissions. This is to ensure that all sports fully understand the process and articulate as clearly as possible the potential of their sport to deliver against Sport England's strategic outcomes.

Sport England has also recently made awards totalling £4.5 million to support the Playground to Podium programme. This programme will provide a framework for people with a disability to benefit from high quality physical education in schools and high quality coaching and performance environments in the community. This will lead on to the Paralympic World Class Programmes for those athletes who have the ability and the desire.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012: Sponsorship

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games has had with the International Olympic Committee's worldwide partners on their involvement in the London 2012 Olympics. [227613]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) has a Client Services team in place which leads on the relationship with all domestic and worldwide partners for 2012. The team has regular contact with each partner on a range of issues, including how to activate their sponsorship in the run-up to the Games in 2012. Many partners also work directly with departments in LOCOG in those areas where their people, products and services will support the delivery of the Games.

In addition, I have had introductory meetings with some of the domestic and worldwide partners.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) asylum claimants and (b) their dependants of each nationality have been granted leave to remain in the UK through (i) the 1998 backlog exercise, (ii) the 2003 family indefinite leave to remain exercise, (iii) the legacy exercise and (iv) discretionary leave to remain since 1997. [226120]

Mr. Woolas: The information is as follows:

(i) The following tables show the number of principal asylum applicants who have been granted leave to remain in the UK through the pre-1996 asylum application backlog exercise (referred to in the question as the 1998 backlog exercise) by nationality during 1999 and 2000. The backlog clearance exercise ran for these two years only.

Information on dependants granted leave to remain in the UK through the backlog exercise is not available by nationality and can be obtained only by examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost. Total figures for principal applicants including dependants granted exceptional leave under the backlog exercise were 15,195 and 14,045 in 1999 and 2000 respectively.

(ii) For information on the 2003 family indefinite leave to remain exercise, I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Hodge Hill (Mr. Byrne) gave on 16 January 2008, Official Report, column 1298W.

UKBA is no longer reporting on the performance of the Family ILR Exercise. The small number of remaining cases are being processed with other legacy cases, not as a separate workstream, and will be reported on as part of normal business.

(iii) Information on the legacy exercise by nationality is not available and could be obtained only by examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

(iv) Discretionary leave to remain has only been granted since April 2003. For information on the numbers granted discretionary leave to remain from April 2003 to 2006, I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Hodge Hill (Mr. Byrne) gave on 16 January 2008, Official Report, column 1298W. 2007 figures on the discretionary leave to remain can be found in tables 4.1 and 4.2 of the annual Statistical Bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2007:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1108.pdf

Further National Statistics on asylum are available from the Library of the House and the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much (a) her Department and (b) its executive agencies spent on (i) recruitment consultants and (ii) external recruitment advertising to recruit staff in each of the last five financial years; which recruitment consultants were employed for those purposes in each of those years; and if she will make a statement. [226797]

Mr. Woolas: The decision to employ recruitment consultants to assist with filling a particular vacancy is made by individual business units, and all associated costs are met from devolved unit budgets. The information requested is therefore not held centrally and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Identity and Passport Service

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many blank passports were (a) lost and (b) stolen from the Identity and Passport Service in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [225382]

Meg Hillier: No blank United Kingdom passports have been lost or stolen from the Identity and Passport Service in the last five years.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passports were lost by the Identity and Passport Service while being couriered to the passport holder in each of the last five years. [225383]

Meg Hillier: The figures in the table set out the number of passport or supporting document deliveries that have been recorded as lost. It is not possible to differentiate between losses of passports and losses of supporting documents. Supporting documents are returned by 2nd class post when the customer pays for secure delivery.

		Number
2003	Passports only	3,593
2004	February 2004 to January 2005	601
2005	February 2005 to January 2006	1,018
2006	February 2006 to January 2007	727
2007	February 2007 to January 2008	716

The figures from 2004 are collated in line with the contractual arrangements with Secure Mail Services, the Secure Delivery provider, which commenced in February 2004. These arrangements replaced the use of First Class Mail. In the last year of the Royal Mail arrangements losses accounted for around 0.06 per cent of passports posted. Since the introduction of Secure Delivery, the rate is around 0.011 per cent. a reduction of over 80 per cent.

Over six million items a year are delivered to IPS customers through the Secure Delivery service. IPS and SMS continue to work closely to improve upon losses while maintaining minimum inconvenience to customers. All passport losses are added to the database of lost or stolen passports.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines have been issued to the Identity and Passport Service on the secure delivery of documentation to passport holders. [225384]

Meg Hillier: Passports are delivered by Secure Mail Services (SMS) courier. The Identity and Passport Service (IPS) has provided SMS with instructions as to whether a signature is required or not, dependent upon known losses for the postcode, and the premises being delivered to. This flexible approach means that the integrity of the delivery process, and the passport, is maintained while minimising the need for customers to be at home to receive their passport. Around 3 per cent. of courier deliveries require a signature on delivery.

Disguised mail is used to deliver passports to customers living in remote areas where there is perceived to be very little risk to mail. Recorded Delivery is used and around 0.4 per cent. of passports are delivered in this way.

Supporting documentation is returned by Second Class post unless customers elect to pay the £3 fee for Secure Delivery of their documents. Documents returned by Secure Delivery are treated identically to passport deliveries.

All items carried by SMS are fully auditable throughout their journey from despatch to delivery, enabling full investigation of claims of non-receipt.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was paid in compensation to passport holders whose passports were lost by the Identity and Passport Service in each of the last five years. [225385]

Meg Hillier: We do not hold these data in the required format and they could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Identity and Passport Service: Personal Records

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many instances of the loss of personal documents were recorded by the Identity and Passport Service in each of the last five years. [225094]

Meg Hillier: The following figures provide the number of cases where customers have approached the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) to request replacements for lost documents sent in to support passport applications, such as birth and marriage certificates. The losses occur within IPS premises, as a result of administrative errors, as well as during the postal process.

	Number of documents lost by IPS
2003	1,068
2004	1,169
2005	1,547
2006	729
2007	438
Total	4,951

Passports: Interviews

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people under the age of 18 years have been interviewed at passport interview centres since the system of interviews for passport applications was introduced. [225930]

Meg Hillier: For the period where interviews were introduced until the 8 October 2008, IPS conducted 35,580 interviews for applicants under the age of 18 years.

TRANSPORT

Bus Services: Complaints

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to allow bus passengers to make appeals regarding complaints to Passenger Focus in an analogous way to those which may be made by rail passengers. [226714]

Paul Clark: On 8 April 2008 the then Secretary of State for Transport announced that Passenger Focus (the statutory rail passenger watchdog) would widen its remit to become the bus passenger champion. The Local Transport Bill, currently going through Parliament, would provide the necessary primary powers to enable the Secretary of State, through secondary legislation, to place functions relating to bus and domestic coach services onto Passenger Focus.

Arising from the successful passage of the Local Transport Bill, a decision on roles and responsibilities for Passenger Focus will be made in due course.

Bus Services: Concessions

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of people eligible for a free bus pass have applied for one in Leeds since the scheme was introduced. [226391]

Paul Clark: The Department is not responsible for issuing passes and so does not maintain records of how many applications individual authorities have received.

Leeds is part of the West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Executive (WY Metro). The last information held by the Department was that as of 7 April this year WY Metro had submitted approximately 239,000 applications for the new smartcard concessionary passes to their pass supplier. This represents around 58 per cent. of the estimated eligible population in WYPTE, which is approximately 410,000.

Carbon Emissions

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many tonnes of (a) carbon dioxide, (b) other greenhouse gases and (c) harmful particulates were emitted from (i) road and (ii) other transport in each of the last eight years. [227097]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The National Atmospheric Emissions Inventory (NAEI) compiles estimates of emissions to the atmosphere from UK sources. The most recent NAEI data published by DEFRA can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/globatmos/download/xls/gatb04.xls.

The following table contains the estimates of carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions from road transport and other transport for each year from 1999 to 2006 which is the latest year for which official figures have been published.

Carbon dioxide

Other transport[1]	7.2	7.2	6.9	6.5	8.2	8.4	9.2	10.5

[1] Other transport includes domestic aviation, railways, domestic shipping, and other mobile sources and machinery.

The Kyoto agreement defines a set of six greenhouse gases (GHG's) which are: carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, hydrofluorocarbons, perfluorocarbons and sulphur hexafluoride.

The following tables contain estimates of methane and nitrous oxide from road transport and other transport for each year from 1999 to 2006 which is the latest year for which official figures have been published. Emissions from transport of hydrofluorocarbons, perfluorocarbons and sulphur hexafluoride are negligible.

[1] Other transport includes domestic aviation, railways, domestic shipping, and other mobile sources and machinery.

In addition to the above, the National Atmospheric Emissions Inventory (NAEI) publishes estimates of emissions of harmful particulates to the atmosphere from UK sources. The most recent NAEI data published by DEFRA can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/statistics/airqual/download/xls/aqtb11.xls

The following table contains estimates of harmful particulate (PM10) emissions from road transport and other transport for each year from 1999 to 2006 which is the latest year for which official figures have been published.

Cars: Carbon Emissions

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment has been made of the relative merits of using a weight-based system or a footprint-based system to assess a car's carbon dioxide emissions. [226563]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have looked at the weight versus footprint issue from various perspectives: total costs and how they would be distributed among different types of vehicles; how well the criterion relates to desirable features in a vehicle ('utility'); to what extent the criterion may encourage perverse incentives; and availability of data.

There is an analysis on pages 59-62 of the Impact Assessment accompanying our consultation on the draft European regulation on new car CO_2 emissions, available at:

http://www.dft.Gov.uk/consultations/closed/co2emissions/impactassesment.pdf

In the light of examination of this question by officials in my Department, we support a weight-based utility parameter, but with provision for data collection and review of the regulation so that a footprint-based system could be considered for the future.

Christmas

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Christmas functions (a) he, (b) officials from his Department and (c) officials from its executive agencies (i) hosted and (ii) attended in 2007-08; what the cost to the public purse was; and if he will make a statement. [226961]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested is not held centrally, therefore could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, the Department for Transport's expenditure on and acceptance of any hospitality is conducted in accordance with the principles of Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on regularity and propriety.

Crossrail: Consultants

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on consultation fees for the Crossrail project. [225609]

Paul Clark: The amount spent by the Department for Transport on financial, legal and technical consultancy fees in support of Crossrail is shown in the following table.

	Amount (£)
2003-04	1,144,920
2004-05	1,780,816
2005-06	2,621,620
2006-07	3,962,625
2007-08	4,416,936
2008-09 (to end September)	2,798,708
Total	16,725,625

The figures include consultancy costs incurred by the Department both in support of the Bill process and on the development of the funding and governance arrangements for the Crossrail project.

Departmental Consultations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total expenditure on consultants by his Department was in each year since its creation. [228083]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer of 29 September 2008, Official Report, column 2425W.

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in his Department in the last 12 months; and at what total cost. [226431]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport comprises a central department plus seven executive agencies each with its own pay and reward system. Information regarding bonus payments has been collected from the central department and five agencies and collated in to one set of figures for the 2007-08 financial year:

	Number of staff receiving bonus	Total amount of bonuses paid (£)
2007-08	6,510	3,844,107

The figures exclude data for DVLA and VOSA. The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Department is committed to rewarding good performance. Bonuses are paid in respect of overall performance or exceptional performance on a specific task or at a specific time. They encourage high attainment because they have to be earned each year, motivating staff and supporting better public service delivery.

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small- and medium-sized businesses were paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [226499]

Mr. Hoon: The payment performance in respect of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium sized businesses is not separated from the Department's overall payment performance and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In 2007-08 the central Department paid 95.8 per cent. of all valid invoices within 30 days of receipt and agencies for which the Department is responsible for paid 92.4 per cent.

Departmental Reviews

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress he has made on his plans to revise the New Approach to Appraisal; and within what (a) parameters and (b) timescale the review is operating. [228024]

Mr. Hoon: In July 2008, we published a document that summarised responses received to the NATA Refresh consultation, and set out our plans for developing the New Approach to Appraisal (NATA) framework. The document announced a number of changes to better capture the impacts of greenhouse gas emissions, travel time variability, the health benefits of active transport, and initiatives to better represent cycling and walking in transport modelling.

We are also working on further changes that will:

reflect continuing developments in analysing climate change;

improve the presentation of evidence in the appraisal summary table;

better capture transport's contribution to economic growth;

ensure appropriate weight is given to assessments of transport's impact on the natural environment; capture the costs and benefits associated with new housing; develop our approach to appraising social and distributional impacts of transport schemes; and improve the dissemination of appraisal guidance.

Work is also in hand to consider the treatment of indirect taxation when prioritising transport schemes, and separately to consider whether it would be appropriate to adopt a lighter-touch appraisal approach for smaller schemes.

The scope of the NATA Refresh is limited to the New Approach to Appraisal. Improvements resulting from the NATA Refresh have already been made and we have plans for the next 12 months about how improvements will become part of the definitive set of guidance no later than April 2010. These are presented in the final pages of the summary of responses to the NATA consultation at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations/closed/consulnatarefresh/responses/

DVLA: Data Protection

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many individuals have their details protected by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency such that requests for release of information in relation to such individuals which would otherwise be granted are not granted; and what criteria the Agency applies in determining to whom this practice should apply. [228025]

Jim Fitzpatrick: All vehicles held on DVLA's vehicle register are subject to the same provisions with regards to disclosure to third parties. No vehicles are protected from disclosure where the requester can demonstrate a lawful right to receive that data.

Euston Station: Access

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ask (a) the Health and Safety Executive and (b) the Equality and Human Rights Commission to inspect Euston station to ensure it complies with the relevant legislation in respect of access for the (i) disabled and (ii) parents with pushchairs from (A) car parks, (B) taxi ranks and (C) London Underground to the station and train platforms. [226593]

Paul Clark: I am aware that the Association of Train Operating Companies is currently carrying out a programme of access audits of all stations on the network, the results of which will be made available in due course.

Inspection and enforcement of safety legislation on the operational railway is the on-going responsibility of HM Railway Inspectorate, which is overseen by the Office of the Rail Regulator, as set out in the Railways Act 2005. HMRI determine when visits to assess compliance are necessary.

Any works at stations must also comply with the standards in the DfT publication: "Accessible Train and Station Design for Disabled People: A Code of Practice". Assessing compliance with these standards for new or existing station infrastructure is not a role of the Equality and Human Rights Commission.

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when Euston station was last inspected to ensure it meets disability discrimination legislation in respect of access from (a) car parks and (b) taxi ranks to (i) the station concourse and (ii) train platforms; and if he will make a statement about the adequacy of the station's compliance with such legislation. [226594]

Paul Clark: All train and station operators self-certify to ensure that they meet the provisions of disability-related legislation and appropriate infrastructure requirements for accessibility. They must additionally produce a Disabled People's Protection Policy, agreed by the Secretary of State, which sets out the level of service and facilities at all stations that they operate, and which is updated regularly.

Network Rail's Disabled People's Protection Policy was last updated in June 2008 and is reviewed regularly. The current Disabled People's Protection Policy sets out arrangements for assisting passengers with reduced mobility to access the station from the car park and taxi rank.

Inside the station building, level access is possible to all platforms, and staff assistance is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Modern facilities include an accessible toilet, induction loops and mobility vehicles which are available on request. As such, people with reduced mobility should be able to obtain any assistance that they require in order to use the station.

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to ensure that access to all parts of Euston station is improved for (a) the elderly and disabled, (b) parents with pushchairs and (c) travellers with large amounts of luggage. [226602]

Paul Clark: This is an operational matter for Network Rail who own and operate the station. Station operators are required by part 3 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 to make reasonable physical adjustments so that disabled people can access their services.

Network Rail are responding to this duty and are currently developing plans to install a lift link between the station concourse, taxi rank, car park and Underground ticket hall to improve access for passengers with reduced mobility. This facility is planned for completion in October 2009. In addition, Network Rail have confirmed that a comprehensive programme of refurbishments is being considered for 2015-16.

Lorries: Accidents

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many road collisions involved side impact crashes into heavy goods vehicles in each region of England and Wales in (a) each of the last 10 years and (b) 2008; [227132]

(2) how many people were (a) killed, (b) seriously injured and (c) injured in road collisions involving side impact crashes into heavy goods vehicles in each region of England and Wales in (i) each of the last 10 years and (ii) 2008 to date. [227133]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of reported personal injury road accidents involving at least one heavy goods vehicle where the first point of impact was the side, and the number of people (a) killed, (b) seriously injured and (c) slightly injured resulting from these accidents, in each Government office region in 1998 to 2007 are given in the tables.

2008 data will be published in June 2009.

Lorries: Safety Measures

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to encourage compliance with the requirement for goods vehicles over 3.5 tonnes in relation to rear view mirrors. [226750]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department has been working closely with vehicle manufacturers and representatives of the road haulage industry to promote awareness of the new requirements for improved mirrors to be retro-fitted to goods vehicles above 3.5 tonnes that come into force from 31 March 2009.

Compliance will be confirmed through the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) annual test and their targeted roadside checks, carried out in conjunction with the police, from 1 April 2009.

Motor Vehicles: Licensing

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicles are licensed; and what the total licence revenue was for each emission rating band in the private and light goods vehicle licensing category in the year for which figures are available. [224660]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A snapshot of the Vehicles database as at June 2008 showed the total number of licensed vehicles was 34.4 million, and the total value of licences in force for Private and Light Goods Vehicles were:

Band	Total (£ million)
Up to 1549 cc	510
Over 1549 cc	1,568
A	—
B	20
C	604
D	566
E	490
F	817
G	128
Euro 4 LGV	13
LGV	333
Total	5,051

Please note that the aforementioned figures reflect the value of licences in force as at June 2008 and not the total VED collected for a specific financial period. These figures are calculated from direct vehicle register scans and are reported to DfT for statistical purposes, while the financial reporting of VED collected net of subsequent refunds collected for each financial year is not analysed in this way. The differences are relatively small, but reflect the six month and 12 month licensing regimes, changes in rates, declaration of "off the road" status for vehicles and the non-coterminosity of licensing periods with financial reporting years.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which 20 registration marks sold by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in the last year for which figures are available have generated the greatest income; and what the selling price was in each case. [228026]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following registration numbers have raised the most (net) revenue in the last year.

Overseas Visitors

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the number of UK travellers to countries outside the EU in each of the last two years. [227295]

Railways

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what light rail schemes are scheduled to open in the next two years. [227113]

Paul Clark: No new light rail schemes are scheduled to open in the next two years. However, during this period work will be continuing on a project to refurbish and upgrade the Manchester Metrolink system. This will help to ensure improved journeys for passengers on the network. The Department is providing £58 million towards the £102 million costs of this project.

Furthermore, in May 2008 the Department approved £244.3 million towards a scheme to extend the Metrolink system to Rochdale, Oldham and Chorlton. These lines will be operational by 2012.

We are also working closely with the promoters of the Nottingham Express Transit in regard to their proposals to extend the system. If the project is granted full approval, these new lines could be open to the public in 2013.

Railways: Electrification

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what proportion of miles of railways in each county are not electrified. [226747]

Paul Clark: The Department does not hold the information requested.

This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's Chief Executive at the following address for a response to his questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place
90 York Way
London, N1 9AG.

Railways: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations (a) Network Rail and (b) First Great Western have made to the Office of the Rail Regulator on the issue of the Kemble to Swindon redoubling. [226646]

Paul Clark: Network Rail and First Great Western made representations in their draft determinations responses. These have been published on the Office of Rail Regulation's website at:

Network Rail response:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/upload/pdf/DDresp-nr-040908.pdf

First Great Western response:

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations the Office of the Rail Regulator has received from (a) Gloucestershire county council, (b) Gloucestershire First and (c) the Gloucestershire Chamber of Commerce on the issue of the Kemble to Swindon redoubling. [226659]

Paul Clark: The Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) received responses to the draft determinations from Gloucestershire county council (two responses) and Gloucestershire First (two responses). ORR did not receive a separate reply from the Gloucestershire Chamber of Commerce; however, their comments were included in one of Gloucestershire First's responses to ORR. The responses have been published on the ORR website at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/ConWebDoc.9204.

Railways: Lancashire

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consideration he has given to promoting the construction of the Todmorden Curve to cut train journey times between Manchester and Burnley. [226705]

Paul Clark: My noble Friend the Minister of State for Transport, Lord Adonis met my hon. Friend the Member for Burnley and Padiham (Kitty Ussher) on 9 October to discuss the proposal for a direct service between Burnley and Manchester. It would be for Lancashire county council, as transport authority, to consider the best way of achieving this, in discussion with Network Rail and Northern Rail.

Road Traffic: Business

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate the Government has made of the cost of congestion to UK business in each of the last 10 years. [227104]

Paul Clark: The Department has not undertaken any studies to give such annual estimates.

Road Traffic: Costs

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated annual cost to the economy of road congestion has been in each year since 1997. [226694]

Paul Clark: The Department has not undertaken any studies to give such annual estimates.

Roads: Noise

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of people adversely affected by noise pollution from the strategic road network in the last eight years. [227094]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency has not detailed undertaken work to estimate the likely number of people adversely affected by noise arising from the use of the strategic road network over the last eight years.

The Environmental Noise (England) Regulations 2006 (as amended) include provisions to improve the information available to the public about noise and its effect. The regulations require the preparation of strategic noise maps for urban areas, major roads, major railways and major airports. Following the completion of mapping, an action plan is to be drawn up to manage noise and reduce it where possible.

This action plan will include an estimate of numbers of people affected by traffic noise from major roads, which includes a majority of the strategic road network.

Mapping and action plans are to be prepared on a five year cycle. All mapping for this current cycle has been completed and is available to view on the internet at www.defra.gov.uk/noisemapping.

This Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs plan to prepare and consult on drafting action plans later this year.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many local road schemes were completed in each year since 2000. [227082]

Paul Clark: The following table provides a list of local major road schemes which have been completed since 2000, and to which the Department has contributed funding of £5 million or more:

Roads: Tolls

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what tolls and charges are applied for use of (a) bridges and (b) tunnels on the motorway and trunk road network, broken down by charges for (i) cars, (ii) buses, (iii) lorries and (iv) motorcycles. [226728]

Paul Clark: Tolls and charges are applied to certain bridges and tunnels on the motorway and trunk road network in England. Only the Dartford crossing is the direct responsibility of the Government. The Severn river crossings and M6 toll are operated by concessionaires. The Tamar crossing and Tyne tunnel, although forming parts of trunk road routes, are the responsibility of local authorities. The following information is available from the websites of the operators. These websites also provide more detailed information on tolls and charges such as discounts for those choosing to pay using electronic "tags".

Taxis: Vetting

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to require full criminal record checks, covering the entire adult life, of foreign nationals seeking work as licensed taxi drivers. [226928]

Paul Clark: The legislation governing taxi driver licensing requires local authorities to carry out such checks as they regard necessary in order to satisfy themselves that an applicant for a taxi driver licence is a "fit and proper person".

It is for each authority to decide what checks to carry out. In making an assessment about applicants' suitability, local authorities can make use of information on an applicant's criminal record.

We have no plans to change this position. However, we have provided Best Practice Guidance to assist local licensing authorities in carrying out their licensing responsibilities. The Guidance, which was published in 2006 drew attention to the importance of local authorities having a policy on background checks for applicants from outside the UK. It provided a link to the Criminal Records Bureau website which contains information about obtaining certificates of good conduct, or similar documents, from a number of countries. In considering revisions to, and updating of, the Guidance over the next few months, we will review whether this particular section should be strengthened.

Transport: Schools

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many school run car journeys he estimates were made in each year since 1997, broken down by the smallest available geographical unit. [226697]

Paul Clark: Data on the number of school run car journeys are not available centrally. However, figures on the proportion of trips to school by mode and region are published in Regional Transport Statistics. The 2007 Edition of this publication is available on the Department for Transport's website at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/regionaldata/rts/regtranstats2007.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what percentage of schools in England he estimates have a travel plan in place. [226698]

Paul Clark: Nearly 70 per cent. of schools currently have a travel plan in place and we are on track to meet our target of all schools to have a travel plan by 2010.

Vehicle Number Plates

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what regulations govern the bearing of representations of (a) the EU flag and (b) the Union flag on motor vehicle licence plates. [225018]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Road Vehicles (Display of Registration Marks) Regulations 2001 permit the voluntary display of the GB Euro symbol on number plates. These Regulations would not permit without amendment the Union Flag or other national identifiers.

West Coast Railway Line

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects Network Rail to end disruption to train journeys from London Euston to Stoke-on-Trent and Manchester at weekends during the modernisation of the West Coast Main Line. [226600]

Paul Clark: Network Rail has advised that the seven day railway will start with the new timetable in December. However, after the modernisation programme has finished, there will still be a continuing need to maintain and renew assets. This will take place late on Saturday evenings, on Sunday mornings and on Bank Holiday weekends.

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects rail journey times from London Euston to Stoke-on-Trent and Manchester on (a) Saturdays and (b) Sundays to run as frequently as the weekday service. [226601]

Paul Clark: The weekday off-peak service pattern and journey times from Euston to Stoke and Manchester will apply to Saturdays, and from 12.00 on Sundays, when the new timetable commences in December.

HEALTH

Breast Cancer: Counselling

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people treated for breast cancer also received psychological and emotional support during and after treatment in each of the last three years. [228126]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

The Cancer Reform Strategy said that it is important for all service providers to have established pathways to enable patients to access specialist psychological support as and when they need it. It is for commissioners to ensure that adequate provision is available so that all patients, families and carers can access the appropriate psychological support for them. This includes establishing service level agreements with local mental health services for more advanced support.

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small- and medium-sized businesses were paid within 30 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [226495]

Mr. Bradshaw: The total number of invoices paid within 30 days of receipt in 2007-08 by the Department and its agencies for which the Department is responsible are shown in the following table.

The Department does not differentiate between small and medium sized businesses so the figures shown represent the total of all received invoices.

	Total number of invoices received	Total number of invoices paid on time	Percentage	Total number of invoices paid	Percentage
Department of Health[1]	80,570	79,190	98.3	1,380	1.7
NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency	3,351	3,100	92.5	251	7.5
Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency	8,771	8,449	96.3	322	3.7
Total	92,692	90,739	97.9	1,953	2.1

[1] Includes all payments made using the Government Procurement Card (GPC).

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were prescribed methadone and other hard drug substitutes in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the size is of the waiting list for substitutes programmes. [226858]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse (NTA) collects data on the types of treatment a client receives via the National Drug Treatment Monitoring System (NDTMS). The majority of clients will have received methadone, as part of their treatment programme/regime. Other substitute medication which clients may have received includes buprenorphine and diamorphine. However the data do not differentiate between the types of substitute medication prescribed to clients.

Type of treatment	2007-08
Specialist prescribing	99,963
GP prescribing	47,036

Note:
These figures may overlap as clients can receive treatment in both a specialist and GP setting in any given year.

The following is taken from NDTMS statistics published in October 2008 and relates to the period 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008.

Waiting times for treatments started during 2007-08 – first and subsequent interventions

	Waiting time less than or equal to 3 weeks		Waiting time greater than 3 weeks
Modality	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage
Specialist prescribing	41,276	91	3,976	9
GP prescribing	15,446	92	1,315	8

The report from which these figures are taken is available for download from the NTA website at:

http://www.nta.nhs.uk/areas/facts_and_figures/0708/docs/ndtms_annual_report_2007_08_011008.pdf.

Health Services: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent per head on health in (a) rural and (b) urban areas in 2007-08. [228107]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally.

NHS: Reorganisation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS hospital trusts are bidding for foundation trust status; and what criteria must be satisfied before they can achieve such status. [225974]

Mr. Bradshaw: The decision to authorise a national health service foundation trust rests entirely with Monitor (the statutory name for which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts). Applicants must demonstrate to Monitor that they are:

financially and clinically viable; legally constituted and locally representative; and well governed.

An applicant trust must receive the Secretary of State's support in order to apply to Monitor for authorisation. Five NHS hospital trusts made a formal application for Secretary of State's support on 1 October 2008. These are:

The Hillingdon NHS Trust;

Calderstones NHS Trust;

East Kent Hospitals NHS Trust;

South Tees NHS Trust; and West Suffolk NHS Trust.

There are currently 21 NHS hospital trusts undergoing or awaiting assessment by Monitor (including deferrals). These are:

Burton Hospitals NHS Trust;

Central Manchester and Manchester Children's University Hospital NHS Trust;

Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust;

Devon Partnership NHS Trust;

Ealing Hospital NHS Trust;

East Lancashire Hospitals NHS Trust;

Hampshire Partnership NHS Trust;

Kettering General Hospital NHS Trust;

Liverpool Heart and Chest Hospital NHS Trust;

North Cheshire Hospitals Hospital NHS Trust;

Northampton General Hospital NHS Trust;

Northamptonshire Healthcare NHS Trust;

Portsmouth Hospitals NHS Trust;

Royal Brampton and Harefield NHS Trust;

Royal Free Hampstead NHS Trust;

Sandwell Mental Health NHS and Social Care Trust;

South West Yorkshire Mental Health NHS Trust;

Swindon and Marlborough NHS Trust;

The Walton Centre for Neurology and Neurosurgery NHS Trust;

Whittington NHS Trust; and Wrightington, Wigan and Leigh NHS Trust.

Vaccination: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations he has received on the adequacy of the supply and distribution of vaccines for children and babies. [227439]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 16 October 2008]: I can confirm that I have had no recent representations about the adequacy of the supply and distribution of vaccines for children and babies. The Department has received correspondence on vaccine issues and these have and continue to be responded to.

The immunisation branch of the Department is in constant contact with primary care trusts and general practitioners to ensure appropriate vaccine supply is maintained.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Hospitals

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which armed forces hospitals have been closed in the last 30 years; and what the date of each such closure was. [226658]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 15 October 2008]: Details of the British Military Hospitals (BMH) that have closed since 1978 are shown as follows.

Country	Hospital	Closed
UK	Princess of Wales RAF Hospital, Ely	1992
	Royal Naval Hospital, Stonehouse (Plymouth)	1995
	Queen Elizabeth Military Hospital, Woolwich	1995
	Cambridge Military Hospital, Aldershot	1995
	Princess Alexandra RAF Hospital, Wroughton	1996
	Princess Mary RAF Hospital, Halton	1996

	Royal Hospital Haslar, Gosport	2007
Cyprus	BMH Dhekelia[1]	1978
Gibraltar	Royal Naval Hospital, Gibraltar[2]	2008
Falkland Islands	Military Wing at King Edward VII Memorial Hospital	2000
Nepal	BMH Dharan	1989
Hong Kong	British Military Hospital, Kings Park	1996

[1] The Princess Mary Hospital at Akrotiri remains in operation.
[2] Medical care is provided by the new, purpose built Princess Royal Medical Centre.

Officials are working to retrieve information on BMHs in Germany and to identify other overseas hospitals that closed during the last 30 years. However any records retained will have been archived and cannot be immediately accessed. I will write to my right hon. Friend once this exercise is complete to advise him of the results.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Armed Forces were sent to the (a) US Navy War College, (b) US National Defense University, (c) US Army War College, (d) US Air University and (e) European Security and Defence College in each year since 2005. [226987]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following table details attendance.

	2005	2006	2007	2008	Total
US Navy War College	2	1	2	1	6
US National Defense University	0	0	1	0	1
US Army War College	1	1	1	1	4
US Air University[1]	2	3	2	4	11
European Security and Defence College	5	7	12	12	36

[1] Includes attendance (x4) at School of Advanced Air and Space Studies (SAASS).

War Pensions

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England were in receipt of a war pension in each year since 1997. [224688]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The number of people in receipt of a war pension as at 31 December in Jarrow constituency, South Tyneside, the North East, and England for each of the calendar years from 2000 to 2007 can be found in the following table. Data is only available as at 30 June for the present calendar year. Data prior to the year 2000 is unavailable.

Number of people in receipt of a war pension in Jarrow constituency, South Tyneside, the North East and England, from 2000 to date[1, 2]

[1] Figures have been rounded to the nearest five.
[2] Figures prior to 2006 are not directly comparable to those published in the quarterly War Pensions National Statistic due to recent improvements in data processing.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenditure on (a) the war pension scheme and (b) the armed forces compensation scheme was in each year since 2004; and what estimates he has made of likely expenditure on each in each of the next three years. [219995]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The expenditure on the War Pension Scheme is as follows:

Financial year	£ million
2004-05	1,110.082
2005-06	1,066.932
2006-07	1,038.574
2007-08	1,014.616

The current estimated expenditure for the next three years is:

Financial year	£ million
2008-09	1,015.602
2009-10	991.921
2010-11	941.758

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme began on 6 April 2005 and the expenditure on it is as follows:

Financial year	£ million
2004-05	—
2005-06	1.274
2006-07	6.159
2007-08	13.067

The current estimated expenditure for the next three years is:

Financial year	Amount (£ million)
2008-09	17.455
2009-10	27.270
2010-11	42.743

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Pay

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of staff in the Government Equalities Office in the last 12 months; and at what cost to the public purse. [226642]

Maria Eagle: In the last 12 months the GEO has awarded 43 non-pensionable bonuses at a total cost before tax of £16,650.

Equality: Public Bodies

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the make-up of the board of each public body is broken down by (a) gender, (b) race, (c) disability, (d) faith, (e) age and (f) sexual orientation. [225859]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office (GEO) sponsors two non departmental public bodies (NDPBs):

The Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC), an executive NDPB and;

The Women's National Commission (WNC), an advisory NDPB.

There is no central requirement to collect data on faith, age and sexual orientation. However, details are shown in the following table for gender, disability and ethnicity and these percentages are based on figures as at 31 March 2008.

Percentage

	Appointees
	Male	Female	Disabled	Ethnic minority
EHRC	37.5	62.5	18.8	37.5
WNC	0	100	0	33.3

This data will also be available along with other Departments' statistics in the Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies 2008", which will be released in the new year.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental ICT

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information technology projects (a) his Department and (b) its agencies cancelled prior to completion in each of the last five years; and what the cost of each project was at cancellation. [223973]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions was created in June 2001. The Department undertakes a large number of projects which deliver business change and policy initiatives. The great majority have been, and continue to be, successful. IT changes are an enabling component of many projects. The number of projects in train at any one time will vary and the duration of the project lifecycle is often more than one calendar year. The following table includes only those projects that have been formally closed where the IT element was such that non-delivery of the IT significantly affected the project's ability to deliver its intended results and the investment in the project exceeded £1 million.

Project name	Investment expenditure £(million)
Document Management	1.4
Retirement Planner	11.2
Benefits Processing Replacement Programme (BPRP)	143[1]

[1] Including future commitments

Of the total investment in BPRP, £73 million out of the £143 million has been of value to the Department, notwithstanding the project's cancellation, as detailed in the Jobcentre Plus 2006-07 Resource Accounts. Part of the residual investment has been reimbursed to the Department, in work and kind, by the project's main provider.

Departmental Marketing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the cost effectiveness of Government-commissioned advertising in the last 12 months relating to matters falling within the remit of his Department. [226508]

Jonathan Shaw: Government policies and programmes affect the lives of millions of people and in order for them to work they must be communicated effectively. The Department runs communications campaigns to support the delivery of its key policies to the appropriate audiences, and advertising is used where appropriate.

The effectiveness of advertising, as with all communications activity, is rigorously assessed according to the individual criteria and objectives set out for each initiative, and results are used to measure effectiveness and to inform future strategy. Methods include quantitative surveys carried out before, during and after advertising campaigns, qualitative assessment of creative work, and in-depth work with samples of those targeted by advertising. The Department is committed to setting robust evaluation metrics for all of its communications activity.

Departmental Public Relations

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in each of the last 36 months. [222134]

Jonathan Shaw: The spend by the DWP and its agencies with the Central Office of Information through its Public Relations Framework for the past three years is detailed in the following table. The data are held on a project basis.

All services requested through COI are procured on an open tender basis with suppliers from their approved range of rosters, following standard procurement processes and in line with EU directives.

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 1180W, on employment, what the figures are for the second quarter of 2008 on the same basis as the figures contained in the Answer. [225148]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The information requested is in the following table.

	Quarter 2 2008
	(i) Employment rate (percentage)	(ii) Working age employment	(iii) 16+ Employment
Foreign nationals	68.9	2,270,000	2,300,000
EU nationals	79.5	1,060,000	1,080,000
Non-EU nationals	61.7	1,200,000	1,220,000

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10,000.
2. The figures provided in the tables are not seasonally adjusted. This means direct comparisons between different quarters are not possible.
3. Nationals from all 27 member states (excluding UK) are included in EU figures.
4. The totals for foreign nationals may not be equal to the sum of the corresponding numbers shown for EU and non-EU nationals due to rounding.
5. As these figures are based on a sample survey they are also subject to sampling variability.
6. It should be noted that the nationality question in the LFS is an undercount because:
a. it excludes those who have not been resident in the UK for six months;
b. it excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent;
c. it excludes people in most other types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites, etc);
d. it is grossed to population estimates that only include migrants staying for 12 months or more.
7. Column (i) refers to the employment rate of working age people, that is the employment level of the working age population as a proportion of the total working age population. Column (ii) refers to the employment level of people of working age, females aged 16-59 and males aged 16-64. Column (iii) refers to the employment level of people aged 16 or over.

Industrial Health and Safety: Cemeteries

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to issue new guidance on health and safety in graveyards. [224600]

Jonathan Shaw: The Health and Safety Executive is supporting the Ministry of Justice and representatives from across the burial industry in finalising guidance on how to manage the risk associated with unstable memorials. The final guidance is due to be discussed at this month's meeting of the Ministry of Justice's Burials and Cemeteries Advisory Group. Subject to agreement there, the intention is to publish in the coming weeks.

Social Security Benefits: Pensioners

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on each type of benefit for pensioners in each year from 1997 to 2007; and how much is forecast to be spent on each type of benefit in each year from 2008 to 2030. [209354]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is in the following tables.

Notes:
1 All figures are consistent with Budget 2008, as well as expenditure information published on the internet at www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/expenditure.asp.
2 Figures are rounded to the nearest million pounds. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
3 Responsibility for War Pensions passed to the Veterans Agency in 2002-03. Therefore this benefit is not included in the tables. Independent Living Fund (ILF) figures are also not included in the table as this benefit comes under Departmental Expenditure Limits (DEL) from 2008-09 onwards.
4. The state pension figure in the table includes the child element of the pensioner benefit.
5. Age related payments include one off payments made to pensioners over 65 years of age in 2004-05 and to people over 65 years and 70 years of age in 2005-06.
6. The projections of benefit expenditure from 2015-16 to 2030-31 take account of the reforms in the Pensions Act 2007. These are illustrative projections, in that they are designed to show the overall fiscal sustainability of benefit policy, as it stands at 2010-11 (the end of the current planning period), along with any future changes to benefits that have already been decided upon, under a particular set of reasonable assumptions. Legislation provides that earnings uprating of BSP will begin in the next Parliament. These projections assume it commences in 2012. In addition, the projections are part of a series showing a broad path of expenditure up to 2050-51. The projections shown are for the United Kingdom, unlike other forecasts up to and including 2010-11 which only cover Great Britain : for TV Licence payments all figures cover the UK.

Statutory Sick Pay

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many employers have incurred a penalty for refusing or repeatedly refusing to pay statutory sick pay in the last two years; what the level of the penalty imposed was in each case; and how long after the initial claim was made by the employee was the fine for refusal imposed in each case. [226318]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply

HMRC set up a centralised system to record Statutory Payments penalties on 1 April 2008. Since then no penalties have been recorded for the offence specified.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the difference in council tax for a band D property is between each two-tier authority and its nearest unitary authority. [226547]

John Healey: Details of the level of B and D council tax in England are available on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/data/ctax089t6.xls

Departmental Executive Agencies

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many agencies were sponsored by her Department or its predecessors in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 1997-98. [228509]

Mr. Khan: The Department's three Executive Agencies that it sponsors are the Fire Service College, the Planning Inspectorate and the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre.

In 1997-98, the majority of the Department for Communities and Local Government's functions were the responsibility of the Department for Environment, Transport and the Regions (DETR). At that time DETR sponsored eight executive agencies, most of which are now the responsibility of the Department for Transport.

Fire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with the Audit Commission on overseeing cost savings from the FiReControl project; and if she will make a statement. [227313]

Mr. Khan: We have had no discussions with the Audit Commission in relation to cost savings from FiReControl.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in the implementation of the FireGuard project; and if she will make a statement. [227842]

Mr. Khan: Fireguard is a collaborative procurement between 33 fire and rescue authorities. We understand that the Project Board meets on 27 October, at which decisions will be taken as to whether a contract will be taken forward.

Fire Services: Finance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with (a) fire and rescue services and (b) fire authorities on the disaggregation of regional funding for resilience issues to individual fire and rescue services; and if she will make a statement. [227843]

Mr. Khan: We published on 8 July the FiReControl Business Case Part 1: "The Regional Case" and a copy was placed in the House Library. This agreed in principle to meet the costs of running the regional control centres in regions not expected to make savings.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the budget for each fire and rescue service in England and Wales is for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [228013]

Mr. Khan: The following figures show net current expenditure on 'Fire and Rescue Services' 2008-09 (from revenue account budgets) for all English Fire and Rescue Services. Figures for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are not yet available. Figures for Fire and Rescue Services in Wales are the responsibility of the devolved Administration.

Fire Services: Floods

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with (a) fire and rescue services and (b) fire authorities on section 9 of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004, in respect of a statutory duty to assist with flooding incidents; and if she will make a statement. [227844]

Mr. Khan: Government are considering the case for a statutory duty on the Fire and Rescue Service for flood rescue following the publication of Sir Michael Pitt's overarching review of the lessons learned from the 2007 floods. We are currently consulting with the UK Search and Rescue Group on this matter, of which the Chief Fire Officers' Association, and other local responders with flood rescue expertise, are members.

FireBuy

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the take-up of FireBuy. [227610]

Mr. Khan: FireBuy was established as the national procurement body for the English Fire and Rescue Service in March 2006. A large number of fire and rescue authorities are now using the contracts and framework arrangements set up by FireBuy. These include smoke alarms, hand-held radios, and a range of specialist fire vehicles and appliances. Other national contract arrangements, for items such as clothing, personal protective equipment and breathing apparatus, are now becoming available and are also likely to be widely used by fire and rescue authorities, as well as a range of other public sector bodies.

Housing: Floods

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households displaced by flooding in summer 2007 have not yet been able to return to their homes, broken down by (a) local authority area and (b) household size. [226465]

John Healey: As at 30 June, we estimate that approximately 3,400 households remained wholly or partially displaced from their homes following the floods of summer 2007. Around 28 per cent. of those not back in their homes at the end of May had returned by the end of June. A breakdown of the figures by local authority area is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/corporate/pdf/895062.pdf

More up-to-date estimates of households still displaced will be published shortly, once we have completed further work to assess their robustness.

The Department does not collect information on the size of households still wholly or partially displaced from their homes.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average cost was of insuring a home against (a) coastal and (b) inland flooding in each of the last five years. [226466]

John Healey: We do not hold this information. Flooding risk is usually included as part of general domestic insurance policies and the cost of such policies is affected by many factors.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of homeowners at risk of flooding have flood insurance. [226467]

John Healey: We do not hold this information. However, the Association of British Insurers has estimated that 93 per cent. of all homeowners have home buildings insurance in place and that 75 per cent. of all households have home contents insurance in place.

Housing: Insulation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assistance she plans to provide for people whose homes have solid walls to provide wall insulation; and if she will make a statement. [224894]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

Finding innovative, cost effective and attractive ways of insulating hard to treat homes will be core to both our carbon saving and fuel poverty alleviation ambitions. The Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT), although specifically designed to deliver carbon savings as cost effectively as possible, includes incentives to encourage suppliers to promote more costly measures appropriate for hard to treat homes, such as solid wall insulation. This has resulted in some 40,000 solid wall homes benefiting from insulation in the last three years, with a further 100,000 expected to be treated by 2011.

Equally, we continue to assess innovative solid wall products for inclusion within Warm Front, the Government's flagship fuel poverty alleviation programme. There will also be a focus on improving the energy efficiency of hard to treat properties, including via solid wall insulation, through the forthcoming Green Neighbourhoods scheme, announced by Hilary Benn in April; and the new £350 million community energy saving obligation on energy suppliers and electricity generators announced by the Prime Minister on 11 September.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to meet local authority leaders to discuss action to protect local authorities from the effects of the insolvency of Icelandic banks; and if she will make a statement. [227209]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement made by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 34WS.

Local Government Finance: Students

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what additional support her Department makes available to local authorities with large student populations. [228021]

John Healey: The Department has recently published research entitled "Evidence Gathering: Housing in Multiple Occupation and possible planning responses—Final Report". This independent research sets out a series of cross cutting measures that could tackle and stop the complex causes and negative symptoms of concentrations of houses in multiple occupation including those in student neighbourhoods. The measures include new planning mechanisms and the widespread adoption of a number of the best common sense local solutions. We are now considering the report's conclusions and how best to take forward the recommendations.

In terms of local authority funding, formula grant is largely distributed using the socio-economic and demographic characteristics of the authority, together with the number of band-D equivalent properties (taxbase) within the authority's area. In order to calculate the taxbase, we take into account factors such as the number of student exemptions in the authority. For the 2008-09 to 2010-11 settlement, we implemented changes to better reflect the likely number of student exemptions in an area in this calculation.

Local Government: Bank Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date (a) her Department and (b) the Audit Commission was first informed of the financial vulnerability of Icelandic banking institutions. [228198]

John Healey: Neither my Department nor the Audit Commission monitors the performance or creditworthiness of any investment institution on behalf of local government; that is a matter for the local authorities concerned, as the Department's investment guidance, published in 2004, makes very clear.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the financial exposure of each (a) local authorities and (b) fire authorities to the Icelandic banking crisis is, expressed in cash terms. [228227]

John Healey: We have been working closely with the Local Government Association (LGA) to assess the position of local authorities that have deposits in Icelandic banks, and to ensure that any authority facing serious short-term difficulty is offered support and expertise from experts drawn from local government itself.

The LGA has been compiling the information supplied by individual local authorities. It has published on its website a list of authorities that have assets in Icelandic Banks, together with the amount, at www.lga.gov.uk.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the financial exposure of (a) local authority private finance initiative schemes and (b) housing associations to the Icelandic banking crisis. [228229]

Mr. Khan: The positions of contractors and senior lenders under standardised PFI contracts are structured so that, if difficulties occur, changes can be made to the parties, within defined limits. No central assessment of particular funders has been carried out. However, if a local authority were to approach this Department with concerns about a project we sponsor, we would provide advice and support as appropriate.

There are around 2,000 housing associations in England—many of which are organisations of significant financial size who will, as a matter of course, keep monies on deposit. We are currently working to establish the extent to which associations are exposed and will continue to monitor the position closely. Housing Associations have a statutory duty to inform their regulator the Housing Corporation if they face any significant difficulties.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Air Pollution

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of air quality in the UK's most polluted areas in each of the last eight years. [227095]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I have been asked to reply.

Since 1997, local authorities have had a statutory duty to review current, and likely future, air quality within their area against national objectives for seven air pollutants. Where any pollutants are exceeding, or are likely to exceed, an air quality objective, the local authority must declare an air quality management area, and prepare and implement an action plan of measures to work towards meeting the relevant objectives. About 200 local authorities across the UK have declared air quality management areas, primarily for nitrogen dioxide (NO_2) and particulate matter (PM_{10}).

DEFRA also undertakes its own air quality monitoring across a number of national networks. Information on these, as well as information on local authorities with air quality management areas and an annual report on DEFRA's air quality monitoring activities, is available in the Air Quality Archive at:

www.airquality.co.uk.

Carbon Emissions: Local Authorities

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on what basis the initial allocation to local authorities will be made under the carbon reduction commitment; and what mechanisms will be put in place to reward local authorities which had reduced their energy consumption prior to the introduction of the scheme. [225210]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 8 October 2008]: The Government will not set allocations for individual organisations participating in the carbon reduction commitment. Instead the Government will set a cap for the total number of allowances available for all participants. Organisations will be required to surrender sufficient allowances to cover their annual emissions and may purchase these through an annual sale or auction, or on the secondary market. Organisations will therefore decide on the basis of their emissions reduction strategy how many allowances they need to buy. There will be a three year introductory phase where participants will be able to purchase unrestricted quantities of allowances at a set price. After the introductory phase a cap will be set on the number of allowances available and the market will determine the price of allowances. The sale or auction revenues will be recycled to organisations according to their position in the carbon reduction commitment league table.

Early action to reduce their energy consumption will be recognised in determining an organisation's position in league table. The two actions that are recognised by the league table are the voluntary installation of automatic metering and accreditation with the Carbon Trust Standard.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many university (a) applicants and (b) successful applicants there were to study (i) medicine, (ii) engineering, (iii) physics, (iv) chemistry, (v) veterinary medicine, (vi) accountancy, (vii) law, (viii) dentistry and (ix) economics courses, broken down by (A) sex and (B) socio-economic class in each year since 1992. [226585]

Mr. Lammy: The available information covers the years between 2002 and 2007 and is contained in tables, copies of which have been placed in Libraries. The National Statistics Socio-Economic Classification (NS-SEC) was introduced in 2002 and replaced social class. The two classifications are not directly comparable, therefore figures for years earlier than 2002 have not been provided. Comparable data for 2008 will not be available until January 2009.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Catering

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the Answer of 13 October 2008, Official Report, column 854W, on catering, how much (a) Brakes Vegetable Suet and (b) Trenwax is used by the catering service each week. [228192]

Nick Harvey: The House of Commons catering service does not record usage of foodstuffs or other commodities on a weekly basis. However, over the six months from April to September 2008, the Department purchased a total of (a) 252 kg of Brakes Vegetable Suet and (b) 50 lt of Trenwax.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Adoption: China

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made in the last six months in reaching agreement with the Chinese authorities about a protocol to enable British citizens to adopt Chinese children. [227801]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The China Center of Adoption Affairs (CCAA) has taken the position that adoptions under Chinese domestic law by British citizens resident in China cannot proceed without a guarantee of automatic conferral of British citizenship on the child.

Although UK adoption law has provisions that recognise adoptions effected in China, British nationality legislation provides that a child will not be a British citizen if the adoption is not made under the 1993 "Convention on Protection of Children and Co-operation in Respect of Intercountry Adoption", or the adoptive parents were not habitually resident in-the United Kingdom at the time the adoption was certified under the convention. Children in such cases can apply for registration as a British citizen at the Home Secretary's discretion under section 3(1) of the British Nationality Act 1981.

In light of the position taken by the CCAA, the Home Office has considered whether it would be possible to give an indication to the Chinese authorities of the likely outcome of an application for citizenship by child adopted in China. The Home Office concluded that this is not possible because the Home Secretary is unable to fetter her discretion by undertaking to grant citizenship in advance of receiving an application.

Citizenship is a matter for the Home Office. However, officials from the Department for Children, Schools and Families are working with Home Office colleagues and Foreign and Commonwealth Office representatives in Beijing, to try and establish with the CCAA a mutually acceptable way forward, through the provision of text for a certificate which may be used in such adoption applications.

Children: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) when he expects the UK Council for Child Internet Safety to develop advice on child internet safety accessible to parents and children via the DirectGov information network, as recommended in the Byron Review; [227193]

(2) what plans he has to develop a public information and awareness campaign on child internet safety; [227194]

(3) by what date he expects the UK Council for Child Internet Safety to have agreed a kitemarking system for parental control computer software; [227196]

(4) what progress has been made in appointing an advisory group to the UK Council for Child Internet Safety; and if he will make a statement. [227197]

Jim Knight: The June 2008 Byron Review Action Plan commits the Government to working with Council partners to develop an authoritative 'one stop shop' website on child internet safety by spring 2009. Initial development has already begun. The 'one stop shop' must be a trusted and central portal for high quality internet safety information, with signposts to the wide range of support and services provided by Council members. This will be developed in close consultation with the Council.

The June 2008 Byron Review Action Plan commits the Government to:

include e-safety in its £9 million child safety awareness campaign over the next three years;

ensure that Parent Know How funded help lines are able to signpost parents concerned about e-safety to sources of further information; and work with CEOP and other Council members to launch an e-safety week in 2009.

The Government will work with Council members to ensure that this activity is linked with campaigns that are already planned or under way, by Government and stakeholders.

The Home Office and Ofcom have been working with the British Standards Institute (BSI) to develop a Publicly Available Specification (PAS) for assessing the quality of filtering software for computers. This has already been delivered, and discussions are under way with major industry players about the time scale for submitting software for testing.

There are no plans to establish an advisory group to the UK Council for Child Internet Safety. As recommended in Dr. Byron's report, on 29 September the Government announced the appointment of senior representatives from across industry, the third sector, law enforcement and the devolved administrations to the UK Council's Executive Board.

The Board will play a crucial role in the governance and strategic direction of all Council activity. It will provide expert guidance, inject momentum into the work of the Council and provide the necessary level of challenge and scrutiny to the working groups. The Board will be the key driving force behind the development and implementation of the Child Internet Safety Strategy in spring 2009.

Further information on Board membership can be found at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/pns/DisplayPN.cgi?pn_id=2008_0215

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how much the Government spent on child internet safety campaigns in each of the last three years; and how much he expects to be spent in 2008-09; [227195]

(2) what the cost of establishing the UK Council for Child Internet Safety has been; how much he expects it to cost in 2008-09; and how much of the funding will come from (a) industry, (b) his Department, (c) the Home Office and (d) the Department for Culture, Media and Sport; [227198]

(3) how many full-time equivalent employees work in the secretariat of the UK Council for Child Internet Safety; and from which Government departments secretariat staff are drawn; [227199]

(4) if he will make it his policy to place in the Library copies of the minutes from each of the meetings held by the UK Council for Child Internet Safety. [227200]

Jim Knight: It is not possible to provide an accurate breakdown for each of the last three years as the majority of Government spending is provided as part of wider funding to schools for the provision of technology. This has been supported by comprehensive guidance to all schools on the importance of internet safety.

Specific initiatives to raise public awareness of internet safety include developing a dedicated training module for UK Online Centres and an investment of £1 million in the Know It All range of CDs for parents to promote internet safety in the home. The Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) have spent £454,000 from 2006-08 on its ThinkUKnow internet safety education programme.

Government have dedicated £9 million over 2008-11 to a safety awareness campaign for children that includes internet safety.

There are various costs involved in establishing the UK Council, including launch costs and hosting the first meeting of the Executive Board. To date the Government have spent approximately £25,000 on these activities. This does not include the cost of officials working within the secretariat.

Moving forward, delivery of Dr. Byron's recommendations will largely rely on building digital safety into planned activities and services that are already funded, such as £9 million on a safety awareness campaign for children that will include internet safety. We recognise that there may be additional costs associated with delivering some of Dr. Byron's recommendations, and we will consider how these can be funded as they are identified.

The Government are in the process of establishing the "properly resourced" secretariat recommended by Dr. Byron to support the work of the council. There are currently three full-time equivalent officials in place with plans to expand to five officials shortly. We are also in discussions with partner agencies on additional part time secondments to support the council and welcome their support.

The level of staffing will be reviewed in the coming months as the work of the council is further defined.

The Government want to be open about the work of the council and there are a number of ways to disseminate information about its work. We will consult with council members and consider the best way for everyone, including parents, to be kept informed about progress on improving online safety for children.

Departmental Information

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what types of data have been sold by his Department under the Re-use of Public Sector Information Regulations in the last 12 months. [222005]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Core information produced by the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) can be re-used free of charge under the terms of the PSI Click-Use Licence which is administered by the Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI) in accordance with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations. Core information produced by DCSF can also be re-used under the terms of the Value Added Licence which is also administered by OPSI. Re-use of the information under the terms of the Value Added Licence may incur a charge based on the type and amount of information. During the financial year 2007-08 the following categories of information were made available for re-use by DCSF and incurred a charge: some publications relating to: Children and Their Primary Schools; Identification, Referral and Tracking Software, and Models of Adult Learning; some photographs; and certain research reports.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advertising campaigns his Department has run since June 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each of these. [227037]

Ed Balls: Promotional campaigns, including those using advertising, are funded from the Department's central Advertising and Publicity Budget and from individual programme budgets held by policy directorates.

Advertising is part of a full integrated promotional campaign. The question refers specifically to advertising and we have been able to separate the Department's spend on advertising, as this is centrally placed through the Central Office of Information. The cost of recruitment advertising for the Department has not been included as it is not possible to establish a definitive figure, except at disproportionate expense. The Department's advertising spend and that of its predecessor (DFES) since 2004 is set out as follows, with a breakdown of individual campaigns. All figures exclude VAT.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many citizens' juries his Department has held since 1 July 2007; what the cost was of each; what issues were discussed at each event; and how many (a) Ministers and (b) members of the public attended each event. [227484]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children Schools and Families has conducted one citizens' jury and 11 related deliberative debates since 1 July 2007 to ensure that the views of parents and young people were reflected in the development and implementation of the Children's Plan.

The Department organised a citizens' jury at Bristol Brunei Academy on 6 September 2007 at a cost of £57,047 including VAT. 38 people participated, including children, young people and teachers from the academy; and parents and local practitioners working with children. The event focused on education and children services and was attended by two Ministers.

The Department followed this citizens' jury with three sets of deliberative debates with members of the public and education professionals.

The first set of deliberative debates was held on 29 September 2007, with four events running simultaneously in London, Leeds, Portsmouth and Birmingham. These events formed part of the consultative process for the Children's Plan. The total cost of the events was £467,704 including VAT. Around 400 young people, parents, teachers and those working with children and young people were involved. A Minister was present at each of the events.

The second set was held on 8 March 2008, with four events again running in London, Leeds, Portsmouth and Birmingham. The events focused on policy areas in the Children's Plan. The events cost £296,026 including VAT. Around 240 people attended, including parents, young people and educational professionals. A Minister was present at each of the events.

The last set took place on 13 September 2008 at a cost of £551,013. The events were held in London, Leeds and Birmingham and were attended by around 300 people including parents, local practitioners and representatives of stakeholder organisations. The themes discussed were Parents as Partners in Learning; the Childcare Strategy and Parental Complaints. Five Ministers attended the events.

Departmental Programmes

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will list the programmes aggregated as Other Miscellaneous programmes in each section of table 8.3, pages 88 to 89, of his Department's 2008 annual report. [224478]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 6 October 2008]: The following list shows the "Other Miscellaneous programmes" included in table 8.3 of the 2008 departmental annual report.

Grammar Schools: Admissions

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the changes in grammar school admission numbers consequent upon the Building Schools for the Future programme in (a) Gravesham constituency and (b) nationally in the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [221895]

Jim Knight: Each local authority assesses its pupil capacity just before entering the Building Schools for the Future programme. An estimated national figure for the overall programme is not available as local authorities are at different entry stages.

In Gravesham, there will be a reduction of around 60 pupils in each of the two grammar schools under the programme.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the evidential basis is for his Department's statement that higher national key stage test results are not a result of teaching to the test, as stated on page 3 of the Government response to the Third Report of the Children, Schools and Families Committee, HC 1003; and if he will make a statement. [227210]

Jim Knight: Standards in our schools are rising, and we do not accept that this is the result of teaching to the test. Results have improved significantly since 1997 for 11 and 14-year-olds, and those results are in turn reflected in higher GCSE results.

The public can have complete faith in the rigour of our testing and examination system which is overseen independently and impartially by the new regulator, Ofqual. School performance is inspected by the independent Ofsted, school examinations set by the independent Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and educational statistics produced and overseen by the Office for National Statistics, now given even greater independence by this Government.

We are gathering evidence about teaching to the test, and exploring whether excessive time is spent on test preparation. The expert group that my hon. Friend the Secretary of State has brought together to advise on the changes to assessment announced on 14 October will also be looking at the advice to be provided to schools to ensure that preparation for national curriculum tests at Key Stage 2 is proportionate, educationally appropriate, and that the delivery of a broad and balanced curriculum is not inhibited.

Pupils: Languages

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools there are in which 10 or more different languages are spoken by pupils as their first language. [226440]

Jim Knight: The information could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

School Meals

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Department is taking to ensure the provision of high quality hot meals in schools. [227961]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families and the School Food Trust have a wide programme to ensure the provision of high quality hot meals in schools. New food-based nutritional standards were introduced in September 2006 for school lunches and from September 2007 for other school food. Nutrient-based standards were introduced for school lunches in September 2008 for primary schools and from September 2009 for secondary and special schools.

We are investing over £650 million between 2005 and 2011 to help improve school food and keep school lunch prices down. This includes £220 million over the three years 2005-06 to 2007-08 to assist authorities and schools in improving school lunches and other school food; £240 million between 2008 and 2011 to support the costs of school lunches; £150 million capital funding to build and refurbish kitchen and dining facilities; and funding to establish FEAST centres to train catering staff. We are also providing an extra £6 million over the next three years for the School Food Trust to promote healthy food to young people and raise take-up.

Schools: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools use accredited filtering services on internet software; [227190]

(2) what percentage of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have acceptable use policies for ICT; and how often schools are advised by his Department to review these guidelines; [227191]

(3) what (a) training and (b) information on e-safety is provided to new teachers. [227192]

Jim Knight: Schools have devolved responsibility and funding in this area supported by guidance from the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (Becta). Schools recognise the importance of providing an accredited service and are well aware of their duty of care to both their staff and pupils.

Most schools choose to have their connectivity provided through either their local authority or a Regional Broadband Consortia (RBC). 56 per cent. of local authorities have access to an accredited service provider and 50 per cent. of RBCs are accredited through Becta's accreditation scheme.

The Government, through Becta, encourage all schools should use an accredited service or software product to ensure the safety of children online.

80 per cent. of primary schools and 90 per cent. of secondary schools have an acceptable use policy (AUP) for pupils that provide guidelines on how to use ICT equipment and the internet. Schools are encouraged to have written ICT strategies and review these on an annual basis.

Updated guidance to support schools in this area is published regularly by the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (Becta).

New teachers entering the profession have to pass the ICT skills test and meet the professional standards for new teachers. One of the key standards in this area is that teachers must "be aware of the current legal requirements, national policies and guidance on the safeguarding and promotion of the well-being of children and young people".

The Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) supports the teacher training organisations with advice and guidance on this standard which makes specific reference to the Byron review.

In addition to their published guidance TDA has, in partnership with Becta and Microsoft, funded the production of resources for KS3 on e-safety for schools. The materials were originally targeted at new teachers—they have been sent to every teacher training organisation—but have since been adapted for use by any adult working with children in schools. Similar resources for KS2 are being developed.

These resources are in addition to materials already produced by Childnet, Becta, CEOP and other agencies.

Following the recommendation in the Byron review, consideration is also being given to including e-safety questions within the ICT skills test. The current format of the test is not an ideal vehicle for testing an understanding of e-safety issues so adaptations will have to be made and tested.

Teachers: Pay

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether academies may pay teachers more than analogous salaries paid by neighbouring community schools. [225165]

Jim Knight [holding answer 14 October 2008]: Academy funding agreements allow for their governing bodies to set their own pay and conditions for staff rather than following national pay and conditions.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Death: Asbestos

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people died from an asbestos-related condition in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997. [224752]

Jonathan Shaw: I have been asked to reply.

There are no data available at the constituency level.

Deaths from lung cancer due to asbestos

Lung cancer deaths caused by asbestos are clinically indistinguishable from those caused by other agents such as tobacco smoke. It is estimated that about the same number of lung cancer deaths due to asbestos occur each year as mesothelioma deaths.

Deaths with asbestosis specified as underlying cause, 1997-2005[1]

The number of deaths where asbestosis was specified as the underlying cause of death in South Tyneside, the North East, and the United Kingdom each year from 1997 is given in the following table.

Immigration: Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the number of inward migrants to the UK intending to stay for 12 months or more who cited work-related purposes as the main reason for migration in (a) each year for which figures are available and (b) each quarter since 2004. [227937]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to respond to your question concerning what estimate has been made of the number of inward migrants to the UK intending to stay for 12 months or more who cited work-related purposes as the main reason for migration in each year for which figures are available and for each quarter since 2004. (227937)

Table 1, attached, gives an estimate of international immigration for work-related reasons between 1977 and 2006. For all years apart from 1995, these estimates include migrants with a definite job to go to and those who are looking for work. Table 2 provides quarterly estimates since 2004.

Both tables are based solely on data from the International Passenger Survey.

Unemployment: Cumbria

Tim Farron: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people living in (a) Westmorland and Lonsdale and (b) Cumbria were unemployed in each of the last 12 months. [227841]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated October 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people living in (a) Westmorland and Lonsdale and (b) Cumbria were unemployed in each of the last 12 months. (227841)

The Office for National Statistics compiles unemployment statistics for local areas using the Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

The APS estimates for Westmorland and Lonsdale and Cumbria are only available for rolling 4 quarter periods. The latest available estimates cover the 12 months ending September 2007 and December 2007 and are provided in Table 1.

Table 2 gives the number of persons claiming Jobseeker's Allowance resident in Westmorland and Lonsdale and Cumbria for each of the last twelve months.

These figures along with a wide range of other labour market data for parliamentary constituencies and local authorities are also published on the Office for National Statistics' Nomis® website:

www.nomisweb.co.uk.

[2] Coefficients of Variation have been calculated for the latest period as an indication of the quality of the estimates. See following Guide to Quality.
Guide to Quality:
The Coefficient of Variation (CV) indicates the quality of an estimate, the smaller the CV value the higher the quality. The true value is likely to lie within +/- twice the CV—for example, for an estimate of 200 with a CV of 5 per cent. we would expect the population total to be within the range 180-220.
Key Coefficient of Variation (CV) (%) Statistical Robustness
* 0 = CV< 5 Estimates are considered precise
 5 = CV < 10 Estimates are considered reasonably precise
 10 = CV < 20 Estimates are considered acceptable
* CV 20 Estimates are considered too unreliable for practical purposes

TREASURY

Bank Services

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what provisions are in place to guarantee the funds of (a) individuals and (b) companies who have received the proceeds from the sale of their homes, or other large transactions, into law firms' client accounts in an insolvent bank; [228193]

(2) whether individuals will be able to claim the £50,000 deposit guarantee on the funds in their own account and on their deposits in a law firm client account in circumstances where such accounts are held with the same bank; [228194]

(3) whether the £50,000 bank deposit guarantee cap will apply to clients with funds in law firms' client accounts. [228195]

Ian Pearson: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is responsible for making the rules of the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS), including the rule change which increased the compensation limit for bank deposits to £50,000, and the rules which set out how claims in respect of sums held in client accounts are to be treated. The increased compensation limit applies in relation to all claims in respect of protected deposits. The rules on the treatment of claims in respect of sums held in client accounts are set out in the FSA Handbook which is available on the FSA website and guidance is available on the FSCS website. The FSA consultation paper on the review of FSCS limits issued on 3 October includes a section discussing the issue of temporary high deposit balances.

Financial Services: Regulation

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what role his Department played in discussions leading to the decision of the Financial Services Authority of 18 September 2008 to prohibit short selling in financial institutions. [227805]

Ian Pearson: The UK Tripartite authorities, HM Treasury, the Bank of England, and the Financial Services Authority (FSA), have worked, and continue to work, together to take all necessary steps to ensure the stability of the UK financial system. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

HM Treasury welcomes the short selling measures that the FSA has taken against the backdrop of the present turbulence in the markets. The FSA operates within a single legislative framework; independent of Government; separate from the conduct of monetary policy by the Bank of England; and accountable to HM Treasury, Parliament, regulated firms and consumers. The Government do not have a general power of direction over the FSA.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many individuals in Northern Ireland pay more income tax than before following the abolition of the 10 pence band as modified by the changes announced on 13 May 2008. [227222]

Mr. Timms: The removal of the 10p rate is part of a package of reforms announced in Budget 2007 that also included changes to tax credits, which are awarded based on family income. Due to a small sample size for Northern Ireland it is not possible to produce a reliable estimate of the number of households that pay more net tax as a result of those changes and the subsequent increase in personal allowances announced on 13 May 2008.

National Insurance Fund

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the (a) benefit expenditure, (b) balance, (c) surplus above one-sixth of annual benefit expenditure and (d) revenue of the National Insurance Fund was in each year since 1997; [227663]

(2) how much the Government has borrowed from the National Insurance Fund to pay for non-national insurance-funded programmes in each year since 1997. [227664]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is provided in the National Insurance Fund Accounts that are published annually. Copies of the Accounts are available in the Library of the House.

Any surplus in the National Insurance Fund is held in a short-term investment account run by the Commissioners for the reduction of national debt.

Revenue and Customs: Buildings

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many office buildings owned or leased by HM Revenue and Customs are currently not in use in (a) England, (b) the South West, (c) Cornwall and (d) each parliamentary constituency in Cornwall. [227501]

Mr. Timms: No buildings owned or leased by HM Revenue and Customs in England are not in use.

Social Security Benefits

Charles Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people applied for (a) working tax credit and (b) child tax credit in each month since January 2006. [228029]

Mr. Timms: The information is not available in the format requested. Child and working tax credits are claimed on the same form so it is not possible to provide separate figures for working tax credit and child tax credit except at disproportionate cost.

Taxation: Invalid Vehicles

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make an assessment of the implications for UK policy of the recent decision by the Dutch authorities in relation to the tax on mobility scooters for the use of disabled people in response to legal action in that country. [222243]

Mr. Timms: The UK must follow European Union classification policy, which currently classifies mobility scooters as 'vehicles principally designed for the transport of persons'

and sets an import duty of 10 per cent. for customs purposes. The UK cannot adopt a decision made in isolation by a national Court in another member state.

The European Commission has been asked to confirm EU policy in the light of a decision by the Dutch authorities. HMRC will continue to work with the British Healthcare Trades Association and others seeking a change in EU classification policy and will be representing the views of UK importers of mobility scooters in future discussions.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to provide a substantive response to Question 222243, on taxation of mobility scooters, tabled on 21 July 2008. [227545]

Mr. Timms: I have today replied to the hon. Member and regret not having been in a position to do so earlier.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Admiralty House

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Lord Malloch Brown will continue to occupy a ministerial residence in Admiralty House following the recent Cabinet reshuffle and changes to the machinery of Government. [225214]

Gillian Merron: I can confirm that Lord Malloch-Brown will continue to occupy a ministerial residence in Admiralty House.

Belarus: State Visits

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any Ministers or officials plan to meet the Prime Minister of the Republic of Belarus when he visits the UK in November. [226456]

Caroline Flint: At the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 13 October, EU Foreign Ministers agreed to suspend for six months the travel ban against a number of Belarusian figures, including President Lukashenko, and the ban on senior-level political contacts.

We are under no illusions that the situation on democracy and human rights remains poor. Wider sanctions were renewed for a further 12 months, and if respect for democracy and human rights does not improve, or worsens, the EU will reimpose the travel ban.

The decision was taken because we believe the time is right to re-engage with Belarus, and in recognition of the important step that Belarus has taken in releasing its last remaining political prisoners. Engagement at senior levels will give its leadership the opportunity to hear our message directly. The visit by the Belarusian Prime Minister in November would give us an opportunity to do this, and we are considering appropriate meetings during the course of the visit.

British Council: Performing Arts

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding his Department provided to the British Council to sponsor British musical and theatrical artists to perform overseas in each year since 1998. [225518]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office provided £190 million grant in aid funding to the British Council in 2007-08. However, it does not hold detailed records on funding for musical and theatrical artists to perform overseas. The British Council currently has three key programme areas: intercultural dialogue, climate change, and supporting the UK's creative and knowledge economy. The British Council's financial systems do not currently hold information at the level of detail to provide this specific breakdown and to obtain it would incur disproportionate cost.

British Nationality: Travel Information

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what procedures are in place to provide advice on security matters to British citizens making arrangements to travel overseas; to which countries such advice relates; and if he will make a statement. [223576]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office maintain a web site and a call centre specifically tasked to provide travel advice to British Nationals making arrangements to travel, and while travelling overseas. This advice is constantly amended using information from a range of sources, specific to security, such as the Joint Terrorist Analysis Centre, the security and intelligence agencies, open source/medis reporting and our diplomatic missions overseas.

Travel Advice is available on www.fco.gov.uk/en/travellinig-and-living-overseas/travel-advice-by-country or via the Travel Advice Call Centre 0845 850 2829 (available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week).

Croatia: Missing Persons

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens were reported as missing in Croatia in each of the last three years; how many of these have not yet been found; and if he will make a statement. [225347]

Caroline Flint: Our consular staff were made aware of four cases of missing British citizens in Croatia over the past three years, one each in 2006 and 2007, and two in 2008. None are still missing.

Diplomatic Service

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in which UN member states the UK has no resident British Ambassador or resident British High Commissioner; and from which country British diplomatic representation is provided by accreditation in each of those countries.[1] [223091]

Gillian Merron: There are 54 UN member states in which the UK has no resident British ambassador or resident British high commissioner. They are shown in the following table with details of from where British diplomatic representation is provided by accreditation.

Georgia: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken to encourage a peaceful resolution of the dispute between Russia and Georgia. [225400]

Caroline Flint: The Government have been in close contact with UN, EU, North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO), G7, and Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE) partners, and the parties to the conflict, in the search for a peaceful resolution to the dispute between Russia and Georgia.

On 12 August, the Government supported EU/OSCE efforts which successfully brokered a six-point ceasefire plan between the parties to the conflict. This plan provided the basis for the agreement between Presidents Sarkozy and Medvedev on 8 September of a supplementary set of commitments, and set the context for the decision by EU Foreign Ministers on 15 September to deploy an EU monitoring mission to Georgia by 1 October. The mission deployed by the agreed deadline and is on the ground. The UK has made a significant contribution of 20 personnel and four armoured cars, in addition to earlier immediate humanitarian aid of £2 million.

The Sarkozy/Medvedev agreement, along with the original six-point plan, constitutes a serious set of commitments to the international community, and lays the basis for a lasting and peaceful resolution of the dispute between Russia and Georgia. Under that agreement, talks on security and stability in South Ossetia and Abkhazia will begin in Geneva on 15 October, under EU chairmanship, with UN and OSCE participation. We are pressing the parties to the conflict to abide by their commitments.

Georgia: South Ossetia

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the security and intelligence services reported to his Department on the possibility of military action by Georgia in South Ossetia before the action began. [223176]

Caroline Flint: It is the long standing policy of the Government not to comment on matters relating to the intelligence and security services.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Georgian government on the effects of its military actions in South Ossetia on civilians in the region. [223178]

Caroline Flint: Over the years, the UK, EU and its other allies have warned the Georgian government that any attempt to take over the two separatist regions (Abkhazia and South Ossetia) by force would be counterproductive.

In all our contacts with the Georgian Government, we have emphasised the serious consequences for innocent civilians caught up in military actions. We have urged the Georgians to agree to the ceasefire and then to implement the peace plan which would enable the international community to deal with the humanitarian situation.

On 8 August 2008, our ambassador in Tbilisi called on the Georgian Foreign Minister to express the UK Government's deep concerns at the renewed fighting and to call for an immediate ceasefire, not least to allow civilians to escape. He conveyed the Government's regret at the tragic loss of life.

In his call to the Georgian President on 15 August, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister expressed particular concern for the thousands of displaced people and pointed out that the Georgian government had a big responsibility to meet humanitarian needs in this crisis.

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what meetings he has had with diplomats and officials from (a) Georgia, (b) Russia, (c) the UN, (d) the European Union and (e) NATO on the outbreak of conflict in South Ossetia since it took place; and if he will make a statement. [223396]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend Foreign Secretary has had a number of meetings with international leaders concerning the outbreak of conflict in South Ossetia since hostilities began. These include his meeting with North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) Foreign Ministers in Brussels on 19 August. Later the same day, he met the Georgian President in Tbilisi, and again at the UN on 27 September. Also at the UN, he met the Russian Foreign Minister on 25 September. My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary attended an extraordinary meeting of the European Council on 1 September. The Foreign Secretary also met the Georgian Prime Minister in London on 19 September.

Alongside the Foreign Secretary's meetings, UK officials and diplomats have been in close contact with UN, EU, NATO, G7, and Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe partners, and the parties to the conflict, in the search for a lasting and peaceful resolution to the dispute between Georgia and Russia. Following my recent appointment as Minister for Europe at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, I look forward to helping to achieve that goal.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date his Department first made a response to the attack by

Georgian forces on 7 August on residents of Russian origin in South Ossetia; what the response was; to whom it was made; whether any revision has been made to that response subsequently; and what discussions his Department has had with the government of Georgia on the matter. [223474]

Caroline Flint: In a statement published on 8 August 2008, the Government joined international calls for an immediate ceasefire in South Ossetia after Georgia launched a military offensive to regain control of the breakaway province. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office said that it was "monitoring" developments and called for an immediate ceasefire in the fighting in South Ossetia and for a resumption of direct dialogue between all the parties.

On 8 August, our ambassador in Tbilisi called on the Georgian Foreign Minister, Eka Tkeshelashvili to urge restraint and cooperation with the international peace efforts and convey our support for Georgia's territorial integrity within the internationally-recognised borders.

In a statement on 9 August, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said: "The UK Government are deeply concerned by the violence in Georgia. The escalation in fighting is dangerously destabilising and there is also the threat of civilian losses on a large scale. I am today holding high level consultations with European Foreign Ministers and with the US Secretary of State. The UK will be discussing with all our partners how to stop the spread of violence, secure a ceasefire and get talks underway."

On 15 August, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister spoke with the Georgian President Mikheil Saakashvili urging cooperation and implementation of the peace plan brokered by the EU, and the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The Government's response to the crisis has remained the same—urging all parties to the conflict to work with the international community towards a sustainable resolution of the conflict based on territorial integrity, rule of law and respect for human rights.

I refer my hon. Friend to the Prime Ministerial written statement after the Extraordinary European Council on the crisis in Georgia on 1 September 2008 for further details of our response to the crisis, Official Report, 10 September 2008, columns 127-30WS.

Youth Parliaments

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which overseas youth parliaments his Department has funded in the last five years; and how much his Department has provided for each. [226181]

Caroline Flint: Financial information at this level of detail is not held centrally. Therefore to answer this question would incur disproportionate cost, as all our overseas posts and a number of FCO Directorates would need to be consulted.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Homicide

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many unsolved murders there have been in Northern Ireland over the last 30 years. [185677]

[Official Report, 21 February 2008, Vol. 472, c. 837W.]

Letter of correction from Paul Goggins:

An error has been identified in the answer given to the hon. Member for Romford on 21 February 2008. The full answer given was as follows:

Paul Goggins: The PSNI has advised that for the period 1970 to 2004 the number of cases of murder which remain open and under investigation is 3,951.

The figures provided previously referred to the number of deaths that were under investigation by the Police Service of Northern Ireland. These included deaths which are currently not classified as murder, but are suspicious or deal with the disappearance, presumed death, of a person.

The correct answer should have been:

Paul Goggins: The following table provides a breakdown of the figures requested:

HOME DEPARTMENT

Northamptonshire Police

Mr. Bone: I understand the figures that the Minister cites, but one problem in Northamptonshire is that the population of the area in 1997 was much smaller.

[Official Report, 8 October 2008, Vol. 480, c. 100-07WH.]

Letter of correction from Mr. Alan Campbell:

On 8 October 2008 I responded on behalf of the Government to an adjournment debate you had called to discuss the performance of Northamptonshire Police. I found it an interesting debate and was grateful for the constructive way you raised your issues and in that spirit I thought it important to let you know about a slight factual error I provided to the House.

During the debate, when I was quoting the police numbers in your area I said:

"At the end of March 2008, Northamptonshire had 1,264 police officers, which is an increase of 87 officers on the previous year, and the force has 159 police community support officers."

I should however have said that the increase of 87 police officers was from March 1997.

Promoting Democracy and Human Rights

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Gillian Merron): In addition, there will be a discussion of human rights in specific countries as a standing item on the agenda of the Human Rights Council—an item that was not on the old commission's agenda.

[Official Report, 13 October 2008, Vol. 480, c. 641.]

Letter of correction from Gillian Merron:

An error has been identified in the Oral Answer given during the debate on promoting democracy and human rights on 13 October 2008.
